THE LIBRARY OF POETRY
AND SONG

*When that my mood is sad, and in the noise
And bustle of the crowd I feel rebuke,
I turn my footsteps from its hollow joys
And sit me down beside this little brook.*

POEMS OF RELIGION

8317

Thou hast no shore, fair ocean !
 Thou hast no time, bright day !
 Dear fountain of refreshment
 To pilgrims far away !
 Upon the Rock of Ages
 They raise thy holy tower ;
 Thine is the victor's laurel,
 And thine the golden dower !

Thou feel'st in mystic rapture,
 O Bride that know'st no guile,
 The Prince's sweetest kisses,
 The Prince's loveliest smile ;
 Unfading lilies, bracelets
 Of living pearl thine own ;
 The Lamb is ever near thee,
 The Bridegroom thine alone.
 The Crown is he to guerdon,
 The Buckler to protect,
 And he himself the Mansion,
 And he the Architect.

The only art thou needest —
 Thanksgiving for thy lot ;
 The only joy thou seekest —
 The Life where Death is not.
 And all thine endless leisure,
 In sweetest accents, sings
 The ill that was thy merit,
 The wealth that is thy King's !

Jerusalem the golden,
 With milk and honey blest,
 Beneath thy contemplation
 Sink heart and voice oppressed.
 I know not, O I know not,
 What social joys are there !
 What radiancy of glory,
 What light beyond compare !

And when I fain would sing them,
 My spirit fails and faints ;
 And vainly would it image
 The assembly of the Saints.

They stand, those halls of Zion,
 Conjubilant with song,
 And bright with many an angel,
 And all the martyr throng ;
 The Prince is ever in them,
 The daylight is serene ;
 The pastures of the Blessed
 Are decked in glorious sheen.

There is the Throne of David,
 And there, from care released,
 The song of them that triumph,
 The shout of them that feast ;

And they who, with their Leader,
 Have conquered in the fight,
 Forever and forever
 Are clad in robes of white !

O holy, placid harp-notes
 Of that eternal hymn !
 O sacred, sweet reflection,
 And peace of Seraphim !
 O thirst, forever ardent,
 Yet evermore content !
 O true peculiar vision
 Of God cunctipotent !
 Ye know the many mansions
 For many a glorious name,
 And divers retributions
 That divers merits claim ;
 For midst the constellations
 That deck our earthly sky,
 This star than that is brighter —
 And so it is on high.

Jerusalem the glorious !
 The glory of the Elect !
 O dear and future vision
 That eager hearts expect !
 Even now by faith I see thee,
 Even here thy walls discern ;
 To thee my thoughts are kindled,
 And strive, and pant, and yearn.

Jerusalem the only,
 That look'st from heaven below,
 In thee is all my glory,
 In me is all my woe ;
 And though my body may not,
 My spirit seeks thee fain,
 Till flesh and earth return me
 To earth and flesh again.

O none can tell thy bulwarks,
 How gloriously they rise !
 O none can tell thy capitals
 Of beautiful device !
 Thy loveliness oppresses
 All human thought and heart ;
 And none, O peace, O Zion,
 Can sing thee as thou art !

New mansion of new people,
 Whom God's own love and light
 Promote, increase, make holy,
 Identify, unite !
 Thou City of the Angels !
 Thou City of the Lord !
 Whose everlasting music
 Is the glorious decachord !

And there the band of Prophets
 United praise ascribes,
 And there the twelvefold chorus
 Of Israel's ransomed tribes.
 The lily-beds of virgins,
 The roses' martyr-glow,
 The cohort of the Fathers
 Who kept the faith below.

And there the Sole-Begotten
 Is Lord in regal state, —
 He, Judah's mystic Lion,
 He, Lamb Immaculate.
 O fields that know no sorrow !
 O state that fears no strife !
 O princely bowers ! O land of flowers !
 O realm and home of Life !

Jerusalem, exulting
 On that securest shore,
 I hope thee, wish thee, sing thee,
 And love thee evermore !
 I ask not for my merit,
 I seek not to deny
 My merit is destruction,
 A child of wrath am I ;
 But yet with faith I venture
 And hope upon my way ;
 For those perennial guerdons
 I labor night and day.

The best and dearest FATHER,
 Who made me and who saved,

Bore with me in defilement,
 And from defilement laved,
 When in his strength I struggle,
 For very joy I leap,
 When in my sin I totter,
 I weep, or try to weep :
 Then grace, sweet grace celestial,
 Shall all its love display,
 And David's Royal Fountain
 Purge every sin away.

O mine, my golden Zion !
 O lovelier far than gold,
 With laurel-girt battalions,
 And safe victorious fold !
 O sweet and blessed Country,
 Shall I ever see thy face ?
 O sweet and blessed Country,
 Shall I ever win thy grace ?
 I have the hope within me
 To comfort and to bless !
 Shall I ever win the prize itself ?
 O tell me, tell me, Yes !

Exult ! O dust and ashes !
 The Lord shall be thy part ;
 His only, his forever,
 Thou shalt be, and thou art !
 Exult, O dust and ashes !
 The Lord shall be thy part ;
 His only, his forever,
 Thou shalt be, and thou art !

From the Latin of BERNARD DE MORLAIX
 Translation of JOHN MASON NEALE.

DIES IRÆ.

[A Latin poem by THOMAS OF CELANO (a Neapolitan village), about A.D. 1250. Perhaps no poem has been more frequently translated. A German collector published eighty-seven versions in Gerinan. Dr. Coles, of Newark, N. J., has made thirteen. Seven are given in the "Seven Great Hymns of the Mediæval Church," Randolph & Co., N. Y. The version here given preserves the measure of the original.]

DIES IRÆ, DIES ILLA, dies tribulationis et angustia, dies calamitatis et miserie, dies tenebrarum et caliginis, dies nebulae et turbinis, dies tuba et clangoris super civitatibus munitis, et super angulis excelsos ! — Sophonias i. 15, 16.

THAT DAY, A DAY OF WRATH, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wretchedness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers ! — Zephaniah i. 15, 16.

DIES IRÆ, dies illa !
 Solvet seculum in favillâ,
 Teste David cum Sybillâ.

DAY of vengeance, without morrow !
 Earth shall end in flame and sorrow,
 As from Saint and Seer we borrow.

Quantus tremor est futurus,
 Quando Iudex est venturus,
 Cuncta striete discussurus !

Ah ! what terror is impending,
 When the Judge is seen descending,
 And each secret veil is rending !

Tuba mirum spargens sonum
 Per sepulcra regionum,
 Coget omnes ante thronum.

To the throne, the trumpet sounding,
 Through the sepulchres resounding,
 Summons all, with voice astounding.

Mors stupebit, et natura,
Quum resurget creatura,
Judicanti responsura.

Liber scriptus proferetur,
In quo totum continetur,
Unde mundus judicetur.

Judex ergo cum sedebit,
Quidquid latet, apparebit :
Nil inultum remanebit.

Quid sum, miser ! tunc dicturus,
Quem patronum rogaturus,
Quum vix justus sit securus ?

Rex tremendæ majestatis,
Qui salvandos salvas gratis,
Salva me, fons pietatis !

Recordare, Jesu pie,
Quod sum causa tuæ viæ ;
Ne me perdas illâ die !

Quærens me, sedisti lassus,
Redemisti, crucem passus :
Tantus labor non sit cassus !

Juste Judex ultionis,
Donum fac remissionis
Ante diem rationis !

Ingemisco tanquam reus,
Culpâ rubet vultus meus ;
Supplicanti parce, Deus !

Qui Mariam absolvisti,
Et latronem exaudisti,
Mihi quoque spem dedisti.

Preces meæ non sunt dignæ,
Sed tu bonus fac benigne
Ne perenni cremer igne !

Inter oves locum præsta,
Et ab hædis me sequestra,
Statuens in parte dextrâ.

Confutatis maledictis,
Flammis acribus addictis,
Voca me cum benedictis !

Oro supplex et acclinis,
Cor contritum quasi cinis,
Gere curam mei finis !

Lacrymosa dies illa,
Qua resurget ex favillâ
Judicandus homo reus ;
Huic ergo parce, Deus !

Death and Nature, mazed, are quaking,
When, the grave's long slumber breaking,
Man to judgment is awaking.

On the written Volume's pages,
Life is shown in all its stages —
Judgment-record of past ages.

Sits the Judge, the raised arrainging,
Darkest mysteries explaining,
Nothing unavenged remaining.

What shall I then say, unfriended,
By no advocate attended,
When the just are scarce defended ?

King of majesty tremendous,
By thy saving grace defend us,
Fount of pity, safety send us !

Holy JESUS, meek, forbearing,
For my sins the death-crown wearing,
Save me, in that day, despairing !

Worn and weary, thou hast sought me ;
By thy cross and passion bought me —
Spare the hope thy labors brought me !

Righteous Judge of retribution,
Give, O give me absolution
Ere the day of dissolution !

As a guilty culprit groaning,
Flushed my face, my errors owning,
Hear, O God, my spirit's moaning !

Thou to Mary gav'st remission,
Heard'st the dying thief's petition,
Bad'st me hope in my contrition.

In my prayers no grace discerning,
Yet on me thy favor turning,
Save my soul from endless burning !

Give me, when thy sheep confiding
Thou art from the goats dividing,
On thy right a place abiding !

When the wicked are confounded,
And by bitter flames surrounded,
Be my joyful pardon sounded !

Prostrate, all my guilt discerning,
Heart as though to ashes turning ;
Save, O save me from the burning !

Day of weeping, when from ashes
Man shall rise mid lightning flashes, —
Guilty, trembling with contrition,
Save him, Father, from perdition !

STABAT MATER DOLOROSA.

[A Latin poem, written in the thirteenth century by JACOPONE, a Franciscan friar, of Umbria. Of this and the two preceding poems Dr. Neale says: "The De Contemptu is the most lovely, the Dies Ira the most sublime, and the Stabat Mater the most pathetic, of mediæval poems."]

STABAT Mater dolorosa
Juxta crucem lacrymosa,
Dum pendebat filius;
Cujus animam gementem,
Contristatam et dolentem,
Pertransiuit gladius.

O quam tristis et afflicta,
Fuit illa benedicta
Mater unigeniti,
Quæ morebat et dolebat,
Pia mater, dum videbat
Nati pœnas inclyti!

Quis est homo qui non fleret,
Christi matrem si videret
In tanto supplicio?
Quis non posset contristari
Piam matrem contemplari
Dolentem cum filio?

Pro peccatis sue gentis,
Vidit Jesum in tormentis,
Et flagellis subditum.
Vidit suum dulcem natum,
Morientem, desolatum,
Dum emisit spiritum.

Eia mater, fons amoris,
Me sentire vim doloris
Fac, ut tecum lugeam.
Fac ut ardeat cor meum
In amando Christum Deum,
Ut illi compleamur.

Sancta Mater, istud agas,
Crucifixi fige plagas
Cordi meo valide.
Tui nati vulnerati,
Tam dignati pro me pati,
Pœnas mecum divide.

Fac me vere tecum flere,
Crucifixo condolere,
Donec ego vixero;
Juxta crucem tecum stare,
Et tibi me sociare
In planctu desidero.

Virgo virginum præclara,
Mihi jam non sis amara;
Fac me tecum plangere;
Fac ut portem Christi mortem,
Passionis fac consortem,
Et plagas recolere.

STOOD the afflicted mother weeping,
Near the cross her station keeping
Whereon hung her Son and Lord;
Through whose spirit sympathizing,
Sorrowing and agonizing,
Also passed the cruel sword.

Oh! how mournful and distressed
Was that favored and most blessed
Mother of the only Son,
Trembling, grieving, bosom heaving,
While perceiving, scarce believing,
Pains of that illustrious One!

Who the man, who, called a brother,
Would not weep, saw he Christ's mother
In such deep distress and wild?
Who could not sad tribute render Witnessing that mother tender
Agonizing with her child?

For his people's sins atoning,
Him she saw in torments groaning,
Given to the scourger's rod;
Saw her darling offspring dying,
Desolate, forsaken, crying,
Yield his spirit up to God.

Make me feel thy sorrow's power,
That with thee I tears may shower,
Tender mother, fount of love!
Make my heart with love unceasing
Burn toward Christ the Lord, that pleasing
I may be to him above.

Holy mother, this be granted,
That the slain one's wounds be planted
Firmly in my heart to bide.
Of him wounded, all astounded —
Depths unbounded for me sounded —
All the pangs with me divide.

Make me weep with thee in union;
With the Crucified, communion
In his grief and suffering give;
Near the cross, with tears unfailing,
I would join thee in thy wailing
Here as long as I shall live.

Maid of maidens, all excelling!
Be not bitter, me repelling;
Make thou me a mourner too;
Make me bear about Christ's dying,
Share his passion, shame defying;
All his wounds in me renew.

Fac me plagis vulnerari,
Cruce hac inebriari,
Et cruore filii ;
Inflammatum et accensum,
Per te, Virgo, sim defensum
In die iudicii.

Fac me cruce custodiri,
Morte Christi præmuniri,
Confoveri gratia.
Quando corpus morietur,
Fac ut animæ donetur
Paradisi gloria.

FRA JACOPONE.

Wound for wound be there created ;
With the cross intoxicated
For thy Son's dear sake, I pray —
May I, fired with pure affection,
Virgin, have through thee protection
In the solemn Judgment Day.

Let me by the cross be warded,
By the death of Christ be guarded,
Nourished by divine supplies.
When the body death hath riven,
Grant that to the soul be given
Glories bright of Paradise.

ABRAHAM COLES.

VENI SANCTE SPIRITUS.

[This hymn was written in the tenth century by ROBERT II., the gentle son of HUGH CAPEL. It is often mentioned as second in rank to the Dies Iræ.]

VENI, Sancte Spiritus,
Et emitte cœlitus
Lucis tuæ radium.

Veni, pater pauperum,
Veni, dator munerum,
Veni, lumen cordium.

Consolator optime,
Dulcis hospes animæ,
Dulce refrigerium.

In labore requies,
In æstu temperies,
In fletu solatium.

O lux beatissima !
Reple cordis intima,
Tuorum fidelium.

Sine tuo numine,
Nihil est in homine,
Nihil est innoxium.

Lava quod est sordidum,
Riga quod est aridum,
Sana quod est saucium.

Flecte quod est rigidum,
Fove quod est frigidum,
Rege quod est devium.

Da tuis fidelibus,
In te confidentibus,
Sacrum septenarium ;

Da virtutis meritum,
Da salutis exitum,
Da perenne gaudium !

ROBERT II. OF FRANCE.

COME, Holy Ghost ! thou fire divine !
From highest heaven on us down shine !
Comforter, be thy comfort mine !

Come, Father of the poor, to earth ;
Come, with thy gifts of precious worth ;
Come, Light of all of mortal birth !

Thou rich in comfort ! Ever blest
The heart where thou art constant guest,
Who giv'st the heavy-laden rest.

Come, thou in whom our toil is sweet,
Our shadow in the noonday heat,
Before whom mourning flieth fleet.

Bright Sun of Grace ! thy sunshine dart
On all who cry to thee apart,
And fill with gladness every heart.

Whate'er without thy aid is wrought,
Or skilful deed, or wisest thought,
God counts it vain and merely naught.

O cleanse us that we sin no more,
O'er parchèd souls thy waters pour ;
Heal the sad heart that acheth sore.

Thy will be ours in all our ways ;
O melt the frozen with thy rays ;
Call home the lost in error's maze.

And grant us, Lord, who cry to thee,
And hold the Faith in unity,
Thy precious gifts of charity ;

That we may live in holiness,
And find in death our happiness,
And dwell with thee in lasting bliss !

CATHARINE WINKWORTH.

VENI CREATOR SPIRITUS.

[This hymn, one of the most important in the service of the Latin Church, has been sometimes attributed to the EMPEROR CHARLEMAGNE. The better opinion, however, inclines to POPE GREGORY I., called the Great, as the author, and fixes its origin somewhere in the sixth century.]

VENI, Creator Spiritus,
Mentes tuorum visita,
Imple superna gratia,
Quæ tu creasti pectora.

CREATOR Spirit, by whose aid
The world's foundations first were laid,
Come visit every pious mind,
Come pour thy joys on human kind ;
From sin and sorrow set us free,
And make thy temples worthy thee.

Qui diceris Paraclitus,
Altissimi donum Dei,
Fons vivus, ignis, caritas,
Et spiritalis unctio.

O source of uncreated light,
The Father's promised Paraclete !
Thrice holy fount, thrice holy fire,
Our hearts with heavenly love inspire ;
Come, and thy sacred unction bring,
To sanctify us while we sing.

Tu septiformis munere,
Dextræ Dei tu digitus
Tu rite promissum Patris,
Sermone ditans guttura.

Plenteous of grace, descend from high,
Rich in thy seven-fold energy !
Thou strength of his almighty hand,
Whose power does heaven and earth command !
Proceeding Spirit, our defence,
Who dost the gifts of tongues dispense,
And crown'st thy gift with eloquence !

Accende lumen sensibus,
Infunde amorem cordibus,
Infirma nostri corporis
Virtute firmans perpeti.

Refine and purge our earthly parts ;
But, O, inflame and fire our hearts !
Our frailties help, our vice control,
Submit the senses to the soul ;
And when rebellious they are grown,
Then lay thy hand and hold 'em down.

Hostem repellas longius,
Pacemque dones protinus :
Ductore sic te prævio
Vitemus omne noxium.

Chase from our minds the infernal foe,
And peace, the fruit of love, bestow ;
And, lest our feet should step astray,
Protect and guide us on the way.

Per te sciamus da Patrem, Noscamus atque Filium ;
Te utriusque Spiritum
Credamus omni tempore.

Make us eternal truths receive,
And practise all that we believe ;
Give us thyself, that we may see
The Father and the Son by thee.

Deo Patri sit gloria
Et Filio qui a mortuis
Surrexit, ac Paraclito,
In sæculorum sæcula.

Immortal honor, endless fame,
Attend the Almighty Father's name ;
The Saviour Son be glorified,
Who for lost man's redemption died ;
And equal adoration be,
Eternal Paraclete, to thee.

ST. GREGORY THE GREAT.

JOHN DRYDEN

THE NEW JERUSALEM.

O MOTHER dear, Jerusalem,
When shall I come to thee?
When shall my sorrows have an end, —
Thy joys when shall I see?

O happy harbor of God's saints!
O sweet and pleasant soil!
In thee no sorrow can be found,
Nor grief, nor care, nor toil.

No dimly cloud o'ershadows thee,
Nor gloom, nor darksome night;
But every soul shines as the sun,
For God himself gives light.

Thy walls are made of precious stone,
Thy bulwarks diamond-square,
Thy gates are all of orient pearl, —
O God! if I were there!

O my sweet home, Jerusalem!
Thy joys when shall I see? —
The King sitting upon thy throne,
And thy felicity?

Thy gardens and thy goodly walks
Continually are green,
Where grow such sweet and pleasant flowers
As nowhere else are seen.

Quite through the streets with pleasing sound
The flood of life doth flow;
And on the banks, on every side,
The trees of life do grow.

These trees each month yield ripened fruit;
Forevermore they spring,
And all the nations of the earth
To thee their honors bring.

Jerusalem, God's dwelling-place
Full sore I long to see;
O that my sorrows had an end,
That I might dwell in thee!

I long to see Jerusalem,
The comfort of us all;
For thou art fair and beautiful, —
None ill can thee befall.

No candle needs, no moon to shine,
No glittering star to light;
For Christ the King of Righteousness
Forever shineth bright.

O, passing happy were my state,
Might I be worthy found

To wait upon my God and King,
His praises there to sound!

Jerusalem! Jerusalem!
Thy joys fain would I see;
Come quickly, Lord, and end my grief,
And take me home to thee!

DAVID DICKSON.

LITANY.

SAVIOUR, when in dust to thee
Low we bend the adoring knee;
When, repentant, to the skies
Scarce we lift our weeping eyes, —
O, by all thy pains and woe
Suffered once for man below,
Bending from thy throne on high,
Hear our solemn litany!

By thy helpless infant years;
By thy life of want and tears;
By thy days of sore distress
In the savage wilderness;
By the dread mysterious hour
Of the insulting tempter's power, —
Turn, O, turn a favoring eye,
Hear our solemn litany!

By the sacred griefs that wept
O'er the grave where Lazarus slept;
By the boding tears that flowed
Over Salem's loved abode;
By the anguished sigh that told
Treachery lurked within thy fold, —
From thy seat above the sky
Hear our solemn litany!

By thine hour of dire despair;
By thine agony of prayer;
By the cross, the nail, the thorn,
Piercing spear, and torturing scorn;
By the gloom that veiled the skies
O'er the dreadful sacrifice, —
Listen to our humble cry,
Hear our solemn litany!

By thy deep expiring groan;
By the sad sepulchral stone;
By the vault whose dark abode
Held in vain the rising God:
O, from earth to heaven restored,
Mighty, reascended Lord, —
Listen, listen to the cry
Of our solemn litany!

SIR ROBERT GRANT

THE HOLY SPIRIT.

In the hour of my distress,
When temptations me oppress,
And when I my sins confess,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When I lie within my bed,
Sick at heart, and sick in head,
And with doubts discomfited,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the house doth sigh and weep,
And the world is drowned in sleep,
Yet mine eyes the watch do keep,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the artless doctor sees
No one hope but of his fees,
And his skill runs on the lees,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When his potion and his pill
Has or none or little skill,
Meet for nothing but to kill, —
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the passing-bell doth toll,
And the Furies, in a shoal,
Come to fright a parting soul,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the tapers now burn blue,
And the comforters are few,
And that number more than true,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the priest his last hath prayed,
And I nod to what is said
Because my speech is now decayed,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When, God knows, I'm tost about
Either with despair or doubt,
Yet before the glass be out,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the tempter me pursu'th
With the sins of all my youth,
And half damns me with untruth,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the flames and hellish cries
Fright mine ears, and fright mine eyes,
And all terrors me surprise,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

When the judgment is revealed,
And that opened which was sealed, —
When to thee I have appealed,
Sweet Spirit, comfort me !

ROBERT HERRICK.

DESIRE.

THOU, who dost dwell alone ;
Thou, who dost know thine own ;
Thou, to whom all are known,
From the cradle to the grave, —
Save, O, save !

From the world's temptations ;
From tribulations ;
From that fierce anguish
Wherein we languish ;
From that torpor deep
Wherein we lie asleep,
Heavy as death, cold as the grave, —
Save, O, save !

When the soul, growing clearer,
Sees God no nearer ;
When the soul, mounting higher,
To God comes no nigher ;
But the arch-fiend Pride
Mounts at her side,
Foiling her high emprise,
Sealing her eagle eyes,
And, when she fain would soar,
Makes idols to adore ;
Changing the pure emotion
Of her high devotion,
To a skin-deep sense
Of her own eloquence ;
Strong to deceive, strong to enslave, —
Save, O, save !

From the ingrained fashion
Of this earthly nature
That mars thy creature ;
From grief, that is but passion ;
From mirth, that is but feigning ;
From tears, that bring no healing ;
From wild and weak complaining ; —
Thine old strength revealing,
Save, O, save !

From doubt, where all is double,
Where wise men are not strong ;
Where comfort turns to trouble ;
Where just men suffer wrong ;
Where sorrow treads on joy ;
Where sweet things soonest cloy ;
Where faiths are built on dust ;
Where love is half mistrust,
Hungry, and barren, and sharp as the sea ;
O, set us free !

O, let the false dream fly
Where our sick souls do lie,
Tossing continually.

O, where thy voice doth come,
 Let all doubts be dumb ;
 Let all words be mild ;
 All strife be reconciled ;
 All pains beguiled.
 Light bring no blindness ;
 Love no unkindness ;
 Knowledge no ruin ;
 Fear no undoing,
 From the cradle to the grave, —
 Save, O, save !

MATTHEW ARNOLD.

MY GOD, I LOVE THEE.

My God, I love thee ! not because I hope for heaven thereby ;
 Nor because those who love thee not
 Must burn eternally.

Thou, O my Jesus, thou didst me
 Upon the cross embrace !
 For me didst bear the nails and spear,
 And manifold disgrace,

And griefs and torments numberless,
 And sweat of agony,
 Yea, death itself, — and all for one
 That was thine enemy.

Then why, O blessed Jesus Christ,
 Should I not love thee well ?
 Not for the hope of winning heaven,
 Nor of escaping hell ;

Not with the hope of gaining aught,
 Not seeking a reward ;
 But as thyself hast loved me,
 O everlasting Lord !

E'en so I love thee, and will love,
 And in thy praise will sing, —
 Solely because thou art my God,
 And my eternal King.

From the Latin of ST. FRANCIS XAVIER.
 Translation of EDWARD CASWALL.

DROP, DROP, SLOW TEARS.

DROP, drop, slow tears,
 And bathe those beauteous feet
 Which brought from heaven
 The news and Prince of peace !
 Cease not, wet eyes,
 His mercies to entreat ;
 To cry for vengeance
 Sin doth never cease ;

In your deep floods
 Drown all my faults and fears ;
 Nor let his eye
 See sin but through my tears.

PHINEAS FLETCHER.

DARKNESS IS THINNING.

DARKNESS is thinning ; shadows are retreating ;
 Morning and light are coming in their beauty ;
 Suppliant seek we, with an earnest outcry,
 God the Almighty !

So that our Master, having mercy on us,
 May repel languor, may bestow salvation,
 Granting us, Father, of thy loving-kindness
 Glory hereafter !

This, of his mercy, ever blessed Godhead,
 Father, and Son, and Holy Spirit, give us, —
 Whom through the wide world celebrate forever
 Blessing and glory !

From the Latin of ST. GREGORY THE GREAT
 Translation of JOHN MASON NEALE.

DELIGHT IN GOD.

I LOVE, and have some cause to love, the earth, —
 She is my Maker's creature, therefore good ;
 She is my mother, for she gave me birth ;
 She is my tender nurse, she gives me food :
 But what's a creature, Lord, compared with
 thee ?
 Or what's my mother or my nurse to me ?

I love the air, — her dainty sweets refresh
 My drooping soul, and to new sweets invite me ;
 Her shrill-mouthed choir sustain me with their flesh,
 And with their polyphonic notes delight me :
 But what's the air, or all the sweets that she
 Can bless my soul withal, compared to thee ?

I love the sea, — she is my fellow-creature,
 My careful purveyor ; she provides me store ;
 She walls me round ; she makes my diet greater ;
 She wafts my treasure from a foreign shore :
 But, Lord of oceans, when compared with thee,
 What is the ocean or her wealth to me ?

To heaven's high city I direct my journey,
 Whose spangled suburbs entertain mine eye ;
 Mine eye, by contemplation's great attorney,
 Transcends the crystal pavement of the sky .
 But what is heaven, great God, compared to
 thee ?
 Without thy presence, heaven's no heaven to
 me.

Without thy presence, earth gives no refection ;
 Without thy presence, sea affords no treasure ;
 Without thy presence, air 's a rank infection ;
 Without thy presence, heaven 's itself no
 pleasure :
 If not possessed, if not enjoyed in thee,
 What 's earth, or sea, or air, or heaven to me ?

The highest honors that the world can boast
 Are subjects far too low for my desire ;
 The brightest beams of glory are, at most,
 But dying sparkles of thy living fire ;
 The loudest flames that earth can kindle be
 But nightly glow-worms, if compared to thee.

Without thy presence, wealth is bags of cares ;
 Wisdom but folly ; joy, disquiet — sadness ;
 Friendship is treason, and delights are snares ;
 Pleasures but pain, and mirth but pleasing madness ;
 Without thee, Lord, things be not what they be,
 Nor have their being, when compared with
 thee.

In having all things, and not thee, what have I ?
 Not having thee, what have my labors got ?
 Let me enjoy but thee, what further crave I ?
 And having thee alone, what have I not ?
 I wish nor sea nor land ; nor would I be Possessed of heaven, heaven unpossessed of
 thee !

FRANCIS QUARLES.

THE PILGRIMAGE.

GIVE me my scallop-shell of quiet,
 My staff of faith to walk upon,
 My scrip of joy, immortal diet,
 My bottle of salvation,
 My gown of glory, hope's true gauge ;
 And thus I'll take my pilgrimage !

Blood must be my body's balmer,
 No other balm will there be given ;
 Whilst my soul, like quiet palmer,
 Travelleth towards the land of Heaven,
 Over the silver mountains
 Where spring the nectar fountains :
 There will I kiss
 The bowl of bliss,
 And drink mine everlasting fill
 Upon every milken hill.
 My soul will be a-dry before,
 But after, it will thirst no more.

Then by that happy, blissful day,
 More peaceful pilgrims I shall see,
 That have cast off their rags of clay,
 And walk apparelled fresh like me.

I'll take them first
 To quench their thirst,
 And taste of nectar's suckets
 At those clear wells
 Where sweetness dwells
 Drawn up by saints in crystal buckets.

And when our bottles and all we
 Are filled with immortality,
 Then the blest paths we'll travel,
 Strewed with rubies thick as gravel, —
 Ceilings of diamonds, sapphire floors,
 High walls of coral, and pearly bowers.
 From thence to Heaven's bribeless hall,
 Where no corrupted voices brawl ;
 No conscience molten into gold,
 No forged accuser, bought or sold,
 No cause deferred, no vain-spent journey,
 For there Christ is the King's Attorney ;
 Who pleads for all without degrees,
 And he hath angels, but no fees ;
 And when the grand twelve-million jury
 Of our sins, with direful fury,
 'Gainst our souls black verdicts give,
 Christ pleads his death, and then we live.
 Be thou my speaker, taintless pleader,
 Unblotted lawyer, true proceeder !
 Thou giv'st salvation even for alms, —
 Not with a bribed lawyer's palins.
 And this is mine eternal plea
 To Him that made heaven, earth, and sea,
 That, since my flesh must die so soon,
 And want a head to dine next noon,
 Just at the stroke when my veins start and spread,
 Set on my soul an everlasting head :
 Then am I, like a palmer, fit
 To tread those blest paths which before I writ.

Of death and judgment, heaven and hell,
 Who oft doth think, must needs die well.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

A TRUE LENT.

Is this a fast, — to keep
 The larder lean,
 And clean
 From fat of veals and sheep ?

Is it to quit the dish
 Of flesh, yet still
 To fill
 The platter high with fish ?

Is it to fast an hour,
 Or ragg'd to go,
 Or show
 A downcast look, and sour ?

No ! 't is a fast to dole
Thy sheaf of wheat,
And meat,
Unto the hungry soul.

It is to fast from strife,
From old debate
And hate, —
To circumcise thy life.

To show a heart grief-rent ;
To starve thy sin,
Not bin, —
And that's to keep thy Lent.

ROBERT HERRICK.

BRIEFS.

WATER TURNED INTO WINE.

THE conscious water saw its God and blushed.

THE WIDOW'S MITES.

Two mites, two drops, yet all her house and land,
Fall from a steady heart, though trembling hand :
The other's wanton wealth foams high, and brave ;
The other cast away, she only gave.

"TWO WENT UP TO THE TEMPLE TO PRAY."

Two went to pray ? O, rather say,
One went to brag, the other to pray ;

One stands up close and treads on high,
Where the other dares not lend his eye ;

One nearer to God's altar trod,
The other to the altar's God.

RICHARD CRASHAW.

A PASSAGE IN THE LIFE OF ST.
AUGUSTINE.

LONG pored St. Austin o'er the sacred page,
And doubt and darkness overspread his mind ;
On God's mysterious being thought the Sage,
The Triple Person in one Godhead joined.
The more he thought, the harder did he find
To solve the various doubts which fast arose ;
And as a ship, caught by imperious wind,
Tosses where chance its shattered body throws,
So tossed his troubled soul, and nowhere found repose.

Heated and feverish, then he closed his tome,
And went to wander by the ocean-side,
Where the cool breeze at evening loved to come,
Murmuring responsive to the murmuring tide ;

And as Augustine o'er its margent wide
Strayed, deeply pondering the puzzling theme,
A little child before him he espied :
In earnest labor did the urchin seem,
Working with heart intent close by the sounding stream.

He looked, and saw the child a hole had scooped,
Shallow and narrow in the shining sand,
O'er which at work the laboring infant stooped,
Still pouring water in with busy hand.
The saint addressed the child in accents bland :
"Fair boy," quoth he, "I pray what toil is thine ?
Let me its end and purpose understand."
The boy replied : "An easy task is mine,
To sweep into this hole all the wide ocean's brine."

"O foolish boy !" the saint exclaimed, "to hope That the broad ocean in that hole should lie !"
"O foolish saint !" exclaimed the boy ; "thy scope

Is still more hopeless than the toil I ply,
Who think'st to comprehend God's nature high
In the small compass of thine human wit !
Sooner, Augustine, sooner far, shall I
Confine the ocean in this tiny pit,
Than finite minds conceive God's nature infinite !"

ANONYMOUS.

I WOULD I WERE AN EXCELLENT
DIVINE.

I WOULD I were an excellent divine
That had the Bible at my fingers' ends ;
That men might hear out of this mouth of mine
How God doth make his enemies his friends ;
Rather than with a thundering and long prayer
Be led into presumption, or despair.

This would I be, and would none other be,
But a religious servant of my God ;
And know there is none other God but he,
And willingly to suffer mercy's rod, —
Joy in his grace, and live but in his love,
And seek my bliss but in the world above.

And I would frame a kind of faithful prayer,
For all estates within the state of grace,
That careful love might never know despair,
Nor servile fear might faithful love deface ;
And this would I both day and night devise
To make my humble spirit's exercise.

And I would read the rules of sacred life ;
Persuade the troubled soul to patience ;
The husband care, and comfort to the wife,
To child and servant due obedience ;
Faith to the friend, and to the neighbor peace,
That love might live, and quarrels all might cease.

Prayer for the health of all that are diseased,
 Confession unto all that are convicted,
 And patience unto all that are displeased,
 And comfort unto all that are afflicted,
 And mercy unto all that have offended,
 And grace to all, that all may be amended.

NICHOLAS BRETON.

ADAM'S MORNING HYMN IN PARADISE.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK V.

THESE are thy glorious works, Parent of good,
 Almighty, thine this universal frame,
 Thus wondrous fair; thyself how wondrous then!
 Unspeakable, who sitt'st above these heavens
 To us invisible, or dimly seen
 In these thy lowest works; yet these declare
 Thy goodness beyond thought, and power divine.
 Speak, ye who best can tell, ye sons of light,
 Angels; for ye behold him, and with songs
 And choral symphonies, day without night,
 Circle his throne rejoicing; ye in Heaven,
 On earth join, all ye creatures, to extol
 Him first, him last, him midst, and without end.
 Fairest of stars, last in the train of night,
 If better thou belong not to the dawn,
 Sure pledge of day, that crown'st the smiling morn
 With thy bright circlet, praise him in thy sphere,
 While day arises, that sweet hour of prime.
 Thou sun, of this great world both eye and soul,
 Acknowledge him thy greater; sound his praise
 In thy eternal course, both when thou climb'st,
 And when high noon hast gained, and when thou fall'st.

Moon, that now meets the orient sun, now fliest,
 With the fixed stars, fixed in their orb that flies,
 And ye five other wandering fires that move
 In mystic dance not without song, resound
 His praise, who out of darkness called up light.
 Air, and ye elements, the eldest birth
 Of Nature's womb, that in quaternions run
 Perpetual circle, multiform, and mix
 And nourish all things, let your ceaseless change
 Vary to our great Maker still new praise.
 Ye mists and exhalations, that now rise
 From hill or steaming lake, dusky or gray,
 Till the sun paint your fleecy skirts with gold,
 In honor to the world's great Author rise,
 Whether to deck with clouds the uncolored sky,
 Or wet the thirsty earth with falling showers,
 Rising or falling, still advance his praise.
 His praise, ye winds, that from four quarters blow,
 Breathe soft or loud; and wave your tops, ye pines,
 With every plant, in sign of worship wave.
 Fountains, and ye that warble, as ye flow,
 Melodious murmurs, warbling tune his praise.
 Join voices, all ye living souls; ye birds,

That singing up to Heaven-gate ascend,
 Bear on your wings and in your notes his praise.
 Ye that in waters glide, and ye that walk
 The earth, and stately tread, or lowly creep,
 Witness if I be silent, morn or even,
 To hill or valley, fountain or fresh shade,
 Made vocal by my song, and taught his praise.
 Hail, universal Lord! be bounteous still
 To give us only good; and if the night
 Have gathered aught of evil, or concealed,
 Disperse it, as now light dispels the dark.

MILTON.

PRAISE.

To write a verse or two is all the praise
 That I can raise;
 Mend my estate in any wayes,
 Thou shalt have more.

I go to church; help me to wings, and I
 Will thither flie;
 Or, if I mount unto the skie,
 I will do more.

Man is all weaknesse: there is no such thing
 As Prince or King:
 His arm is short; yet with a sling
 He may do more.

A herb distilled, and drunk, may dwell next doore,
 On the same floore,
 To a brave soul: Exalt the poore,
 They can do more.

O, raise me then! poore bees, that work all day,
 Sting my delay,
 Who have a work, as well as they,
 And much, much more.

GEORGE HERBERT.

UP HILL.

DOES the road wind up hill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.
 Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn to night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting-place?
A roof for when the slow dark hours begin.
 May not the darkness hide it from my face?
You cannot miss that inn.

Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
Those who have gone before.
 Then must I knock, or call when just in sight?
They will not keep you standing at that door.

Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak ?

Of labor you shall find the sum.

Will there be beds for me and all who seek ?

Yea, beds for all who come.

CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI.

THE PILLAR OF THE CLOUD.

LEAD, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead thou me on !

The night is dark, and I am far from home, —
Lead thou me on !

Keep thou my feet ; I do not ask to see
The distant scene, — one step enough for me.

I was not ever thus, nor prayed that thou Shouldst lead me on :

I loved to choose and see my path, but now
Lead thou me on !

I loved the garish day, and, spite of fears,
Pride ruled my will : remember not past years.

So long thy power hath blessed me, sure it still
Will lead me on ;

O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent, till
The night is gone ;

And with the morn those angel faces smile
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile.

JOHN HENRY NEWMAN.

FROM "THE CHURCH PORCH."

THOU whose sweet youth and early hopes enhance Thy rate and price, and mark thee for a treasure,
Hearken unto a Verser, who may chance
Rhyme thee to good, and make a bait of pleasure :

A verse may find him who a sermon flies
And turn delight into a sacrifice.

When thou dost purpose aught (within thy power),

Be sure to do it, though it be but small ;
Constance knits the bones, and make us stowre,
When wanton pleasures beckon us to thrall.

Who breaks his own bond, forfeiteth himself :
What nature made a ship, he makes a shelf.

By all means use sometimes to be alone.

Salute thyself : see what thy soul doth wear.

Dare to look in thy chest ; for 't is thine own ;
And tumble up and down what thou find'st there.

Who cannot rest till he good fellows finde,
He breaks up house, turns out of doores his minde.

In clothes, cheap handsomenesse doth bear the bell.

Wisdom's a trimmer thing than shop e'er gave.

Say not then, This with that lace will do well ;

But, This with my discretion will be brave.

Much curiosnesse is a perpetual wooing ;

Nothing, with labor ; folly, long a doing.

When once thy foot enters the church, be bare.
God is more there than thou ; for thou art there
Only by his permission. Then beware,
And make thyself all reverence and fear.

Kneeling ne'er spoiled silk stockings ; quit thy state ;

All equal are within the church's gate.

Resort to sermons, but to prayers most :

Praying's the end of preaching. O, be drest !

Stay not for th' other pin : why thou hast lost

A joy for it worth worlds. Thus hell doth jest
Away thy blessings, and extremely flout thee,
Thy clothes being fast, but thy soul loose about thee.

Judge not the preacher ; for he is thy judge :

If thou mislike him, thou conceiv'st him not.

God calleth preaching folly. Do not grudge

To pick out treasures from an earthen pot.

The worst speak something good : if all want sense,

God takes a text, and preacheth Pa-ti-ence.

GEORGE HERBERT.

ART THOU WEARY ?

ART thou weary, art thou languid,

Art thou sore distressed ?

"Come to me," saith One, "and coming,
Be at rest."

Hath he marks to lead me to him,

If he be my Guide ?

"In his feet and hands are wound-prints,
And his side."

Is there diadem, as monarch,
That his brow adorns ?

"Yea, a crown, in very surety,
But of thorns."

If I find him, if I follow,
What his guerdon here ?

"Many a sorrow, many a labor,
Many a tear."

If I still hold closely to him,
What hath he at last ?

"Sorrow vanquished, labor ended,
Jordan passed."

If I ask him to receive me,
 Will he say me nay?
 "Not till earth, and not till heaven
 Pass away."

Finding, following, keeping, struggling,
 Is he sure to bless?

"Saints, apostles, prophets, martyrs, Answer, Yes."

From the Latin of ST. STEPHEN THE SABAITE.
 Translation of JOHN MASON NEALE.

TO HEAVEN APPROACHED A SUFI SAINT.

To heaven approached a Sufi Saint,
 From groping in the darkness late,
 And, tapping timidly and faint,
 Besought admission at God's gate.

Said God, "Who seeks to enter here?"
 "'T is I, dear Friend," the Saint replied,
 And trembling much with hope and fear.
 "If it be thou, without abide."

Sadly to earth the poor Saint turned,
 To bear the scourging of life's rods;
 But aye his heart within him yearned
 To mix and lose its love in God's.

He roamed alone through weary years,
 By cruel men still scorned and mocked,
 Until from faith's pure fires and tears
 Again he rose, and modest knocked.

Asked God, "Who now is at the door?"
 "It is thyself, beloved Lord,"
 Answered the Saint, in doubt no more,
 But clasped and rapt in his reward.

From the Persian of DSCHELLALEDDIN RUMI.
 Translation of WILLIAM R. ALGER.

THE DYING CHRISTIAN TO HIS SOUL.

VITAL spark of heavenly flame!
 Quit, O quit this mortal frame!
 Trembling, hoping, lingering, flying,
 O, the pain, the bliss of dying!
 Cease, fond nature, cease thy strife,
 And let me languish into life!

Hark! they whisper; angels say,
 Sister spirit, come away!
 What is this absorbs me quite?
 Steals my senses, shuts my sight,
 Drowns my spirits, draws my breath?
 Tell me, my soul, can this be death?

The world recedes; it disappears!
 Heaven opens on my eyes! my ears

With sounds seraphic ring:
 Lend, lend your wings! I mount! I fly!
 O Grave! where is thy victory?
 O Death! where is thy sting?

ALEXANDER POPE.

PRAYER.

O GOD! though sorrow be my fate,
 And the world's hate

For my heart's faith pursue me,
 My peace they cannot take away;
 From day to day

Thou dost anew imbue me;
 Thou art not far; a little while
 Thou hid'st thy face, with brighter smile
 Thy father-love to show me.

Lord, not my will, but thine, be done;
 If I sink down

When men to terrors leave me,
 Thy father-love still warms my breast;
 All's for the best;

Shall man have power to grieve me,
 When bliss eternal is my goal,
 And thou the keeper of my soul,
 Who never will deceive me?

Thou art my shield, as saith the Word.
 Christ Jesus, Lord,

Thou standest pitying by me,
 And lookest on each grief of mine
 And if 't were thine:

What, then, though foes may try me,
 Though thorns be in my path concealed?
 World, do thy worst! God is my shield!
 And will be ever nigh me.

Translated from MARY, QUEEN OF HUNGARY.

THE MARTYRS' HYMN.

FLUNG to the heedless winds,
 Or on the waters cast,
 The martyrs' ashes, watched,
 Shall gathered be at last;
 And from that scattered dust,
 Around us and abroad,
 Shall spring a plenteous seed
 Of witnesses for God.

The Father hath received
 Their latest living breath;
 And vain is Satan's boast
 Of victory in their death;
 Still, still, though dead, they speak,
 And, trumpet-tongued, proclaim
 To many a wakening land
 The one availing name.

From the German of MARTIN LUTHER Translation of W. J. FOX.

THE FIGHT OF FAITH.

[The author of this poem, one of the victims of the persecuting Henry VIII., was burnt to death at Smithfield in 1546. It was made and sung by her while a prisoner in Newgate.]

LIKE as the armed Knighte,
Appointed to the field,
With this world wil I fight,
And faith shal be my shilde.

Faith is that weapon stronge,
Which wil not faile at nede ;
My foes therefore amonge,
Therewith wil I procede.

As it is had in strengthe,
And forces of Christes waye,
It wil prevaile at lengthe,
Though all the devils saye naye.

Faith of the fathers olde
Obtainèd right witness,
Which makes me verye bolde
To fear no worldes distress.

I now rejoyce in harte,
And hope bides me do so ;
For Christ wil take my part,
And ease me of my wo.

Thou sayst, Lord, whoso knocke,
To them wilt thou attende ;
Undo, therefore, the locke,
And thy stronge power sende.

More enemies now I have
Than heeres upon my head ;
Let them not me deprave,
But fight thou in my steade.

On thee my care I cast,
For all their cruell spight ;
I set not by their hast,
For thou art my delight.

I am not she that list
My anker to let fall
For every drislinge mist ;
My shippe's substantial.

Not oft I use to wright
In prose, nor yet in ryme ;
Yet wil I shewe one sight,
That I sawe in my time :

I sawe a royall throne,
Where Justice shulde have sitte ;
But in her steade was One
Of moody cruell witte.

Absorpt was rightwisness,
As by the raginge floude ;
Sathan, in his excess,
Sucte up the guiltlesse bloude.

Then thought I, — Jesus, Lorde,
When thou shalt judge us all,
Harde is it to recorde
On these men what will fall.

Yet, Lorde, I thee desire,
For that they doe to me,
Let them not taste the hire
Of their iniquite.

ANNE ASKEWE.

ON HIS BLINDNESS.

WHEN I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent, which is death to hide,
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent

To serve therewith my Maker, and present
My true account, lest he returning chide ;
“Doth God exact day-labor, light denied ?”
I fondly ask. But Patience, to prevent
That murmur, soon replies, “God doth not need
Either man’s work or his own gifts ; who best Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best : his state

Is kingly ; thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o’er land and ocean without rest ;
They also serve who only stand and wait.”

MILTON.

SAID I NOT SO ?

SAID I not so, — that I would sin no more ?
Witness, my God, I did ;
Yet I am run again upon the score :
My faults cannot be hid.

What shall I do ? — make vows and break them still ?

’T will be but labor lost ;
My good cannot prevail against mine ill :
The business will be crost.

O, say not so ; thou canst not tell what strength
Thy God may give thee at the length.
Renew thy vows, and if thou keep the last,
Thy God will pardon all that’s past.
Vow while thou canst ; while thou canst vow, thou mayst
Perhaps perform it when thou thinkest least.

Thy God hath not denied thee all,
 Whilst he permits thee but to call.
 Call to thy God for grace to keep
 Thy vows ; and if thou break them, weep.
 Weep for thy broken vows, and vow again :
 Vows made with tears cannot be still in vain.
 Then once again
 I vow to mend my ways ;
 Lord, say Amen,
 And thine be all the praise.

GEORGE HERBERT.

HEAVEN.

O BEAUTEONS God ! uncircumscribèd treasure
 Of an eternal pleasure !
 Thy throne is seated far
 Above the highest star,
 Where thou preparest a glorious place,
 Within the brightness of thy face,
 For every spirit
 To inherit
 That builds his hopes upon thy merit,
 And loves thee with a holy charity.
 What ravished heart, seraphic tongue, or eyes
 Clear as the morning rise,
 Can speak, or think, or see
 That bright eternity,
 Where the great King's transparent throne
 Is of an entire jasper stone ?
 There the eye
 O' the chrysolite,
 And a sky
 Of diamonds, rubies, chrysoprase, —
 And above all thy holy face, —
 Makes an eternal charity.
 When thou thy jewels up dost bind, that day
 Remember us, we pray, —
 That where the beryl lies,
 And the crystal 'bove the skies,
 There thou mayest appoint us place
 Within the brightness of thy face, —
 And our soul
 In the scroll
 Of life and blissfulness enroll,
 That we may praise thee to eternity. Allelujah !

JEREMY TAYLOR.

"ROCK OF AGES."

"Such hymns are never forgotten. They cling to us through our whole life. We carry them with us upon our journey. We sing them in the forest. The workman follows the plough with sacred songs. Children catch them, and singing only for the joy it gives them now, are yet laying up for all their life food of the sweetest joy." — HENRY WARD BEECHER.

"Rock of ages, cleft for me,"
 Thoughtlessly the maiden sung.
 Fell the words unconsciously
 From her girlish, gleeful tongue ;

Sang as little children sing ;
 Sang as sing the birds in June ;
 Fell the words like light leaves down
 On the current of the tune, —
 "Rock of ages, cleft for me,
 Let me hide myself in thee."

"Let me hide myself in thee :"
 Felt her soul no need to hide, —
 Sweet the song as song could be,
 And she had no thought beside ;
 All the words unheedingly
 Fell from lips untouched by care,
 Dreaming not that they might be
 On some other lips a prayer, —
 "Rock of ages, cleft for me,
 Let me hide myself in thee."

"Rock of ages, cleft for me,"
 'T was a woman sung them now,
 Pleadingly and prayerfully ;
 Every word her heart did know.
 Rose the song as storm-tossed bird
 Beats with weary wing the air,
 Every note with sorrow stirred,
 Every syllable a prayer, —
 "Rock of ages, cleft for me,
 Let me hide myself in thee."

"Rock of ages, cleft for me," —
 Lips grown agèd sung the hymn
 Trustingly and tenderly,
 Voice grown weak and eyes grown dim, —
 "Let me hide myself in Thee."
 Trembling though the voice and low,
 Rose the sweet strain peacefully
 Like a river in its flow ;
 Sung as only they can sing
 Who life's thorny path have passed ;
 Sung as only they can sing
 Who behold the promised rest, —
 "Rock of ages, cleft for me,
 Let me hide myself in thee."

"Rock of ages, cleft for me,"
 Sung above a coffin lid ;
 Underneath, all restfully,
 All life's joys and sorrows hid.
 Nevermore, O storm-tossed soul !
 Nevermore from wind or tide,
 Nevermore from billow's roll,
 Wilt thou need thyself to hide.
 Could the sightless, sunken eyes,
 Closed beneath the soft gray hair,
 Could the mute and stiffened lips
 Move again in pleading prayer,
 Still, aye still, the words would be, —
 "Let me hide myself in Thee."

PROF. EDWARD H. RICE.

THE SPIRIT-LAND.

FATHER ! thy wonders do not singly stand,
 Nor far removed where feet have seldom strayed ;
 Around us ever lies the enchanted land,
 In marvels rich to thine own sons displayed.
 In finding thee are all things round us found ;
 In losing thee are all things lost beside ;
 Ears have we, but in vain strange voices sound ;
 And to our eyes the vision is denied.
 We wander in the country far remote,
 Mid tombs and ruined piles in death to dwell ;
 Or on the records of past greatness dote,
 And for a buried soul the living sell ;
 While on our path bewildered falls the night
 That ne'er returns us to the fields of light.

JONES VERY.

HEAVEN.

BEYOND these chilling winds and gloomy skies,
 Beyond death's cloudy portal,
 There is a land where beauty never dies,
 Where love becomes immortal ;

A land whose life is never dimmed by shade,
 Whose fields are ever vernal ;
 Where nothing beautiful can ever fade,
 But blooms for aye eternal.

We may not know how sweet its balmy air,
 How bright and fair its flowers ;
 We may not hear the songs that echo there,
 Through those enchanted bowers.

The city's shining towers we may not see
 With our dim earthly vision,
 For Death, the silent warder, keeps the key
 That opens the gates elysian.

But sometimes, when adown the western sky
 A fiery sunset lingers,
 Its golden gates swing inward noiselessly,
 Unlocked by unseen fingers.

And while they stand a moment half ajar,
 Gleams from the inner glory
 Stream brightly through the azure vault afar,
 And half reveal the story.

O land unknown ! O land of love divine !
 Father, all-wise, eternal !
 O, guide these wandering, wayworn feet of mine
 Into those pastures vernal !

NANCY AMELIA WOODBURY PRIEST.

"ONLY WAITING."

[A very aged man in an almshouse was asked what he was doing now. He replied, "Only waiting."]

Only waiting till the shadows
 Are a little longer grown,
 Only waiting till the glimmer
 Of the day's last beam is flown ;
 Till the night of earth is faded
 From the heart, once full of day ;
 Till the stars of heaven are breaking
 Through the twilight soft and gray.

Only waiting till the reapers
 Have the last sheaf gathered home,
 For the summer time is faded,
 And the autumn winds have come.
 Quickly, reapers ! gather quickly
 The last ripe hours of my heart,
 For the bloom of life is withered,
 And I hasten to depart.

Only waiting till the angels
 Open wide the mystic gate,
 At whose feet I long have lingered,
 Weary, poor, and desolate.
 Even now I hear the footsteps,
 And their voices far away ;
 If they call me, I am waiting,
 Only waiting to obey.

Only waiting till the shadows
 Are a little longer grown,
 Only waiting till the glimmer
 Of the day's last beam is flown.
 Then from out the gathered darkness,
 Holy, deathless stars shall rise,
 By whose light my soul shall gladly
 Tread its pathway to the skies.

FRANCIS LAUGHTON MACE.

THE SOUL.

COME, Brother, turn with me from pining
 thought

And all the inward ills that sin has wrought ;
 Come, send abroad a love for all who live,
 And feel the deep content in turn they give.
 Kind wishes and good deeds, — they make not poor ;

They 'll home again, full laden, to thy door ;
 The streams of love flow back where they begin,
 For springs of outward joys lie deep within.

Even let them flow, and make the places glad Where dwell thy fellow-men. Shouldst thou be sad,

And earth seem bare, and hours, once happy, press

Upon thy thoughts, and make thy loneliness
More lonely for the past, thou then shalt hear
The music of those waters running near ;
And thy faint spirit drink the cooling stream,
And thine eye gladden with the playing beam
That now upon the water dances, now
Leaps up and dances in the hanging bough.

Is it not lovely ? Tell me, where doth dwell
The power that wrought so beautiful a spell ?
In thine own bosom, Brother ? Then as thine
Guard with a reverent fear this power divine.

And if, indeed, 't is not the outward state,
But temper of the soul by which we rate
Sadness or joy, even let thy bosom move
With noble thoughts and wake thee into love ;
And let each feeling in thy breast be given
An honest aim, which, sanctified by Heaven,
And springing into act, new life imparts,
Till beats thy frame as with a thousand hearts.

Sin clouds the mind's clear vision ;
Around the self-starved soul has spread a dearth.
The earth is full of life ; the living Hand
Touched it with life ; and all its forms expand
With principles of being made to suit
Man's varied powers and raise him from the brute.

And shall the earth of higher ends be full, —
Earth which thou tread'st, — and thy poor mind be dull ?

Thou talk of life, with half thy soul asleep ?
Thou "living dead man," let thy spirit leap
Forth to the day, and let the fresh air blow
Through thy soul's shut-up mansion. Wouldst thou know

Something of what is life, shake off this death ;
Have thy soul feel the universal breath
With which all nature's quick, and learn to be Sharer in all that thou dost touch or see ;
Break from thy body's grasp, thy spirit's trance ;
Give thy soul air, thy faculties expanse ;
Love, joy, even sorrow, — yield thyself to all !
They make thy freedom, groveller, not thy thrall.
Knock off the shackles which thy spirit bind
To dust and sense, and set at large the mind !
Then move in sympathy with God's great whole,
And be like man at first, a living soul.

RICHARD HENRY DANA.

SIT DOWN, SAD SOUL.

Sit down, sad soul, and count
The moments flying ;
Come, tell the sweet amount
That's lost by sighing !

How many smiles ? — a score ?
Then laugh, and count no more ;
For day is dying !

Lie down, sad soul, and sleep,
And no more measure
The flight of time, nor weep
The loss of leisure ;
But here, by this lone stream,
Lie down with us, and dream
Of starry treasure !

We dream : do thou the same ;
We love, — forever ;
We laugh, yet few we shame, —
The gentle never.
Stay, then, till sorrow dies ;
Then — hope and happy skies
Are thine forever !

BRYAN WALLER PROCTER
(Barry Cornwall.)

TELL ME, YE WINGED WINDS.

TELL me, ye winged winds,
That round my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot
Where mortals weep no more ?
Some lone and pleasant dell,
Some valley in the west,
Where, free from toil and pain,
The weary soul may rest ?
The loud wind dwindled to a whisper low,
And sighed for pity as it answered, — "No."

Tell me, thou mighty deep,
Whose billows round me play,
Know'st thou some favored spot,
Some island far away,
Where weary man may find
The bliss for which he sighs, —
Where sorrow never lives,
And friendship never dies ?
The loud waves, rolling in perpetual flow,
Stopped for a while, and sighed to answer, —
"No."

And thou, serenest moon,
That, with such lovely face,
Dost look upon the earth,
Asleep in night's embrace ;
Tell me, in all thy round
Hast thou not seen some spot
Where miserable man
May find a happier lot ?
Behind a cloud the moon withdrew in ~~void~~,
And a voice, sweet but sad, responded, — "No"

Tell me, my secret soul,
 O, tell me, Hope and Faith,
 Is there no resting-place
 From sorrow, sin, and death ?
 Is there no happy spot
 Where mortals may be blest,
 Where grief may find a balm,
 And weariness a rest ?
 Faith, Hope, and Love, best boons to mortals given,
 Waved their bright wings, and whispered, —
 " Yes, in heaven ! "

CHARLES MACKAY.

NOTHING BUT LEAVES.

NOTHING but leaves ; the spirit grieves
 Over a wasted life ;
 Sin committed while conscience slept,
 Promises made, but never kept,
 Hatred, battle, and strife ;
Nothing but leaves !

Nothing but leaves ; no garnered sheaves
 Of life's fair, ripened grain ;
 Words, idle words, for earnest deeds ;
 We sow our seeds, — lo ! tares and weeds :
 We reap, with toil and pain,
Nothing but leaves !

Nothing but leaves ; memory weaves
 No veil to screen the past :
 As we retrace our weary way,
 Counting each lost and misspent day,
 We find, sadly, at last,
Nothing but leaves !

And shall we meet the Master so,
 Bearing our withered leaves ?
 The Saviour looks for perfect fruit,
 We stand before him, humbled, mute ;
 Waiting the words he breathes, —
 " Nothing but leaves ? "

LUCY E. AKERMAN.

THE UNIVERSAL PRAYER.

FATHER of all ! in every age,
 In every clime adored,
 By saint, by savage, and by sage,
 Jehovah, Jove, or Lord !

Thou great First Cause, least understood,
 Who all my sense confined
 To know but this, that thou art good,
 And that myself am blind ;

Yet gave me, in this dark estate,
 To see the good from ill ;
 And, binding nature fast in fate,
 Left free the human will :

What conscience dictates to be done,
 Or warns me not to do,
 This, teach me more than hell to shun,
 That, more than heaven pursue.

What blessings thy free bounty gives
 Let me not cast away ;
 For God is paid when man receives,
 To enjoy is to obey.

Yet not to earth's contracted span
 Thy goodness let me bound,
 Or think thee Lord alone of man,
 When thousand worlds are round :

Let not this weak, unknowing hand
 Presume thy bolts to throw,
 And deal damnation round the land
 On each I judge thy foe.

If I am right, thy grace impart
 Still in the right to stay ;
 If I am wrong, O, teach my heart
 To find that better way !

Save me alike from foolish pride
 And impious discontent
 At aught thy wisdom has denied,
 Or aught thy goodness lent.

Teach me to feel another's woe,
 To hide the fault I see ;
 That mercy I to others show,
 That mercy show to me.

Mean though I am, not wholly so,
 Since quickened by thy breath ;
 O, lead me wheresoe'er I go,
 Through this day's life or death !

This day be bread and peace my lot ;
 All else beneath the sun,
 Thou know'st if best bestowed or not,
 And let thy will be done.

To thee, whose temple is all space,
 Whose altar, earth, sea, skies,
 One chorus let all Being raise,
 All Nature's incense rise !

ALEXANDER POPE.

WRESTLING JACOB.

FIRST PART.

COME, O thou Traveller unknown,
Whom still I hold, but cannot see ;
My company before is gone,
And I am left alone with thee ;
With thee all night I mean to stay,
And wrestle till the break of day.

I need not tell thee who I am ;
My sin and misery declare ;
Thyself hast called me by my name ;
Look on thy hands, and read it there ;
But who, I ask thee, who art thou ?
Tell me thy name, and tell me now.

In vain thou strugglest to get free ;
I never will unloose my hold :
Art thou the Man that died for me ?
The secret of thy love unfold ;
Wrestling, I will not let thee go
Till I thy name, thy nature know.

Wilt thou not yet to me reveal
Thy new, unutterable name ?
Tell me, I still beseech thee, tell ;
To know it now resolved I am ;
Wrestling, I will not let thee go
Till I thy name, thy nature know.

What though my shrinking flesh complain
And murmur to contend so long ?
I rise superior to my pain ;
When I am weak, then am I strong !
And when my all of strength shall fail,
I shall with the God-man prevail.

SECOND PART.

YIELD to me now, for I am weak,
But confident in self-despair ;
Speak to my heart, in blessings speak ;
Be conquered by my instant prayer ;
Speak, or thou never hence shalt move,
And tell me if thy name be Love.

'Tis Love ! 'tis Love ! Thou diedst for me ;
I hear thy whisper in my heart ;
The morning breaks, the shadows flee ;
Pure, universal Love thou art ;
To me, to all, thy bowels move ;
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

My prayer hath power with God ; the grace
Unspeakable I now receive ;
Through faith I see thee face to face ;
I see thee face to face and live !

In vain I have not wept and strove ;
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

I know thee, Saviour, who thou art,
Jesus, the feeble sinner's friend ;
Nor wilt thou with the night depart,
But stay and love me to the end ;
Thy mercies never shall remove ;
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

The Sun of Righteousness on me
Hath risen, with healing in his wings ;
Withered my nature's strength ; from thee
My soul its life and succor brings ;
My help is all laid up above ;
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

Contented now upon my thigh
I halt till life's short journey end ;
All helplessness, all weakness, I
On thee alone for strength depend ;
Nor have I power from thee to move ;
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

Lame as I am, I take the prey ;
Hell, earth, and sin with ease o'ercome ;
I leap for joy, pursue my way,
And, as a bounding hart, fly home ;
Through all eternity to prove
Thy nature and thy name is Love.

CHARLES WESLEY

A MIGHTY Fortress IS OUR GOD.

"Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott."

A MIGHTY fortress is our God,
A bulwark never failing ;
Our helper he amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing.
For still our ancient foe
Doth seek to work us woe ;
His craft and power are great,
And, armed with equal hate,
On earth is not his equal.

Did we in our own strength confide,
Our striving would be losing ;
Were not the right man on our side,
The man of God's own choosing.
Dost ask who that may be ?
Christ Jesus, it is he,
Lord Sabaoth his name,
From age to age the same,
And he must win the battle.

From the German of MARTIN LUTHER. Translation of FREDERIC HENRY HEDGE.

IT KINDLES ALL MY SOUL.

"Urit me Patriæ decor."

It kindles all my soul,
My country's loveliness ! Those starry choirs
That watch around the pole,
And the moon's tender light, and heavenly fires
Through golden halls that roll.
O chorus of the night ! O planets, sworn
The music of the spheres
To follow ! Lovely watchers, that think scorn
To rest till day appears !
Me, for celestial homes of glory born,
Why here, O, why so long,
Do ye behold an exile from on high ?
Here, O ye shining throng,
With lilies spread the mound where I shall lie :
Here let me drop my chain,
And dust to dust returning, cast away
The trammels that remain ;
The rest of me shall spring to endless day !

From the Latin of CASIMIR OF POLAND.

JEWISH HYMN IN BABYLON.

God of the thunder ! from whose cloudy seat
The fiery winds of Desolation flow ;
Father of vengeance, that with purple feet
Like a full wine-press tread'st the world below ;
The embattled armies wait thy sign to slay,
Nor springs the beast of havoc on his prey,
Nor withering Famine walks his blasted way,
Till thou hast marked the guilty land for woe.

God of the rainbow ! at whose gracious sign
The billows of the proud their rage suppress ;
Father of mercies ! at one word of thine
An Eden blooms in the waste wilderness,
And fountains sparkle in the arid sands,
And timbrels ring in maidens' glancing hands,
And marble cities crown the laughing lands,
And pillared temples rise thy name to bless.

O'er Judah's land thy thunders broke, O Lord !
The chariots rattled o'er her sunken gate,
Her sons were wasted by the Assyrian's sword,
Even her foes wept to see her fallen state ;
And heaps her ivory palaces became,
Her princes wore the captive's garb of shame,
Her temples sank amid the smouldering flame,
For thou didst ride the tempest cloud of fate.

O'er Judah's land thy rainbow, Lord, shall beam,
And the sad City lift her crownless head,
And songs shall wake and dancing footsteps gleam
In streets where broods the silence of the dead.

The sun shall shine on Salem's gilded towers,
On Carmel's side our maidens cull the flowers
To deck at blushing eve their bridal bowers,
And angel feet the glittering Sion tread.

Thy vengeance gave us to the stranger's hand,
And Abraham's children were led forth for slaves.

With fettered steps we left our pleasant land,
Envyng our fathers in their peaceful graves.
The strangers' bread with bitter tears we steep,
And when our weary eyes should sink to sleep,
In the mute midnight we steal forth to weep,
Where the pale willows shade Euphrates' waves.

The born in sorrow shall bring forth in joy ;
Thy mercy, Lord, shall lead thy children home ;
He that went forth a tender prattling boy
Yet, ere he die, to Salem's streets shall come ;
And Canaan's vines for us their fruit shall bear,
And Hermon's bees their honeyed stores prepare,
And we shall kneel again in thankful prayer,
Where o'er the cherub-seated God full blazed the irradiate dome.

HENRY HART MILMAN.

REBECCA'S HYMN.

FROM "IVANHOE."

WHEN Israel, of the Lord beloved,
Out from the land of bondage came,
Her fathers' God before her moved,
An awful guide in smoke and flame.
By day, along the astonished lands,
The cloudy pillar glided slow :
By night, Arabia's crimsoned sands
Returned the fiery column's glow.

There rose the choral hymn of praise,
And trump and timbrel answered keen,
And Zion's daughters poured their lays,
With priest's and warrior's voice between.
No portents now our foes amaze,
Forsaken Israel wanders lone :
Our fathers would not know thy ways,
And thou hast left them to their own.

But present still, though now unseen !
When brightly shines the prosperous day,
Be thoughts of thee a cloudy screen
To temper the deceitful ray.
And O, when stoops on Judah's path
In shade and storm the frequent night,
Be thou, long-suffering, slow to wrath,
A burning and a shining light !

Our harps we left by Babel's streams,
 The tyrant's jest, the Gentile's scorn ;
 No censor round our altar beams,
 And mute are timbrel, harp, and horn.
 But thou hast said, "The blood of goat,
 The flesh of rams, I will not prize ;
 A contrite heart, a humble thought,
 Are mine accepted sacrifice."

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

THE DYING SAVIOUR.

O SACRED Head, now wounded,
 With grief and shame weighed down ;
 Now scornfully surrounded
 With thorns, thy only crown ;
 O sacred Head, what glory,
 What bliss, till now was thine !
 Yet, though despised and gory,
 I joy to call thee mine.

O noblest brow and dearest,
 In other days the world
 All feared when thou appearedst ;
 What shame on thee is hurled !
 How art thou pale with anguish,
 With sore abuse and scorn !
 How does that visage languish
 Which once was bright as morn !

What language shall I borrow,
 To thank thee, dearest Friend,
 For this thy dying sorrow,
 Thy pity without end !
 O, make me thine forever,
 And should I fainting be,
 Lord, let me never, never,
 Outlive my love to thee.

If I, a wretch, should leave thee,
 O Jesus, leave not me !
 In faith may I receive thee,
 When death shall set me free.
 When strength and comfort languish,
 And I must hence depart,
 Release me then from anguish,
 By thine own wounded heart.

Be near when I am dying,
 O, show thy cross to me !
 And for my succor flying,
 Come, Lord, to set me free.
 These eyes new faith receiving,
 From Jesus shall not move ;
 For he who dies believing
 Dies safely — through thy love.

PAUL GERHARDT.

THE MINISTRY OF ANGELS.

FROM "THE FAERIE QUEENE," BOOK II. CANTO 8.

AND is there care in heaven ? And is there love
 In heavenly spirits to these creatures base,
 That may compassion of their evils move ?
 There is : — else much more wretched were the CASE
 Of men than beasts : but O the exceeding grace
 Of Highest God ! that loves his creatures so,
 And all his workes with mercy doth embrace,
 That blessed angels he sends to and fro,
 To serve to wicked man, to serve his wicked foe !

How oft do they their silver bowers leave,
 To come to succour us that succour want !
 How oft do they with golden pinions cleave
 The flitting skyes, like flying pursuivant,
 Against fowle feedes to ayd us militant !
 They for us fight, they watch, and dewly ward,
 And their bright squadrons round about us plant ;
 And all for love, and nothing for reward ;
 O, why should heavenly God to men have such regard !

EDMUND SPENSER.

NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE.

NEARER, my God, to thee,
 Nearer to thee !
 E'en though it be a cross
 That raiseth me ;
 Still all my song shall be, —
 Nearer, my God, to thee,
 Nearer to thee !

Though, like the wanderer,
 The sun gone down,
 Darkness be over me,
 My rest a stone ;
 Yet in my dreams I 'd be
 Nearer, my God, to thee,
 Nearer to thee !

There let the way appear
 Steps unto heaven ;
 All that thou sendest me
 In mercy given ;
 Angels to beckon me
 Nearer, my God, to thee,
 Nearer to thee !

Then with my waking thoughts,
 Bright with thy praise,
 Out of my stony griefs
 Bethel I 'll raise ;
 So by my woes to be
 Nearer, my God, to thee,
 Nearer to thee !

Or if on joyful wing
Cleaving the sky,
Sun, moon, and stars forgot,
Upward I fly ;
Still all my song shall be, —
Nearer, my God, to thee,
Nearer to thee.

SARAH FLOWER ADAMS.

O, HOW THE THOUGHT OF GOD ATTRACTS !

O, how the thought of God attracts
And draws the heart from earth,
And sickens it of passing shows
And dissipating mirth !

God only is the creature's home ;
Though long and rough the road,
Yet nothing less can satisfy
The love that longs for God.

O, utter but the name of God
Down in your heart of hearts,
And see how from the world at once
All tempting light departs.

A trusting heart, a yearning eye,
Can win their way above ;
If mountains can be moved by faith,
Is there less power in love ?

How little of that road, my soul,
How little hast thou gone !
Take heart, and let the thought of God
Allure thee farther on.

Dole not thy duties out to God,
But let thy hand be free ;
Look long at Jesus ; his sweet blood,
How was it dealt to thee ?

The perfect way is hard to flesh ;
It is not hard to love ;
If thou wert sick for want of God,
How swiftly wouldst thou move !

FREDERICK WILLIAM FABER.

THE CHANGED CROSS.

It was a time of sadness, and my heart,
Although it knew and loved the better part,
Felt wearied with the conflict and the strife,
And all the needful discipline of life.

And while I thought on these, as given to me,
My trial-tests of faith and love to be,
It seemed as if I never could be sure
That faithful to the end I should endure.

And thus, no longer trusting to his might
Who says, "We walk by faith and not by sight,"
Doubting, and almost yielding to despair,
The thought arose, "My cross I cannot bear.

"Far heavier its weight must surely be
Than those of others which I daily see ;
Oh ! if I might another burden choose,
Methinks I should not fear my crown to lose."

A solemn silence reigned on all around,
E'en Nature's voices uttered not a sound ;
The evening shadows seemed of peace to tell,
And sleep upon my weary spirit fell.

A moment's pause, — and then a heavenly light
Beamed full upon my wondering, raptured sight ;
Angels on silvery wings seemed everywhere,
And angels' music thrilled the balmy air.

Then One, more fair than all the rest to see,
One to whom all the others bowed the knee,
Came gently to me, as I trembling lay,
And, "Follow me," he said ; "I am the Way."

Then, speaking thus, he led me far above,
And there, beneath a canopy of love,
Crosses of divers shape and size were seen,
Larger and smaller than my own had been.

And one there was, most beauteous to behold, —
A little one, with jewels set in gold.
"Ah ! this," methought, "I can with comfort wear,
For it will be an easy one to bear."

And so the little cross I quickly took,
But all at once my frame beneath it shook ;
The sparkling jewels, fair were they to see,
But far too heavy was their weight for me.

"This may not be," I cried, and looked again,
To see if there was any here could ease my pain ;
But, one by one, I passed them slowly by,
Till on a lovely one I cast my eye.

Fair flowers around its sculptured form entwined,
And grace and beauty seemed in it combined.
Wondering, I gazed, — and still I wondered more,
To think so many should have passed it o'er.

But oh ! that form so beautiful to see
Soon made its hidden sorrows known to me ;
Thorns lay beneath those flowers and colors fair ;
Scrowing, I said, "This cross I may not bear."

And so it was with each and all around, —
Not one to suit my need could there be found ;
Weeping, I laid each heavy burden down,
As my Guide gently said, "No cross, — no crown."

At length to him I raised my saddened heart ;
He knew its sorrows, bade its doubts depart ;
"Be not afraid," he said, "but trust in me ;
My perfect love shall now be shown to thee."

And then, with lightened eyes and willing feet,
Again I turned, my earthly cross to meet ;
With forward footsteps, turning not aside,
For fear some hidden evil might betide ;

And there — in the prepared, appointed way,
Listening to hear, and ready to obey —
A cross I quickly found of plainest form,
With only words of love inscribed thereon.

With thankfulness I raised it from the rest,
And joyfully acknowledged it the best, —
The only one, of all the many there,
That I could feel was good for me to bear.

And, while I thus my chosen one confessed,
I saw a heavenly brightness on it rest ;
And as I bent, my burden to sustain,
I recognized my own old cross again.

But oh ! how different did it seem to be,
Now I had learned its preciousness to see !
No longer could I unbelieving say,
"Perhaps another is a better way."

Ah, no ! henceforth my one desire shall be,
That he who knows me best should choose for
me ;

And so, whate'er his love sees good to send,
I'll trust it 's best, — because he knows the end.

HON. MRS. CHARLES HOBART.

FROM THE RECESSES OF A LOWLY SPIRIT.

FROM the recesses of a lowly spirit,
Our humble prayer ascends ; O Father ! hear it.
Upsoaring on the wings of awe and meekness,
Forgive its weakness !

We see thy hand, — it leads us, it supports us ;
We hear thy voice, — it counsels and it courts us ;
And then we turn away ; and still thy kindness
Forgives our blindness.

O, how long-suffering, Lord ! but thou delightest
To win with love the wandering : thou invitest,
By smiles of mercy, not by frowns or terrors,
Man from his errors.

Father and Saviour ! plant within each bosom
The seeds of holiness, and bid them blossom
In fragrance and in beauty bright and vernal,
And spring eternal.

JOHN BOWRING.

THY WILL BE DONE.

WE see not, know not ; all our way
Is night — with Thee alone is day :
From out the torrent's troubled drift,
Above the storm our prayers we lift,
Thy will be done !

The flesh may fail, the heart may faint,
But who are we to make complaint,
Or dare to plead, in times like these,
The weakness of our love of ease ?
Thy will be done !

We take with solemn thankfulness
Our burden up, nor ask it less,
And count it joy that even we
May suffer, serve, or wait for Thee,
Whose will be done !

Though dim as yet in tint and line,
We trace Thy picture's wise design,
And thank Thee that our age supplies
Its dark relief of sacrifice.
Thy will be done !

And if, in our unworthiness,
Thy sacrificial wine we press ;
If from Thy ordeal's heated bars
Our feet are seamed with crimson scars,
Thy will be done !

If, for the age to come, this hour
Of trial hath vicarious power,
And, blest by Thee, our present pain
Be Liberty's eternal gain,
Thy will be done !

Strike, Thou the Master, we Thy keys,
The anthem of the destinies !
The minor of Thy loftier strain,
Our hearts shall breathe the old refrain,
Thy will be done !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

NEARER HOME.

ONE sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er ;
I'm nearer my home to-day
Than I ever have been before ;

Nearer my Father's house,
Where the many mansions be ;
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the crystal sea ;

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burdens down ;
Nearer leaving the cross,
Nearer gaining the crown !

But the waves of that silent sea
Roll dark before my sight
That brightly the other side
Break on a shore of light.

O, if my mortal feet
Have almost gained the brink ;
If it be I am nearer home
Even to-day than I think, —

Father, perfect my trust !
Let my spirit feel, in death,
That her feet are firmly set
On the Rock of a living faith !

PHOEBE CARY.

ODE.

FROM "THE SPECTATOR."

THE spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim ;
The unwearied sun, from day to day,
Does his Creator's power display,
And publishes to every land
The work of an Almighty hand.

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale,
And nightly to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth ;
While all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.

What though, in solemn silence, all
Move round the dark terrestrial ball ?
What though no real voice or sound
Amid their radiant orbs be found ?
In Reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice,
Forever singing, as they shine,
"The hand that made us is divine !"

JOSEPH ADDISON.

LORD ! WHEN THOSE GLORIOUS LIGHTS I SEE.

HYMN AND PRAYER FOR THE USE OF BELIEVERS.

LORD ! when these glorious lights I see
With which thou hast adorned the skies,
Observing how they moved be,
And how their splendor fills mine eyes,

Methinks it is too large a grace,
But that thy love ordained it so, —
That creatures in so high a place
Should servants be to man below.

The meanest lamp now shining there
In size and lustre doth exceed
The noblest of thy creatures here,
And of our friendship hath no need.
Yet these upon mankind attend
For secret aid or public light ;
And from the world's extremest end
Repair unto us every night.

O, had that stamp been undefaced
Which first on us thy hand had set,
How highly should we have been graced,
Since we are so much honored yet !
Good God, for what but for the sake
Of thy beloved and only Son,
Who did on him our nature take,
Were these exceeding favors done ?

As we by him have honored been,
Let us to him due honors give ;
Let his uprightness hide our sin,
And let us worth from him receive.
Yea, so let us by grace improve
What thou by nature doth bestow,
That to thy dwelling-place above
We may be raised from below.

GEORGE WITHER.

HYMN

BEFORE SUNRISE, IN THE VALE OF CHAMOUNI.

HAST thou a charm to stay the morning star
In his steep course ? So long he seems to pause
On thy bald, awful head, O sovran Blanc !
The Arve and Arveiron at thy base
Rave ceaselessly ; but thou, most awful Form,
Risest from forth thy silent sea of pines
How silently ! Around thee and above,
Deep is the air and dark, substantial, black, —
An ebon mass. Methinks thou piercest it,
As with a wedge ! But when I look again,
It is thine own calm home, thy crystal shrine,
Thy habitation from eternity !
O dread and silent Mount ! I gazed upon thee,
Till thou, still present to the bodily sense, Didst vanish from my thought. Entranced in prayer
I worshipped the Invisible alone.

Yet, like some sweet beguiling melody,
So sweet we know not we are listening to it,
Thou, the mean while, wast blending with my thought, —

Yea, with my life and life's own secret joy, —
Till the dilating soul, enrapt, transfused,
Into the mighty vision passing, there,
As in her natural form, swelled vast to Heaven !

Awake, my soul ! not only passive praise
Thou owest ! not alone these swelling tears,
Mute thanks, and secret ecstasy ! Awake,
Voice of sweet song ! Awake, my heart, awake !
Green vales and icy cliffs, all join my hymn.

Thou first and chief, sole sovereign of the vale !
O, struggling with the darkness all the night,
And visited all night by troops of stars,
Or when they climb the sky, or when they sink,
Companion of the morning-star at dawn,
Thyself Earth's rosy star, and of the dawn
Co-herald, — wake, O, wake, and utter praise !
Who sank thy sunless pillars deep in earth ?
Who filled thy countenance with rosy light ?
Who made thee parent of perpetual streams ?

And you, ye five wild torrents fiercely glad !
Who called you forth from night and utter death,
From dark and icy caverns called you forth,
Down those precipitous, black, jagged rocks,
Forever shattered and the same forever ?
Who gave you your invulnerable life,
Your strength, your speed, your fury, and your joy,
Unceasing thunder and eternal foam ?
And who commanded (and the silence came),
Here let the billows stiffen, and have rest ?

Ye ice-falls ! ye that from the mountain's brow
Adown enormous ravines slope amain, —
Torrents, methinks, that heard a mighty voice,
And stopped at once amid their maddest plunge !
Motionless torrents ! silent cataracts !
Who made you glorious as the gates of Heaven
Beneath the keen full moon ? Who bade the sun Clothe you with rainbows ? Who, with living
flowers
Of loveliest blue, spread garlands at your feet ?
God ! — let the torrents, like a shout of nations,
Answer ! and let the ice-plains echo, God !
God ! sing, ye meadow-streams, with gladsome voice !

Ye pine-groves, with your soft and soul-like sounds !
And they too have a voice, yon piles of snow,
And in their perilous fall shall thunder, God !

Ye living flowers that skirt the eternal frost !
Ye wild goats sporting round the eagle's nest !
Ye eagles, playmates of the mountain-storm !
Ye lightnings, the dread arrows of the clouds !
Ye signs and wonders of the elements !
Utter forth God, and fill the hills with praise !

Thou, too, hoar Mount ! with thy sky-pointing peaks,

Oft from whose feet the avalanche, unheard,
Shoots downward, glittering through the pure serene,

Into the depth of clouds that veil thy breast, —
Thou too again, stupendous Mountain ! thou
That, as I raise my head, awhile bowed low
In adoration, upward from thy base
Slow travelling with dim eyes suffused with tears,
Solemnly seemest, like a vapory cloud,
To rise before me, — Rise, O, ever rise !
Rise, like a cloud of incense, from the Earth !
Thou kingly Spirit throned among the hills,
Thou dread ambassador from Earth to Heaven,
Great Hierarch ! tell thou the silent sky,
And tell the stars, and tell yon rising sun,
Earth, with her thousand voices, praises God.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE.

AMAZING, BEAUTEOUS CHANGE !

AMAZING, beauteous change !
A world created new !
My thoughts with transport range,
The lovely scene to view ;
In all I trace,
Saviour divine,
The work is thine ; —
Be thine the praise !

See crystal fountains play
Amidst the burning sands ;
The river's winding way
Shines through the thirsty lands ;
New grass is seen,
And o'er the meads
Its carpet spreads
Of living green.

Where pointed brambles grew,
Intwined with horrid thorn,
Gay flowers, forever new,
The painted fields adorn, —
The blushing rose
And lily there,
In union fair,
Their sweets disclose.

Where the bleak mountain stood
All bare and disarrayed,
See the wide-branching wood
Diffuse its grateful shade ;
Tall cedars nod,
And oaks and pines,
And elms and vines
Confess thee God.

The tyrants of the plain
 Their savage chase give o'er, —
 No more they rend the slain,
 And thirst for blood no more ;
 But infant hands
 Fierce tigers stroke,
 And lions yoke
 In flowery bands.

O, when, Almighty Lord !
 Shall these glad scenes arise,
 To verify thy word,
 And bless our wandering eyes ?
 That earth may raise,
 With all its tongues,
 United songs
 Of ardent praise.

PHILIP DODDRIDGE.

THE SABBATH.

How still the morning of the hallowed day !
 Mute is the voice of rural labor, hushed
 The ploughboy's whistle and the milkmaid's
 song.

The scythe lies glittering in the dewy wreath
 Untedded grass, mingled with fading flowers,
 That yesternorn bloomed waving in the breeze ;
 Sounds the most faint attract the ear, — the hum

Of early bee, the trickling of the dew,
 The distant bleating, midway up the hill.
 Calmness sits throned on yon unmoving cloud.
 To him who wanders o'er the upland leas
 The blackbird's note comes mellower from the dale ;

And sweeter from the sky the gladsome lark
 Warbles his heaven-tuned song ; the lulling brook

Murmurs more gently down the deep-worn glen ;
 While from yon lowly roof, whose circling smoke
 O'ermounts the mist, is heard at intervals
 The voice of psalms, the simple song of praise.
 With dove-like wings Peace o'er yon village
 broods ;

The dizzying mill-wheel rests ; the anvil's din
 Hath ceased ; all, all around is quietness.
 Less fearful on this day, the limping hare Stops, and looks back, and stops, and looks on man,

Her deadliest foe. The toil-worn horse, set free,
 Unheedful of the pasture, roams at large ;
 And as his stiff, unwieldy bulk he rolls,
 His iron-armed hoofs gleam in the morning ray.

JAMES GRAHAME.

THE MEETING.

THE elder folk shook hands at last,
 Down seat by seat the signal passed.
 To simple ways like ours unused,
 Half solemnized and half amused,
 With long-drawn breath and shrug, my guest
 His sense of glad relief expressed.
 Outside, the hills lay warm in sun ;
 The cattle in the meadow-run
 Stood half-leg deep ; a single bird
 The green repose above us stirred.
 "What part or lot have you," he said,
 "In these dull rites of drowsy-head ?
 Is silence worship ? Seek it where
 It soothes with dreams the summer air ;
 Not in this close and rude-benched hall,
 But where soft lights and shadows fall,
 And all the slow, sleep-walking hours
 Glide soundless over grass and flowers !
 From time and place and form apart,
 Its holy ground the human heart,
 Nor ritual-bound nor templeward
 Walks the free spirit of the Lord !
 Our common Master did not pen
 His followers up from other men ;
 His service liberty indeed,
 He built no church, he framed no creed ;
 But while the saintly Pharisee
 Made broader his phylactery,
 As from the synagogue was seen
 The dusty-sandaled Nazarene
 Through ripening cornfields lead the way
 Upon the awful Sabbath day,
 His sermons were the healthful talk
 That shorter made the mountain-walk,
 His wayside texts were flowers and birds,
 Where mingled with his gracious words
 The rustle of the tamarisk-tree
 And ripple-wash of Galilee."

"Thy words are well, O friend," I said ;
 "Unmeasured and unlimited,
 With noiseless slide of stone to stone,
 The mystic Church of God has grown.
 Invisible and silent stands
 The temple never made with hands,
 Unheard the voices still and small
 Of its unseen confessional.
 He needs no special place of prayer
 Whose hearing ear is everywhere ;
 He brings not back the childish days
 That ringed the earth with stones of praise,
 Roofed Karnak's hall of gods, and laid
 The plinths of Philæ's colonnade.
 Still less he owns the selfish good
 And sickly growth of solitude. —

The worthless grace that, out of sight,
Flowers in the desert anchorite ;
Dissevered from the suffering whole,
Love hath no power to save a soul.
Not out of Self, the origin
And native air and soil of sin,
The living waters spring and flow,
The trees with leaves of healing grow.

"Dream not, O friend, because I seek
This quiet shelter twice a week,
I better deem its pine-laid floor
Than breezy hill or sea-sung shore ;
But nature is not solitude ;
She crowds us with her thronging wood ;
Her many hands reach out to us,
Her many tongues are garrulous ;
Perpetual riddles of surprise
She offers to our ears and eyes ;
She will not leave our senses still,
But drags them captive at her will ;
And, making earth too great for heaven,
She hides the Giver in the given.

"And so I find it well to come
For deeper rest to this still room,
For here the habit of the soul
Feels less the outer world's control ;
The strength of mutual purpose pleads
More earnestly our common needs ;
And from the silence multiplied
By these still forms on either side,
The world that time and sense have known
Falls off and leaves us God alone.

"Yet rarely through the charmed repose
Unmixed the stream of motive flows,
A flavor of its many springs,
The tints of earth and sky it brings ;
In the still waters needs must be
Some shade of human sympathy ;
And here, in its accustomed place,
I look on memory's dearest face ;
The blind by-sitter guesses not
What shadow haunts that vacant spot ;
No eyes save mine alone can see
The love wherewith it welcomes me !
And still, with those alone my kin,
In doubt and weakness, want and sin,
I bow my head, my heart I bare
As when that face was living there,
And strive (too oft, alas ! in vain)
The peace of simple trust to gain,
Fold fancy's restless wings, and lay
The idols of my heart away.

"Welcome the silence all unbroken,
Nor less the words of fitness spoken, —

Such golden words as hers for whom
Our autumn flowers have just made room ;
Whose hopeful utterance through and through
The freshness of the morning blew ;
Who loved not less the earth that light
Fell on it from the heavens in sight,
But saw in all fair forms more fair
The Eternal beauty mirrored there.
Whose eighty years but added grace
And saintlier meaning to her face, —
The look of one who bore away
Glad tidings from the hills of day,
While all our hearts went forth to meet
The coming of her beautiful feet !
Or haply hers whose pilgrim tread
Is in the paths where Jesus led ;
Who dreams her childhood's sabbath dream
By Jordan's willow-shaded stream,
And, of the hymns of hope and faith,
Sung by the monks of Nazareth,
Hears pious echoes, in the call
To prayer, from Moslem minarets fall,
Repeating where His works were wrought
The lesson that her Master taught,
Of whom an elder Sibyl gave,
The prophesies of Cumæ's cave !

"I ask no organ's soulless breath
To drone the themes of life and death,
No altar candle-lit by day,
No ornate wordsman's rhetoric-play,
No cool philosophy to teach
Its bland audacities of speech
To double-tasked idolaters,
Themselves their gods and worshippers,
No pulpit hammered by the fist
Of loud-asserting dogmatist,
Who borrows for the hand of love
The smoking thunderbolts of Jove.
I know how well the fathers taught,
What work the later schoolmen wrought ;
I reverence old-time faith and men,
But God is near us now as then ;
His force of love is still unspent,
His hate of sin as imminent ;
And still the measure of our needs
Outgrows the cramping bounds of creeds ;
The manna gathered yesterday
Already savors of decay ;
Doubts to the world's child-heart unknown
Question us now from star and stone ;
Too little or too much we know,
And sight is swift and faith is slow ;
The power is lost to self-deceive
With shallow forms of make-believe.
We walk at high noon, and the bells
Call to a thousand oracles,

But the sound deafens, and the light
Is stronger than our dazzled sight ;
The letters of the sacred Book
Glimmer and swim beneath our look ;
Still struggles in the Age's breast
With deepening agony of quest
The old entreaty : ' Art thou He,
Or look we for the Christ to be ?'

" God should be most where man is least ;
So, where is neither church nor priest,
And never rag of form or creed
To clothe the nakedness of need, —
Where farmer-folk in silence meet, —
I turn my bell-unsummoned feet ;
I lay the critic's glass aside,
I tread upon my lettered pride,
And, lowest-seated, testify
To the oneness of humanity ;
Confess the universal want,
And share whatever Heaven may grant.
He findeth not who seeks his own,
The soul is lost that's saved alone.
Not on one favored forehead fell
Of old the fire-tongued miracle,
But flamed o'er all the thronging host
The baptism of the Holy Ghost ;
Heart answers heart : in one desire
The blending lines of prayer aspire ;
' Where, in my name, meet two or three,'
Our Lord hath said, ' I there will be !'

" So sometimes comes to soul and sense
The feeling which is evidence
That very near about us lies
The realm of spiritual mysteries.
The sphere of the supernal powers
Impinges on this world of ours.
The low and dark horizon lifts,
To light the scenic terror shifts ;
The breath of a diviner air
Blows down the answer of a prayer : —
That all our sorrow, pain, and doubt
A great compassion clasps about,
And law and goodness, love and force,
Are wedded fast beyond divorce.
Then duty leaves to love its task,
The beggar Self forgets to ask ;
With smile of trust and folded hands,
The passive soul in waiting stands
To feel, as flowers the sun and dew,
The One true Life its own renew.

" So, to the calmly gathered thought
The innermost of truth is taught,
The mystery dimly understood,
That love of God is love of good,
And, chiefly, its divinest trace
In Him of Nazareth's holy face ;

That to be saved is only this, —
Salvation from our selfishness,
From more than elemental fire,
The soul's unsanctified desire,
From sin itself, and not the pain
That warns us of its chafing chain ;
That worship's deeper meaning lies
In mercy, and not sacrifice,
Not proud humilities of sense
And posturing of penitence,
But love's unforced obedience ;
That Book and Church and Day are given
For man, not God, — for earth, not heaven, —
The blessed means to holiest ends,
Not masters, but benignant friends ;
That the dear Christ dwells not afar,
The king of some remoter star,
Listening, at times, with flattered ear,
To homage wrung from selfish fear,
But here, amidst the poor and blind,
The bound and suffering of our kind,
In works we do, in prayers we pray,
Life of our life, He lives to-day."

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

A PRAYER FOR LIFE.

O FATHER, let me not die young !
Earth's beauty asks a heart and tongue
To give true love and praises to her worth ;
Her sins and judgment-sufferings call
For fearless martyrs to redeem thy Earth
From her disastrous fall.
For though her summer hills and vales might seem
The fair creation of a poet's dream, —
Ay, of the Highest Poet, Whose wordless rhythms are chanted by the gyres
Of constellate star-choirs,
That with deep melody flow and overflow it, —
The sweet Earth, — very sweet, despite
The rank grave-smell forever drifting in
Among the odors from her censers white
Of wave-swung lilies and of wind-swung roses, —
The Earth sad-sweet is deeply attaint with sin !
The pure air, which encloses
Her and her starry kin,
Still shudders with the unspent palpitating
Of a great Curse, that to its utmost shore
Thrills with a deadly shiver
Which has not ceased to quiver
Down all the ages, nathless the strong beating
Of Angel-wings, and the defiant roar
Of Earth's Titanic thunders.

Fair and sad,
In sin and beauty, our beloved Earth
Has need of all her sons to make her glad ;
Has need of martyrs to refire the hearth
Of her quenched altars, — of heroic men
With Freedom's sword, or Truth's supernal pen,
To shape the worn-out mould of nobleness again.
And she has need of Poets who can string
Their harps with steel to catch the light-ning's fire,
And pour her thunders from the clanging
wire,
To cheer the hero, mingling with his cheer,
Arouse the laggard in the battle's rear,
Daunt the stern wicked, and from discord wring
Prevailing harmony, while the humblest soul
Who keeps the tune the warder angels sing
In golden choirs above,
And only wears, for crown and aureole,
The glow-worm light of lowliest human love,
Shall fill with low, sweet undertones the chasms
Of silence, 'twixt the booming thunder-spasms.
And Earth has need of Prophets fiery-lipped
And deep-souled, to announce the glorious dooms
Writ on the silent heavens in starry script,
And flashing fitfully from her shuddering tombs, —
Commissioned Angels of the new-born Faith,
To teach the immortality of Good,
The soul's God-likeness, Sin's coeval death,
And man's indissoluble Brotherhood.

Yet never an age, when God has need of him,
Shall want its Man, predestined by that need,
To pour his life in fiery word or deed, —
The strong Archangel of the Elohim !
Earth's hollow want is prophet of his coming:
In the low murmur of her famished cry,
And heavy sobs breathed up despairingly,
Ye hear the near invisible humming
Of his wide wings that fan the lurid sky
Into cool ripples of new life and hope,
While far in its dissolving ether ope
Deep beyond deeps, of sapphire calm, to cheer
With Sabbath gleams the troubled Now and Here.

Father ! thy will be done !
Holy and righteous One !
Though the reluctant years
May never crown my throbbing brows with white,
Nor round my shoulders turn the golden light
Of my thick locks to wisdom's royal ermine :
Yet by the solitary tears,
Deeper than joy or sorrow, — by the thrill,
Higher than hope or terror, whose quick germin,

In those hot tears to sudden vigor sprung,
Sheds, even now, the fruits of graver age, —
By the long wrestle in which inward ill
Fell like a trampled viper to the ground, —
By all that lifts me o'er my outward peers
To that supernal stage
Where soul dissolves the bonds by Nature bound, —
Fall when I may, by pale disease unstrung,
Or by the hand of fratricidal rage,
I cannot now die young !

GEORGE S. BURLEIGH.

WHEN.

If I were told that I must die to-morrow,
That the next sun
Which sinks should bear me past all fear and sorrow
For any one,
All the fight fought, all the short journey
through,
What should I do ?

I do not think that I should shrink or falter,
But just go on,
Doing my work, nor change nor seek to alter
Aught that is gone ;
But rise and move and love and smile and pray
For one more day.

And, lying down at night for a last sleeping,
Say in that ear
Which hearkens ever : " Lord, within thy keeping
How should I fear ?
And when to-morrow brings thee nearer still,
Do thou thy will."

I might not sleep for awe ; but peaceful, tender,
My soul would lie
All the night long ; and when the morning splendor
Flushed o'er the sky,
I think that I could smile — could calmly say,
" It is his day."

But if a wondrous hand from the blue yonder
Held out a scroll,
On which my life was writ, and I with wonder
Beheld unroll
To a long century's end its mystic clue,
What should I do ?

What could I do, O blessed Guide and Master,
Other than this ;
Still to go on as now, not slower, faster,
Nor fear to miss
The road, although so very long it be,
While led by thee ?

Step after step, feeling thee close beside me,
 Although unseen,
 Through thorns, through flowers, whether the tempest hide thee,
 Or heavens serene,
 Assured thy faithfulness cannot betray,
 Thy love decay.

I may not know ; my God, no hand revealeth
 Thy counsels wise ;
 Along the path a deepening shadow stealeth,
 No voice replies
 To all my questioning thought, the time to tell ;
 And it is well.

Let me keep on, abiding and unfearing
 Thy will always,
 Through a long century's ripening fruition
 Or a short day's ;
 Thou canst not come too soon ; and I can wait
 If thou come late.

THE FLIGHT INTO EGYPT.

A BALLAD.

THERE'S a legend that's told of a gypsy who dwelt
 In the lands where the pyramids be ;
 And her robe was embroidered with stars, and her belt
 With devices right wondrous to see ;
 And she lived in the days when our Lord was a child
 On his mother's immaculate breast ;
 When he fled from his foes, — when to Egypt
 exiled,
 He went down with St. Joseph the blest.

This Egyptian held converse with magic, methinks,
 And the future was given to her gaze ;
 For an obelisk marked her abode, and a sphinx
 On her threshold kept vigil always.
 She was pensive and ever alone, nor was seen
 In the haunts of the dissolute crowd ;
 But communed with the ghosts of the Pharaohs,
 I ween,
 Or with visitors wrapped in a shroud.

And there came an old man from the desert one
 day,
 With a maid on a mule by that road ;
 And a child on her bosom reclined, and the way
 Led them straight to the gypsy's abode ;
 And they seemed to have travelled a wearisome
 path,
 From thence many, many a league, —

From a tyrant's pursuit, from an enemy's wrath,
 Spent with toil and o'ercome with fatigue.

And the gypsy came forth from her dwelling, and prayed
 That the pilgrims would rest them awhile ;
 And she offered her couch to that delicate maid,
 Who had come many, many a mile.
 And she fondled the babe with affection's caress,
 And she begged the old man would repose ;
 "Here the stranger," she said, "ever finds free access,
 And the wanderer balm for his woes."

Then her guests from the glare of the noonday she led
 To a seat in her grotto so cool ;
 Where she spread them a banquet of fruits, and a shed,
 With a manger, was found for the mule ;
 With the wine of the palm-tree, with dates newly culled,
 All the toil of the day she beguiled ;
 And with song in a language mysterious she lulled
 On her bosom the wayfaring child.

When the gypsy anon in her Ethiop hand
 Took the infant's diminutive palm,
 O, 't was fearful to see how the features she scanned
 Of the babe in his slumbers so calm !
 Well she noted each mark and each furrow that crossed
 O'er the tracings of destiny's line :
 "WHENCE CAME YE?" she cried, in astonishment lost,
 "FOR THIS CHILD IS OF LINEAGE DIVINE!"

"From the village of Nazareth," Joseph replied,
 "Where we dwelt in the land of the Jew,
 We have fled from a tyrant whose garment is dyed
 In the gore of the children he slew :
 We were told to remain till an angel's command
 Should appoint us the hour to return ;
 But till then we inhabit the foreigners' land,
 And in Egypt we make our sojourn."

"Then ye tarry with me," cried the gypsy in joy,
 "And ye make of my dwelling your home ;
 Many years have I prayed that the Israelite boy
 (Blessed hope of the Gentiles !) would come."
 And she kissed both the feet of the infant and knelt,
 And adored him at once ; then a smile
 Lit the face of his mother, who cheerfully dwelt
 With her host on the banks of the Nile.

FRANCIS MAHONY (Father Prout).

BURIAL OF MOSES.

"And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor; but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day." —
DEUT. xxxiv. 6.

By Nebo's lonely mountain,
On this side Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab,
There lies a lonely grave;
But no man built that sepulchre,
And no man saw it e'er;
For the angels of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

That was the grandest funeral
That ever passed on earth;
Yet no man heard the trampling,
Or saw the train go forth:
Noiselessly as the daylight
Comes when the night is done,
And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek
Grows into the great sun;

Noiselessly as the spring-time
Her crown of verdure weaves,
And all the trees on all the hills
Unfold their thousand leaves:
So without sound of music
Or voice of them that wept,
Silently down from the mountain's crown
The great procession swept.

Perchance the bald old eagle
On gray Beth-peor's height
Out of his rocky eyry
Looked on the wondrous sight;
Perchance the lion stalking
Still shuns that hallowed spot;
For beast and bird have seen and heard
That which man knoweth not.

But, when the warrior dieth,
His comrades of the war,
With arms reversed and muffled drums,
Follow the funeral car:
They show the banners taken;
They tell his battles won;
And after him lead his masterless steed,
While peals the minute-gun.

Amid the noblest of the land
Men lay the sage to rest,
And give the bard an honored place,
With costly marbles drest,
In the great minster transept
Where lights like glories fall,
And the sweet choir sings, and the organ rings
Along the emblazoned hall.

This was the bravest warrior
That ever buckled sword;
This the most gifted poet
That ever breathed a word;
And never earth's philosopher
Traced with his golden pen
On the deathless page truths half so sage
As he wrote down for men.

And had he not high honor? —
The hillside for a pall!
To lie in state while angels wait,
With stars for tapers tall!
And the dark rock-pines, like tossing plumes,
Over his bier to wave,
And God's own hand, in that lonely land,
To lay him in his grave! —

In that strange grave without a name,
Whence his uncoffined clay
Shall break again — O wondrous thought! —
Before the judgment-day,
And stand, with glory wrapped around,
On the hills he never trod,
And speak of the strife that won our life
With the incarnate Son of God.

O lonely tomb in Moab's land!
O dark Beth-peor's hill!
Speak to these curious hearts of ours,
And teach them to be still:
God hath his mysteries of grace,
Ways that we cannot tell,
He hides them deep, like the secret sleep
Of him he loved so well.

CECIL FRANCES ALEXANDER.

THE GREENWOOD SHRIFT.

GEORGE III. AND A DYING WOMAN IN WINDSOR FOREST

OUTSTRETCHED beneath the leafy shade
Of Windsor forest's deepest glade,
A dying woman lay;
Three little children round her stood,
And there went up from the greenwood
A woful wail that day.

"O mother!" was the mingled cry,
"O mother, mother! do not die,
And leave us all alone."
"My blessed babes!" she tried to say,
But the faint accents died away
In a low sobbing moan.

And then, life struggled hard with death,
And fast and strong she drew her breath,
And up she raised her head;

And, peering through the deep wood maze
With a long, sharp, unearthly gaze,
 "Will she not come?" she said.

Just then, the parting boughs between,
A little maid's light form was seen,
 All breathless with her speed;
And, following close, a man came on (A portly man to look upon),
 Who led a panting steed.

"Mother!" the little maiden cried,
Or e'er she reached the woman's side,
 And kissed her clay-cold cheek, --
"I have not idled in the town,
But long went wandering up and down,
 The minister to seek.

"They told me here, they told me there, --
I think they mocked me everywhere;
 And when I found his home,
And begged him on my bended knee
To bring his book and come with me,
 Mother! he would not come.

"I told him how you dying lay,
And could not go in peace away
 Without the minister;
I begged him, for dear Christ his sake,
But O, my heart was fit to break, --
 Mother! he would not stir.

"So, though my tears were blinding me,
I ran back, fast as fast could be,
 To come again to you;
And here -- close by -- this squire I met,
Who asked (so mild) what made me fret;
 And when I told him true, --

"'I will go with you, child,' he said,
'God sends me to this dying bed,' --
 Mother, he's here, hard by."
While thus the little maiden spoke,
The man, his back against an oak,
 Looked on with glistening eye.

The bridle on his neck hung free,
With quivering flank and trembling knee,
 Pressed close his bonny bay;
A statelier man, a statelier steed,
Never on greensward paced, I rede,
 Than those stood there that day.

So, while the little maiden spoke,
The man, his back against an oak,
 Looked on with glistening eye
And folded arms, and in his look
Something that, like a sermon-book,
 Preached, -- "All is vanity."

But when the dying woman's face
Turned toward him with a wishful gaze,
 He stepped to where she lay;
And, kneeling down, bent over her,
Saying, "I am a minister,
 My sister! let us pray."

And well, withouten book or stole,
(God's words were printed on his soul!)
 Into the dying ear
He breathed, as 't were an angel's strain,
The things that unto life pertain,
 And death's dark shadows clear.

He spoke of sinners' lost estate,
In Christ renewed, regenerate, --
 Of God's most blest decree,
That not a single soul should die
Who turns repentant, with the cry
 "Be merciful to me."

He spoke of trouble, pain, and toil,
Endured but for a little while
 In patience, faith, and love, --
Sure, in God's own good time, to be Exchanged for an eternity
 Of happiness above.

Then, as the spirit ebbed away,
He raised his hands and eyes to pray
 That peaceful it might pass;
And then -- the orphans' sobs alone
Were heard, and they knelt, every one,
 Close round on the green grass.

Such was the sight their wandering eyes
Beheld, in heart-struck, mute surprise,
 Who reined their coursers back,
Just as they found the long astray,
Who, in the heat of chase that day,
 Had wandered from their track.

But each man reined his pawing steed,
And lighted down, as if agreed,
 In silence at his side;
And there, uncovered all, they stood, --
It was a wholesome sight and good
 That day for mortal pride.

For of the noblest of the land
Was that deep-hushed, bareheaded band;
 And, central in the ring,
By that dead pauper on the ground,
Her ragged orphans clinging round,
 Knelt their anointed king.

ROBERT and CAROLINE SOUTHEY

THE COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT.

INSCRIBED TO R. AIKEN, ESQ.

"Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
 Their homely joys and destiny obscure;
 Nor grandeur hear, with a disdainful smile,
 The short but simple annals of the poor." — GRAY.

My loved, my honored, much-respected friend,
 No mercenary bard his homage pays:
 With honest pride I scorn each selfish end;
 My dearest meed, a friend's esteem and praise.

To you I sing, in simple Scottish lays,
 The lowly train in life's sequestered scene;
 The native feelings strong, the guileless ways;
 What Aiken in a cottage would have been;
 Ah! though his worth unknown, far happier
 there, I ween.

November chill blows loud wi' angry sigh;
 The shortening winter-day is near a close;
 The miry beasts retreating frae the plough,
 The blackening trains o' craws to their repose;
 The toilworn coter frae his labor goes, —
 This night his weekly toil is at an end, —
 Collects his spades, his mattocks, and his hoes,
 Hoping the morn in ease and rest to spend,
 And weary, o'er the moor, his course does hameward bend.

At length his lonely cot appears in view,
 Beneath the shelter of an aged tree;
 Th' expectant wee things, toddlin', stacher
 through
 To meet their dad, wi' flichterin' noise an' glee.
 His wee bit ingle, blinking bonnily,
 His clean hearthstane, his thriftie wifie's
 smile,
 The lisping infant prattling on his knee,
 Does a' his weary carking cares beguile,
 And makes him quite forget his labor and his toil.

Belyve* the elder bairns come drapping in,
 At service out amang the farmers roun;
 Some ca' the plough, some herd, some tentie†
 rin
 A cannie errand to a neibor town;
 Their eldest hope, their Jenny, woman grown,
 In youthfu' bloom, love sparkling in her e'e,
 Comes hame, perhaps, to shew a bra' new gown,
 Or deposit her sair-won penny-fee,
 To help her parents dear, if they in hardship be.

Wi' joy unfeigned brothers and sisters meet,
 An' each for other's welfare kindly spiers:
 The social hours, swift-winged, unnoticed fleet;
 Each tells the uncos that he sees or hears;

The parents, partial, eye their hopeful years;
 Anticipation forward points the view:
 The mother, wi' her needle an' her shears,
 Gars auld claes look amaise as weel's the new;
 The father mixes a' wi' admonition due.

Their master's an' their mistress's command,
 The yonkers a' are warn'd to obey;
 And mind their labors wi' an eydent* hand,
 And ne'er, though out o' sight, to jauk or play;
 "An' O, be sure to fear the Lord alway!
 An' mind your duty, duly, morn an' night!
 Lest in temptation's path ye gang astray,
 Implore his counsel and assisting might;
 They never sought in vain that sought the Lord aright!"

But, hark! a rap comes gently to the door.
 Jenny, wha kens the meaning o' the same,
 Tells how a neibor lad cam o'er the moor,
 To do some errands and convoy her hame.
 The wily mother sees the conscious flame
 Sparkle in Jenny's e'e, and flush her cheek;
 Wi' heart-struck anxious care inquires his name,
 While Jenny haffins† is afraid to speak;
 Weel pleased the mother hears it's nae wild,
 worthless rake.

Wi' kindly welcome, Jenny brings him ben;
 A strappin' youth; he taks the mother's e'e;
 Blithe Jenny sees the visit's no ill ta'en;
 The father cracks of horses, ploughs, and kye.
 The youngster's artless heart o'erflows wi' joy,
 But blate and lathefu', scarce can weel behave;
 The mother, wi' a woman's wiles, can spy
 What makes the youth sae bashfu' an' sae
 grave;
 Weel pleased to think her bairn's respected like the lave.

O happy love! where love like this is found!
 O heartfelt raptures! bliss beyond compare!
 I've paced much this weary mortal round,
 And sage experience bids me this declare: —
 If Heaven's draught of heavenly pleasure spare,
 One cordial in this melancholy vale,
 'Tis when a youthful, loving, modest pair
 In other's arms breathe out the tender tale,
 Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the evening gale.

Is there, in human form, that bears a heart,
 A wretch, a villain, lost to love and truth,
 That can, with studied, sly, ensnaring art,
 Betray sweet Jenny's unsuspecting youth!

* By and by.

† Cautious.

* Diligent.

† Half.

Curse on his perjured arts! dissembling smooth!
 Are honor, virtue, conscience, all exiled?
 Is there no pity, no relenting ruth,
 Points to the parents fondling o'er their child,
 Then paints the ruined maid, and their distraction wild?

But now the supper crowns their simple board,
 The halesome parritch, chief o' Scotia's food;
 The soupe their only hawkie * does afford,
 That yont the halian † snugly chows her cood;
 The dame brings forth, in complimentary mood,
 To grace the lad, her weel-hained kebbuck ‡
 fell,
 An' aft he's prest, an' aft he ca's it guid;
 The frugal wifie, garrulous, will tell,
 How 't was a towmoud § auld, sin' lint was i' the bell.

The cheerfu' supper done, wi' serious face,
 They, round the ingle, form a circle wide;
 The sire turns o'er, wi' patriarchal grace,
 The big ha'-Bible, ance his father's pride:
 His bonnet reverently is laid aside,
 His lyart haffets || wearing thin an' bare:
 Those strains that once did sweet in Zion glide,
 He wales a portion with judicious care;
 And "Let us worship God!" he says with solemn air.

They chant their artless notes in simple guise;
 They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim:
 Perhaps "Dundee's" wild-warbling measures
 rise,
 Or plaintive "Martyrs," worthy of the name;
 Or noble "Elgin" beats the heavenward flame,
 The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays:
 Compared with these, Italian trills are tame;
 The tickled ears no heartfelt raptures raise;
 Nae unison hae they with our Creator's praise.

The priest-like father reads the sacred page,—
 How Abram was the friend of God on high;
 Or Moses bade eternal warfare wage
 With Amalek's ungracious progeny;
 Or how the royal bard did groaning lie
 Beneath the stroke of Heaven's avenging ire;
 Or Job's pathetic plaint, and wailing cry;
 Or rapt Isaiah's wild, seraphic fire;
 Or other holy seers that tune the sacred lyre.

Perhaps the Christian volume is the theme,—
 How guiltless blood for guilty man was shed;
 How He, who bore in heaven the second name,
 Had not on earth whereon to lay his head:

§ Twelvemonth.

|| Gray locks.

How his first followers and servants sped;
 The precepts sage they wrote to many a land;
 How he, who lone in Patmos banished,
 Saw in the sun a mighty angel stand,
 And heard great Bab'lon's doom pronounced by Heaven's command.

Then, kneeling down, to heaven's eternal King,
 The saint, the father, and the husband prays:
 Hope "springs exulting on triumphant wing,"
 That thus they all shall meet in future days;
 There ever bask in uncreated rays,
 No more to sigh, or shed the bitter tear,
 Together hymning their Creator's praise,
 In such society, yet still more dear;
 While circling Time moves round in an eternal sphere.

Compared with this, how poor Religion's pride,
 In all the pomp of method and of art,
 When men display to congregations wide,
 Devotion's every grace, except the heart!
 The Power, incensed, the pageant will desert,
 The pompous strain, the sacerdotal stole;
 But, haply, in some cottage far apart,
 May hear, well pleased, the language of the soul;
 And in his Book of Life the inmates poor enroll.

Then homeward all take off their several way;
 The youngling cottagers retire to rest:
 The parent-pair their secret homage pay,
 And proffer up to Heaven the warm request,
 That He who stills the raven's clamorous nest,
 And decks the lily fair in flowery pride,
 Would, in the way his wisdom sees the best,
 For them and for their little ones provide;
 But, chiefly, in their hearts with grace divine preside.

From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur springs,
 That makes her loved at home, revered abroad;
 Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
 "An honest man's the noblest work of God!"
 And ceres, in fair Virtue's heavenly road,
 The cottage leaves the palace far behind:
 What is a lordling's pomp?—a cumbrous load,
 Disguising oft the wretch of humankind,
 Studied in arts of hell, in wickedness refined!

O Scotia! my dear, my native soil!
 For whom my warmest wish to Heaven is sent,
 Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil
 Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content!

And, O, may Heaven their simple lives prevent
 From luxury's contagion, weak and vile !
 Then, how'er crowns and coronets be rent,
 A virtuous populace may rise the while,
 And stand a wall of fire around their much-loved isle.

O Thou ! who poured the patriotic tide,
 That streamed through Wallace's undaunted
 heart ;
 Who dared to nobly stem tyrannic pride,
 Or nobly die, the second glorious part,
 (The patriot's God peculiarly thou art,
 His friend, inspirer, guardian, and reward !)
 O, never, never Scotia's realm desert ;
 But still the patriot and the patriot bard
 In bright succession raise, her ornament and guard !

ROBERT BURNS.

THE RELIGION OF HUDIBRAS.

FROM "HUDIBRAS," PART I.

HE was of that stubborn crew
 Of errant saints, whom all men grant
 To be the true church militant ;
 Such as do build their faith upon
 The holy text of pike and gun ;
 Decide all controversies by Infallible artillery,
 And prove their doctrine orthodox
 By apostolic blows and knocks ;
 Call fire, and sword, and desolation
 A godly, thorough Reformation,
 Which always must be carried on
 And still be doing, never done ;
 As if religion were intended
 For nothing else but to be mended.
 A sect whose chief devotion lies
 In odd perverse antipathies ;
 In falling out with that or this,
 And finding somewhat still amiss ;
 More peevish, cross, and splenetic,
 Than dog distract, or monkey sick ;
 That with more care keep holiday
 The wrong than others the right way ;
 Compound for sins they are inclined to,
 By damning those they have no mind to ;
 Still so perverse and opposite,
 As if they worshipped God for spite ;
 The self-same thing they will abhor
 One way, and long another for.

SAMUEL BUTLER.

THE FAITHFUL ANGEL.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK V.

THE seraph Abdiel, faithful found
 Among the faithless, faithful only he ;
 Among innumerable false, unmoved,
 Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified,

His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal ;
 Nor number, nor example with him wrought
 To swerve from truth, or change his constant mind,
 Though single. From amidst them forth he passed,
 Long way through hostile scorn, which he sustained
 Superior, nor of violence feared aught ;
 And with retorted scorn his back he turned
 On those proud towers to swift destruction doomed.

MILTON.

THE OTHER WORLD.

It lies around us like a cloud, —
 A world we do not see ;
 Yet the sweet closing of an eye
 May bring us there to be.

Its gentle breezes fan our cheek ;
 Amid our worldly cares
 Its gentle voices whisper love,
 And mingle with our prayers.

Sweet hearts around us throb and beat,
 Sweet helping hands are stirred,
 And palpitates the veil between
 With breathings almost heard.

The silence — awful, sweet, and calm —
 They have no power to break ;
 For mortal words are not for them
 To utter or partake.

So thin, so soft, so sweet they glide,
 So near to press they seem, —
 They seem to lull us to our rest,
 And melt into our dream.

And in the hush of rest they bring
 'Tis easy now to see
 How lovely and how sweet a pass
 The hour of death may be.

To close the eye, and close the ear,
 Rapt in a trance of bliss,
 And gently dream in loving arms
 To swoon to that — from this.

Scarce knowing if we wake or sleep,
 Scarce asking where we are,
 To feel all evil sink away,
 All sorrow and all care.

Sweet souls around us ! watch us still,
 Press nearer to our side,
 Into our thoughts, into our prayers,
 With gentle helpings glide.

Let death between us be as naught,
A-dried and vanished stream ;
Your joy be the reality,
Our suffering life the dream.

HARRIET BELCHER STOWE.

THE LOVE OF GOD.

ALL things that are on earth shall wholly pass
away,
Except the love of God, which shall live and last
for aye.
The forms of men shall be as they had never been ;
The blasted groves shall lose their fresh and tender green ;
The birds of the thicket shall end their pleasant
song,
And the nightingale shall cease to chant the evening long.
The kine of the pasture shall feel the dart that kills,
And all the fair white flocks shall perish from the hills.
The goat and antlered stag, the wolf and the fox,
The wild boar of the wood, and the chamois of the rocks,
And the strong and fearless bear, in the trodden dust shall lie ;
And the dolphin of the sea, and the mighty whale, shall die.
And realms shall be dissolved, and empires be no more,
And they shall bow to death, who ruled from shore to shore ;
And the great globe itself, so the holy writings tell,
With the rolling firmament, where the starry armies dwell,
Shall melt with fervent heat, — they shall all
pass away,
Except the love of God, which shall live and last
for aye.

From the Provençal of BERNARD RASCAS. Translation of WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

THE MASTER'S TOUCH.

In the still air the music lies unheard ;
In the rough marble beauty hides unseen :
To make the music and the beauty, needs
The master's touch, the sculptor's chisel keen.

Great Master, touch us with thy skilful hand ;
Let not the music that is in us die !
Great Sculptor, hew and polish us ; nor let,
Hidden and lost, thy form within us lie !

Spare not the stroke ! do with us as thou wilt !
Let there be naught unfinished, broken, marred ;
Complete thy purpose, that we may become
Thy perfect image, thou our God and Lord !

HORATIUS BONAR

DIFFERENT MINDS.

SOME murmur when their sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
If one small speck of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue ;
And some with thankful love are filled
If but one streak of light,
One ray of God's good mercy, gild
The darkness of their night.

In palaces are hearts that ask,
In discontent and pride,
Why life is such a dreary task,
And all good things denied ;
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How Love has in their aid
(Love that not ever seems to tire)
Such rich provision made.

RICHARD CHENEVIX TRENCH.

CANA.

DEAR Friend ! whose presence in the house,
Whose gracious word benign,
Could once, at Cana's wedding feast,
Change water into wine ;

Come, visit us ! and when dull work
Grows weary, line on line,
Revive our souls, and let us see
Life's water turned to wine.

Gay mirth shall deepen into joy,
Earth's hopes grow half divine,
When Jesus visits us, to make
Life's water glow as wine.

The social talk, the evening fire,
The homely household shrine,
Grow bright with angel visits, when
The Lord pours out the wine.

For when self-seeking turns to love,
Not knowing mine nor thine,
The miracle again is wrought,
And water turned to wine.

JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE.

FAITH.

O World, thou choosest not the better part!
It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
Columbus found a world, and had no chart,
Save one that faith deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.
Our knowledge is a torch of smoky pine
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across a void of mystery and dread.
Bid, then, the tender light of faith to shine
By which alone the mortal heart is led
Unto the thinking of the thought divine.

POEMS.

PRESENTIMENT is that long shadow on the lawn
Indicative that suns go down;
The notice to the startled grass
That darkness is about to pass.

I NEVER saw a moor,
I never saw the sea;
Yet know I how the heather looks,
And what a wave must be.

I never spake with God,
Nor visited in heaven;
Yet certain am I of the spot
As if the chart were given.

EMILY DICKINSON.

THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE.

O THOU great Friend to all the sons of men,
Who once appeared in humblest guise below,
Sin to rebuke, to break the captive's chain,
And call thy brethren forth from want and woe, —

We look to thee ! thy truth is still the Light
Which guides the nations, groping on their way,
Stumbling and falling in disastrous night,
Yet hoping ever for the perfect day.

Yes ; thou art still the Life, thou art the Way
The holiest know ; Light, Life, the Way of heaven !
And they who dearest hope and deepest pray,
Toil by the Light, Life, Way, which thou hast given.

THEODORE PARKER.

FOREVER WITH THE LORD.

FOREVER with the Lord !
Amen ! so let it be !
Life from the dead is in that word,
And immortality.

Here in the body pent,
Absent from him I roam,
Yet nightly pitch my moving tent
A day's march nearer home.

My Father's house on high,
Home of my soul ! how near,
At times, to faith's foreseeing eye
Thy golden gates appear !

Ah ! then my spirit faints
To reach the land I love,
The bright inheritance of saints,
Jerusalem above !

Yet clouds will intervene,
And all my prospect flies ;
Like Noah's dove, I flit between
Rough seas and stormy skies.

Anon the clouds depart,
The winds and waters cease ;
While sweetly o'er my gladdened heart
Expands the bow of peace !

Beneath its glowing arch,
Along the hallowed ground,
I see cherubic armies march,
A camp of fire around.

I hear at morn and even,
At noon and midnight hour,
The choral harmonies of heaven
Earth's Babel tongues o'erpower.

Then, then I feel that he,
Remembered or forgot,
The Lord, is never far from me,
Though I perceive him not.

In darkness as in light,
Hidden alike from view,
I sleep, I wake, as in his sight
Who looks all nature through.

All that I am, have been,
All that I yet may be,
He sees at once, as he hath seen,
And shall forever see.

"Forever with the Lord :"
Father, if 't is thy will,
The promise of that faithful word
Unto thy child fulfil !

So, when my latest breath
Shall rend the veil in twain,
By death I shall escape from death,
And life eternal gain.

JAMES MONTGOMERY

THE SABBATH OF THE SOUL.

SLEEP, sleep to-day, tormenting cares,
Of earth and folly born ;
Ye shall not dim the light that streams
From this celestial morn.

To-morrow will be time enough
To feel your harsh control ;
Ye shall not violate, this day,
The Sabbath of my soul.

Sleep, sleep forever, guilty thoughts ;
Let fires of vengeance die ;
And, purged from sin, may I behold
A God of purity !

ANNA LETITIA BARBAULD

EDWIN AND PAULINUS :

THE CONVERSION OF NORTHUMBRIA

THE black-haired gaunt Paulinus
By ruddy Edwin stood : —
"Bow down, O king of Deira,
Before the blessed Rood !
Cast out thy heathen idols,
And worship Christ our Lord."
— But Edwin looked and pondered,
And answered not a word.

Again the gaunt Paulinus
 To ruddy Edwin spake :
 " God offers life immortal
 For his dear Son's own sake !
 Wilt thou not hear his message,
 Who bears the keys and sword ?"
 — But Edwin looked and pondered,
 And answered not a word.

Rose then a sage old warrior
 Was fivescore winters old ;
 Whose beard from chin to girdle
 Like one long snow-wreath rolled : —
 " At Yule-time in our chamber
 We sit in warmth and light,
 While cold and howling round us
 Lies the black land of Night.

" Athwart the room a sparrow
 Darts from the open door :
 Within the happy hearth-light
 One red flash, — and no more !
 We see it come from darkness,
 And into darkness go : —
 So is our life, King Edwin !
 Alas, that it is so !

" But if this pale Paulinus
 Have somewhat more to tell ;
 Some news of Whence and Whither,
 And where the soul will dwell ;
 If on that outer darkness
 The sun of hope may shine ; —
 He makes life worth the living !
 I take his God for mine !"

So spake the wise old warrior ;
 And all about him cried,
 " Paulinus' God hath conquered !
 And he shall be our guide : —
 For he makes life worth living
 Who brings this message plain,
 When our brief days are over,
 That we shall live again."

ANONYMOUS.

THE LOVE OF GOD SUPREME.

Thou hidden love of God, whose height,
 Whose depth unfathomed no man knows,
 I see from far thy beauteous light,
 Inly I sigh for thy repose.
 My heart is pained, nor can it be
 At rest till it finds rest in thee.

Thy secret voice invites me still
 The sweetness of thy yoke to prove,
 And fain I would ; but though my will
 Be fixed, yet wide my passions rove.

Yet hindrances strew all the way ;
 I aim at thee, yet from thee stray.

"Tis mercy all that thou hast brought
 My mind to seek her peace in thee.
 Yet while I seek but find thee not
 No peace my wand'ring soul shall see.
 Oh ! when shall all my wand'rings end,
 And all my steps to-thee-ward tend ?

Is there a thing beneath the sun
 That strives with thee my heart to share ?
 Ah ! tear it thence and reign alone,
 The Lord of every motion there.
 Then shall my heart from earth be free,
 When it has found repose in thee.

Oh ! hide this self from me, that I
 No more, but Christ in me, may live.
 My vile affections crucify,
 Nor let one darling lust survive.
 In all things nothing may I see,
 Nothing desire or seek but thee.

O Love, thy sovereign aid impart,
 To save me from low-thoughted care ;
 Chase this self-will through all my heart,
 Through all its latent mazes there.
 Make me thy duteous child, that I
 Ceaseless may Abba, Father, cry.

Ah ! no ; ne'er will I backward turn :
 Thine wholly, thine alone I am.
 Thrice happy he who views with scorn
 Earth's toys, for thee his constant flame.
 Oh ! help, that I may never move
 From the blest footsteps of thy love.

Each moment draw from earth away
 My heart, that lowly waits thy call.
 Speak to my inmost soul, and say,
 " I am thy Love, thy God, thy All."
 To feel thy power, to hear thy voice,
 To taste thy love is all my choice.

JOHN WESLEY

THE RIGHT MUST WIN.

O, it is hard to work for God,
 To rise and take his part
 Upon this battle-field of earth,
 And not sometimes lose heart !

He hides himself so wondrously,
 As though there were no God ;
 He is least seen when all the powers
 Of ill are most abroad.

Or he deserts us at the hour
The fight is all but lost;
And seems to leave us to ourselves
Just when we need him most.

Ill masters good, good seems to change
To ill with greatest ease;
And, worst of all, the good with good
Is at cross-purposes.

Ah! God is other than we think;
His ways are far above,
Far beyond reason's height, and reached
Only by childlike love.

Workman of God! O, lose not heart,
But learn what God is like;
And in the darkest battle-field
Thou shalt know where to strike.

Thrice blest is he to whom is given
The instinct that can tell
That God is on the field when he Is most invisible.

Blest, too, is he who can divine
Where real right doth lie,
And dares to take the side that seems
Wrong to man's blindfold eye.

For right is right, since God is God;
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin!

FREDERICK WILLIAM FABER.

A DYING HYMN.

EARTH, with its dark and dreadful ills,
Recedes and fades away;
Lift up your heads, ye heavenly hills;
Ye gates of death, give way!

My soul is full of whispered song, —
My blindness is my sight;
The shadows that I feared so long
Are full of life and light.

The while my pulses fainter beat,
My faith doth so abound;
I feel grow firm beneath my feet
The green, immortal ground.

That faith to me a courage gives
Low as the grave to go:
I know that my Redeemer lives, —
That I shall live I know.

The palace walls I almost see
Where dwells my Lord and King!
O grave, where is thy victory?
O death, where is thy sting?

ALICE CARY.

HOPEFULLY WAITING.

"Blessed are they who are homesick, for they shall come at last to their Father's house." — HEINRICH STILLING.

Not as you meant, O learnèd man, and good!
Do I accept thy words of truth and rest;
God, knowing all, knows what for me is best,
And gives me what I need, not what he could,
Nor always as I would!
I shall go to the Father's house, and see
Him and the Elder Brother face to face, —
What day or hour I know not. Let me be Steadfast in work, and earnest in the race,
Not as a homesick child who all day long
Whines at its play, and seldom speaks in song.

If for a time some loved one goes away,
And leaves us our appointed work to do,
Can we to him or to ourselves be true
In mourning his departure day by day,
And so our work delay?
Nay, if we love and honor, we shall make
The absence brief by doing well our task, —
Not for ourselves, but for the dear One's sake.
And at his coming only of him ask
Approval of the work, which most was done,
Not for ourselves, but our Belovèd One.

Our Father's house, I know, is broad and grand;
In it how many, many mansions are!
And, far beyond the light of sun or star,
Four little ones of mine through that fair land
Are walking hand in hand!
Think you I love not, or that I forget
These of my loins? Still this world is fair,
And I am singing while my eyes are wet
With weeping in this balmy summer air:
Yet I'm not homesick, and the children here
Have need of me, and so my way is clear.

I would be joyful as my days go by,
Counting God's mercies to me. He who bore
Life's heaviest cross is mine forevermore,
And I who wait his coming, shall not I
On his sure word rely?
And if sometimes the way be rough and steep,
Be heavy for the grief he sends to me,
Or at my waking I would only weep,
Let me remember these are things to be,
To work his blessèd will until he come
To take my hand, and lead me safely home.

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH.

WHY THUS LONGING?

Why thus longing, thus forever sighing
 For the far off, unattained, and dim,
 While the beautiful, all round thee lying,
 Offers up its low perpetual hymn ?

Wouldst thou listen to its gentle teaching,
 All thy restless yearnings it would still ;
 Leaf and flower and laden bee are preaching
 Thine own sphere, though humble, first to fill.

Poor indeed thou must be, if around thee
 Thou no ray of light and joy canst throw, —
 If no silken cord of love hath bound thee
 To some little world through weal and woe ;

If no dear eyes thy fond love can brighten, —
 No fond voices answer to thine own ;
 If no brother's sorrow thou canst lighten
 By daily sympathy and gentle tone.

Not by deeds that win the crowd's applauses,
 Not by works that gain thee world-renown,
 Not by martyrdom or vaunted crosses,
 'Canst thou win and wear the immortal crown.

Daily struggling, though unloved and lonely,
 Every day a rich reward will give ;
 Thou wilt find, by hearty striving only,
 And truly loving, thou canst truly live.

Dost thou revel in the rosy morning,
 When all nature hails the Lord of light,
 And his smile, the mountain-tops adorning,
 Robes yon fragrant fields in radiance bright ?

Other hands may grasp the field and forest,
 Proud proprietors in pomp may shine ;
 But with fervent love if thou adorest,
 Thou art wealthier, — all the world is thine.

Yet if through earth's wide domains thou rovest,
 Sighing that they are not thine alone,
 Not those fair fields, but thyself thou lovest,
 And their beauty and thy wealth are gone.

Nature wears the color of the spirit ;
 Sweetly to her worshipper she sings ;
 All the glow, the grace she doth inherit,
 Round her trusting child she fondly flings.

HARRIET WINSLOW SEWALL.

O YET WE TRUST THAT SOMEHOW
GOOD.

FROM "IN MEMORIAM."

O YET we trust that somehow good
 Will be the final goal of ill,
 To pangs of nature, sins of will,
 Defects of doubt, and taints of blood ;

That nothing walks with aimless feet ;
 That not one life shall be destroyed,
 Or cast as rubbish to the void,
 When God hath made the pile complete ;

That not a worm is cloven in vain ;
 That not a moth with vain desire
 Is shrivelled in a fruitless fire,
 Or but subserves another's gain.

Behold, we know not anything ;
 I can but trust that good shall fall
 At last — far off — at last, to all,
 And every winter change to spring.

So runs my dream : but what am I ?
 An infant crying in the night :
 An infant crying for the light :
 And with no language but a cry.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE LOVE OF GOD.

Thou Grace Divine, encircling all,
 A soundless, shoreless sea !
 Wherein at last our souls must fall,
 O Love of God most free !

When over dizzy heights we go,
 One soft hand blinds our eyes,
 The other leads us, safe and slow,
 O Love of God most wise !

And though we turn us from thy face,
 And wander wide and long,
 Thou hold'st us still in thine embrace,
 O Love of God most strong !

The saddened heart, the restless soul,
 The toil-worn frame and mind,
 Alike confess thy sweet control,
 O Love of God most kind !

But not alone thy care we claim,
 Our wayward steps to win ;
 We know thee by a dearer name,
 O Love of God within !

And, filled and quickened by thy breath,
 Our souls are strong and free
 To rise o'er sin and fear and death,
 O Love of God, to thee !

ELIZA SCUDDER.

LOVE DIVINE, ALL LOVE EXCELLING.

Love divine, all love excelling,
 Joy of heaven to earth come down,
 Fix in us thy humble dwelling,
 All thy faithful mercies crown ;

Jesus, thou art all compassion !
 Pure, unbounded love thou art ;
 Visit us with thy salvation,
 Enter every trembling heart.

Breathe, O, breathe thy loving spirit
 Into every troubled breast ;
 Let us all in thee inherit,
 Let us find the promised rest ;
 Take away the love of sinning,
 Alpha and Omega be ;
 End of faith, as its beginning,
 Set our hearts at liberty.

Come, almighty to deliver,
 Let us all thy life receive ;
 Suddenly return, and never,
 Never more thy temples leave :
 Thee we would be always blessing,
 Serve thee as thy hosts above ;
 Pray and praise thee without ceasing,
 Glory in thy precious love.

Finish then thy new creation ;
 Pure, unspotted may we be ;
 Let us see thy great salvation
 Perfectly restored by thee :
 Changed from glory into glory,
 Till in heaven we take our place !
 Till we cast our crowns before thee,
 Lost in wonder, love, and praise.

AUGUSTUS TOPLADY.

I SAW THEE.

"When thou wast under the fig-tree, I saw thee."

I saw thee when, as twilight fell,
 And evening lit her fairest star,
 Thy footsteps sought yon quiet dell,
 The world's confusion left afar.

I saw thee when thou stood'st alone,
 Where drooping branches thick o'erhung,
 Thy still retreat to all unknown,
 Hid in deep shadows darkly flung.

I saw thee when, as died each sound
 Of bleating flock or woodland bird,
 Kneeling, as if on holy ground,
 Thy voice the listening silence heard.

I saw thy calm, uplifted eyes,
 And marked the heaving of thy breast,
 When rose to heaven thy heartfelt sighs
 For purer life, for perfect rest.

I saw the light that o'er thy face
 Stole with a soft, suffusing glow,
 As if, within, celestial grace
 Breathed the same bliss that angels know.

I saw — what thou didst not — above
 Thy lowly head an open heaven ;
 And tokens of thy Father's love
 With smiles to thy rapt spirit given.

I saw thee from that sacred spot
 With firm and peaceful soul depart ;
 I, Jesus, saw thee, — doubt it not, —
 And read the secrets of thy heart !

RAY PALMER.

STRONG SON OF GOD, IMMORTAL LOVE

FROM "IN MEMORIAM."

STRONG Son of God, immortal Love,
 Whom we, that have not seen thy face,
 By faith, and faith alone, embrace,
 Believing where we cannot prove ;

Thine are these orbs of light and shade ;
 Thou madest Life in man and brute ;
 Thou madest Death ; and lo, thy foot
 Is on the skull which thou hast made.

Thou wilt not leave us in the dust ;
 Thou madest man, he knows not why ;
 He thinks he was not made to die ;
 And thou hast made him : thou art just.

Thou seemest human and divine,
 The highest, holiest manhood, thou :
 Our wills are ours, we know not how ;
 Our wills are ours, to make them thine.

Our little systems have their day ;
 They have their day and cease to be :
 They are but broken lights of thee,
 And thou, O Lord, art more than they.

We have but faith : we cannot know ;
 For knowledge is of things we see ;
 And yet we trust it comes from thee,
 A beam in darkness : let it grow.

Let knowledge grow from more to more,
 But more of reverence in us dwell ;
 That mind and soul, according well,
 May make one music as before,

But vaster. We are fools and slight ;
 We mock thee when we do not fear :
 But help thy foolish ones to bear ;
 Help thy vain worlds to bear thy light.

Forgive what seemed my sin in me ;
 What seemed my worth since I began ;
 For merit lives from man to man,
 And not from man, O Lord, to thee.

Forgive my grief for one removed,
 Thy creature, whom I found so fair.
 I trust he lives in thee, and there
 I find him worthier to be loved.

Forgive these wild and wandering cries,
 Confusions of a wasted youth ;
 Forgive them where they fail in truth,
 And in thy wisdom make me wise.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE SOUL'S CRY.

"I cry unto thee daily." — PS. lxxxvi. 3.

O, EVER from the deeps
 Within my soul, oft as I muse alone,
 Comes forth a voice that pleads in tender tone ;
 As when one long unblest
 Sighs ever after rest ;
 Or as the wind perpetual murmuring keeps.

I hear it when the day
 Fades o'er the hills, or 'cross the shimmering sea ;
 In the soft twilight, as is wont to be,
 Without my wish or will,
 While all is hushed and still,
 Like a sad, plaintive cry heard far away.

Not even the noisy crowd,
 That like some mighty torrent rushing down
 Sweeps clamoring on, this cry of want can drown ;
 But ever in my heart
 Afresh the echoes start ;
 I hear them still amidst the tumult loud.

Each waking morn anew
 The sense of many a need returns again ;
 I feel myself a child, helpless as when
 I watched my mother's eye,
 As the slow hours went by,
 And from her glance my being took its hue.

I cannot shape my way
 Where nameless perils ever may betide,
 O'er slippery steepes whereon my feet may slide ;
 Some mighty hand I crave,
 To hold and help and save,
 And guide me ever when my steps would stray.

There is but One, I know,
 That all my hourly, endless wants can meet ;
 Can shield from harm, recall my wandering feet ;
 My God, thy hand can feed
 And day by day can lead
 Where the sweet streams of peace and safety flow.

POEMS OF NATURE.

SONNET.

THE World is too much with us ; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers ;
Little we see in nature that is ours ;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon !
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon ;
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers ;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune ;
It moves us not. — Great God ! I 'd rather be
A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn ;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

NATURE.

THE bubbling brook doth leap when I come by,
Because my feet find measure with its call ;
The birds know when the friend they love is nigh,
For I am known to them, both great and small.
The flower that on the lonely hillside grows
Expects me there when spring its bloom has given ;
And many a tree and bush my wanderings knows,
And e'en the clouds and silent stars of heaven ;
For he who with his Maker walks aright,
Shall be their lord as Adam was before ;
His ear shall catch each sound with new delight,
Each object wear the dress that then it wore ;
And he, as when erect in soul he stood,
Hear from his Father's lips that all is good.

Where cares and toil and sadness cease !
Stranger, does thy heart deplore
Friends whom thou wilt see no more ?

Does thy wounded spirit prove
Pangs of hopeless, severed love ?
Thee the stream that gushes clear,
Thee the birds that carol near
Shall soothe, as silent thou dost lie
And dream* of their wild lullaby ;
Come to bless these scenes of peace,
Where cares and toil and sadness cease.

WILLIAM LISLE BOWLES.

TINTERN ABBEY.

FIVE years have past ; five summers, with the length

Of five long winters ! and again I hear
These waters,* rolling from their mountain-springs
With a soft inland murmur. — Once again
Do I behold these steep and lofty cliffs,
That on a wild, secluded scene impress
Thoughts of more deep seclusion, and connect
The landscape with the quiet of the sky.
The day is come when I again repose
Here, under this dark sycamore, and view
These plots of cottage-ground, these orchard-tufts,
Which at this season, with their unripe fruits,
Are clad in one green hue, and lose themselves
Mid groves and copses. Once again I see
These hedge-rows, hardly hedge-rows, little lines
Of sportive wood run wild : these pastoral farms,
Green to the very door ; and wreaths of smoke
Sent up, in silence, from among the trees !
With some uncertain notice, as might seem
Of vagrant dwellers in the houseless woods,
Or of some hermit's cave, where by his fire
The hermit sits alone.

These beauteous forms,
Through a long absence, have not been to me
As is a landscape to a blind man's eye ;
But oft, in lonely rooms, and mid the din
Of towns and cities, I have owed to them,
In hours of weariness, sensations sweet,
Felt in the blood, and felt along the heart ;
And passing even into my purer mind,

* The River Wye.

With tranquil restoration : — feelings too
Of unremembered pleasure : such, perhaps,
As have no slight or trivial influence
On that best portion of a good man's life,
His little, nameless, unremembered acts
Of kindness and of love. Nor less, I trust,
To them I may have owed another gift,
Of aspect more sublime ; that blessed mood,
In which the burden of the mystery,
In which the heavy and the weary weight
Of all this unintelligible world,
Is lightened, — that serene and blessed mood,
In which the affections gently lead us on,
Until, the breath of this corporeal frame
And even the motion of our human blood
Almost suspended, we are laid asleep
In body, and become a living soul :
While with an eye made quiet by the power
Of harmony, and the deep power of joy,
We see into the life of things.

1st this

Be but a vain belief, yet, O, how oft —
In darkness and amid the many shapes
Of joyless daylight ; when the fretful stir
Unprofitable, and the fever of the world,
Have hung upon the beatings of my heart —
How oft, in spirit, have I turned to thee,
O sylvan Wye ! thou wanderer through the woods,
How often has my spirit turned to thee !

And now, with gleams of half-extinguished
thought,

With many recognitions dim and faint,
And somewhat of a sad perplexity,
The picture of the mind revives again :
While here I stand, not only with the sense
Of present pleasure, but with pleasing thoughts
That in this moment there is life and food
For future years. And so I dare to hope, Though changed, no doubt, from what I was when first

I came among these hills ; when like a roe
I bounded o'er the mountains, by the sides
Of the deep rivers, and the lonely streams,
Wherever nature led : more like a man
Flying from something that he dreads, than one
Who sought the thing he loved. For nature then
(The coarser pleasures of my boyish days
And their glad animal movements all gone by)
To me was all in all. — I cannot paint
What then I was. The sounding cataract
Haunted me like a passion : the tall rock,
The mountain, and the deep and gloomy wood,
Their colors and their forms, were then to me
An appetite ; a feeling and a love,
That had no need of a remoter charm
By thoughts supplied, nor any interest
Unborrowed from the eye. — That time is past,

And all its aching joys are now no more,
And all its dizzy raptures. Not for this
Faint I, nor mourn nor murmur ; other gifts
Have followed ; for such loss, I would believe,
Abundant recompense. For I have learned
To look on nature, not as in the hour
Of thoughtless youth ; but hearing oftentimes
The still, sad music of humanity,
Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power
To chasten and subdue. And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts ; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean, and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man :
A motion and a spirit, that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things. Therefore am I still

A lover of the meadows and the woods,
And mountains ; and of all that we behold
From this green earth ; of all the mighty world
Of eye, and ear, — both what they half create,*
And what perceive ; well pleased to recognize
In nature and the language of the sense,
The anchor of my purest thoughts, the nurse,
The guide, the guardian of my heart, and soul
Of all my moral being.

Nor perchance,

If I were not thus taught, should I the more
Suffer my genial spirits to decay :
For thou art with me here upon the banks
Of this fair river ; thou my dearest friend,
My dear, dear friend ; and in thy voice I catch
The language of my former heart, and read
My former pleasures in the shooting lights
Of thy wild eyes. O, yet a little while
May I behold in thee what I was once,
My dear, dear sister ! and this prayer I make,
Knowing that Nature never did betray
The heart that loved her ; 't is her privilege,
Through all the years of this our life, to lead
From joy to joy : for she can so inform
The mind that is within us, so impress
With quietness and beauty, and so feed
With lofty thoughts, that neither evil tongues,
Rash judgments, nor the sneers of selfish men,
Nor greetings where no kindness is, nor all
The dreary intercourse of daily life,
Shall e'er prevail against us, or disturb
Our cheerful faith, that all which we behold
Is full of blessings. Therefore let the moon
Shine on thee in thy solitary walk ;
And let the misty mountain-winds be free

THE SILENCE OF THE HILLS.

THE windy forest, rousing from its sleep,
Voices its heart in hoarse Titanic roar;
The ocean bellows from its rocky shore;
The cataract, that haunts the rugged steep,
Makes mighty music in its headlong leap;
The clouds have voices, and the rivers pour
Their floods in thunder down to ocean's floor;—
The hills alone mysterious silence keep.
They cannot rend the ancient chain that bars
Their iron lips, nor answer back the sea
That calls to them far off in vain; the stars
They cannot hail, nor their wild brooks. Ah me!
What cries from out their stony hearts will break,
In God's great day, when all that sleep shall wake!

EVENING.

FROM upland slopes I see the cows file by,
 Lowing, great-chested, down the homeward trail,
 By dusking fields and meadows shining pale
With moon-tipped dandelions; flickering high,
A peevish night-hawk in the western sky
 Beats up into the lucent solitudes,
 Or drops with griding wing; the stilly woods
Grow dark and deep, and gloom mysteriously.
Cool night-winds creep and whisper in mine ear;
 The homely cricket gossips at my feet;
 From far-off pools and wastes of reeds I hear
With ebb and change the chanting frogs break sweet
 In full Pandean chorus; one by one
 Shine out the stars, and the great night comes on.

ARCHIBALD LAMPMAN.

To blow against thee : and, in after years,
 When these wild ecstasies shall be matured
 Into a sober pleasure ; when thy mind
 Shall be a mansion for all lovely forms,
 Thy memory be as a dwelling-place
 For all sweet sounds and harmonies ; O, then,
 If solitude or fear or pain or grief
 Should be thy portion, with what healing thoughts
 Of tender joy wilt thou remember me,
 And these my exhortations ! Nor, perchance, —
 If I should be where I no more can hear Thy voice, nor catch from thy wild eyes these gleams

Of past existence, — wilt thou then forget
 That on the banks of this delightful stream
 We stood together ; and that I, so long
 A worshipper of Nature, hither came Unwearied in that service : rather say
 With warmer love, — O, with far deeper zeal
 Of holier love. Nor wilt thou then forget
 That after many wanderings, many years
 Of absence, these steep woods and lofty cliffs,
 And this green pastoral landscape, were to me
 More dear, both for themselves and for thy sake !

FOR A COPY OF THEOCRITUS.

VILLANELLE.

FROM "ESSAYS IN OLD FRENCH FORMS OF VERSE."

O SINGER of the field and fold,
 Theocritus ! Pan's pipe was thine, —
 Thine was the happier Age of Gold.

For thee the scent of new-turned mould,
 The beehives and the murmuring pine,
 O Singer of the field and fold !

Thou sang'st the simple feasts of old, —
 The beechen bowl made glad with wine :
 Thine was the happier Age of Gold.

Thou bad'st the rustic loves be told,
 Thou bad'st the tuneful reeds combine,
 O Singer of the field and fold !

And round thee, ever laughing, rolled
 The blithe and blue Sicilian brine :
 Thine was the happier Age of Gold.

Alas for us ! Our songs are cold ;
 Our Northern suns too sadly shine : —
 O Singer of the field and fold,
 Thine was the happier Age of Gold !

AUSTIN DOBSON.

NATURE'S CHAIN.

FROM "THE ESSAY ON MAN."

Look round our world ; behold the chain of love
 Combining all below and all above,
 See plastic nature working to this end,
 The single atoms each to other tend,
 Attract, attracted to, the next in place,
 Formed and impelled its neighbor to embrace.
 See matter next, with various life endued,
 Press to one centre still, the general good.
 See dying vegetables life sustain,
 See life dissolving vegetate again :
 All forms that perish other forms supply
 (By turns we catch the vital breath, and die) ;
 Like bubbles on the sea of matter borne,
 They rise, they break, and to that sea return.
 Nothing is foreign ; parts relate to whole ;
 One all-extending, all-preserving Soul
 Connects each being, greatest with the least ;
 Made beast in aid of man, and man of beast ;
 All served, all serving ; nothing stands alone ;
 The chain holds on, and where it ends, unknown.

Has God, thou fool ! worked solely for thy good,
 Thy joy, thy pastime, thy attire, thy food ?
 Who for thy table feeds the wanton fawn,
 For him as kindly spreads the flowery lawn.
 Is it for thee the lark ascends and sings ?
 Joy tunes his voice, joy elevates his wings.
 Is it for thee the linnet pours his throat ?
 Loves of his own and raptures swell the note.
 The bounding steed you pompously bestride
 Shares with his lord the pleasure and the pride.
 Is thine alone the seed that strews the plain ?
 The birds of heaven shall vindicate their grain.
 Thine the full harvest of the golden year ?
 Part pays, and justly, the deserving steer :
 The hog that ploughs not, nor obeys thy call,
 Lives on the labors of this lord of all.

Know, Nature's children all divide her care ;
 The fur that warms a monarch warmed a bear.
 While man exclaims, "See all things for my use !"
 "See man for mine !" replies a pampered goose :
 And just as short of reason he must fall
 Who thinks all made for one, not one for all.

ALEXANDER POPE.

EACH AND ALL.

LITTLE thinks, in the field, yon red-cloaked clown,
 Of thee from the hill-top looking down ;
 The heifer that lows in the upland farm,
 Far-heard, lows not thine ear to charm ;
 The sexton, tolling his bell at noon,
 Deems not that great Napoleon
 Stops his horse, and lists with delight,
 Whilst his files sweep round yon Alpine height ;

Nor knowest thou what argument
 Thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent.
 All are needed by each one ;
 Nothing is fair or good alone.
 I thought the sparrow's note from heaven,
 Singing at dawn on the alder bough ;
 I brought him home, in his nest, at even ;
 He sings the song, but it pleases not now,
 For I did not bring home the river and sky ; —
 He sang to my ear, — they sang to my eye.
 The delicate shells lay on the shore ;
 The bubbles of the latest wave
 Fresh pearls to their enamel gave ;
 And the bellowing of the savage sea
 Greeted their safe escape to me.
 I wiped away the weeds and foam,
 I fetched my sea-born treasures home ;
 But the poor, unsightly, noisome things
 Had left their beauty on the shore,
 With the sun and the sand and the wild uproar.
 The lover watched his graceful maid,
 As mid the virgin train she strayed,
 Nor knew her beauty's best attire
 Was woven still by the snow-white choir.
 At last she came to his hermitage,
 Like the bird from the woodlands to the cage ; —
 The gay enchantment was undone,
 A gentle wife, but fairy none.
 Then I said, "I covet truth ;
 Beauty is unripe childhood's cheat ;
 I leave it behind with the games of youth." —
 As I spoke, beneath my feet
 The ground-pine curled its pretty wreath,
 Running over the club-moss burrs ;
 I inhaled the violet's breath ;
 Around me stood the oaks and firs ;
 Pine-cones and acorns lay on the ground ;
 Over me soared the eternal sky,
 Full of light and of deity ;
 Again I saw, again I heard,
 The rolling river, the morning bird ; —
 Beauty through my senses stole ;
 I yielded myself to the perfect whole.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

RETIREMENT.

INSCRIPTION IN A HERMITAGE.

BENEATH this stony roof reclined,
 I soothe to peace my pensive mind ;
 And while, to shade my lowly cave,
 Embowering elms their umbrage wave,
 And while the maple dish is mine, —
 The beechen cup, unstained with wine, —
 I scorn the gay licentious crowd,
 Nor heed the toys that deck the proud.

Within my limits, lone and still,
 The blackbird pipes in artless trill ;
 Fast by my couch, congenial guest,
 The wren has wove her mossy nest :
 From busy scenes and brighter skies,
 To lurk with innocence, she flies,
 Here hopes in safe repose to dwell,
 Nor aught suspects the sylvan cell.

At morn I take my customed round,
 To mark how buds yon shrubby mound,
 And every opening primrose count,
 That truly paints my blooming mount ;
 Or o'er the sculptures, quaint and rude,
 That grace my gloomy solitude,
 I teach in winding wreaths to stray
 Fantastic ivy's gadding spray.

At eve, within yon studious nook,
 I ope my brass-embossed book,
 Portrayed with many a holy deed
 Of martyrs, crowned with heavenly meed ;
 Then, as my taper waxes dim,
 Chant, ere I sleep, my measured hymn,
 And, at the close, the gleams behold
 Of parting wings, bedropt with gold.

While such pure joys my bliss create,
 Who but would smile at guilty state ?
 Who but would wish his holy lot
 In calm oblivion's humble grot ?
 Who but would cast his pomp away,
 To take my staff, and amice gray ;
 And to the world's tumultuous stage
 Prefer the blameless hermitage ?

THOMAS WARTON.

ON A BEAUTIFUL DAY.

O UNSEEN Spirit ! now a calm divine
 Comes forth from thee, rejoicing earth and air !
 Trees, hills, and houses, all distinctly shine,
 And thy great ocean slumbers everywhere.

The mountain ridge against the purple sky
 Stands clear and strong, with darkened rocks and dells,
 And cloudless brightness opens wide and high
 A home aerial, where thy presence dwells.

The chime of bells remote, the murmuring sea,
 The song of birds in whispering copse and wood,
 The distant voice of children's thoughtless glee,
 And maiden's song, are all one voice of good.

Amid the leaves' green mass a sunny play
Of flash and shadow stirs like inward life :
The ship's white sail glides onward far away,
Unhaunted by a dream of storm or strife.

JOHN STERLING.

INVOCATION TO LIGHT.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK III.

HAIL, holy Light, offspring of Heaven first-born !
Or of the Eternal coeternal beam
May I express thee unblamed ? since God is light,
And never but in unapproachèd light
Dwelt from eternity, dwelt then in thee,
Bright effluence of bright essence increate !
Or hear'st thou rather pure ethereal stream,
Whose fountain who shall tell ? Before the sun,
Before the heavens, thou wert, and at the voice
Of God, as with a mantle, didst invest
The rising world of waters dark and deep,
Won from the void and formless infinite.
Then I revisit now with bolder wing,
Escaped the Stygian pool, though long detained
In that obscure sojourn, while in my flight
Through utter and through middle darkness borne,

With other notes than to the Orphean lyre,
I sung of Chaos and eternal Night,
Taught by the heavenly Muse to venture down
The dark descent, and up to re-ascend,
Though hard and rare : thee I revisit safe,
And feel thy sovereign vital lamp ; but thou
Revisitest not these eyes, that roll in vain
To find thy piercing ray, and find no dawn ;
So thick a drop serene hath quenched their orbs,
Or dim suffusion veiled. Yet not the more
Cease I to wander where the Muses haunt
Clear spring, or shady grove, or sunny hill,
Smit with the love of sacred song ; but chief
Thee, Sion, and the flowery brooks beneath,
That wash thy hallowed feet, and warbling flow,
Nightly I visit : nor sometimes forget
Those other two equalled with me in fate,
So were I equalled with them in renown,
Blind Thamyris and blind Mæonides,
And Tiresias and Phineus, prophets old :
Then feed on thoughts that voluntary move
Harmonious numbers ; as the wakeful bird
Sings darkling, and in shadiest covert hid Tunes her nocturnal note. Thus with the year
Seasons return, but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of even or morn,
Or sight of vernal bloom, or summer's rose,
Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine ;
But clouds, instead, and ever-during dark,
Surrounds me, from the cheerful ways of men

Cut off, and for the book of knowledge fair
Presented with a universal blank
Of nature's works, to me expunged and rased,
And wisdom at one entrance quite shut out.
So much the rather thou, celestial Light,
Shine inward, and the mind through all her powers
Irradiate ; there plant eyes, all mist from thence Purge and disperse, that I may see and tell
Of things invisible to mortal sight.

MILTON.

FROM THE "HYMN TO LIGHT."

SAY, from what golden quivers of the sky
Do all thy winged arrows fly ?
Swiftness and Power by birth are thine :
From thy great sire they came, thy sire, the Word Divine.

Thou in the Moon's bright chariot, proud and gay,
Dost thy bright wood of stars survey ;
And all the year dost with thee bring
Of thousand flowery lights thine own nocturnal
spring.

Thou, Scythian-like, dost round thy lands above
The Sun's gilt tent forever move,
And still, as thou in pomp dost go,
The shining pageants of the world attend thy show.

Nor amidst all these triumphs dost thou scorn
The humble glow-worms to adorn,
And with those living spangles gild
(O greatness without pride !) the bushes of the field.

Night and her ugly subjects thou dost fright,
And Sleep, the lazy owl of night ;
Ashamed, and fearful to appear,
They screen their horrid shapes with the black hemisphere.

At thy appearance, Grief itself is said
To shake his wings, and rouse his head :
And cloudy Care has often took
A gentle beamy smile, reflected from thy look.

At thy appearance, fear itself grows bold ;
Thy sunshine melts away his cold.
Encouraged at the sight of thee
To the cheek color comes, and firmness to the knee.

When, goddess, thou lift'st up thy wakened
head
Out of the morning's purple bed,
Thy quire of birds about thee play,
And all the joyful world salutes the rising day.

All the world's bravery, that delights our eyes,
Is but thy several liveries ;
Thou the rich dye on them bestow'st,
Thy nimble pencil paints this landscape as thou go'st.

A crimson garment in the rose thou wear'st ;
A crown of studded gold thou bear'st ;
The virgin-lilies, in their white,
Are clad but with the lawn of almost naked light.

The violet, Spring's little infant, stands
Girt in thy purple swaddling-bands ;
On the fair tulip thou dost dote ;
Thou cloth'st it in a gay and party-colored coat.

Through the soft ways of heaven, and air, and sea,
Which open all their pores to thee,
Like a clear river thou dost glide,
And with thy living stream through the close channels slide.

But the vast ocean of unbounded day,
In the empyrean heaven does stay.
Thy rivers, lakes, and springs, below,
From thence took first their rise, thither at last must flow.

ABRAHAM COWLEY.

DAYBREAK.

A WIND came up out of the sea,
And said, "O mists, make room for me !"

It hailed the ships, and cried, "Sail on,
Ye mariners, the night is gone !"

And hurried landward far away,
Crying, "Awake ! it is the day !"

It said unto the forest, "Shout !
Hang all your leafy banners out !"

It touched the wood-bird's folded wing,
And said, "O bird, awake and sing !"

And o'er the farms, "O chanticleer,
Your clarion blow ; the day is near !"

It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down, and hail the coming morn !"

It shouted through the belfry-tower,
"Awake, O bell ! proclaim the hour."

It crossed the churchyard with a sigh,
And said, "Not yet ! in quiet lie."

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

MORNING SONG.

Up ! quit thy bower ! late wears the hour,
Long have the rooks cawed round the tower ;
O'er flower and tree loud hums the bee,
And the wild kid sports merrily.
The sun is bright, the sky is clear ;
Wake, lady, wake ! and hasten here.

Up, maiden fair ! and bind thy hair,
And rouse thee in the breezy air !
The lulling stream that soothed thy dream
Is dancing in the sunny beam.
Waste not these hours, so fresh, so gay :
Leave thy soft couch and haste away !

Up ! Time will tell the morning bell
Its service-sound has chimed well ;
The aged crone keeps house alone,
The reapers to the fields are gone.
Lose not these hours, so cool, so gay :
Lo ! while thou sleep'st they haste away !

JOANNA BAILLIE.

MORNING.

In the barn the tenant cock,
Close to partlet perched on high,
Briskly crows (the shepherd's clock !)
Jocund that the morning's nigh.

Swiftly from the mountain's brow,
Shadows, nursed by night, retire :
And the peeping sunbeam now,
Paints with gold the village spire.

Philomel forsakes the thorn,
Plaintive where she prates at night ;
And the lark, to meet the morn,
Soars beyond the shepherd's sight.

From the low-roofed cottage ridge,
See the chattering swallow spring ;
Darting through the one-arched bridge,
Quick she dips her dappled wing.

Now the pine-tree's waving top
Gently greets the morning gale :
Kidlings now begin to crop
Daisies, on the dewy dale.

From the balmy sweets, uncloyed
 (Restless till her task be done),
 Now the busy bee 's employed
 Sipping dew before the sun.

Trickling through the creviced rock,
 Where the limpid stream distils,
 Sweet refreshment waits the flock
 When 't is sun-drove from the hills.

Colin 's for the promised corn
 (Ere the harvest hopes are ripe)
 Anxious ; — whilst the huntsman's horn,
 Boldly sounding, drowns his pipe.

Sweet, O sweet, the warbling throng,
 On the white emblossomed spray !
 Nature's universal song
 Echoes to the rising day.

JOHN CUNNINGHAM.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS.

To claim the Arctic came the sun
 With banners of the burning zone.
 Unrolled upon their airy spars,
 They froze beneath the light of stars ;
 And there they float, those streamers old,
 Those Northern Lights, forever cold !

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

DAWN.

THE night was dark, though sometimes a faint star

A little while a little space made bright.
 The night was long and like an iron bar
 Lay heavy on the land : till o'er the sea
 Slowly, within the East, there grew a light
 Which half was starlight, and half seemed to be
 The herald of a greater. The pale white
 Turned slowly to pale rose, and up the height
 Of heaven slowly climbed. The gray sea grew Rose-colored like the sky. A white gull flew Straight toward the utmost boundary of the East,
 Where slowly the rose gathered and increased.
 It was as on the opening of a door
 By one that in his hand a lamp doth hold,
 Whose flame is hidden by the garment's fold, —
 The still air moves, the wide room is less dim.

More bright the East became, the ocean turned Dark and more dark against the brightening sky, —
 Sharper against the sky the long sea line.
 The hollows of the breakers on the shore
 Were green like leaves whereon no sun doth shine,
 Though white the outer branches of the tree.

From rose to red the level heaven burned ;
 Then sudden, as if a sword fell from on high,
 A blade of gold flashed on the horizon's rim.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER

PACK CLOUDS AWAY.

PACK clouds away, and welcome day,
 With night we banish sorrow ;
 Sweet air, blow soft ; mount, lark, aloft,
 To give my love good morrow.
 Wings from the wind to please her mind,
 Notes from the lark I 'll borrow :
 Bird, prune thy wing ; nightingale, sing,
 To give my love good morrow.
 To give my love good morrow,
 Notes from them all I 'll borrow.

Wake from thy nest, robin redbreast,
 Sing, birds, in every furrow ;
 And from each hill let music shrill
 Give my fair love good morrow.
 Blackbird and thrush in every bush,
 Stare, linnet, and cock-sparrow,
 You petty elves, amongst yourselves,
 Sing my fair love good morrow.
 To give my love good morrow,
 Sing, birds, in every furrow.

THOMAS HEYWOOD.

MORNING.

FROM "THE MINSTREL."

BUT who the melodies of morn can tell ?
 The wild brook babbling down the mountain-
 side ;
 The lowing herd ; the sheepfold's simple bell ;
 The pipe of early shepherd dim descried
 In the lone valley ; echoing far and wide
 The clamorous horn along the cliffs above ;
 The hollow murmur of the ocean-tide ;
 The hum of bees, the linnet's lay of love,
 And the full choir that wakes the universal grove.

The cottage curs at early pilgrim bark ;
 Crowned with her pail the tripping milkmaid
 sings ;
 The whistling ploughman stalks afield ; and,
 hark !
 Down the rough slope the ponderous wagon rings ;
 Through rustling corn the hare astonished
 springs ;
 Slow tolls the village-cloek the drowsy hour ;
 The partridge bursts away on whirring wings ;
 Deep mourns the turtle in sequestered bower,
 And shrill lark carols clear from her aerial tower.

JAMES BEATTIE.

THE SABBATH MORNING.

WITH silent awe I hail the sacred morn,
That slowly wakes while all the fields are still !
A soothing calm on every breeze is borne ;
A graver murmur gurgles from the rill ;
And echo answers softer from the hill ;
And sweeter sings the linnet from the thorn :
The skylark warbles in a tone less shrill.
Hail, light serene ! hail, sacred Sabbath morn !
The rooks float silent by in airy drove ;
The sun a placid yellow lustre throws ;
The gales that lately sighed along the grove
Have hushed their downy wings in dead repose ;
The hovering rack of clouds forgets to move, —
So smiled the day when the first morn arose !

JOHN LEYDEN.

RÊVE DU MIDI.

WHEN o'er the mountain steep
The hazy noontide creeps,
And the shrill cricket sleeps
Under the grass ;
When soft the shadows lie,
And clouds sail o'er the sky,
And the idle winds go by,
With the heavy scent of blossoms as they pass, —

Then, when the silent stream
Lapses as in a dream,
And the water-lilies gleam
Up to the sun ;
When the hot and burdened day
Rests on its downward way,
When the moth forgets to play,
And the plodding ant may dream her work is done, —

Then, from the noise of war
And the din of earth afar,
Like some forgotten star
Dropt from the sky, —
The sounds of love and fear,
All voices sad and clear,
Banished to silence drear, —
The willing thrall of trances sweet I lie.

Some melancholy gale
Breathes its mysterious tale,
Till the rose's lips grow pale
With her sighs ;
And o'er my thoughts are cast
Tints of the vanished past,
Glories that faded fast,
Renewed to splendor in my dreaming eyes.

As poised on vibrant wings,
Where its sweet treasure swings,
The honey-lover clings
To the red flowers, —
So, lost in vivid light,
So, rapt from day and night,
I linger in delight,

Enraptured o'er the vision-freighted hours.

ROSE TERRY COOKE.

A SUMMER NOON.

WHO has not dreamed a world of bliss
On a bright sunny noon like this,
Couched by his native brook's green maze,
With comrade of his boyish days,
While all around them seemed to be
Just as in joyous infancy ?
Who has not loved, at such an hour,
Upon that heath, in birchen bower,
Lulled in the poet's dreamy mood,
Its wild and sunny solitude ?
While o'er the waste of purple ling
You mark a sultry glimmering ;
Silence herself there seems to sleep,
Wrapped in a slumber long and deep,
Where slowly stray those lonely sheep
Through the tall foxglove's crimson bloom,
And gleaming of the scattered broom.
Love you not, then, to list and hear
The crackling of the gorse-flowers near,
Pouring an orange-scented tide
Of fragrance o'er the desert wide ?
To hear the buzzard's whimpering shrill,
Hovering above you high and still ?
The twittering of the bird that dwells
Among the heath's delicious bells ?
While round your bed, o'er fern and blade,
Insects in green and gold arrayed,
The sun's gay tribes have lightly strayed ;
And sweeter sound their humming wings
Than the proud minstrel's echoing strings.

WILLIAM HOWITT.

NOONTIDE.

BENEATH a shivering canopy reclined,
Of aspen-leaves that wave without a wind,
I love to lie, when lulling breezes stir
The spiry cones that tremble on the fir ;
Or wander mid the dark-green fields of broom,
When peers in scattered tufts the yellow bloom ;
Or trace the path with tangling furze o'errun,
When bursting seed-bells crackle in the sun,
And pittering grasshoppers, confus'dly shrill,
Pipe giddily along the glowing hill :

Sweet grasshopper, who lov'st at noon to lie
Serenely in the green-ribbed clover's eye,
To sun thy filmy wings and emerald vest,
Unseen thy form, and undisturbed thy rest,
Oft have I listening mused the sultry day,
And wondered what thy chirping song might say,
When naught was heard along the blossomed lea,
To join thy music, save the listless bee.

JOHN LEYDEN.

Wings half open, like a flower
Fully deeper flushing,
Neck and breast as virgin's pure, —
Virgin proudly blushing.

Day is dying! Float, O swan,
Down the ruby river;
Follow, song, in requiem
To the mighty Giver.

MARIAN EVANS LEWES CROSS (George Eliot)

THE MIDGES DANCE ABOON THE BURN.

The midges dance aboon the burn;
The dews begin to fa';
The pairtricks down the rushy holm
Set up their evening ca'.
Now loud and clear the blackbird's sang
Rings through the briery shaw,
While, fitting gay, the swallows play
Around the castle wa'.

Beneath the golden gloamin' sky
The mavis mends her lay;
The redbreast pours his sweetest strains
To charm the lingering day;
While weary yeldrins seem to wail
Their little nestlings torn,
The merry wren, frae den to den,
Gaes jinking through the thorn.

The roses fauld their silken leaves,
The foxglove shuts its bell;
The honeysuckle and the birk
Spread fragrance through the dell.
Let others crowd the giddy court
Of mirth and revelry,
The simple joys that nature yields
Are dearer far to me.

ROBERT TANNAHILL.

DAY IS DYING.

FROM "THE SPANISH GYPSY."

Day is dying! Float, O song,
Down the westward river,
Requiem chanting to the Day, —
Day, the mighty Giver.

Pierced by shafts of Time he bleeds,
Melted rubies sending
Through the river and the sky,
Earth and heaven bleuding;

All the long-drawn earthy banks
Up to cloud-land lifting:
Slow between them drifts the swan,
'Twixt two heavens drifting.

THE EVENING WIND.

SPIRIT that breathest through my lattice: thou
That cool'st the twilight of the sultry day!
Gratefully flows thy freshness round my brow;
Thou hast been out upon the deep at play,
Riding all day the wild blue waves till now,
Roughening their crests, and scattering high their spray,

And swelling the white sail. I welcome thee
To the scorched land, thou wanderer of the sea!

Nor I alone, — a thousand bosoms round
Inhale thee in the fulness of delight;
And languid forms rise up, and pulses bound
Livelier, at coming of the wind of night;
And languishing to hear thy welcome sound,
Lies the vast inland, stretched beyond the sight.
Go forth into the gathering shade; go forth, —
God's blessing breathed upon the fainting earth!

Go, rock the little wood-bird in his nest;
Curl the still waters, bright with stars; and rouse

The wide old wood from his majestic rest,
Summoning, from the innumerable boughs,
The strange deep harmonies that haunt his breast.
Pleasant shall be thy way where meekly bows
The shutting flower, and darkling waters pass,
And where the o'ershadowing branches sweep the grass.

Stoop o'er the place of graves, and softly sway
The sighing herbage by the gleaning stone,
That they who near the churchyard willows stray,
And listen in the deepening gloom, alone,
May think of gentle souls that passed away,
Like thy pure breath, into the vast unknown,
Sent forth from heaven among the sons of men,
And gone into the boundless heaven again.

The faint old man shall lean his silver head
To feel thee; thou shalt kiss the child asleep,
And dry the moistened curls that overspread
His temples, while his breathing grows more deep;

And they who stand about the sick man's bed
 Shall joy to listen to thy distant sweep,
 And softly part his curtains to allow
 Thy visit, grateful to his burning brow.

Go, — but the circle of eternal change,
 Which is the life of nature, shall restore,
 With sounds and scents from all thy mighty range,

Thee to thy birthplace of the deep once more.
 Sweet odors in the sea air, sweet and strange,
 Shall tell the homesick mariner of the shore ;
 And, listening to thy murmur, he shall deem
 He hears the rustling leaf and running stream.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE EVENING STAR.

STAR that bringest home the bee,
 And sett'st the weary laborer free !
 If any star shed peace, 't is thou,
 That send'st it from above,
 Appearing when heaven's breath and brow
 Are sweet as hers we love.

Come to the luxuriant skies,
 Whilst the landscape's odors rise,
 Whilst far-off lowing herds are heard,
 And songs when toil is done,
 From cottages whose smoke unstirred
 Curls yellow in the sun.

Star of love's soft interviews,
 Parted lovers on thee muse ;
 Their remembrancer in heaven
 Of thrilling vows thou art,
 Too delicious to be riven
 By absence from the heart.

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

CAPE-COTTAGE AT SUNSET.

We stood upon the ragged rocks,
 When the long day was nearly done ;
 The waves had ceased their sullen shocks,
 And lapped our feet with murmuring tone,
 And o'er the bay in streaming locks
 Blew the red tresses of the sun.

Along the west the golden bars
 Still to a deeper glory grew ;
 Above our heads the faint, few stars
 Looked out from the unfathomed blue ;
 And the fair city's clamorous jars
 Seemed melted in that evening hue.

O sunset sky ! O purple tide !
 O friends to friends that closer pressed !
 Those glories have in darkness died,
 And ye have left my longing breast.
 I could not keep you by my side,
 Nor fix that radiance in the west.

WILLIAM BELCHER GLAZIER.

SUNSET.

FROM "QUEEN MAH."

If solitude hath ever led thy steps
 To the wild ocean's echoing shore,
 And thou hast lingered there
 Until the sun's broad orb
 Seemed resting on the burnished wave,
 Thou must have marked the lines
 Of purple gold that motionless
 Hung o'er the sinking sphere :
 Thou must have marked the billowy clouds,
 Edged with intolerable radiance,
 Towering like rocks of jet
 Crowned with a diamond wreath.
 And yet there is a moment,
 When the sun's highest point
 Peeps like a star o'er ocean's western edge,
 When those far clouds of feathery gold,
 Shaded with deepest purple, gleam
 Like islands on a dark-blue sea ;
 Then has thy fancy soared above the earth,
 And furled its wearied wing
 Within the Fairy's fane.
 Yet not the golden islands
 Gleaming in yon flood of light,
 Nor the feathery curtains
 Stretching o'er the sun's bright couch,
 Nor the burnished ocean's waves
 Paving that gorgeous dome,
 So fair, so wonderful a sight
 As Mab's ethereal palace could afford.
 Yet likest evening's vault, that fairy Hall !

Heaven, low resting on the wave, it spread
 Its floors of flashing light,
 Its vast and azure dome,
 Its fertile golden islands
 Floating on a silver sea ;
 Whilst suns their mingling beamings darted
 Through clouds of circumambient darkness,
 And pearly battlements around
 Looked o'er the immense of heaven.

PERCY BYSSHE SHILLEY.

NIGHTFALL: A PICTURE.

Low burns the summer afternoon ;
 A mellow lustre lights the scene ;
 And from its smiling beauty soon
 The purpling shade will chase the sheen.

The old, quaint homestead's windows blaze ;
 The cedars long, black pictures show ;
 And broadly slopes one path of rays
 Within the barn, and makes it glow.

The loft stares out — the cat intent,
 Like carving, on some gnawing rat —
 With sun-bathed hay and rafters bent,
 Nooked, cobwebbed homes of wasp and bat.

The harness, bridle, saddle, dart
 Gleams from the lower, rough expanse ;
 At either side the stooping cart,
 Pitchfork and plough cast looks askance.

White Dobbin through the stable-doors
 Shows his round shape ; faint color coats
 The manger, where the farmer pours,
 With rustling rush, the glancing oats.

A sun-haze streaks the dusky shed ;
 Makes spears of seams and gems of chinks :
 In mottled gloss the straw is spread ;
 And the gray grindstone dully blinks.

The sun salutes the lowest west
 With gorgeous tints around it drawn ;
 A beacon on the mountain's breast,
 A crescent, shred, a star — and gone.

The landscape now prepares for night :
 A gauzy mist slow settles round ;
 Eye shows her hues in every sight,
 And blends her voice with every sound.

The sheep stream rippling down the dell,
 Their smooth, sharp faces pointed straight ;
 The pacing kine, with tinkling bell,
 Come grazing through the pasture-gate.

The ducks are grouped, and talk in fits :
 One yawns with stretch of leg and wing ;
 One rears and fans, then, settling, sits ;
 One at a moth makes awkward spring.

The geese march grave in Indian file,
 The ragged patriarch at the head ;
 Then, screaming, flutter off awhile,
 Fold up, and once more stately tread.

Brave chanticleer shows haughtiest air ;
 Hurls his shrill vaunt with lofty bend ;
 Lifts foot, glares round, then follows where
 His scratching, picking partlets wend.

Staid Towser scents the glittering ground ;
 Then, yawning, draws a crescent deep,
 Wheels his head-drooping frame around
 And sinks with fore-paws stretched for sleep.

The oxen, loosened from the plough,
 Rest by the pear-tree's crooked trunk ;
 Tim, standing with yoke-burdened brow,
 Trim, in a mound beside him sunk.

One of the kine upon the bank
 Heaves her face-lifting, wheezy roar ;
 One smooths, with lapping tongue, her flank ;
 With ponderous droop one finds the floor.

Freed Dobbin through the soft, clear dark
 Glimmers across the pillared scene,
 With the grouped geese, — a pallid mark, —
 And scattered bushes black between.

The fire-flies freckle every spot
 With fickle light that gleams and dies ;
 The bat, a wavering, soundless blot,
 The cat, a pair of prowling eyes.

Still the sweet, fragrant dark o'erflows
 The deepening air and darkening ground ;
 By its rich scent I trace the rose,
 The viewless beetle by its sound.

The cricket scrapes its rib-like bars ;
 The tree-toad purrs in whirring tone ;
 And now the heavens are set with stars,
 And night and quiet reign alone.

ALFRED B. STREET.

EVENING IN PARADISE.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK IV.

Now came still evening on, and twilight gray
 Had in her sober livery all things clad ;
 Silence accompanied ; for beast and bird,
 They to their grassy couch, these to their nests,
 Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale ;
 She all night long her amorous descant sung.
 Silence was pleased : now glowed the firmament
 With living sapphires ; Hesperus, that led
 The starry host, rode brightest, till the moon,
 Rising in clouded majesty, at length
 Apparent queen, unveiled her peerless light,
 And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.

MILTON.

EVENING.

FROM "DON JUAN."

Ave Maria ! o'er the earth and sea,
 That heavenliest hour of heaven is worthiest thee :

Ave Maria ! blessed be the hour,
 The time, the clime, the spot, where I so oft
 Have felt that moment in its fullest power
 Sink o'er the earth so beautiful and soft,

While swung the deep bell in the distant tower
Or the faint dying day-hymn stole aloft,
And not a breath crept through the rosy air,
And yet the forest leaves seemed stirred with prayer.

Ave Maria ! 't is the hour of prayer !

Ave Maria ! 't is the hour of love !

Ave Maria ! may our spirits dare

Look up to thine and to thy Son's above !

Ave Maria ! O that face so fair !

Those downcast eyes beneath the Almighty dove, —

What though 't is but a pictured image ? — strike, —

That painting is no idol, — 't is too like.

Sweet hour of twilight ! in the solitude

Of the pine forest, and the silent shore

Which bounds Ravenna's immemorial wood,

Rooted where once the Adrian wave flowed o'er

To where the last Cæsarean fortress stood,

Evergreen forest ; which Boccaccio's lore

And Dryden's lay made haunted ground to me,

How have I loved the twilight hour and thee !

The shrill cicalas, people of the pine,

Making their summer lives one ceaseless song,

Were the sole echoes, save my steed's and
mine,

And vesper bells that rose the boughs along ;

The spectre huntsman of Onesti's line,

His hell-dogs, and their chase, and the fair throng

Which learned from this example not to fly

From a true lover, — shadowed my mind's eye.

O Hesperus ! thou bringest all good things, —

Home to the weary, to the hungry cheer,

To the young bird the parent's brooding wings,

The welcome stall to the o'erlabored steer ;

Whate'er of peace about our hearthstone clings,

Whate'er our household gods protect of dear,

Are gathered round us by thy look of rest ;

Thou hurs't the child, too, to the mother's breast.

Soft hour ! which wakes the wish and melts the heart

Of those who sail the seas, on the first day

When they from their sweet friends are torn apart ;

Or fills with love the pilgrim on his way,

As the far bell of vesper makes him start,

Seeming to weep the dying day's decay :

Is this a fancy which our reason scorns ?

Ah ! surely nothing dies but something mourns.

LORD BYRON.

TO DELIA.

CARE-CHARMER Sleep, son of the sable Night,
Brother to Death, in silent darkness born :
Relieve my languish and restore the light ;
With dark forgetting of my care, return,
And let the day be time enough to mourn
The shipwreck of my ill-adventured youth :
Let waking eyes suffice to wail their scorn
Without the torment of the night's untruth.
Cease dreams, the images of day desires,
To model forth the passions of the morrow ;
Never let rising sun approve you liars,
To add more grief to aggravate my sorrow.
Still let me sleep, embracing clouds in vain,
And never wake to feel the day's disdain.

SAMUEL DANIEL.

THE CAMP AT NIGHT.

FROM "THE ILIAD," BOOK VIII.

The winds transferred into the friendly sky
Their supper's savor ; to the which they sat delightfully,
And spent all night in open field ; fires round about them shined.
As when about the silver moon, when air is free from wind,
And stars shine clear, to whose sweet beams,
high prospects, and the brows
Of all steep hills and pinnacles, thrust up themselves for shows,
And even the lowly valleys joy to glitter in their sight,
When the unmeasured firmament bursts to disclose her light,
And all the signs in heaven are seen, that glad the shepherd's heart ;
So many fires disclosed their beams, made by the Trojan part,
Before the face of Ilion, and her bright turrets showed.
A thousand courts of guard kept fires, and ever guard allowed
Fifty stout men, by whom their horse eat oats and hard white corn,
And all did wishfully expect the silver-throned
morn.

From the Greek of HOMER. Translation of GEORGE CHAPMAN.

TO NIGHT.

SWIFTLY walk over the western wave,
Spirit of Night !
Out of the misty eastern cave,
Where, all the long and lone daylight,
Thou wovest dreams of joy and fear
Which make thee terrible and dear, —
Swift be thy flight !

Wrap thy form in a mantle gray,
 Star-inwrought ;
 Blind with thine hair the eyes of Day,
 Kiss her until she be wearied out ;
 Then wander o'er city and sea and land,
 Touching all with thine opiate wand, —
 Come, long-sought !

When I arose and saw the dawn,
 I sighed for thee ;
 When light rode high, and the dew was gone,
 And noon lay heavy on flower and tree,
 And the weary Day turned to her rest,
 Lingering like an unloved guest,
 I sighed for thee !

Thy brother Death came, and cried,
 " Wouldst thou me ? "
 Thy sweet child Sleep, the filmy-eyed,
 Murmured like a noontide bee,
 " Shall I nestle near thy side ?
 Wouldst thou me ? " — And I replied,
 " No, not thee ! "

Death will come when thou art dead,
 Soon, too soon, —
 Sleep will come when thou art fled ;
 Of neither would I ask the boon
 I ask of thee, beloved Night, —
 Swift be thine approaching flight,
 Come soon, soon !

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

NIGHT.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO II.

'T is night, when Meditation bids us feel
 We once have loved, though love is at an end :
 The heart, lone mourner of its baffled zeal,
 Though friendless now, will dream it had a friend.
 Who with the weight of years would wish to bend,
 When Youth itself survives young Love and
 joy ?
 Alas ! when mingling souls forget to blend,
 Death hath but little left him to destroy !
 Ah ! happy years ! once more who would not be a boy ?

Thus bending o'er the vessel's laving side,
 To gaze on Dian's wave-reflected sphere,
 The soul forgets her schemes of Hope and Pride,
 And flies unconscious o'er each backward year.
 None are so desolate but something dear,
 Dearer than self, possessions or possessed
 A thought, and claims the homage of a tear ;
 A flashing pang ! of which the weary breast
 Would still, albeit in vain, the heavy heart divest.

To sit on rocks, to muse o'er flood and fell,
 To slowly trace the forest's shady scene,
 Where things that own not man's dominion dwell,
 And mortal foot hath ne'er or rarely been ;
 To climb the trackless mountain all unseen,
 With the wild flock that never needs a fold ;
 Alone o'er steep and foaming falls to lean, —
 This is not solitude ; 't is but to hold converse with Nature's charms, and view her stores unrolled.

But midst the crowd, the hum, the shock of men
 To hear, to see, to feel, and to possess,
 And roam along, the world's tired denizen,
 With none who bless us, none whom we can bless ;
 Minions of splendor shrinking from distress !
 None that, with kindred consciousness endued,
 If we were not, would seem to smile the less
 Of all that flattered, followed, sought, and sued ;
 This is to be alone ; this, this is solitude !

LORD BYRON.

NIGHT.

MYSTERIOUS Night ! when our first parent knew
 Thee, from report divine, and heard thy name,
 Did he not tremble for this lovely frame, —
 This glorious canopy of light and blue ?
 Yet 'neath a curtain of translucent dew,
 Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
 Hesperus, with the host of heaven, came,
 And lo ! creation widened in man's view.
 Who could have thought such darkness lay concealed
 Within thy beams, O Sun ! or who could find,
 Whilst fly and leaf and insect stood revealed,
 That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind !
 Why do we then shun death with anxious strife !
 If light can thus deceive, wherefore not life ?

JOSEPH BLANCO WHITE.

NIGHT.

FROM "QUEEN MAB."

How beautiful this night ! the balmy sigh
 Which vernal zephyrs breathe in evening's ear
 Were discord to the speaking quietude
 That wars this moveless scene. Heaven's ebony vault,
 Studded with stars unutterably bright,
 Through which the moon's unclouded grandeur rolls,
 Seems like a canopy which love has spread
 To curtain her sleeping world. Yon gentle hills,
 Robed in a garment of untrodden snow ;

Yon darksome rocks, whence icicles depend,
 So stainless that their white and glittering spires
 Tinge not the moon's pure beam ; yon castle steep,
 Whose banner hangeth o'er the time-worn tower
 So idly that rapt fancy deemeth it
 A metaphor of peace — all form a scene
 Where musing solitude might love to lift
 Her soul above this sphere of earthliness ;
 Where silence undisturbed might watch alone,
 So cold, so bright, so still.

The orb of day
 In southern climes o'er ocean's waveless field
 Sinks sweetly smiling : not the faintest breath
 Steals o'er the unruffled deep ; the clouds of eve
 Reflect unmoved the lingering beam of day ;
 And vesper's image on the western main
 Is beautifully still. To-morrow comes :
 Cloud upon cloud, in dark and deepening mass,
 Rolls o'er the blackened waters ; the deep roar
 Of distant thunder mutters awfully ;
 Tempest unfolds its pinion o'er the gloom
 That shrouds the boiling surge ; the pitiless fiend,
 With all his winds and lightnings, tracks his prey ;
 The torn deep yawns, — the vessel finds a grave
 Beneath its jagged gulf.

PERCY BYSSHE SHILLLEY.

NIGHT.

NIGHT is the time for rest :
 How sweet, when labors close,
 To gather round an aching breast
 The curtain of repose,
 Stretch the tired limbs, and lay the head
 Upon our own delightful bed !

Night is the time for dreams :
 The gay romance of life,
 When truth that is, and truth that seems,
 Blend in fantastic strife ;
 Ah ! visions, less beguiling far
 Than waking dreams by daylight are !

Night is the time for toil :
 To plough the classic field,
 Intent to find the buried spoil
 Its wealthy furrows yield ;
 Till all is ours that sages taught,
 That poets sang or heroes wrought.

Night is the time to weep :
 To wet with unseen tears
 Those graves of Memory, where sleep
 The joys of other years ;
 Hopes, that were Angels at their birth,
 But perished young, like things of earth.

Night is the time to watch :
 O'er ocean's dark expanse,
 To hail the Pleiades, or catch
 The full moon's earliest glance,
 That brings into the homesick mind
 All we have loved and left behind.

Night is the time for care :
 Brooding on hours misspent,
 To see the spectre of Despair
 Come to our lonely tent ;
 Like Brutus, midst his slumbering host,
 Startled by Cæsar's stalwart ghost.

Night is the time to muse :
 When, from the eye, the soul
 Takes flight ; and, with expanding views,
 Beyond the starry pole
 Descries athwart the abyss of night
 The dawn of uncreated light.

Night is the time to pray :
 Our Saviour oft withdrew
 To desert mountains far away ;
 So will his followers do, —
 Steal from the throng to haunts untrod,
 And hold communion there with God.

Night is the time for Death :
 When all around is peace,
 Calmly to yield the weary breath,
 From sin and suffering cease,
 Think of heaven's bliss, and give the sign
 To parting friends ; — such death be mine !

JAMES MONTGOMERY

HYMN TO THE NIGHT.

Ἀσπασίη, τριλλίστος.

I HEARD the trailing garments of the Night
 Sweep through her marble halls !
 I saw her sable skirts all fringed with light
 From the celestial walls !

I felt her presence, by its spell of might,
 Stoop o'er me from above ;
 The calm, majestic presence of the Night,
 As of the one I love.

I heard the sounds of sorrow and delight,
 The manifold, soft chimes,
 That fill the haunted chambers of the Night,
 Like some old poet's rhymes.

From the cool cisterns of the midnight air
 My spirit drank repose ;
 The fountain of perpetual peace flows there, —
 From those deep cisterns flows,

O holy Night ! from thee I learn to bear
 What man has borne before !
 Thou layest thy finger on the lips of Care,
 And they complain no more.

Peace ! Peace ! Orestes-like I breathe this prayer !
 Descend with broad-winged flight,
 The welcome, the thrice-prayed for, the most fair,
 The best-belovèd Night !

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

HYMN.

FROM "THE SEASONS."

THESE, as they change, Almighty Father, these
 Are but the varied God. The rolling year
 Is full of thee. Forth in the pleasing spring
 Thy beauty walks, thy tenderness and love.
 Wide flush the fields ; the softening air is balm ;
 Echo the mountains round ; the forest smiles ;
 And every sense and every heart is joy.
 Then comes thy glory in the summer months,
 With light and heat refulgent. Then thy sun
 Shoots full perfection through the swelling year ;
 And oft thy voice in dreadful thunder speaks,
 And oft at dawn, deep noon, or falling eve,
 By brooks and groves in hollow-whispering gales.
 Thy bounty shines in autumn unconfined,
 And spreads a common feast for all that lives.
 In winter awful thou ! with clouds and storms
 Around thee thrown, tempest o'er tempest rolled.
 Majestic darkness ! on the whirlwind's wing
 Riding sublime, thou bidd'st the world adore,
 And humblest nature with thy northern blast.

Mysterious round ! what skill, what force divine,
 Deep felt, in these appear ! a simple train,
 Yet so delightful mixed, with such kind art,
 Such beauty and beneficence combined ;
 Shade, unperceived, so softening into shade ;
 And all so forming an harmonious whole,
 That, as they still succeed, they ravish still.
 But wandering oft, with brute unconscious gaze,
 Man marks not thee, marks not the mighty hand,
 That, ever busy, wheels the silent spheres ;
 Works in the secret deep ; shoots, steaming, thence

The fair profusion that o'erspreads the spring ;
 Flings from the sun direct the flaming day ;
 Feeds every creature ; hurls the tempest forth ;
 And, as on earth this grateful change revolves,
 With transport touches all the springs of life.

Nature, attend ! join every living soul,
 Beneath the spacious temple of the sky,
 In adoration join ; and, ardent, raise
 One general song ! To Him, ye vocal gales, Breathe soft, whose spirit in your freshness breathes :

O, talk of him in solitary glooms ;
 Where, o'er the rock, the scarcely waving pine
 Fills the brown shade with a religious awe.
 And ye whose bolder note is heard afar,
 Who shake the astonished world, lift high to
 Heaven

The impetuous song, and say from whom you rage.

His praise, ye brooks, attune, ye trembling rills ;
 And let me catch it as I muse along.

Ye headlong torrents, rapid, and profound ;
 Ye softer floods, that lead the humid maze
 Along the vale ; and thou, majestic main,
 A secret world of wonders in thyself,

Sound his stupendous praise, — whose greater
 voice

Or bids you roar, or bids your roarings fall.

Soft roll your incense, herbs, and fruits, and
 flowers,

In mingled clouds to him, — whose sun exalts,
 Whose breath perfumes you, and whose pencil paints.

Ye forests bend, ye harvests wave, to him ;
 Breathe your still song into the reaper's heart,
 As home he goes beneath the joyous moon.

Ye that keep watch in heaven, as earth asleep
 Unconscious lies, effuse your mildest beams,
 Ye constellations, while your angels strike,
 Amid the spangled sky, the silver lyre.

Great source of day ! best image here below

Of thy Creator, ever pouring wide,

From world to world, the vital ocean round,

On Nature write with every beam his praise.

The thunder rolls : be hushed the prostrate world ;

While cloud to cloud returns the solemn hymn.

Bleat out afresh, ye hills ; ye mossy rocks,

Retain the sound ; the broad responsive low,

Ye valleys, raise ; for the great Shepherd reigns,

And his unsuffering kingdom yet will come.

Ye woodlands all, awake : a boundless song

Burst from the groves ; and when the restless
 day,

Expiring, lays the warbling world asleep,

Sweetest of birds ! sweet Philomela, charm

The listening shades, and teach the night his praise.

Ye chief, for whom the whole creation smiles,
 At once the head, the heart, and tongue of all,
 Crown the great hymn ! in swarming cities vast,
 Assembled men to the deep organ join

The long-resounding voice, oft breaking clear,

At solemn pauses, through the swelling bass ;

And, as each mingling flame increases each,

In one united ardor rise to heaven.

Or if you rather choose the rural shade,

And find a fane in every sacred grove,

There let the shepherd's flute, the virgin's lay,

The prompting seraph, and the poet's lyre,
Still sing the God of seasons as they roll.
For me, when I forget the darling theme,
Whether the blossom blows, the summer ray
Russets the plain, inspiring autumn gleams,
Or winter rises in the blackening east, —
Be my tongue mute, my fancy paint no more,
And, dead to joy, forget my heart to beat !

Should fate command me to the farthest verge
Of the green earth, to distant barbarous climes,
Rivers unknown to song, — where first the sun
Gilds Indian mountains, or his setting beam Flames on the Atlantic isles, — 't is naught to
me :

Since God is ever present, ever felt,
In the void waste as in the city full ;
And where he vital breathes there must be joy.
When even at last the solemn hour shall come,
And wing my mystic flight to future worlds,
I cheerful will obey ; there, with new powers,
Will rising wonders sing : I cannot go
Where Universal Love not smiles around,
Sustaining all yon orbs, and all their suns ;
From seeming evil still educing good,
And better thence again, and better still,
In infinite progression. But I lose
Myself in him, in light ineffable !

Come, then, expressive Silence, muse his praise.

JAMES THOMSON.

MARCH.

SLAYER of winter, art thou here again ?
O welcome, thou that bring'st the summer nigh !
The bitter wind makes not thy victory vain,
Nor will we mock thee for thy faint blue sky.
Welcome, O March ! whose kindly days and dry
Make April ready for the throstle's song,
Thou first redresser of the winter's wrong !

Yea, welcome, March ! and though I die ere June,
Yet for the hope of life I give thee praise,
Striving to swell the burden of the tune
That even now I hear thy brown birds raise,
Unmindful of the past or coming days ;
Who sing, "O joy ! a new year is begun !
What happiness to look upon the sun !"

O, what begetteth all this storm of bliss,
But Death himself, who, crying solemnly,
Even from the heart of sweet Forgetfulness,
Bids us, "Rejoice ! lest pleasureless ye die.
Within a little time must ye go by.
Stretch forth your open hands, and, while ye live,
Take all the gifts that Death and Life may give."

WILLIAM MORRIS.

MORNING IN MAY.*

FROM "THE CANTERBURY PILGRIMS: THE KNIGHTS TALE."

THE busy larke, messenger of daye,
Salueth in hire song the morwe graye ;
And fyry Phebus ryseth up so brighte,
That al the orient laugheth of the lighte,
And with his streames dryeth in the greves †
The silver dropes, hongyng on the leeves.
And Arcite, that is in the court ryal
With Theseus, his squyer principal,
Is risen, and loketh on the merye day.
And for to doon his observaunce to May,
Remembryng on the poynt of his desir,
He on his courser, stertyng as the fir, ‡
Is riden, into the feeldes him to pleye, §
Out of the court, were it a myle or tweye.
And to the grove, of which that I yow tolde,
By aventure his way he gan to holde,
To maken him a garland of the greves,
Were it of woodebynde or hawethorn leves,
And lowde he song ayens the sonne scheene :
"May, with alle thy floures and thy greene,
Welcome be thou, wel faire fresche May,
I hope that I som grene gete may."

SPRING.

FROM "IN MEMORIAM."

DIE down upon the northern shore,
O sweet new-year, delaying long :
Thou doest expectant Nature wrong ;
Delaying long, delay no more.

What stays thee from the clouded noons,
Thy sweetness from its proper place ?
Can trouble live with April days,
Or sadness in the summer moons ?

Bring orchis, bring the foxglove spire,
The little speedwell's darling blue,
Deep tulips dashed with fiery dew,
Laburnums, dropping-wells of fire.

O thou, new-year, delaying long,
Delayest the sorrow in my blood,
That longs to burst a frozen bud,
And flood a fresher throat with song.

Now fades the last long streak of snow ;
Now bourgeons every maze of quick
About the flowering squares, and thick
By ashen roots the violets blow.

§ Play.

Now rings the woodland loud and long,
The distance takes a lovelier hue,
And drowned in yonder living blue
The lark becomes a sightless song.

Now dance the lights on lawn and lea,
The flocks are whiter down the vale,
And milkier every milky sail
On winding stream or distant sea ;

Where now the sea-mew pipes, or dives
In yonder greening gleam, and fly
The happy birds, that change their sky
To build and brood, that live their lives

From land to land ; and in my breast
Spring wakens too ; and my regret
Becomes an April violet,
And buds and blossoms like the rest.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

DIE DOWN, O DISMAL DAY.

DIE down, O dismal day, and let me live ;
And come, blue deeps, magnificently strewn
With colored clouds, — large, light, and fugitive, —

By upper winds through pompous motions blown.
Now it is death in life, — a vapor dense
Creeps round my window, till I cannot see
The far snow-shining mountains, and the glens Shagging the mountain-tops. O God ! make free
This barren shackled earth, so deadly cold, —
Breathe gently forth thy spring, till winter flies
In rude amazement, fearful and yet bold,
While she performs her customary charities ;
I weigh the loaded hours till life is bare, —
O God, for one clear day, a snowdrop, and sweet air !

DAVID GRAY.

SUMMER LONGINGS.

Ah ! my heart is weary waiting,
Waiting for the May, —

Waiting for the pleasant rambles
Where the fragrant hawthorn-brambles,
With the woodbine alternating,
Scent the dewy way.

Ah ! my heart is weary waiting,
Waiting for the May.

Ah ! my heart is sick with longing,
Longing for the May, —
Longing to escape from study
To the young face fair and ruddy,

And the thousand charms belonging
To the summer's day.
Ah ! my heart is sick with longing,
Longing for the May.

Ah ! my heart is sore with sighing,
Sighing for the May, —
Sighing for their sure returning,
When the summer beams are burning,
Hopes and flowers that, dead or dying,
All the winter lay.
Ah ! my heart is sore with sighing,
Sighing for the May.

Ah ! my heart is pained with throbbing,
Throbbing for the May, —
Throbbing for the seaside billows,
Or the water-wooing willows ;
Where, in laughing and in sobbing,
Glide the streams away.
Ah ! my heart, my heart is throbbing,
Throbbing for the May.

Waiting sad, dejected, weary,
Waiting for the May :
Spring goes by with wasted warnings, —
Moonlit evenings, sunbright mornings, —
Summer comes, yet dark and dreary
Life still ebbs away ;
Man is ever weary, weary,
Waiting for the May !

DENIS FLORENCE MACCARTHY.

WHEN THE HOUNDS OF SPRING.

WHEN the hounds of spring are on winter's traces,

The mother of months in meadow or plain
Fills the shadows and windy places
With hiss of leaves and ripple of rain ;
And the brown bright nightingale amorous
Is half assuaged for Itylus,
For the Thracian ships and the foreign faces ;
The tongueless vigil, and all the pain.

Come with bows bent and with emptying of quivers,

Maiden most perfect, lady of light,
With a noise of winds and many rivers,
With a clamor of waters, and with might ;
Bind on thy sandals, O thou most fleet,
Over the splendor and speed of thy feet !
For the faint east quickens, the wan west shivers,
Round the feet of the day and the feet of the
night.

Where shall we find her, how shall we sing to her,
 Fold our hands round her knees and cling?
 O that man's heart were as fire and could spring
 to her,

Fire, or the strength of the streams that spring!
 For the stars and the winds are unto her
 As raiment, as songs of the harp-player;
 For the risen stars and the fallen cling to her,
 And the southwest-wind and the west-wind sing.

For winter's rains and ruins are over,
 And all the season of snows and sins!
 The days dividing lover and lover,
 The light that loses, the night that wins;
 And time remembered its grief forgotten,
 And frosts are slain and flowers begotten,
 And in green underwood and cover
 Blossom by blossom the spring begins.

The full streams feed on flower of rushes,
 Ripe grasses trammel a travelling foot,
 The faint fresh flame of the young year flushes
 From leaf to flower and flower to fruit;
 And fruit and leaf are as gold and fire,
 And the oat is heard above the lyre,
 And the hoofed heel of a satyr crushes
 The chestnut-husk at the chestnut-root.

And Pan by noon and Bacchus by night,
 Fleeter of foot than the fleet-foot kid,
 Follows with dancing and fills with delight
 The Mænad and the Bassarid;
 And soft as lips that laugh and hide,
 The laughing leaves of the trees divide,
 And screen from seeing and leave in sight
 The god pursuing, the maiden hid.

The ivy falls with the Bacchanal's hair
 Over her eyebrows shading her eyes;
 The wild vine slipping down leaves bare
 Her bright breast shortening into sighs;
 The wild vine slips with the weight of its leaves,
 But the berried ivy catches and cleaves
 To the limbs that glitter, the feet that scare
 The wolf that follows, the fawn that flies.

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE.

THE WINTER BEING OVER.

THE winter being over,
 In order comes the spring,
 Which doth green herbs discover,
 And cause the birds to sing.
 The night also expired,
 Then comes the morning bright,

Which is so much desired
 By all that love the light.

This may learn
 Then that mourn
 To put their grief to flight:
 The spring succeedeth winter,
 And day must follow night.

He therefore that sustaineth
 Affliction or distress
 Which every member paineth,
 And findeth no release, —
 Let such therefore despair not,
 But on firm hope depend,
 Whose griefs immortal are not,
 And therefore must have end.

They that faint
 With complaint
 Therefore are to blame;
 They add to their afflictions,
 And amplify the same.

For if they could with patience
 Awhile possess the mind,
 By inward consolations
 They might refreshing find,
 To sweeten all their crosses,
 That little time they 'dure;
 So might they gain by losses,
 And sharp would sweet procure.
 But if the mind
 Be inclined

To unquietness,
 That only may be called
 The worst of all distress.

He that is melancholy,
 Detesting all delight,
 His wits by sottish folly
 Are ruined quite.
 Sad discontent and murmurs
 To him are incident;
 Were he possessed of honors,
 He could not be content.
 Sparks of joy
 Fly away;

Floods of care arise;
 And all delightful motion
 In the conception dies.

But those that are contented
 However things do fall,
 Much anguish is prevented,
 And they soon freed from all.
 They finish all their labors
 With much felicity;
 Their joy in trouble savors
 Of perfect piety.

Cheerfulness
Doth express
A settled pious mind,
Which is not prone to grudging,
From murmuring refined.

SPRING.

WRITTEN WHILE A PRISONER IN ENGLAND.

THE Time hath laid his mantle by
Of wind and rain and icy chill,
And dons a rich embroidery
Of sunlight poured on lake and hill.
No beast or bird in earth or sky,
Whose voice doth not with gladness thrill,
For Time hath laid his mantle by
Of wind and rain and icy chill.

River and fountain, brook and rill,
Bespangled o'er with livery gay
Of silver droplets, wind their way.
All in their new apparel vie,
For Time hath laid his mantle by.

CHARLES OF ORLEANS.

RETURN OF SPRING.

GOD shield ye, heralds of the spring !
Ye faithful swallows, fleet of wing,
Houps, cuckoos, nightingales,
Turtles, and every wilder bird,
That make your hundred chirpings heard
Through the green woods and dales.

GOD shield ye, Easter daisies all,
Fair roses, buds, and blossoms small,
And he whom erst the gore
Of Ajax and Narciss did print,
Ye wild thyme, anise, balm, and mint,
I welcome ye once more !

GOD shield ye, bright embroidered train
Of butterflies, that on the plain
Of each sweet herblet sip ;
And ye, new swarms of bees, that go
Where the pink flowers and yellow grow
To kiss them with your lip !

A hundred thousand times I call
A hearty welcome on ye all !
This season how I love —
This merry din on every shore —
For winds and storms, whose sullen roar
Forbade my steps to rove.

From the French of PIERRE RONSARD.

SPRING.

AGAIN the violet of our early days
Drinks beauteous azure from the golden sun,
And kindles into fragrance at his blaze ;
The streams, rejoiced that winter's work is done,
Talk of to-morrow's cowslips, as they run.
Wild apple, thou art blushing into bloom !
Thy leaves are coming, snowy-blossomed thorn !
Wake, buried lily ! spirit, quit thy tomb !
And thou shade-loving hyacinth, be born !
Then, haste, sweet rose ! sweet woodbine, hymn
the morn,

Whose dewdrops shall illumine with pearly light
Each grassy blade that thick embattled stands
From sea to sea, while daisies infinite
Uplift in praise their little glowing hands,
O'er every hill that under heaven expands.

EBENEZER ELLIOTT.

SPRING.

Lo ! where the rosy-bosomed Hours,
Fair Venus' train, appear,
Disclose the long-expecting flowers
And wake the purple year !
The Attic warbler pours her throat
Responsive to the cuckoo's note,
The untaught harmony of spring :
While, whispering pleasure as they fly,
Cool zephyrs through the clear blue sky
Their gathered fragrance fling.

Where'er the oak's thick branches stretch
A broader, browner shade,
Where'er the rude and moss-grown beech
O'ercanopies the glade,
Beside some water's rushy brink
With me the Muse shall sit, and think
(At ease reclined in rustic state)
How vain the ardor of the crowd,
How low, how little are the proud,
How indigent the great !

Still is the toiling hand of care ;
The panting herds repose :
Yet hark, how through the peopled air
The busy murmur glows !
The insect youth are on the wing,
Eager to taste the honeyed spring
And float amid the liquid noon :
Some lightly o'er the current skim,
Some show their gayly gilded trim
Quick-glancing to the sun.

To Contemplation's sober eye
Such is the race of man ;
And they that creep, and they that fly
Shall end where they began.

Alike the busy and the gay
 But flutter through life's little day,
 In Fortune's varying colors drest :
 Brushed by the hand of rough mischance
 Or chilled by age, their airy dance
 They leave, in dust to rest.

Methinks I hear in accents low
 The sportive kind reply :
 Poor moralist ! and what art thou ?
 A solitary fly !
 Thy joys no glittering female meets,
 No hive hast thou of hoarded sweets,
 No painted plumage to display ;
 On hasty wings thy youth is flown ;
 Thy sun is set, thy spring is gone, —
 We frolic while 't is May.

THOMAS GRAY.

SWEETLY BREATHING, VERNAL AIR.

SWEETLY breathing, vernal air,
 That with kind warmth doth repair
 Winter's ruins ; from whose breast
 All the gums and spice of the East
 Borrow their perfumes ; whose eye
 Gilds the morn, and clears the sky
 Whose dishevelled tresses shed
 Pearls upon the violet bed ;
 On whose brow, with calm smiles drest
 The haleyon sits and builds her nest ;
 Beauty, youth, and endless spring
 Dwell upon thy rosy wing !

Thou, if stormy Boreas throws
 Down whole forests when he blows,
 With a pregnant, flowery birth,
 Canst refresh the teeming earth.
 If he nip the early bud,
 If he blast what's fair or good,
 If he scatter our choice flowers,
 If he shake our halls or bowers,
 If his rude breath threaten us,
 Thou canst stroke great Æolus,
 And from him the grace obtain,
 To bind him in an iron chain.

THOMAS CAREW.

SPRING, THE SWEET SPRING.

SPRING, the sweet spring, is the year's pleasant
 king ;
 Then blooms each thing, then maids dance in a ring,
 Cold doth not sting, the pretty birds do sing,
 Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo !

The palm and may make country-houses gay,
 Lambs frisk and play, the shepherds pipe all day,
 And we hear aye birds tune this merry lay,
 Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo !

The fields breathe sweet, the daisies kiss our feet,
 Young lovers meet, old wives a sunning sit,
 In every street these tunes our ears do greet,
 Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo !
 Spring ! the sweet spring !

THOMAS NASH.

SPRING.

BEHOLD the young, the rosy spring
 Gives to the breeze her scented wing,
 While virgin graces, warm with May,
 Fling roses o'er her dewy way.
 The murmuring billows of the deep
 Have languished into silent sleep ;
 And mark ! the flitting sea-birds lave
 Their plumes in the reflecting wave ;
 While cranes from hoary winter fly
 To flutter in a kinder sky.
 Now the genial star of day
 Dissolves the murky clouds away,
 And cultured field and winding stream
 Are freshly glittering in his beam.
 Now the earth prolific swells
 With leafy buds and flowery bells ;
 Gemming shoots the olive twine ;
 Clusters bright festoon the vine ;
 All along the branches creeping,
 Through the velvet foliage peeping,
 Little infant fruits we see
 Nursing into luxury.

From the Greek of ANACREON. Translation of THOMAS MOORE.

MAY MORNING.

Now the bright morning star, day's harbinger,
 Comes dancing from the east, and leads with her
 The flowery May, who from her green lap throws
 The yellow cowslip and the pale primrose.
 Hail, bounteous May ! that doth inspire
 Mirth and youth and warm desire ;
 Woods and groves are of thy dressing,
 Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing.
 Thus we salute thee with our early song,
 And welcome thee, and wish thee long.

MILTON.

SPRING IN CAROLINA.

SPRING, with that nameless pathos in the air
 Which dwells with all things fair,
 Spring, with her golden suns and silver rain,
 Is with us once again.

Out in the lonely woods the jasmine burns
 Its fragrant lamps, and turns
 Into a royal court with green festoons
 The banks of dark lagoons.

In the deep heart of every forest tree
 The blood is all aglee,
 And there's a look about the leafless bowers
 As if they dreamed of flowers.

Yet still on every side we trace the hand
 Of Winter in the land,
 Save where the maple reddens on the lawn,
 Flushed by the season's dawn ;

Or where, like those strange semblances we find
 That age to childhood bind,
 The elm puts on, as if in Nature's scorn,
 The brown of autumn corn.

As yet the turf is dark, although you know
 That, not a span below,
 A thousand germs are groping through the gloom,
 And soon will burst their tomb.

In gardens you may note amid the dearth,
 The crocus breaking earth ;
 And near the snowdrop's tender white and green,
 The violet in its screen.

But many gleams and shadows need must pass
 Along the budding grass,
 And weeks go by, before the enamored South
 Shall kiss the rose's mouth.

Still there's a sense of blossoms yet unborn
 In the sweet airs of morn ;
 One almost looks to see the very street
 Grow purple at his feet.

At times a fragrant breeze comes floating by,
 And brings, you know not why,
 A feeling as when eager crowds await
 Before a palace gate

Some wondrous pageant ; and you scarce would start,

If from a beech's heart,
 A blue-eyed Dryad, stepping forth, should say,
 "Behold me ! I am May !"

HENRY TIMROD.

 MAY.

I FEEL a newer life in every gale ;
 The winds that fan the flowers,
 And with their welcome breathings fill the sail,
 Tell of serener hours, —
 Of hours that glide unfelt away
 Beneath the sky of May.

The spirit of the gentle south-wind calls
 From his blue throne of air,
 And where his whispering voice in music falls,
 Beauty is budding there ;
 The bright ones of the valley break
 Their slumbers, and awake.

The waving verdure rolls along the plain,
 And the wide forest weaves,
 To welcome back its playful mates again,
 A canopy of leaves ;
 And from its darkening shadow floats
 A gush of trembling notes.

Fairer and brighter spreads the reign of May ;
 The tresses of the woods
 With the light dallying of the west-wind play ;
 And the full-brimming floods,
 As gladly to their goal they run,
 Hail the returning sun.

JAMES GATES PERCIVAL.

 THEY COME ! THE MERRY SUMMER MONTHS.

THEY come ! the merry summer months of beauty, song, and flowers ;
 They come ! the gladsome months that bring thick leafiness to bowers.
 Up, up, my heart ! and walk abroad ; fling cark
 and care aside ;
 Seek silent hills, or rest thyself where peaceful waters glide ;
 Or, underneath the shadow vast of patriarchal tree,
 Scan through its leaves the cloudless sky in rapt tranquillity.

The grass is soft, its velvet touch is grateful to the hand ;
 And, like the kiss of maiden love, the breeze is sweet and bland ;
 The daisy and the buttercup are nodding courteously ;
 It stirs their blood with kindest love, to bless and welcome thee ;
 And mark how with thine own thin locks —
 they now are silvery gray —
 That blissful breeze is wantoning, and whispering, "Be gay !"

There is no cloud that sails along the ocean of yon sky
 But hath its own winged mariners to give it melody ;

Thou seest their glittering fans outspread, all gleaming like red gold ;
And hark ! with shrill pipe musical, their merry course they hold.
God bless them all, those little ones, who, far above this earth,
Can make a scoff of its mean joys, and vent a nobler mirth.

But soft ! mine ear upcaught a sound, — from yonder wood it came !
The spirit of the dim green glade did breathe his own glad name ; —
Yes, it is he ! the hermit bird, that, apart from all his kind,
Slow spells his beads monotonous to the soft western wind ;
Cuckoo ! Cuckoo ! he sings again, — his notes are void of art ;
But simplest strains do soonest sound the deep founts of the heart.

Good Lord ! it is a gracious boon for thoughtcrazed wight like me,
To smell again these summer flowers beneath this summer tree !
To suck once more in every breath their little souls away,
And feed my fancy with fond dreams of youth's bright summer day,
When, rushing forth like untamed colt, the reckless, truant boy
Wandered through greenwoods all day long, a mighty heart of joy !

I'm sadder now, — I have had cause ; but O,
I'm proud to think
That each pure joy-fount, loved of yore, I yet delight to drink ; —
Leaf, blossom, blade, hill, valley, stream, the calm, unclouded sky,
Still mingle music with my dreams, as in the days gone by.
When summer's loveliness and light fall round me dark and cold,
I'll bear indeed life's heaviest curse, — a heart that hath waxed old !

WILLIAM MOTHERWELL.

JUNE.

FROM "THE VISION OF SIR LAUNFAL."

EARTH gets its price for what Earth gives us ;
The beggar is taxed for a corner to die in,
The priest hath his fee who comes and shrives us,
We bargain for the graves we lie in ;
At the Devil's booth are all things sold,
Each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold ;

For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
Bubbles we earn with a whole soul's tasking .
'T is heaven alone that is given away,
'T is only God may be had for the asking ;
There is no price set on the lavish summer,
And June may be had by the poorest corner.

And what is so rare as a day in June ?
Then, if ever, come perfect days ;
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays :
Whether we look, or whether we listen,
We hear life murmur, or see it glisten ;
Every clod feels a stir of might,
An instinct within it that reaches and towers
And, groping blindly above it for light,
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers ;
The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back over hills and valleys ;
The crowslip startles in meadows green,
The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice,
And there 's never a leaf or a blade too mean
To be some happy creature's palace ;
The little bird sits at his door in the sun,
Atilt like a blossom among the leaves,
And lets his illumined being o'errun
With the deluge of summer it receives ;
His mate feels the eggs beneath her wings,
And the heart in her dumb breast flutters and
sings ;
He sings to the wide world, and she to her nest, —
In the nice ear of Nature, which song is the best ?

Now is the high-tide of the year,
And whatever of life hath ebbed away
Comes flooding back, with a ripply cheer,
Into every bare inlet and creek and bay ;
Now the heart is so full that a drop overfills it,
We are happy now because God wills it ;
No matter how barren the past may have been,
'T is enough for us now that the leaves are green ;
We sit in the warm shade and feel right well
How the sap creeps up and the blossoms swell ;
We may shut our eyes, but we cannot help knowing
That skies are clear and grass is growing ;
The breeze comes whispering in our ear,
That dandelions are blossoming near,
That maize has sprouted, that streams are flowing,
That the river is bluer than the sky,
That the robin is plastering his house hard by ;
And if the breeze kept the good news back,
For other couriers we should not lack ;
We could guess it all by yon heifer's lowing, —
And hark ! how clear bold chanticleer,
Warmed with the new wine of the year,
Tells all in his lusty crowing !

J. H. Lawrence

Joy comes, grief goes, we know not how ;
 Everything is happy now,
 Everything is upward striving ;
 'Tis as easy now for the heart to be true
 As for grass to be green or skies to be blue, —
 'Tis the natural way of living :
 Who knows whither the clouds have fled ?
 In the unscarred heaven they leave no wake,
 And the eyes forget the tears they have shed,
 The heart forgets its sorrow and ache ;
 The soul partakes the season's youth,
 And the sulphurous rifts of passion and woe
 Lie deep 'neath a silence pure and smooth,
 Like burnt-out craters healed with snow.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

JUNE.

I GAZED upon the glorious sky,
 And the green mountains round,
 And thought that when I came to lie
 At rest within the ground,
 'T were pleasant that in flowery June,
 When brooks send up a cheerful tune,
 And groves a cheerful sound,
 The sexton's hand, my grave to make,
 The rich, green mountain turf should break.

A cell within the frozen mould,
 A coffin borne through sleet,
 And icy clods above it rolled,
 While fierce the tempests beat —
 Away ! I will not think of these —
 Blue be the sky and soft the breeze,
 Earth green beneath the feet,
 And be the damp mould gently pressed
 Into my narrow place of rest.

There, through the long, long, summer hours
 The golden light should lie,
 And thick young herbs and groups of flowers
 Stand in their beauty by.
 The oriole should build and tell
 His love-tale close beside my cell ;
 The idle butterfly
 Should rest him there, and there be heard
 The housewife bee and humming-bird.

And what if cheerful shouts at noon
 Come, from the village sent,
 Or song of maids beneath the moon
 With fairy laughter blent ?
 And what if, in the evening light,
 Betrothed lovers walk in sight
 Of my low monument ?
 I would the lovely scene around
 Might know no sadder sight nor sound.

I know that I no more should see
 The season's glorious show,
 Nor would its brightness shine for me,
 Nor its wild music flow ;
 But if, around my place of sleep,
 The friends I love should come to weep,
 They might not haste to go.
 Soft airs, and song, and light and bloom
 Should keep them lingering by my tomb.

These to their softened hearts should bear
 The thought of what has been,
 And speak of one who cannot share
 The gladness of the scene ;
 Whose part, in all the pomp that fills
 The circuit of the summer hills,
 Is that his grave is green ;
 And deeply would their hearts rejoice
 To hear again his living voice.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

SONG OF THE SUMMER WINDS.

UP the dale and down the bourne,
 O'er the meadow swift we fly ;
 Now we sing, and now we mourn,
 Now we whistle, now we sigh.

By the grassy-fringed river,
 Through the murmuring reeds we sweep ;
 Mid the lily-leaves we quiver,
 To their very hearts we creep.

Now the maiden rose is blushing
 At the frolic things we say,
 While aside her cheek we're rushing,
 Like some truant bees at play.

Through the blooming graves we rustle,
 Kissing every bud we pass, —
 As we did it in the bustle,
 Scarcely knowing how it was.

Down the glen, across the mountain,
 O'er the yellow heath we roam,
 Whirling round about the fountain,
 Till its little breakers foam.

Bending down the weeping willows,
 While our vesper hymn we sigh,
 Then unto our rosy pillows
 On our weary wings we hie.

There of idlenesses dreaming,
 Scarce from waking we refrain,
 Moments long as ages deeming
 Till we're at our play again.

GEORGE DARLEY

THE STORY OF A SUMMER DAY.

O PERFECT Light, which shaid away
The darkness from the light,
And set a ruler o'er the day,
Another o'er the night ;

Thy glory, when the day forth flies,
More vividly does appear,
Than at midday unto our eyes
The shining sun is clear.

The shadow of the earth anon
Removes and draws is by,
While in the east, when it is gone,
Appears a clearer sky.

Which soon perceive the little larks,
The lapwing and the snipe,
And time their songs, like Nature's clerks,
O'er meadow, muir, and stripe.

Our hemisphere is polished clean,
And lightened more and more ;
While everything is clearly seen,
Which seemèd dim before ;

Except the glistening astres bright,
Which all the night were clear,
Offuskèd with a greater light
No longer do appear.

The golden globe incontinent
Sets up his shining head,
And o'er the earth and firmament
Displays his beams abroad.

For joy the birds with boulden throats
Against his visage sheen
Take up their kindly music notes
In woods and gardens green.

The dew upon the tender crops,
Like pearles white and round,
Or like to melted silver drops,
Refreshes all the ground.

The misty reek, the clouds of rain
From tops of mountains skails,
Clear are the highest hills and plain,
The vapors take the vales.

The ample heaven, of fabric sure,
In cleanness does surpass
The crystal and the silver pure,
Or clearest polished glass.

The time so tranquil is and still,
That nowhere shall ye find,
Save on a high and barren hill,
The air of peeping wind.

All trees and simples, great and small,
That balmy leaf do bear,
Than they were painted on a wall,
No more they move or steir.

Calm is the deep and purple sea,
Yea, smoother than the sand ;
The waves, that weltering wont to be,
Are stable like the land.

So silent is the cessile air,
That every cry and call,
The hills and dales and forest fair
Again repeats them all.

The flourishes and fragrant flowers,
Through Phœbus' fostering heat,
Refreshed with dew and silver showers,
Cast up an odor sweet.

The cloggèd, busy humming-bees,
That never think to drone,
On flowers and flourishes of trees,
Collect their liquor brown.

The sun, most like a speedy post,
With ardent course ascends ;
The beauty of the heavenly host
Up to our zenith tends.

Not guided by a Phaëthon,
Not trained in a chair,
But by the high and holy One,
Who does allwhere empire.

The burning beams down from his face
So fervently can beat,
That man and beast now seek a place
To save them from the heat.

The herds beneath some leafy tree,
Amidst the flowers they lie ;
The stable ships upon the sea
Tend up their sails to dry.

With gilded eyes and open wings,
The cock his courage shows ;
With claps of joy his breast he dings,
And twenty times he crows.

The dove with whistling wings so blue
The winds can fast collect,
Her purple pens turn many a hue
Against the sun direct.

Now noon is went ; gone is midday,
The heat does slake at last,
The sun descends down west away,
For three o'clock is past.

The rayons of the sun we see
 Diminish in their strength,
 The shade of every tower and tree
 Extended is in length.

Great is the calm, for everywhere
 The wind is settling down,
 The reek throws right up in the air
 From every tower and town.

The gloaming comes, the day is spent,
 The sun goes out of sight,
 And painted is the occident
 With purple sanguine bright.

The scarlet nor the golden thread,
 Who would their beauty try,
 Are nothing like the color red
 And beauty of the sky.

Our west horizon circular,
 From time the sun be set,
 Is all with rubies, as it were,
 Or roses red o'erfret.

What pleasure were to walk and see,
 Endlong a river clear,
 The perfect form of every tree
 Within the deep appear.

O, then it were a seemly thing,
 While all is still and calm,
 The praise of God to play and sing
 With cornet and with shalm !

All laborers draw home at even,
 And can to other say,
 Thanks to the gracious God of heaven,
 Which sent this summer day !

ALEXANDER HUME.

BEFORE THE RAIN.

WE knew it would rain, for all the morn,
 A spirit on slender ropes of mist
 Was lowering its golden buckets down
 Into the vapory amethyst

Of marshes and swamps and dismal fens, —
 Scooping the dew that lay in the flowers,
 Dipping the jewels out of the sea,
 To sprinkle them over the land in showers.

We knew, it would rain, for the poplars showed
 The white of their leaves, the amber grain
 Shrank in the wind, — and the lightning now
 Is tangled in tremulous skeins of rain.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH.

SIGNS OF RAIN.*

FORTY REASONS FOR NOT ACCEPTING AN INVITATION OF A FRIEND TO MAKE AN EXCURSION WITH HIM.

- 1 THE hollow winds begin to blow ;
- 2 The clouds look black, the glass is low,
- 3 The soot falls down, the spaniels sleep,
- 4 And spiders from their cobwebs peep.
- 5 Last night the sun went pale to bed,
- 6 The moon in halos hid her head ;
- 7 The boding shepherd heaves a sigh,
- 8 For see, a rainbow spans the sky !
- 9 The walls are damp, the ditches smell,
- 10 Closed is the pink-eyed pimpernel.
- 11 Hark how the chairs and tables crack !
- 12 Old Betty's nerves are on the rack ;
- 13 Loud quacks the duck, the peacocks cry,
- 14 The distant hills are seeming nigh.
- 15 How restless are the snorting swine !
- 16 The busy flies disturb the kine,
- 17 Low o'er the grass the swallow wings,
- 18 The cricket, too, how sharp he sings !
- 19 Puss on the hearth, with velvet paws,
- 20 Sits wiping o'er her whiskered jaws ;
- 21 Through the clear streams the fishes rise,
- 22 And nimbly catch the incautious flies.
- 23 The glow-worms, numerous and light,
- 24 Illumed the dewy dell last night ;
- 25 At dusk the squalid toad was seen,
- 26 Hopping and crawling o'er the green ;
- 27 The whirling dust the wind obeys,
- 28 And in the rapid eddy plays ;
- 29 The frog has changed his yellow vest,
- 30 And in a russet coat is dressed.
- 31 Though June, the air is cold and still,
- 32 The mellow blackbird's voice is shrill ;
- 33 My dog, so altered in his taste,
- 34 Quits mutton-bones on grass to feast ;
- 35 And see yon rooks, how odd their flight !
- 36 They imitate the gliding kite,
- 37 And seem precipitate to fall,
- 38 As if they felt the piercing ball.
- 39 'T will surely rain ; I see with sorrow,
- 40 Our jaunt must be put off to-morrow.

DR. EDWARD JENNER.

SUMMER MOODS.

I LOVE at eventide to walk alone,
 Down narrow glens, o'erhung with dewy thorn,
 Where from the long grass underneath, the snail,
 Jet black, creeps out, and sprouts his timid horn.

I love to muse o'er meadows newly mown,

* "Verified by Darwin," says C. C. Bombaugh in his "Gleanings from the Harvest Fields of Literature," though his version of the lines varies somewhat from this.

Where withering grass perfumes the sultry air ;
 Where bees search round, with sad and weary drone,
 In vain, for flowers that bloomed but newly
 there ;
 While in the juicy corn the hidden quail
 Cries, "Wet my foot ;" and, hid as thoughts unborn,
 The fairy-like and seldom-seen land-rail
 Utters "Craik, craik," like voices underground,
 Right glad to meet the evening's dewy veil,
 And see the light fade into gloom around.

JOHN CLARE.

INVOCATION TO RAIN IN SUMMER.

O GENTLE, gentle summer rain,
 Let not the silver lily pine,
 The drooping lily pine in vain
 To feel that dewy touch of thine, —
 To drink thy freshness once again,
 O gentle, gentle summer rain !

In heat the landscape quivering lies ;
 The cattle pant beneath the tree ;
 Through parching air and purple skies
 The earth looks up, in vain, for thee ;
 For thee — for thee, it looks in vain,
 O gentle, gentle summer rain.

Come thou, and brim the meadow streams,
 And soften all the hills with mist,
 O falling dew ! from burning dreams
 By thee shall herb and flower be kissed,
 And Earth shall bless thee yet again,
 O gentle, gentle summer rain.

WILLIAM COX BENNETT.

RAIN IN SUMMER.

How beautiful is the rain !
 After the dust and heat,
 In the broad and fiery street,
 In the narrow lane,
 How beautiful is the rain !

How it clatters along the roofs,
 Like the tramp of hoofs !
 How it gushes and struggles out
 From the throat of the overflowing spout !

Across the window-pane
 It pours and pours ;
 And swift and wide,
 With a muddy tide,
 Like a river down the gutter roars
 The rain, the welcome rain !

The sick man from his chamber looks
 At the twisted brooks ;
 He can feel the cool
 Breath of each little pool ;
 His fevered brain
 Grows calm again,
 And he breathes a blessing on the rain.

From the neighboring school
 Come the boys,
 With more than their wonted noise
 And commotion ;
 And down the wet streets
 Sail their mimic fleets,
 Till the treacherous pool
 Ingulfs them in its whirling
 And turbulent ocean.

In the country, on every side,
 Where far and wide,
 Like a leopard's tawny and spotted hide,
 Stretches the plain,
 To the dry grass and the drier grain
 How welcome is the rain !

In the furrowed land
 The toilsome and patient oxen stand ;
 Lifting the yoke-encumbered head,
 With their dilated nostrils spread,
 They silently inhale
 The clover-scented gale,
 And the vapors that arise
 From the well-watered and smoking soil.
 For this rest in the furrow after toil
 Their large and lustrous eyes
 Seem to thank the Lord,
 More than man's spoken word.

Near at hand,
 From under the sheltering trees,
 The farmer sees
 His pastures, and his fields of grain,
 As they bend their tops
 To the numberless beating drops
 Of the incessant rain.
 He counts it as no sin
 That he sees therein
 Only his own thrift and gain.

These, and far more than these,
 The Poet sees !
 He can behold
 Aquarius old
 Walking the fenceless fields of air ;
 And from each ample fold
 Of the clouds about him rolled Scattering everywhere
 The showery rain,
 As the farmer scatters his grain.

He can behold
 Things manifold
 That have not yet been wholly told,—
 Have not been wholly sung nor said.
 For his thought, that never stops,
 Follows the water-drops
 Down to the graves of the dead,
 Down through chasms and gulfs profound,
 To the dreary fountain-head
 Of lakes and rivers underground ;
 And sees them, when the rain is done,
 On the bridge of colors seven
 Climbing up once more to heaven,
 Opposite the setting sun.

Thus the Seer,
 With vision clear,
 Sees forms appear and disappear,
 In the perpetual round of strange,
 Mysterious change
 From birth to death, from death to birth,
 From earth to heaven, from heaven to earth ;
 Till glimpses more sublime
 Of things, unseen before,
 Unto his wondering eyes reveal
 The Universe, as an immeasurable wheel
 Turning forevermore
 In the rapid and rushing river of Time.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

SUMMER STORM.

UNTREMULOUS in the river clear,
 Toward the sky's image, hangs the imaged bridge ;
 So still the air that I can hear
 The slender clarion of the unseen midge ;
 Out of the stillness, with a gathering creep,
 Like rising wind in leaves, which now decreases,
 Now lulls, now swells, and all the while increases.
 The huddling trample of a drove of sheep
 Tilts the loose planks, and then as gradually ceases
 In dust on the other side ; life's emblem deep,
 A confused noise between two silences,
 Finding at last in dust precarious peace.
 On the wide marsh the purple-blossomed grasses
 Soak up the sunshine ; sleeps the brimming tide,
 Save when the wedge-shaped wake in silence passes
 Of some slow water-rat, whose sinuous glide
 Waves the long green sedge's shade from side to side ;
 But up the west, like a rock-shivered surge,
 Climbs a great cloud edged with sun-whitened
 spray ;
 Huge whirls of foam boil toppling o'er its verge,
 And falling still it seems, and yet it climbs
 away.

Suddenly all the sky is hid
 As with the shutting of a lid,
 One by one great drops are falling
 Doubtful and slow ;
 Down the pane they are crookedly crawling,
 And the wind breathes low ;
 Slowly the circles widen on the river,
 Widen and mingle, one and all ;
 Here and there the slenderer flowers shiver,
 Struck by an icy rain-drop's fall.

Now on the hills I hear the thunder mutter,
 The wind is gathering in the west ;
 The upturned leaves first whiten and flutter,
 Then droop to a fitful rest ;
 Up from the stream with sluggish flap
 Struggles the gull and floats away ;
 Nearer and nearer rolls the thunder-clap, —
 We shall not see the sun go down to-day :
 Now leaps the wind on the sleepy marsh,
 And tramples the grass with terrified feet,
 The startled river turns leaden and harsh,
 You can hear the quick heart of the tempest beat.

Look ! look ! that livid flash !
 And instantly follows the rattling thunder.
 As if some cloud-crag, split asunder,
 Fell, splintering with a ruinous crash,
 On the Earth, which crouches in silence under ;
 And now a solid gray wall of rain
 Shuts off the landscape, mile by mile ;
 For a breath's space I see the blue wood again,
 And, ere the next heart-beat, the wind-hurled pile,
 That seemed but now a league aloof,
 Bursts crackling o'er the sun-parched roof ;
 Against the windows the storm comes dashing,
 Through tattered foliage the hail tears crashing,
 The blue lightning flashes,
 The rapid hail clashes,
 The white waves are tumbling,
 And, in one baffled roar,
 Like the toothless sea mumbling
 A rock-bristled shore,
 The thunder is rumbling
 And crashing and crumbling, —
 Will silence return nevermore ?

Hush ! Still as death,
 The tempest holds his breath
 As from a sudden will ;
 The rain stops short, but from the eaves
 You see it drop, and hear it from the leaves,
 All is so bodily still ;
 Again, now, now, again
 Plashes the rain in heavy gout,
 The crinkled lightning
 Seems ever brightening.

And loud and long
 Again the thunder shouts
 His battle-song, —
 One quivering flash,
 One wildering crash,
 Followed by silence dead and dull,
 As if the cloud, let go,
 Leapt bodily below
 To whelm the earth in one mad overthrow,
 And then a total lull.

Gone, gone, so soon !
 No more my half-crazed fancy there
 Can shape a giant in the air,
 No more I see his streaming hair,
 The writhing portent of his form ; —
 The pale and quiet moon
 Makes her calm forehead bare,
 And the last fragments of the storm,
 Like shattered rigging from a fight at sea,
 Silent and few, are drifting over me.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

AFTER THE RAIN.

THE rain has ceased, and in my room
 The sunshine pours an airy flood ;
 And on the church's dizzy vane
 The ancient Cross is bathed in blood.

From out the dripping ivy-leaves,
 Antiquely carven, gray and high,
 A dormer, facing westward, looks
 Upon the village like an eye :

And now it glimmers in the sun,
 A square of gold, a disk, a speck :
 And in the belfry sits a Dove
 With purple ripples on her neck.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH.

A DROP OF DEW.

SEE how the orient dew,
 Shed from the bosom of the morn
 Into the blowing roses,
 (Yet careless of its mansion new
 For the clear region where 't was born)
 Round in itself encloses,
 And in its little globe's extent
 Frames, as it can, its native element.
 How it the purple flower does slight,
 Scarce touching where it lies ;
 But gazing back upon the skies,
 Shines with a mournful light,

Like its own tear,
 Because so long divided from the sphere ;
 Restless it rolls, and unsecure,
 Trembling, lest it grow inure,
 Till the warm sun pities its pain,
 And to the skies exhales it back again.
 So the soul, that drop, that ray
 Of the clear fountain of eternal day,
 Could it within the human flower be seen,
 Remembering still its former height,
 Shuns the sweet leaves and blossoms green,
 And, recollecting its own light,
 Does, in its pure and circling thoughts, express
 The greater heaven in a heaven less.

In how coy a figure wound,
 Every way it turns away ;
 So the world excluding round,
 Yet receiving in the day.
 Dark beneath, but bright above ;
 Here disdaining, there in love.
 How loose and easy hence to go !
 How girt and ready to ascend !
 Moving but on a point below,
 It all about does upwards bend
 Such did the manna's sacred dew distil,
 White and entire, although congealed and chill, —
 Congealed on earth, but does, dissolving, run
 Into the glories of the Almighty sun.

ANDREW MARVELL

A SUMMER EVENING'S MEDITATION.

" One sun by day, by night ten thousand shine." — YOUNG.

'T is past, — the sultry tyrant of the South
 Has spent his short-lived rage ; more grateful hours
 Move silent on ; the skies no more repel
 The dazzled sight, but, with mild maiden beams
 Of tempered lustre, court the cherished eye
 To wander o'er their sphere ; where, hung aloft,
 Dian's bright crescent, like a silver bow,
 New strung in heaven, lifts its beamy horns
 Impatient for the night, and seems to push
 Her brother down the sky. Fair Venus shines
 Even in the eye of day ; with sweetest beam
 Propitious shines, and shakes a trembling flood
 Of softened radiance with her dewy locks.
 The shadows spread apace ; while meekened Eve,
 Her cheek yet warm with blushes, slow retires
 Through the Hesperian gardens of the West,
 And shuts the gates of Day. 'T is now the hour
 When Contemplation, from her sunless haunts,
 The cool damp grotto, or the lonely depth
 Of unpierced woods, where rapt in solid shade
 She mused away the gaudy hours of noon,
 And fed on thoughts unripened by the sun,
 Moves forward and with radiant finger points

To yon blue concave swelled by breath divine,
Where, one by one, the living eyes of heaven
Awake, quick kindling o'er the face of ether
One boundless blaze; ten thousand trembling fires,

And dancing lustres, where the unsteady eye,
Restless and dazzled, wanders unconfined
O'er all this field of glories; spacious field,
And worthy of the Master, — He whose hand
With hieroglyphics elder than the Nile
Inscribed the mystic tablet, hung on high
To public gaze, and said, Adore, O man!
The finger of thy God. From what pure wells
Of milky light, what soft o'flowing urn,
Are all these lamps so filled? — these friendly
lamps,

Forever streaming o'er the azure deep
To point our path, and light us to our home.
How soft they slide along their lucid spheres,
And, silent as the foot of Time, fulfil
Their destined courses! Nature's self is hushed,
And but a scattered leaf, which rustles through
The thick-wove foliage, not a sound is heard
To break the midnight air; though the raised
ear,

Intently listening, drinks in every breath.
How deep the silence, yet how loud the praise!
But are they silent all? or is there not
A tongue in every star that talks with man,
And woos him to be wise? nor woos in vain:
This dead of midnight is the noon of thought,
And Wisdom mounts her zenith with the stars.
At this still hour the self-collected soul
Turns inward, and beholds a stranger there
Of high descent, and more than mortal rank;
An embryo God; a spark of fire divine,
Which must burn on for ages, when the sun
(Fair transitory creature of a day!)
Has closed his golden eye, and, wrapt in shades,
Forgets his wonted journey through the East.

Ye citadels of light, and seats of gods!
Perhaps my future home, from whence the soul,
Revolving periods past, may oft look back.
With recollected tenderness, on all
The various busy scenes she left below,
Its deep-laid projects and its strange events,
As on some fond and doting tale that soothed
Her infant hours, — O, be it lawful now
To tread the hallowed circle of your courts,
And with mute wonder and delighted awe Approach your sacred confines! Seized in thought,

On Fancy's wild and roving wing I sail,
From the green borders of the peopled earth,
And the pale moon, her duteous, fair attendant;
From solitary Mars; from the vast orb
Of Jupiter, whose huge gigantic bulk
Dances in ether like the lightest leaf,

To the dim verge, the suburbs of the system,
Where cheerless Saturn midst his watery moons
Girt with a lucid zone, in gloomy pomp,
Sits like an exiled monarch: fearless thence
I launch into the trackless deeps of space,
Where, burning round, ten thousand suns appear,
Of elder beam, which ask no leave to shine
Of our terrestrial star, nor borrow light
From the proud regent of our scanty day;
Sons of the morning, first-born of creation,
And only less than Him who marks their track
And guides their fiery wheels. Here must I stop,
Or is there aught beyond? What hand unseen
Impels me onward through the glowing orbs
Of habitable nature, far remote,
To the dread confines of eternal night,
To solitudes of waste unpeopled space,
The deserts of creation, wide and wild;
Where embryo systems and unkindled suns
Sleep in the womb of chaos? Fancy droops,
And Thought, astonished, stops her bold career.
But, O thou mighty Mind! whose powerful word
Said, "Thus let all things be," and thus they were,

Where shall I seek thy presence? how unblamed
Invoke thy dread perfection?
Have the broad eyelids of the morn beheld thee!
Or does the beamy shoulder of Orion
Support thy throne? O, look with pity down
On erring, guilty man; not in thy names
Of terror clad; not with those thunders armed
That conscious Sinai felt, when fear appalled
The scattered tribes; thou hast a gentler voice,
That whispers comfort to the swelling heart,
Abashed, yet longing to behold her Maker!
But now my soul, unused to stretch her powers
In flight so daring, drops her weary wing,
And seeks again the known accustomed spot,
Drest up with sun and shade and lawns and streams,

A mansion fair and spacious for its guests,
And all replete with wonders. Let me here,
Content and grateful, wait the appointed time,
And ripen for the skies: the hour will come
When all these splendors bursting on my sight
Shall stand unveiled, and to my ravished sense
Unlock the glories of the world unknown.

ANNA LETITIA BARBAULD.

A SUMMER EVENING.

How fine has the day been! how bright was the sun!

How lovely and joyful the course that he run,
Though he rose in a mist when his race he begun,
And there followed some droppings of rain!

But now the fair traveller's come to the west,
His rays are all gold, and his beauties are best :
He paints the sky gay as he sinks to his rest,
And foretells a bright rising again.

Just such is the Christian : his course he begins,
Like the sun in a mist, when he mourns for his sins,
And melts into tears ; then he breaks out and shines,
And travels his heavenly way :
But when he comes nearer to finish his race,
Like a fine setting sun, he looks richer in grace,
And gives a sure hope, at the end of his days,
Of rising in brighter array.

ISAAC WATTS.

MY HEART LEAPS UP.

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky ;
So was it when my life began,
So is it now I am a man,
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die !
The Child is father of the Man ;
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

MOONLIGHT IN SUMMER.

Low on the utmost boundary of the sight,
The rising vapors catch the silver light ;
Thence fancy measures, as they parting fly,
Which first will throw its shadow on the eye,
Passing the source of light ; and thence away,
Succeeded quick by brighter still than they.
For yet above these wafted clouds are seen
(In a remoter sky still more serene)
Others, detached in ranges through the air,
Spotless as snow, and countless as they're fair ;
Scattered immensely wide from east to west,
The beauteous semblance of a flock at rest.
These, to the raptured mind, aloud proclaim
Their mighty Shepherd's everlasting name ;
And thus the loiterer's utmost stretch of soul
Climbs the still clouds, or passes those that roll,
And loosed imagination soaring goes
High o'er his home and all his little woes.

ROBERT BLOOMFIELD.

MOONLIGHT ON THE PRAIRIE.

FROM "EVANGELINE."

BEAUTIFUL was the night. Behind the black wall of the forest,
Tipping its summit with silver, arose the moon
On the river
Fell here and there through the branches a tremulous gleam of the moonlight,
Like the sweet thoughts of love on a darkened and devious spirit.
Nearer and round about her, the manifold flowers of the garden
Poured out their souls in odors, that were their prayers and confessions
Unto the night, as it went its way, like a silent Carthusian.
Fuller of fragrance than they, and as heavy with shadows and night-dews, Hung the heart of the maiden. The calm and the magical moonlight
Seemed to inundate her soul with indefinable
longings,
As, through the garden gate, and beneath the shade of the oak-trees,
Passed she along the path to the edge of the measureless prairie.
Silent it lay, with a silvery haze upon it, and fire-flies
Gleaming and floating away in mingled and infinite numbers.
Over her head the stars, the thoughts of God in the heavens,
Shone on the eyes of man, who had ceased to marvel and worship,
Save when a blazing comet was seen on the walls of that temple,
As if a hand had appeared and written upon them, "Upharsin."
And the soul of the maiden, between the stars
and the fire-flies,
Wandered alone, and she cried, "O Gabriel !
O my beloved !
Art thou so near unto me, and yet I cannot behold thee ?
Art thou so near unto me, and yet thy voice does not reach me ?
Ah ! how often thy feet have trod this path to the prairie !
Ah ! how often thine eyes have looked on the woodlands around me !
Ah ! how often beneath this oak, returning from labor,
Thou hast lain down to rest, and to dream of me in thy slumbers.
When shall these eyes behold, these arms be folded about thee ?"

GOLDENROD.

WHEN the wayside tangles blaze
In the low September sun,
When the flowers of Summer days
Droop and wither, one by one,
Reaching up through bush and brier,
Sumptuous brow and heart of fire,
Flaunting high its wind-rocked plume,
Brave with wealth of native bloom,—
Goldenrod !

When the meadow, lately shorn,
Parched and languid, swoons with pain.
When her life-blood, night and morn,
Shrinks in every throbbing vein,
Round her fallen, tarnished urn
Leaping watch-fires brighter burn ;
Royal arch o'er Autumn's gate,
Bending low with lustrous weight,—
Goldenrod !

In the pasture's rude embrace,
All o'errun with tangled vines,
Where the thistle claims its place,
And the straggling hedge confines,
Bearing still the sweet impress
Of unfettered loveliness,
In the field and by the wall,
Binding, clasping, crowning all,—
Goldenrod !

Nature lies disheveled, pale,
With her feverish lips apart,—
Day by day the pulses fail,
Nearer to her bounding heart ;
Yet that slackened grasp doth hold
Store of pure and genuine gold ;
Quick thou comest, strong and free,
Type of all the wealth to be,— Goldenrod !

ELAINE GOODALE [EASTMAN].

From Painting by L. Matisse.

Berlin Phot. Co.

A TWILIGHT FANCY.

I sit here and the earth is wrapped in snow,
 And the cold air is thick with falling night:
 I think of the still, dewy summer eves,
 When cows came slowly sauntering up the lane,
 Waiting to nibble at the juicy grass;
 When the green earth was full of changing life,
 When the warm wind blew soft, and slowly passed,
 Caressing now and then some wayside flower,
 Stopping to stir the tender maple-leaves,
 And breathing all its fragrance on the air!
 I think of the broad meadows, daisy-white,
 With the long shade of some stray apple-tree
 Falling across them,—and the rustlings faint
 When evening breezes shook along the grass.
 I think of all the thousand summer sounds,—
 The cricket's chirp, repeated far and near;
 The sleepy note of robins in their nest;
 The whippoorwill, whose sudden cry rang out,
 Plaintive, yet strong, upon the startled air.
 And so it was the summer twilight fell,
 And deepened to the darkness of the night:
 And now I lift my heart out of my dream
 And see instead the pale, cold, dying lights,
 The dull gray skies, the barren, snow-clad fields,
 That come to us when winter evenings come.

. DORA READ GOODALE.

Loud and sudden and near the note of a whippoorwill sounded
 Like a flute in the woods ; and anon, through the neighboring thickets,
 Farther and farther away it floated and dropped into silence.
 "Patience !" whispered the oaks from oracular caverns of darkness ;
 And, from the moonlit meadow, a sigh responded,
 "To-morrow !"

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

SEPTEMBER.

SWEET is the voice that calls
 From babbling waterfalls
 In meadows where the downy seeds are flying ;
 And soft the breezes blow,
 And eddying come and go
 In faded gardens where the rose is dying.

Among the stubbled corn
 The blithe quail pipes at morn,
 The merry partridge drums in hidden places,
 And glittering insects gleam
 Above the reedy stream,
 Where busy spiders spin their filmy laces.

At eve, cool shadows fall
 Across the garden wall,
 And on the clustered grapes to purple turning ;
 And pearly vapors lie
 Along the eastern sky,
 Where the broad harvest-moon is redly burning.

Ah, soon on field and hill
 The wind shall whistle chill,
 And patriarch swallows call their flocks together,
 To fly from frost and snow,
 And seek for lands where blow
 The fairer blossoms of a balmy weather.

The cricket chirps all day,
 "O fairest summer, stay !"
 The squirrel eyes askance the chestnuts browning ;
 The wild fowl fly afar
 Above the foamy bar,
 And hasten southward ere the skies are frowning.

Now comes a fragrant breeze
 Through the dark cedar-trees,
 And round about my temples fondly lingers,
 In gentle playfulness,
 Like to the soft caress
 Bestowed in happier days by loving fingers.

Yet, though a sense of grief
 Comes with the falling leaf,
 And memory makes the summer doubly pleasant,
 In all my autumn dreams
 A future summer gleams,
 Passing the fairest glories of the present !

GEORGE ARNOLD.

AUTUMN.

A DIRGE.

THE autumn is old ;
 The sear leaves are flying ;
 He hath gathered up gold,
 And now he is dying :
 Old age, begin sighing !

The vintage is ripe ;
 The harvest is heaping ;
 But some that have sowed
 Have no riches for reaping :—
 Poor wretch, fall a-weeping !

The year 's in the wane ;
 There is nothing adorning ;
 The night has no eve,
 And the day has no morning ;
 Cold winter gives warning.

The rivers run chill ;
 The red sun is sinking ;
 And I am grown old,
 And life is fast shrinking ;
 Here 's enow for sad thinking !

THOMAS HOOD.

THE LATTER RAIN.

THE latter rain, — it falls in anxious haste
 Upon the sun-dried fields and branches bare,
 Loosening with searching drops the rigid waste
 As if it would each root's lost strength repair ;
 But not a blade grows green as in the spring ;
 No swelling twig puts forth its thickening
 leaves ;

The robins only mid the harvests sing,
 Pecking the grain that scatters from the sheaves ;
 The rain falls still, — the fruit all ripened drops,

It pierces chestnut-burr and walnut-shell ;
 The furrowed fields disclose the yellow crops ;
 Each bursting pod of talents used can tell ;
 And all that once received the early rain
 Declare to man it was not sent in vain.

JONES VERY

THE AUTUMN.

THE autumn time is with us ! Its approach
Was heralded, not many days ago,
By hazy skies that veiled the brazen sun,
And sea-like murmurs from the rustling corn,
And low-voiced brooks that wandered drowsily
By purpling clusters of the juicy grape,
Swinging upon the vine. And now, 'tis here,
And what a change hath passed upon the face
Of Nature, where thy waving forests spread, Then robed in deepest green ! All through the
night

The subtle frost hath plied its mystic art,
And in the day the golden sun hath wrought
True wonders ; and the wings of morn and even Have touched with magic breath the changing leaves.

And now, as wanders the dilating eye
Athwart the varied landscape circling far,
What gorgeousness, what blazonry, what pomp
Of colors, bursts upon the ravished sight !
Here, where the maple rears its yellow crest,
A golden glory ; yonder, where the oak
Stands monarch of the forest, and the ash
Is girt with flame-like parasite, and broad
The dog-wood spreads beneath a rolling field
Of deepest crimson ; and afar, where looms
The gnarled gum, a cloud of bloodiest red !

WILLIAM D. GALLAGHER.

INDIAN SUMMER.

WHEN leaves grow sear all things take sombre hue ;
The wild winds waltz no more the woodside
through,
And all the faded grass is wet with dew.

A gauzy nebula films the pensive sky,
The golden bee supinely buzzes by,
In silent flocks the bluebirds southward fly.

The forest's cheeks are crimsoned o'er with shame,
The cynic frost enlaces every lane,
The ground with scarlet blushes is aflame !

The one we love grows lustrous-eyed and sad,
With sympathy too thoughtful to be glad,
While all the colors round are running mad.

The sunbeams kiss askant the sombre hill,
The naked woodbine climbs the window-sill,
The breaths that noon exhales are faint and chill.

The ripened nuts drop downward day by day,
Sounding the hollow tocsin of decay,
And bandit squirrels smuggle them away.

Vague sighs and scents pervade the atmosphere,
Sounds of invisible stirrings hum the ear,
The morning's lash reveals a frozen tear.

The hermit mountains gird themselves with mail,
Mocking the threshers with an echo flail,
The while the afternoons grow crisp and pale.

Inconstant Summer to the tropics flees,
And, as her rose-sails catch the amorous breeze,
Lo ! bare, brown Autumn trembles to her knees !

The stealthy nights encroach upon the days,
The earth with sudden whiteness is ablaze,
And all her paths are lost in crystal maze !

Tread lightly where the dainty violets blew,
Where the spring winds their soft eyes open flew ;
Safely they sleep the churlish winter through.

Though all life's portals are indiced with woe,
And frozen pearls are all the world can show,
Feel ! Nature's breath is warm beneath the snow.

Look up, dear mourners ! Still the blue expanse,
Serenely tender, bends to catch thy glance ;
Within thy tears sibyllic sunbeams dance !

With blooms full-sapped again will smile the land :

The fall is but the folding of His hand,
Anon with fuller glories to expand.

The dumb heart hid beneath the pulseless tree
Will throb again ; and then the torpid bee
Upon the ear will drone his drowsy glee.

So shall the truant bluebirds backward fly,
And all loved things that vanish or that die
Return to us in some sweet By-and-By.

WINTER SONG.

SUMMER joys are o'er ;
Flowerets bloom no more,
Wintry winds are sweeping ;
Through the snow-drifts peeping,
Cheerful evergreen
Rarely now is seen.

Now no plumèd throng
Charms the wood with song ;
Ice-bound trees are glittering ;
Merry snow-birds, twittering,
Fondly strive to cheer
Scenes so cold and drear.

Winter, still I see
Many charms in thee, —
Love thy chilly greeting,
Snow-storms fiercely beating,
And the dear delights
Of the long, long nights.

lation of CHARLES T. BROOKS.

WINTER MORNING.

FROM "THE WINTER MORNING WALK :"
"THE TASK," BOOK V.

'T is morning ; and the sun, with ruddy orb
Ascending, fires the horizon ; while the clouds,
That crowd away before the driving wind,
More ardent as the disk emerges more,
Resemble most some city in a blaze,
Seen through the leafless wood. His slanting ray
Slides ineffectual down the snowy vale,
And, tingeing all with his own rosy hue,
From every herb and every spiry blade
Stretches a length of shadow o'er the field.
Mine, spindling into longitude immense,
In spite of gravity, and sage remark
That I myself am but a fleeting shade,
Provokes me to a smile. With eye askance

I view the muscular proportioned limb
Transformed to a lean shank. The shapeless pair,
As they designed to mock me, at my side
Take step for step ; and, as I near approach
The cottage, walk along the plastered wall,
Preposterous sight ! the legs without the man.
The verdure of the plain lies buried deep
Beneath the dazzling deluge ; and the bents,
And coarser grass, upspearing o'er the rest,
Of late unsightly and unseen, now shine
Conspicuous, and in bright apparel clad,
And, fledged with icy feathers, nod superb.
The cattle mourn in corners, where the fence
Screens them, and seem half petrified to sleep
In unrecumbent sadness. There they wait
Their wonted fodder ; not, like hungering man,
Fretful if unsupplied ; but silent, meek,
And patient of the slow-paced swain's delay.
He from the stack carves out the accustomed load,
Deep plunging, and again deep plunging oft,
His broad keen knife into the solid mass :
Smooth as a wall the upright remnant stands,
With such undeviating and even force
He severs it away : no needless care
Lest storms should overset the leaning pile
Deciduous, or its own unbalanced weight.
Forth goes the woodman, leaving unconcerned
The cheerful haunts of men, — to wield the axe
And drive the wedge in yonder forest drear,
From morn to eve his solitary task.
Shaggy and lean and shrewd with pointed ears,
And tail cropped short, half lurcher and half cur,
His dog attends him. Close behind his heel
Now creeps he slow ; and now, with many a frisk
Wide-scrampering, snatches up the drifted snow
With ivory teeth, or ploughs it with his snout ;
Then shakes his powdered coat, and barks for joy.

Now from the roost, or from the neighboring pale,
Where, diligent to catch the first faint gleam
Of smiling day, they gossiped side by side,
Come trooping at the housewife's well-known call
The feathered tribes domestic. Half on wing,
And half on foot, they brush the fleecy flood,
Conscious and fearful of too deep a plunge.
The sparrows peep, and quit the sheltering eaves
To seize the fair occasion. Well they eye
The scattered grain, and, thievishly resolved
To escape the impending famine, often scared
As oft return, a pert voracious kind.
Clean riddance quickly made, one only care
Remains to each, the search of sunny nook,
Or shed impervious to the blast. Resigned
To sad necessity, the cock foregoes
His wonted strut, and, wading at their head
With well-considered steps, seems to resent
His altered gait and stateliness retrenched.
How find the myriads, that in summer cheer

The hills and valleys with their ceaseless songs,
Due sustenance, or where subsist they now?
Earth yields them naught; the imprisoned worm is safe

Beneath the frozen clod; all seeds of herbs
Lie covered close; and berry-bearing thorns,
That feed the thrush (whatever some suppose),
Afford the smaller minstrels no supply.
The long protracted rigor of the year
Thins all their numerous flocks. In chinks and holes

Ten thousand seek an unmolested end,
As instinct prompts; self-buried ere they die.

WILLIAM COWPER.

NEW ENGLAND IN WINTER.

FROM "SNOW-BOUND."

THE sun that brief December day
Rose cheerless over hills of gray,
And, darkly circled, gave at noon
A sadder light than waning moon.
Slow tracing down the thickening sky
Its mute and ominous prophecy,
A portent seeming less than threat,
It sank from sight before it set.
A chill no coat, however stout,
Of homespun stuff could quite shut out,
A hard, dull bitterness of cold,
That checked, mid-vein, the circling race
Of life-blood in the sharpened face,
The coming of the snow-storm told.
The wind blew east: we heard the roar
Of Ocean on his wintry shore,
And felt the strong pulse throbbing there
Beat with low rhythm our inland air.

Meanwhile we did our nightly chores,—
Brought in the wood from out of doors,
Littered the stalls, and from the mows
Raked down the herd's-grass for the cows;
Heard the horse whinnying for his corn;
And, sharply clashing horn on horn,
Impatient down the stanchion rows
The cattle shake their walnut bows;
While, peering from his early perch
Upon the scaffold's pole of birch,
The cock his crested helmet bent
And down his querulous challenge sent.

Unwarmed by any sunset light
The gray day darkened into night,
A night made hoary with the swarm
And whirl-dance of the blinding storm,
As zigzag wavering to and fro
Crossed and recrossed the winged snow:

And ere the early bedtime came
The white drift piled the window-frame,
And through the glass the clothes-line posts
Looked in like tall and sheeted ghosts.

So all night long the storm roared on:
The morning broke without a sun;
In tiny spherule traced with lines
Of Nature's geometric signs,
In starry flake, and pellicle,
All day the hoary meteor fell;
And, when the second morning shone,
We looked upon a world unknown,
On nothing we could call our own.
Around the glistening wonder bent
The blue walls of the firmament,
No cloud above, no earth below,—
A universe of sky and snow!
The old familiar sights of ours
Took marvellous shapes; strange domes and towers
Rose up where sty or corn-crib stood,
Or garden wall, or belt of wood;
A smooth white mound the brush-pile showed,
A fenceless drift what once was road;
The bridle-post an old man sat
With loose-flung coat and high cocked hat;
The well-curb had a Chinese roof;
And even the long sweep, high aloof,
In its slant splendour, seemed to tell
Of Pisa's leaning miracle.

A prompt, decisive man, no breath
Our father wasted: "Boys, a path!"
Well pleased, (for when did farmer boy
Count such a summons less than joy?)
Our buskins on our feet we drew;
With mittened hands, and caps drawn low,
To guard our necks and ears from snow,
We cut the solid whiteness through.
And, where the drift was deepest, made
A tunnel walled and overlaid
With dazzling crystal: we had read
Of rare Aladdin's wondrous cave,
And to our own his name we gave,
With many a wish the luck were ours
To test his lamp's supernal powers.
We reached the barn with merry din,
And roused the prisoned brutes within.
The old horse thrust his long head out,
And grave with wonder gazed about;
The cock his lusty greeting said,
And forth his speckled harem led;
The oxen lashed their tails, and hooked,
And mild reproach of hunger looked;
The horned patriarch of the sheep,
Like Egypt's Amun roused from sleep,
Shook his sage head with gesture mute,
And emphasized with stamp of foot.

All day the gusty north-wind bore
 The loosening drift its breath before ;
 Low circling round its southern zone,
 The sun through dazzling snow-mist shone.
 No church-bell lent its Christian tone
 To the savage air, no social smoke
 Curled over woods of snow-hung oak.
 A solitude made more intense
 By dreary-voiced elements,
 The shrieking of the mindless wind,
 The moaning tree-boughs swaying blind,
 And on the glass the unmeaning beat
 Of ghostly finger-tips of sleet.
 Beyond the circle of our hearth
 No welcome sound of toil or mirth
 Unbound the spell, and testified
 Of human life and thought outside.
 We minded that the sharpest ear
 The buried brooklet could not hear,
 The music of whose liquid lip
 Had been to us companionship,
 And, in our lonely life, had grown
 To have an almost human tone.

As night drew on, and, from the crest
 Of wooded knolls that ridged the west,
 The sun, a snow-blown traveller, sank
 From sight beneath the smothering bank,
 We piled, with care, our nightly stack
 Of wood against the chimney-back, —
 The oaken log, green, huge, and thick,
 And on its top the stout back-stick ;
 The knotty forestick laid apart,
 And filled between with curious art
 The ragged brush ; then, hovering near,
 We watched the first red blaze appear,
 Heard the sharp crackle, caught the gleam
 On whitewashed wall and sagging beam,
 Until the old, rude-furnished room
 Burst, flower-like, into rosy bloom ;
 While radiant with a mimic flame
 Outside the sparkling drift became,
 And through the bare-boughed lilac-tree
 Our own warm hearth seemed blazing free.
 The crane and pendent trammels showed ;
 The Turks' heads on the andirons glowed ;
 While childish fancy, prompt to tell,
 The meaning of the miracle,
 Whispered the old rhyme : "*Under the tree,
 When fire outdoors burns merrily,
 There the witches are making tea.*"

The moon above the eastern wood
 Shone at its full ; the hill-range stood
 Transfigured in the silver flood,
 Its blown snows flashing cold and keen,
 Dead white, save where some sharp ravine
 Took shadow, or the sombre green

Of hemlocks turned to pitchy black
 Against the whiteness at their back.
 For such a world and such a night
 Most fitting that unwarming light,
 Which only seemed where'er it fell
 To make the coldness visible.

Shut in from all the world without,
 We sat the clean-winged hearth about,
 Content to let the north-wind roar
 In baffled rage at pane and door,
 While the red logs before us beat
 The frost-line back with tropic heat ;
 And ever, when a louder blast
 Shook beam and rafter as it passed,
 The merrier up its roaring draught
 The great throat of the chimney laughed ;
 The house-dog on his paws outspread
 Laid to the fire his drowsy head,
 The cat's dark silhouette on the wall
 A couchant tiger's seemed to fall ;
 And, for the winter fireside meet,
 Between the andirons' straddling feet,
 The mug of cider simmered slow,
 The apples sputtered in a row,
 And, close at hand, the basket stood
 With nuts from brown October's wood.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

WINTER NOON.

FROM "THE WINTER WALK AT NOON :"
 "THE TASK," BOOK VI.

THE night was winter in his roughest mood,
 The morning sharp and clear. But now at noon
 Upon the southern side of the slant hills,
 And where the woods fence off the northern blast,

The season smiles, resigning all its rage,
 And has the warmth of May. The vault is blue
 Without a cloud, and white without a speck
 The dazzling splendor of the scene below.

Again the harmony comes o'er the vale ;
 And through the trees I view the embattled tower,
 Whence all the music. I again perceive
 The soothing influence of the wafted strains,
 And settle in soft musings as I tread
 The walk, still verdant, under oaks and elms,
 Whose outspread branches overarch the glade.

No noise is here, or none that hinders thought.
 The redbreast warbles still, but is content
 With slender notes, and more than half suppressed :
 Pleased with his solitude, and fitting light
 From spray to spray, where'er he rests he shakes

From many a twig the pendent drops of ice,
That tinkle in the withered leaves below.
Stillness, accompanied with sounds so soft,
Charms more than silence. Meditation here May think down hours to moments. Here the heart

May give a useful lesson to the head,
And Learning wiser grow without his books.

WILLIAM COWPER.

WINTER.

The day had been a calm and sunny day.

And tinged with amber was the sky at even ;
The fleecy clouds at length had rolled away,
And lay in furrows on the eastern heaven ; —
The moon arose and shed a glimmering ray,
And round her orb a misty circle lay.

The hoar-frost glittered on the naked heath,

The roar of distant winds was loud and deep,
The dry leaves rustled in each passing breath,
And the gay world was lost in quiet sleep.
Such was the time when, on the landscape brown,
Through a December air the snow came down.

The morning came, the dreary morn, at last,

And showed the whitened waste. The shivering herd

Lowed on the hoary meadow-ground, and fast

Fell the light flakes upon the earth unstirred ;
The forest firs with glittering snows o'erlaid
Stood like hoar priests in robes of white arrayed.

JOHN HOWARD BRYANT.

WINTER PICTURES.

FROM "THE VISION OF SIR LAUNFAL."

DOWN swept the chill wind from the mountain peak,

From the snow five thousand summers old ;
On open wold and hill-top bleak

It had gathered all the cold,
And whirled it like sleet on the wanderer's cheek ;
It carried a shiver everywhere
From the unleafed boughs and pastures bare ;
The little brook heard it and built a roof
'Neath which he could house him, winter-proof ;
All night by the white stars' frosty gleams
He groined his arches and matched his beams ;
Slender and clear were his crystal spars
As the lashes of light that trim the stars :

He sculptured every summer delight
In his halls and chambers out of sight ;
Sometimes his tinkling waters slept
Down through a frost-leaved forest-crypt,

Long, sparkling aisles of steel-stemmed trees
Bending to counterfeit a breeze ;
Sometimes the roof no fretwork knew
But silvery mosses that downward grew ;
Sometimes it was carved in sharp relief
With quaint arabesques of ice-fern leaf ;
Sometimes it was simply smooth and clear
For the gladness of heaven to shine through, and here

He had caught the nodding bulrush-tops
And hung them thickly with diamond drops,
Which crystallised the beams of moon and sun,
And made a star of every one :
No mortal builder's most rare device
Could match this winter-palace of ice ;
'T was as if every image that mirrored lay
In his depths serene through the summer day,
Each flitting shadow of earth and sky,
Lest the happy model should be lost,
Had been mimicked in fairy masonry
By the elfin builders of the frost.

Within the hall are song and laughter,

The cheeks of Christmas grow red and jolly,
And sprouting is every corbel and rafter

With the lightsome green of ivy and holly ;
Through the deep gulf of the chimney wide
Wallows the Yule-log's roaring tide ;

The broad flame-pennons droop and flap

And belly and tug as a flag in the wind ;

Like a locust shrills the imprisoned sap,
Hunted to death in its galleries blind ;

And swift little troops of silent sparks,
Now pausing, now scattering away as in fear,

Go threading the soot-forest's tangled darks
Like herds of startled deer.

But the wind without was eager and sharp,
Of Sir Launfal's gray hair it makes a harp,

And rattles and rings

The icy strings,

Singing, in dreary monotone,

A Christmas carol of its own,

Whose burden still, as he might guess,

Was — " Shelterless, shelterless, shelterless ! "

The voice of the seneschal flared like a torch
As he shouted the wanderer away from the porch,
And he sat in the gateway and saw all night

The great hall-fire, so cheery and bold,
Through the window-slits of the castle old,
Build out its piers of ruddy light
Against the drift of the cold.

There was never a leaf on bush or tree,

The bare boughs rattled shudderingly ;

The river was dumb and could not speak,

For the weaver Winter its shroud had spun ;

A single crow on the tree-top bleak
 From his shining feathers shed off the cold sun ;
 Again it was morning, but shrunk and cold,
 As if her veins were sapless and old,
 And she rose up decrepitley
 For a last dim look at earth and sea.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

WINTER SCENES.

FROM "THE SEASONS: WINTER."

THE keener tempests rise ; and fuming dun
 From all the livid east, or piercing north,
 Thick clouds ascend ; in whose capacious womb
 A vapory deluge lies, to snow congealed.
 Heavy they roll their fleecy world along ;
 And the sky saddens with the gathered storm.
 Through the hushed air the whitening shower descends

At first thin wavering ; till at last the flakes
 Fall broad and wide and fast, dimming the day
 With a continual flow. The cherished fields
 Put on their winter robe of purest white.
 'Tis brightness all ; save where the new snow melts

Along the mazy current. Low the woods
 Bow their hoar head ; and, ere the languid sun
 Faint from the west emits his evening ray,
 Earth's universal face, deep hid and chill,
 Is one wide dazzling waste, that buries wide
 The works of man. Drooping, the laborer-ox
 Stands covered o'er with snow, and then demands
 The fruit of all his toil. The fowls of heaven,
 Tamed by the cruel season, crowd around
 The winnowing store, and claim the little boon
 Which Providence assigns them. One alone,
 The redbreast, sacred to the household gods,
 Wisely regardful of the embroiling sky,
 In joyless fields and thorny thickets leaves
 His shivering mates, and pays to trusted man
 His annual visit. Half afraid, he first
 Against the window beats ; then, brisk, alights
 On the warm hearth ; then, hopping o'er the floor,
 Eyes all the smiling family asstance,
 And pecks, and starts, and wonders where he is :
 Till, more familiar grown, the table-crumbs
 Attract his slender feet. The foodless wilds
 Pour forth their brown inhabitants. The hare,
 Though timorous of heart, and hard beset
 By death in various forms, dark snares, and dogs,
 And more unpitied man, the garden seeks,
 Urged on by fearful want. The bleating kind Eye the bleak heaven, and next the glistening
 earth,

With looks of dumb despair ; then, sad dispersed,
 Dig for the withered herb through heaps of snow.

JAMES THOMSON.

WHEN ICICLES HANG BY THE WALL.

FROM "LOVE'S LABOR'S LOST," ACT V. SC. 2.

WHEN icicles hang by the wall,
 And Dick the shepherd blows his nail,
 And Tom bears logs into the hall,
 And milk comes frozen home in pail,
 When blood is nipped, and ways be foul,
 Then nightly sings the staring owl,
 To-who ;
 To-whit, to-who, a merry note,
 While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

When all aloud the wind doth blow,
 And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
 And birds sit brooding in the snow,
 And Marian's nose looks red and raw,
 When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl,
 Then nightly sings the staring owl,
 To-who ;

To-whit, to-who, a merry note,
 While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE SNOW-STORM.

ANNOUNCED by all the trumpets of the sky,
 Arrives the snow ; and, driving o'er the fields,
 Seems nowhere to alight ; the whited air
 Hides hills and woods, the river, and the heaven,
 And veils the farm-house at the garden's end.
 The sled and traveller stopped, the courier's feet
 Delayed, all friends shut out, the housemates sit

Around the radiant fireplace, enclosed
 In a tumultuous privacy of storm.

Come see the north-wind's masonry !
 Out of an unseen quarry, evermore
 Furnished with tile, the fierce artificer
 Curves his white bastions with projected roof
 Round every windward stake or tree or door ;
 Speeding, the myriad-handed, his wild work
 So fanciful, so savage ; naught cares he
 For number or proportion. Mockingly,
 On coop or kennel he hangs Parian wreaths ;
 A swan-like form invests the hidden thorn ;
 Fills up the farmer's lane from wall to wall,
 Maugre the farmer's sighs ; and at the gate
 A tapering turret overtops the work.
 And when his hours are numbered, and the world
 Is all his own, retiring as he were not,
 Leaves, when the sun appears, astounded Art
 To mimic in slow structures, stone by stone,
 Built in an age, the mad wind's night-work,
 The frolic architecture of the snow.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

THE SNOW-SHOWER.

STAND here by my side and turn, I pray,
 On the lake below thy gentle eyes ;
 The clouds hang over it, heavy and gray,
 And dark and silent the water lies ;
 And out of that frozen mist the snow
 In wavering flakes begins to flow ;
 Flake after flake
 They sink in the dark and silent lake.

See how in a living swarm they come
 From the chambers beyond that misty veil ;
 Some hover awhile in air, and some
 Rush prone from the sky like summer hail.
 All, dropping swiftly or settling slow,
 Meet, and are still in the depths below ;
 Flake after flake
 Dissolved in the dark and silent lake.

Here delicate snow-stars, out of the cloud,
 Come floating downward in airy play,
 Like spangles dropped from the glistening crowd
 That whiten by night the Milky Way ;
 There broader and burlier masses fall ;
 The sullen water buries them all, —
 Flake after flake, —
 All drowned in the dark and silent lake.

And some, as on tender wings they glide
 From their chilly birth-cloud, dim and gray,
 Are joined in their fall, and, side by side,
 Come clinging along their unsteady way ;
 As friend with friend, or husband with wife,
 Makes hand in hand the passage of life ;
 Each mated flake
 Soon sinks in the dark and silent lake.

Lo ! while we are gazing, in swifter haste
 Stream down the snows, till the air is white,
 As, myriads by myriads madly chased,
 They fling themselves from their shadowy height.
 The fair, frail creatures of middle sky,
 What speed they make, with their grave so nigh ;
 Flake after flake
 To lie in the dark and silent lake !

I see in thy gentle eyes a tear ;
 They turn to me in sorrowful thought ;
 Thou thinkest of friends, the good and dear,
 Who were for a time, and now are not ;
 Like these fair children of cloud and frost,
 That glisten a moment and then are lost, —
 Flake after flake, —
 All lost in the dark and silent lake.

Yet look again, for the clouds divide ;
 A gleam of blue on the water lies ;
 And far away, on the mountain-side,
 A sunbeam falls from the opening skies.
 But the hurrying host that flew between
 The cloud and the water no more is seen ;
 Flake after flake
 At rest in the dark and silent lake.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

SNOW. — A WINTER SKETCH.

THE blessed morn has come again ;
 The early gray
 Taps at the slumberer's window-pane,
 And seems to say,
 Break, break from the enchanter's chain
 Away, away !

'T is winter, yet there is no sound
 Along the air
 Of winds along their battle-ground ;
 But gently there
 The snow is falling, — all around
 How fair, how fair !

RALPH HOYT

SNOW-FLAKES.

Out of the bosom of the Air,
 Out of the cloud-folds of her garments shaken.
 Over the woodlands brown and bare,
 Over the harvest-fields forsaken,
 Silent and soft and slow
 Descends the snow.

Even as our cloudy fancies take
 Suddenly shape in some divine expression,
 Even as the troubled heart doth make
 In the white countenance confession,
 The troubled sky reveals
 The grief it feels.

This is the poem of the air,
 Slowly in silent syllables recorded ;
 This is the secret of despair,
 Long in its cloudy bosom hoarded,
 Now whispered and revealed
 To wood and field.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

A SNOW-STORM.

SCENE IN A VERMONT WINTER.

'T is a fearful night in the winter time,
 As cold as it ever can be ;
 The roar of the blast is heard like the chime
 Of the waves on an angry sea.

The moon is full ; but her silver light
The storm dashes out with its wings to-night ;
And over the sky from south to north
Not a star is seen, as the wind comes forth
In the strength of a mighty glee.

All day had the snow come down, — all day
As it never came down before ;
And over the hills, at sunset, lay
Some two or three feet, or more ;
The fence was lost, and the wall of stone ;
The windows blocked and the well-curbs gone ;
The haystack had grown to a mountain lift,
And the wood-pile looked like a monster drift,
As it lay by the farmer's door.

The night sets in on a world of snow,
While the air grows sharp and chill,
And the warning roar of a fearful blow
Is heard on the distant hill ;
And the norther, see ! on the mountain peak
In his breath how the old trees writhe and shriek !
He shouts on the plain, ho-ho ! ho-ho !
He drives from his nostrils the blinding snow,
And growls with a savage will.

Such a night as this to be found abroad,
In the drifts and the freezing air,
Sits a shivering dog, in the field, by the road,
With the snow in his shaggy hair.
He shuts his eyes to the wind and growls ;
He lifts his head, and moans and howls ;
Then crouching low, from the cutting sleet,
His nose is pressed on his quivering feet, —
Pray, what does the dog do there ?

A farmer came from the village plain, —
But he lost the travelled way ;
And for hours he trod with might and main
A path for his horse and sleigh ;
But colder still the cold winds blew,
And deeper still the deep drifts grew,
And his mare, a beautiful Morgan brown,
At last in her struggles floundered down,
Where a log in a hollow lay.

In vain, with a neigh and a frenzied snort,
She plunged in the drifting snow,
While her master urged, till his breath grew short,
With a word and a gentle blow ;
But the snow was deep, and the tugs were tight ;
His hands were numb and had lost their might ;
So he wallowed back to his half-filled sleigh,
And strove to shelter himself till day,
With his coat and the buffalo.

He has given the last faint jerk of the rein,
To rouse up his dying steed ;
And the poor dog howls to the blast in vain,
For help in his master's need.

For a while he strives with a wistful cry
To catch a glance from his drowsy eye,
And wags his tail if the rude winds flap
The skirt of the buffalo over his lap,
And whines when he takes no heed.

The wind goes down and the storm is o'er, —
'Tis the hour of midnight, past ;
The old trees writhe and bend no more
In the whirl of the rushing blast.
The silent moon with her peaceful light
Looks down on the hills with snow all white,
And the giant shadow of Camel's Hump,
The blasted pine and the ghostly stump,
Afair on the plain are cast.

But cold and dead by the hidden log
Are they who came from the town, —
The man in his sleigh, and his faithful dog,
And his beautiful Morgan brown, —
In the wide snow-desert, far and grand,
With his cap on his head and the reins in his hand, —
The dog with his nose on his master's feet,
And the mare half seen through the crusted sleet,
Where she lay when she floundered down.

CHARLES GAMAGE EASTMAN.

O WINTER ! WILT THOU NEVER GO !

O WINTER ! wilt thou never, never go ?
O summer ! but I weary for thy coming,
Longing once more to hear the Luggie flow,
And frugal bees, laboriously humming.
Now the east-wind diseases the infirm,
And must crouch in corners from rough weather ;
Sometimes a winter sunset is a charm, —
When the fired clouds, compacted, blaze together,
And the large sun dips red behind the hills.
I, from my window, can behold this pleasure ;
And the eternal moon, what time she fills
Her orb with argent, treading a soft measure,
With queenly motions of a bridal mood,
Through the white spaces of infinitude.

DAVID GRAY.

VIEW FROM THE EUGANEAN HILLS,* NORTH ITALY.

MANY a green isle needs must be
In the deep wide sea of misery,
Or the mariner, worn and wan,
Never thus could voyage on
Day and night, and night and day,
Drifting on his dreary way,

* The lonely mountains which surround what was once the retreat, and is now the sepulchre, of Petrarch.

With the solid darkness black
 Closing round his vessel's track ;
 Whilst above, the sunless sky,
 Big with clouds, hangs heavily,
 And behind, the tempest fleet
 Hurries on with lightning feet,
 Riving sail and cord and plank
 Till the ship has almost drank
 Death from the o'erbrimming deep ;
 And sinks down, down, like that sleep
 When the dreamer seems to be
 Weltering through eternity ;
 And the dim low line before
 Of a dark and distant shore
 Still recedes, as, ever still Longing with divided will,
 But no power to seek or shun,
 He is ever drifted on
 O'er the unrepousing wave
 To the haven of the grave.

Ay, many flowering islands lie
 In the waters of wide agony :
 To such a one this morn was led
 My bark, by soft winds piloted.
 — Mid the mountains Euganean
 I stood listening to the pæan
 With which the legioned rooks did hail
 The sun's uprise majestic :
 Gathering round with wings all hoar,
 Through the dewy mist they soar
 Like gray shades, till the eastern heaven
 Bursts, and then, as clouds of even,
 Flecked with fire and azure, lie
 In the unfathomable sky,
 So their plumes of purple grain,
 Starred with drops of golden rain,
 Glean above the sunlight woods,
 As in silent multitudes
 On the morning's fitful gale,
 Through the broken mist they sail ;
 And the vapors cloven and gleaming
 Follow, down the dark steep streaming,
 Till all is bright and clear and still
 Round the solitary hill.

Beneath is spread like a green sea
 The waveless plain of Lombardy,
 Bounded by the vaporous air,
 Islanded by cities fair ;
 Underneath day's azure eyes,
 Ocean's nursling, Venice, lies, —
 A peopled labyrinth of walls,
 Amphitrite's destined halls,
 Which her hoary sire now paves
 With his blue and beaming waves.
 Lo ! the sun upsprings behind,
 Broad, red, radiant, half reclined

On the level quivering line
 Of the waters crystalline ;
 And before that chasm of light,
 As within a furnace bright,
 Column, tower, and dome, and spire
 Shine like obelisks of fire,
 Pointing with inconstant motion
 From the altar of dark ocean
 To the sapphire-tinted skies ;
 As the flames of sacrifice
 From the marble shrines did rise,
 As to pierce the dome of gold
 Where Apollo spoke of old.

Sun-girt city ! thou hast been Ocean's child, and then his queen ;
 Now is come a darker day,
 And thou soon must be his prey,
 If the power that raised thee here
 Hallow so thy watery bier.
 A less drear ruin than that now,
 With thy conquest-branded brow
 Stooping to the slave of slaves
 From thy throne among the waves,
 Wilt thou be when the sea-mew
 Flies, as once before it flew,
 O'er thine isles depopulate,
 And all is in its ancient state,
 Save where many a palace-gate
 With green sea-flowers overgrown
 Like a rock of ocean's own,
 Topples o'er the abandoned sea
 As the tides change sullenly.
 The fisher on his watery way
 Wandering at the close of day
 Will spread his sail and seize his oar
 Till he pass the gloomy shore,
 Lest thy dead should, from their sleep
 Bursting o'er the starlight deep,
 Lead a rapid mask of death
 O'er the waters of his path.

Noon descends around me now :
 'T is the noon of autumn's glow,
 When a soft and purple mist,
 Like a vaporous amethyst,
 Or an air-dissolved star,
 Mingling light and fragrance, far
 From the curved horizon's bound
 To the point of heaven's profound,
 Fills the overflowing sky ;
 And the plains that silent lie
 Underneath ; the leaves unsodden
 Where the infant frost has trodden
 With his morning-winged feet,
 Whose bright print is gleaming yet ;
 And the red and golden vines,
 Piercing with their trellised lines

The rough, dark-skirted wilderness ;
 The dun and bladed grass no less,
 Pointing from this hoary tower
 In the windless air ; the flower
 Glimmering at my feet ; the line
 Of the olive-sandalled Apennine
 In the south dimly islanded ;
 And the Alps, whose snows are spread
 High between the clouds and sun ;
 And of living things each one ;
 And my spirit, which so long
 Darkened this swift stream of song, —
 Interpenetrated lie
 By the glory of the sky ;
 Be it love, light, harmony,
 Odor, or the soul of all
 Which from heaven like dew doth fall,
 Or the mind which feeds this verse
 Peopling the lone universe.

Noon descends, and after noon
 Autumn's evening meets me soon,
 Leading the infantine moon
 And that one star, which to her
 Almost seems to minister
 Half the crimson light she brings
 From the sunset's radiant springs :
 And the soft dreams of the morn
 (Which like winged winds had borne
 To that silent isle, which lies
 Mid remembered agonies,
 The frail bark of this lone being)
 Pass, to other sufferers fleeing,
 And its ancient pilot, Pain,
 Sits beside the helm again.

Other flowering isles must be
 In the sea of life and agony ;
 Other spirits float and flee
 O'er that gulf ; even now, perhaps,
 On some rock the wild wave wraps,
 With folding winds they waiting sit
 For my bark, to pilot it
 To some calm and blooming cove,
 Where for me, and those I love,
 May a windless bower be built,
 Far from passion, pain, and guilt,
 In a dell mid lawny hills,
 Which the wild sea-murmur fills,
 And soft sunshine, and the sound
 Of old forests echoing round,
 And the light and smell divine
 Of all flowers that breathe and shine.
 — We may live so happy there,
 That the spirits of the air,
 Envyng us, may even entice
 To our healing paradise

The polluting multitude ;
 But their rage would be subdued
 By that clime divine and calm,
 And the winds whose wings rain balm
 On the uplifted soul, and leaves
 Under which the bright sea heaves ;
 While each breathless interval
 In their whisperings musical
 The inspired soul supplies
 With its own deep melodies ;
 And the love which heals all strife,
 Circling, like the breath of life,
 All things in that sweet abode
 With its own mild brotherhood.
 They, not it, would change ; and soon
 Every sprite beneath the moon
 Would repent its envy vain,
 And the earth grow young again !

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

GRONGAR HILL.

[The Vale of the Towy embraces, in its winding course of fifteen miles, some of the loveliest scenery of South Wales. If it be less cultivated than the Vale of Usk, its woodland views are more romantic and frequent. The neighborhood is historic and poetic ground. From Grongar Hill the eye discovers traces of a Roman camp ; Golden Grove, the home of Jeremy Taylor, is on the opposite side of the river ; Merlin's chair recalls Spenser ; and a farmhouse near the foot of Llangumr Hill brings back the memory of its once genial occupant, Richard Steele. Spenser places the cave of Merlin among the dark woods of Dinevavr.]

SILENT nymph, with curious eye,
 Who, the purple even, dost lie
 On the mountain's lonely van,
 Beyond the noise of busy man,
 Painting fair the form of things,
 While the yellow linnet sings,
 Or the tuneful nightingale
 Charms the forest with her tale, —
 Come, with all thy various hues,
 Come, and aid thy sister Muse.
 Now, while Phœbus, riding high,
 Gives lustre to the land and sky,
 Grongar Hill invites my song, —
 Draw the landscape bright and strong ;
 Grongar, in whose mossy cells
 Sweetly musing Quiet dwells ;
 Grongar, in whose silent shade,
 For the modest Muses made,
 So oft I have, the evening still,
 At the fountain of a rill,
 Sat upon a flowery bed,
 With my hand beneath my head,
 While strayed my eyes o'er Towy's flood,
 Over mead and over wood,
 From house to house, from hill to hill,
 Till Contemplation had her fill.

About his checkered sides I wind,
 And leave his brooks and meads behind,

And groves and grottoes where I lay,
 And vistas shooting beams of day.
 Wide and wider spreads the vale,
 As circles on a smooth canal.
 The mountains round, unhappy fate !
 Sooner or later, of all height,
 Withdraw their summits from the skies,
 And lessen as the others rise.
 Still the prospect wider spreads,
 Adds a thousand woods and meads ;
 Still it widens, widens still,
 And sinks the newly risen hill.

Now I gain the mountain's brow ;
 What a landscape lies below !
 No clouds, no vapors intervene ;
 But the gay, the open scene
 Does the face of Nature show
 In all the hues of heaven's bow !
 And, swelling to embrace the light,
 Spreads around beneath the sight.

Old castles on the cliffs arise,
 Proudly towering in the skies ;
 Rushing from the woods, the spires
 Seem from hence ascending fires ;
 Half his beams Apollo sheds
 On the yellow mountain-heads,
 Gilds the fleeces of the flocks,
 And glitters on the broken rocks.

Below me trees unnumbered rise,
 Beautiful in various dyes :
 The gloomy pine, the poplar blue,
 The yellow beech, the sable yew,
 The slender fir that taper grows,
 The sturdy oak with broad-spread boughs ;
 And beyond, the purple grove,
 Haunt of Phyllis, queen of love !
 Gaudy as the opening dawn,
 Lies a long and level lawn,
 On which a dark hill, steep and high,
 Holds and charms the wandering eye ;
 Deep are his feet in Towy's flood ;
 His sides are clothed with waving wood ;
 And ancient towers crown his brow,
 That cast an awful look below ;
 Whose ragged walls the ivy creeps,
 And with her arms from falling keeps ;
 So both a safety from the wind
 In mutual dependence find.
 'T is now the raven's bleak abode ;
 'T is now the apartment of the toad ;
 And there the fox securely feeds ;
 And there the poisonous adder breeds,
 Concealed in ruins, moss, and weeds ;
 While, ever and anon, there fall
 Huge heaps of hoary, mouldered wall.
 Yet Time has seen, — that lifts the low
 And level lays the lofty brow, —
 Has seen this broken pile complete,

Big with the vanity of state.
 But transient is the smile of Fate !
 A little rule, a little sway,
 A sunbeam in a winter's day,
 Is all the proud and mighty have
 Between the cradle and the grave.

And see the rivers, how they run
 Through woods and meads, in shade and sun
 Sometimes swift, sometimes slow, —
 Wave succeeding wave, they go
 A various journey to the deep,
 Like human life to endless sleep !
 Thus is Nature's vesture wrought
 To instruct our wandering thought ;
 Thus she dresses green and gay
 To disperse our cares away.

Ever charming, ever new,
 When will the landscape tire the view !
 The fountain's fall, the river's flow ;
 The woody valleys, warm and low ;
 The windy summit, wild and high,
 Roughly rushing on the sky ;
 The pleasant seat, the ruined tower,
 The naked rock, the shady bower ;
 The town and village, dome and farm, —
 Each gives each a double charm,
 As pearls upon an Ethiop's arm.

See on the mountain's southern side,
 Where the prospect opens wide,
 Where the evening gilds the tide,
 How close and small the hedges lie !
 What streaks of meadow cross the eye !
 A step, methinks, may pass the stream,
 So little distant dangers seem ;
 So we mistake the Future's face,
 Eyed through Hope's deluding glass ;
 As yon summits, soft and fair,
 Clad in colors of the air,
 Which, to those who journey near,
 Barren, brown, and rough appear ;
 Still we tread the same coarse way, —
 The present's still a cloudy day.

O, may I with myself agree,
 And never covet what I see ;
 Content me with a humble shade,
 My passions tamed, my wishes laid ;
 For while our wishes wildly roll,
 We banish quiet from the soul.
 'T is thus the busy beat the air,
 And misers gather wealth and care.

Now, even now, my joys run high,
 As on the mountain-turf I lie ;
 While the wanton Zephyr sings,
 And in the vale perfumes his wings ;
 While the waters murmur deep ;
 While the shepherd charms his sheep ;
 While the birds unbounded fly,
 And with music fill the sky, —

Now, even now, my joys run high.

Be full, ye courts; be great who will;
Search for Peace with all your skill;
Open wide the lofty door,
Seek her on the marble floor:
In vain you search; she is not there!
In vain you search the domes of Care!
Grass and flowers Quiet treads,
On the meads and mountain-heads,
Along with Pleasure, — close allied,
Ever by each other's side, —
And often, by the murmuring rill,
Hears the thrush, while all is still
Within the groves of Grongor Hill.

BUILDING A HOME.

FROM "THE ART OF PRESERVING HEALTH."

MEANTIME, the moist malignity to shun
Of burdened skies, mark where the dry champaign

Swells into cheerful hills: where marjoram
And thyme, the love of bees, perfume the air;
And where the cynorrhodon with the rose
For fragrance vies; for in the thirsty soil
Most fragrant breathe the aromatic tribes.
There bid thy roofs high on the basking steep
Ascend, there light thy hospitable fires.
And let them see the winter morn arise,
The summer evening blushing in the west:
While with umbrageous oaks the ridge behind
O'erhung, defends you from the blustering North,
And bleak affliction of the peevish East.
O, when the growling winds contend, and all
The sounding forest fluctuates in the storm,
To sink in warm repose, and hear the din
Howl o'er the steady battlements, delights
Above the luxury of vulgar sleep.
The murmuring rivulet, and the hoarser strain
Of waters rushing o'er the slippery rocks,
Will nightly lull you to ambrosial rest.
To please the fancy is no trifling good,
Where health is studied; for whatever moves
The mind with calm delight promotes the just
And natural movements of the harmonious frame.
Besides, the sportive brook forever shakes
The trembling air, that floats from hill to hill,
From vale to mountain, with incessant change
Of purest element, refreshing still
Your airy seat, and uninfected gods.
Chiefly for this I praise the man who builds
High on the breezy ridge, whose lofty sides
The ethereal deep with endless billows chafes.
His purer mansion nor contagious years
Shall reach, nor deadly putrid airs annoy.

JOHN ARMSTRONG.

DOVER CLIFF.

FROM "KING LEAR," ACT IV. SC. 6.

COME on, sir; here's the place: stand still!

How fearful

And dizzy 't is, to cast one's eyes so low!
The crows and choughs that wing the midway air
Show scarce so gross as beetles: half-way down
Hangs one that gathers samphire, — dreadful trade!

Methinks he seems no bigger than his head:
The fishermen, that walk upon the beach,
Appear like mice; and yon tall anchoring bark,
Diminished to her cock; her cock, a buoy
Almost too small for sight: the murmuring surge,
That on the unnumbered idle pebbles chafes,
Cannot be heard so high. — I'll look no more;
Lest my brain turn, and the deficient sight
Topple down headlong.

SHAKESPEARE.

ALPINE HEIGHTS.

ON Alpine heights the love of God is shed;

He paints the morning red,
The flowerets white and blue,
And feeds them with his dew.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

On Alpine heights, o'er many a fragrant heath,

The loveliest breezes breathe;
So free and pure the air,
His breath seems floating there.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

On Alpine heights, beneath his mild blue eye,

Still vales and meadows lie;
The soaring glacier's ice
Gleams like a paradise.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

Down Alpine heights the silvery streamlets flow!

There the bold chamois go;
On giddy crags they stand,
And drink from his own hand.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

On Alpine heights, in troops all white as snow,

The sheep and wild goats go;
here, in the solitude,
He fills their hearts with food.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

On Alpine heights the herdsman tends his herd;

His Shepherd is the Lord;
For he who feeds the sheep
Will sure his offspring keep.

On Alpine heights a loving Father dwells.

From the German of KRUMMACHER. Translation of CHARLES T. BROOKS.

THE DESCENT.

My mule refreshed, his bells
 Jingled once more, the signal to depart,
 And we set out in the gray light of dawn,
 Descending rapidly, — by waterfalls
 Fast frozen, and among huge blocks of ice
 That in their long career had stopt midway ;
 At length, unchecked, unbidden, he stood still,
 And all his bells were muffled. Then my guide,
 Lowering his voice, addressed me : — “ Through this chasm
 On, and say nothing, — for a word, a breath,
 Stirring the air, may loosen and bring down
 A winter's snow, — enough to overwhelm
 The horse and foot that, night and day, defiled
 Along this path to conquer at Marengo.”

SAMUEL ROGERS.

SONG OF THE BROOK.

FROM “THE BROOK : AN IDYL.”

I COME from haunts of coot and hern :
 I make a sudden sally
 And sparkle out among the fern,
 To bicker down a valley.

By thirty hills I hurry down,
 Or slip between the ridges,
 By twenty thorns, a little town,
 And half a hundred bridges.

Till last by Philip's farm I flow
 To join the brimming river,
 For men may come and men may go,
 But I go on forever.

I chatter over stony ways,
 In little sharps and trebles,
 I bubble into eddying bays,
 I babble on the pebbles.

With many a curve my banks I fret
 By many a field and fallow,
 And many a fairy foreland set
 With willow-weed and mallow.

I chatter, chatter, as I flow
 To join the brimming river ;
 For men may come and men may go,
 But I go on forever.

I wind about, and in and out,
 With here a blossom sailing,
 And here and there a lusty trout,
 And here and there a grayling,

And here and there a foamy flake
 Upon me, as I travel
 With many a silvery waterbreak
 Above the golden gravel,

And draw them all along, and flow
 To join the brimming river ;
 For men may come and men may go,
 But I go on forever.

I steal by lawns and grassy plots :
 I slide by hazel covers ;
 I move the sweet forget-me-nots
 That grow for happy lovers.

I slip, I slide, I gloom, I glance,
 Among my skimming swallows ;
 I make the netted sunbeam dance
 Against my sandy shallows ;

I murmur under moon and stars
 In brambly wildernesses ;
 I linger by my shingly bars ;
 I loiter round my cresses ;

And out again I curve and flow
 To join the brimming river ;
 For men may come and men may go,
 But I go on forever.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE RHINE.

FROM “CHILDE HAROLD,” CANTO III.

The castled crag of Drachenfels
 Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine,
 Whose breast of waters broadly swells
 Between the banks which bear the vine,
 And hills all rich with blossomed trees,
 And fields which promise corn and wine,
 And scattered cities crowning these,
 Whose far white walls along them shine,
 Have strewed a scene, which I should see
 With double joy, wert thou with me.

And peasant-girls, with deep-blue eyes,
 And hands which offer early flowers,
 Walk smiling o'er this paradise ;
 Above, the frequent feudal towers
 Through green leaves lift their walls of gray,
 And many a rock which steeply lowers,
 And noble arch in proud decay,
 Look o'er this vale of vintage-bowers ;
 But one thing want these banks of Rhine, —
 Thy gentle hand to clasp in mine !

I send the lilies given to me,
 Though long before thy hand they touch
 I know that they must withered be, —
 But yet reject them not as such ;
 For I have cherished them as dear,
 Because they yet may meet thine eye,
 And guide thy soul to mine even here,
 When thou behold'st them drooping nigh,
 And know'st them gathered by the Rhine,
 And offered from my heart to thine !

The river nobly foams and flows,
 The charm of this enchanted ground,
 And all its thousand turns disclose
 Some fresher beauty varying round :
 The haughtiest breast its wish might bound
 Through life to dwell delighted here ;
 Nor could on earth a spot be found
 To nature and to me so dear,
 Could thy dear eyes in following mine
 Still sweeten more these banks of Rhine !

BYRON.

ON THE RHINE.

'T WAS morn, and beautiful the mountain's
 brow —

Hung with the clusters of the bending vine —
 Shone in the early light, when on the Rhine
 We sailed and heard the waters round the prow
 In murmurs parting ; varying as we go,
 Rocks after rocks come forward and retire,
 As some gray convent wall or sunlit spire
 Starts up along the banks, unfolding slow.
 Here castles, like the prisons of despair,
 Frown as we pass ; — there, on the vineyard's
 side,

The bursting sunshine pours its streaming tide ;
 While Grief, forgetful amid scenes so fair,
 Counts not the hours of a long summer's day,
 Nor heeds how fast the prospect winds away.

WILLIAM LISLE BOWLES.

THE VALLEY BROOK.

FRESH from the fountains of the wood
 A rivulet of the valley came,
 And glided on for many a rood,
 Flushed with the morning's ruddy flame.

The air was fresh and soft and sweet ;
 The slopes in spring's new verdure lay,
 And wet with dew-drops at my feet
 Bloomed the young violets of May.

No sound of busy life was heard
 Amid those pastures lone and still,
 Save the faint chirp of early bird,
 Or bleat of flocks along the hill.

I traced that rivulet's winding way ;
 New scenes of beauty opened round,
 Where meads of brighter verdure lay,
 And lovelier blossoms tinged the ground.

"Ah, happy valley stream !" I said,
 "Calm glides thy wave amid the flowers,
 Whose fragrance round thy path is shed
 Through all the joyous summer hours.

"O, could my years, like thine, be passed
 In some remote and silent glen,
 Where I could dwell and sleep at last,
 Far from the bustling haunts of men !

But what new echoes greet my ear ?
 The village school-boy's merry call ;
 And mid the village hum I hear
 The murmur of the waterfall.

I looked ; the widening veil betrayed
 A pool that shone like burnished steel,
 Where that bright valley stream was stayed
 To turn the miller's ponderous wheel.

Ah ! why should I, I thought with shame,
 Sigh for a life of solitude,
 When even this stream without a name
 Is laboring for the common good.

No longer let me shun my part
 Amid the busy scenes of life,
 But with a warm and generous heart
 Press onward in the glorious strife.

JOHN HOWARD BRYANT.

AFTON WATER.

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes ;
 Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise ;
 My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
 Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.

Thou stock-dove whose echo resounds through the glen,
 Ye wild whistling blackbirds in yon thorny den,
 Thou green-crested lapwing, thy screaming forbear ;
 I charge you disturb not my slumbering fair.

How lofty, sweet Afton, thy neighboring hills,
 Far marked with the courses of clear-winding rills !
 There daily I wander as noon rises high,
 My flocks and my Mary's sweet cot in my eye.

How pleasant thy banks and green valleys below,
Where wild in the woodlands the primroses blow !
There oft as mild evening weeps over the lea,
The sweet-scented birk shades my Mary and me.

Thy crystal stream, Afton, how lovely it glides,
And winds by the cot where my Mary resides ;
How wanton thy waters her snowy feet lave,
As, gathering sweet flowerets, she stems thy clear wave !

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes ;
Flow gently, sweet river, the theme of my lays ;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.

ROBERT BURNS.

THE SHADED WATER.

WHEN that my mood is sad, and in the noise
And bustle of the crowd I feel rebuke,
I turn my footsteps from its hollow joys
And sit me down beside this little brook ;
The waters have a music to mine ear
It glads me much to hear.

It is a quiet glen, as you may see,
Shut in from all intrusion by the trees,
That spread their giant branches, broad and free,
The silent growth of many centuries ;
And make a hallowed time for hapless moods,
A sabbath of the woods.

Few know its quiet shelter, — none, like me,
Do seek it out with such a fond desire,
Poring in idlesse mood on flower and tree,
And listening as the voiceless leaves respire, —
When the far-travelling breeze, done wandering,
Rests here his weary wing.

And all the day, with fancies ever new,
And sweet companions from their boundless store,
Of merry elves bespangled all with dew,
Fantastic creatures of the old-time lore,
Watching their wild but unobtrusive play,
I fling the hours away.

A gracious couch — the root of an old oak
Whose branches yield it moss and canopy —
Is mine, and, so it be from woodman's stroke
Secure, shall never be resigned by me ;
It hangs above the stream that idly flies,
Heedless of any eyes.

There, with eye sometimes shut, but upward bent,
Sweetly I muse through many a quiet hour,
While every sense on earnest mission sent,

Returns, thought-laden, back with bloom and flower ;
Pursuing, though rebuked by those who moil,
A profitable toil.

And still the waters, trickling at my feet,
Wind on their way with gentlest melody,
Yielding sweet music, which the leaves repeat,
Above them, to the gay breeze gliding by, —
Yet not so rudely as to send one sound
Through the thick copse around.

Sometimes a brighter cloud than all the rest
Hangs o'er the archway opening through the trees,
Breaking the spell that, like a slumber, pressed
On my worn spirit its sweet luxuries, —
And with awakened vision upward bent,
I watch the firmament.

How like its sure and undisturbed retreat —
Life's sanctuary at last, secure from storm —
To the pure waters trickling at my feet
The bending trees that overshadow my form !
So far as sweetest things of earth may seem Like those of which we dream.

Such, to my mind, is the philosophy
The young bird teaches, who, with sudden flight,
Sails far into the blue that spreads on high,
Until I lose him from my straining sight, —
With a most lofty discontent to fly
Upward, from earth to sky.

WILLIAM GILMORE SIMMS.

SONG OF THE RIVER.

CLEAR and cool, clear and cool,
By laughing shallow and dreaming pool ;
Cool and clear, cool and clear,
By shining shingle and foaming weir ;
Under the crag where the ouzel sings,
And the ivied wall where the church-bell rings,
Undeified for the undeified ;
Play by me, bathe in me, mother and child !

Dank and foul, dank and foul,
By the smoky town in its murky cowl ;
Foul and dank, foul and dank,
By wharf, and sewer, and slimy bank ;
Darker and darker the further I go,
Baser and baser the richer I grow ;
Who dare sport with the sin-deified ?
Shrink from me, turn from me, mother and child !

Strong and free, strong and free,
The flood-gates are open, away to the sea :
Free and strong, free and strong,
Cleansing my streams as I hurry along

To the golden sands and the leaping bar,
 And the taintless tide that awaits me afar,
 As I lose myself in the infinite main,
 Like a soul that has sinned and is pardoned again,
 Undeified for the undeified;
 Play by me, bathe in me, mother and child!

CHARLES KINGSLEY.

TO SENECA LAKE.

ON thy fair bosom, silver lake,
 The wild swan spreads his snowy sail,
 And round his breast the ripples break,
 As down he bears before the gale.

ON thy fair bosom, waveless stream,
 The dipping paddle echoes far,
 And flashes in the moonlight gleam,
 And bright reflects the polar star.

The waves along thy pebbly shore,
 As blows the north-wind, heave their foam,
 And curl around the dashing oar,
 As late the boatman hies him home.

How sweet, at set of sun, to view
 Thy golden mirror spreading wide,
 And see the mist of mantling blue
 Float round the distant mountain's side.

At midnight hour, as shines the moon,
 A sheet of silver spreads below,
 And swift she cuts, at highest noon,
 Light clouds, like wreaths of purest snow.

ON thy fair bosom, silver lake,
 O, I could ever sweep the oar,
 When early birds at morning wake,
 And evening tells us toil is o'er!

JAMES GATES PERCIVAL.

THE BUGLE.

FROM "THE PRINCESS."

THE splendor falls on castle walls
 And snowy summits old in story:
 The long light shakes across the lakes,
 And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
 Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
 Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark! O hear! how thin and clear,
 And thinner, clearer, farther going!
 O sweet and far, from cliff and scar,
 The horns of Elfland faintly blowing!
 Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying:
 Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O love, they die in yon rich sky,
 They faint on hill or field or river;
 Our echoes roll from soul to soul,
 And grow forever and forever.
 Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
 And answer, echoes, answer, dying, dying, dying.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE FALL OF NIAGARA.

THE thoughts are strange that crowd into my brain,
 While I look upward to thee. It would seem
 As if God poured thee from his hollow hand,
 And hung his bow upon thine awful front,
 And spoke in that loud voice which seemed to him
 Who dwelt in Patmos for his Saviour's sake
 The sound of many waters; and had bade
 Thy flood to chronicle the ages back,
 And notch his centuries in the eternal rocks.

Deep calleth unto deep. And what are we,
 That hear the question of that voice sublime?
 O, what are all the notes that ever rung
 From war's vain trumpet, by thy thundering side?

Yea, what is all the riot man can make
 In his short life, to thy unceasing roar?
 And yet, bold babblers, what art thou to Him
 Who drowned a world, and heaped the waters far
 Above its loftiest mountains?—a light wave,
 That breaks, and whispers of its Maker's might.

JOHN GARDINER CALKINS BRAINARD.

THE CATARACT OF LODORE.

DESCRIBED IN RHYMES FOR THE NURSERY.

"How does the water Come down at Lodore!"
 My little boy asked me
 Thus, once on a time;
 And moreover he tasked me
 To tell him in rhyme.
 Anon at the word,
 There first came one daughter,
 And then came another,
 To second and third
 The request of their brother,
 And to hear how the water
 Comes down at Lodore,
 With its rush and its roar,
 As many a time
 They had seen it before.
 So I told them in rhyme,
 For of rhymes I had store;

And 't was in my vocation
 For their recreation
 That so I should sing ;
 Because I was Laureate
 To them and the King.

From its sources which well
 In the tarn on the fell ;
 From its fountains
 In the mountains,
 Its rills and its gills ;
 Through moss and through brako,
 It runs and it creeps
 For a while, till it sleeps
 In its own little lake.
 And thence at departing,
 Awakening and starting,
 It runs through the reeds,
 And away it proceeds,
 Through meadow and glade,
 In sun and in shade,
 And through the wood-shelter,
 Among crags in its flurry,
 Helter-skelter,
 Hurry-scurry.
 Here it comes sparkling,
 And there it lies darkling ;
 Now smoking and frothing
 Its tumult and wrath in Till, in this rapid race
 On which it is bent,
 It reaches the place
 Of its steep descent.

The cataract strong
 Then plunges along,
 Striking and raging
 As if a war waging its caverns and rocks among ;
 Rising and leaping,
 Sinking and creeping,
 Swelling and sweeping,
 Showering and springing,
 Flying and flinging,
 Writhing and ringing,
 Eddying and whisking,
 Spouting and frisking,
 Turning and twisting,
 Around and around
 With endless rebound :
 Smiting and fighting,
 A sight to delight in ;
 Confounding, astounding,
 Dizzying and deafening the ear with its sound.
 Collecting, projecting,
 Receding and speeding,
 And shocking and rocking,
 And darting and parting,

And threading and spreading,
 And whizzing and hissing,
 And dripping and skipping,
 And hitting and splitting,
 And shining and twining,
 And rattling and battling,
 And shaking and quaking,
 And pouring and roaring,
 And waving and raving,
 And tossing and crossing,
 And flowing and going,
 And running and stunning,
 And foaming and roaming,
 And dinning and spinning,
 And dropping and hopping,
 And working and jerking,
 And guggling and struggling,
 And heaving and cleaving,
 And moaning and groaning ;

And glittering and frittering,
 And gathering and feathering,
 And whitening and brightening,
 And quivering and shivering,
 And hurrying and skurrying,
 And thundering and floundering ;

Dividing and gliding and sliding,
 And falling and brawling and sprawling,
 And driving and riving and striving,
 And sprinkling and twinkling and wrinkling,
 And sounding and bounding and rounding,
 And bubbling and troubling and doubling,
 And grumbling and rumbling and tumbling,
 And clattering and battering and shattering ;
 Retreating and beating and meeting and sheeting,
 Delaying and straying and playing and spraying,
 Advancing and prancing and glancing and dancing,
 Recoiling, turmoiling and toiling and boiling,
 And gleaming and streaming and steaming and beaming,
 And rushing and flushing and brushing and gushing,
 And flapping and rapping and clapping and slapping,
 And curling and whirling and purling and twirling,
 And thumping and plumping and bumping and jumping,
 And dashing and flashing and splashing and clashing ;
 And so never ending, but always descending,
 Sounds and motions for ever and ever are blending
 All at once and all o'er, with a mighty uproar,—
 And this way the water comes down at Lodore.

ROBERT SOUTHEY.

WHAT THE WINDS BRING.

WHICH is the wind that brings the cold ?
 The north-wind, Freddy, and all the snow ;
 And the sheep will scamper into the fold
 When the north begins to blow.

Which is the wind that brings the heat ?
 The south-wind, Katy ; and corn will grow,
 And peaches redden for you to eat,
 When the south begins to blow.

Which is the wind that brings the rain ?
 The east-wind, Arty ; and farmers know
 That cows come shivering up the lane
 When the east begins to blow.

Which is the wind that brings the flowers ?
 The west-wind, Bessy ; and soft and low
 The birdies sing in the summer hours
 When the west begins to blow.

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN.

THE DANCING OF THE AIR.

AND now behold your tender nurse, the air,
 And common neighbor that aye runs around,
 How many pictures and impressions fair
 Within her empty regions are there found,
 Which to your senses dancing do propound !
 For what are breath, speech, echoes, music, winds,
 But dancings of the air in sundry kinds ?

For when you breathe, the air in order moves,
 Now in, now out, in time and measure true ;
 And when you speak, so well she dancing loves,
 That doubling oft, and oft redoubling new,
 With thousand forms she doth herself endure :
 For all the words that from your lips repair,
 Are naught but tricks and turnings of the air.

Hence is her prattling daughter, Echo, born,
 That dances to all voices she can hear :
 There is no sound so harsh that she doth scorn,
 Nor any time wherein she will forbear
 The airy pavement with her feet to wear :
 And yet her hearing sense is nothing quick,
 For after time she endeth every trick.

And thou, sweet Music, dancing's only life,
 The ear's sole happiness, the air's best speech,
 Loadstone of fellowship, charming-rod of strife,
 The soft mind's paradise, the sick mind's leech.
 With thine own tongue thou trees and stones
 canst teach,
 That, when the air doth dance her finest measure,
 Then art thou born, the gods' and men's sweet
 pleasure

Lastly, where keep the winds their revelry,
 Their violent turnings, and wild whirling bays,
 But in the air's translucent gallery,
 Where she herself is turned a hundred ways,
 While with these maskers wantonly she plays ?
 Yet in this misrule, they such rule embrace,
 As two at once encumber not the place.

SIR JOHN DAVIES.

THE ORIENT.

FROM "THE BRIDE OF ABYDOS."

Know ye the land where the cypress and myrtle
 Are emblems of deeds that are done in their clime ;
 Where the rage of the vulture, the love of the turtle,
 Now melt into sorrow, now madden to crime ?
 Know ye the land of the cedar and vine,
 Where the flowers ever blossom, the beams ever shine ;
 Where the light wings of Zephyr, oppressed with perfume,
 Wax faint o'er the gardens of Gál in her bloom ?
 Where the citron and olive are fairest of fruit,
 And the voice of the nightingale never is mute ;
 Where the tints of the earth, and the hues of the sky,
 In color though varied, in beauty may vie,
 And the purple of ocean is deepest in dye ;
 Where the virgins are soft as the roses they twine,
 And all, save the spirit of man, is divine ?
 'T is the clime of the East ; 't is the land of the Sun, —
 Can he smile on such deeds as his children have done ?
 O, wild as the accents of lover's farewell
 Are the hearts which they bear and the tales which they tell !

LORD BYRON.

SYRIA.

FROM "PARADISE AND THE PERIL"

Now, upon Syria's land of roses
 Softly the light of eve reposes,
 And, like a glory, the broad sun
 Hangs over sainted Lebanon,
 Whose head in wintry grandeur towers,
 And whitens with eternal sleet,
 While summer, in a vale of flowers,
 Is sleeping rosy at his feet.

To one who looked from upper air
 O'er all the enchanted regions there,
 How beauteous must have been the glow,
 The life, how sparkling from below !

Fair gardens, shining streams, with ranks
Of golden melons on their banks,
More golden where the sunlight falls ;
Gay lizards, glittering on the walls
Of ruined shrines, busy and bright
As they were all alive with light ;
And, yet more splendid, numerous flocks
Of pigeons, settling on the rocks,
With their rich restless wings, that gleam
Variously in the crimson beam
Of the warm west, — as if inlaid
With brilliants from the mine, or made
Of tearless rainbows, such as span
The unclouded skies of Perisun !
And then, the mingling sounds that come,
Of shepherd's ancient reed, with hum
Of the wild bees of Palestine,
Banqueting through the flowery vales ; —
And, Jordan, those sweet banks of thine,
And woods, so full of nightingales !

THOMAS MOORE.

THE VALE OF CASHMERE.

FROM "THE LIGHT OF THE HAREM."

Who has not heard of the Vale of Cashmere,
With its roses the brightest that earth ever gave,
Its temples, and grottoes, and fountains as clear
As the love-lighted eyes that hang over their wave ?
O, to see it at sunset, — when warm o'er the lake
Its splendor at parting a summer eve throws,
Like a bride, full of blushes, when lingering to take
A last look of her mirror at night ere she goes ! —
When the shrines through the foliage are gleaming half shown,
And each hallows the hour by some rites of its own.
Here the music of prayer from a minaret swells,
Here the Magian his urn full of perfume is swinging,
And here, at the altar, a zone of sweet bells
Round the waist of some fair Indian dancer is ringing.
Or to see it by moonlight, — when mellowly
shines
The light o'er its palaces, gardens, and shrines ;
When the waterfalls gleam like a quick fall of stars,
And the nightingale's hymn from the Isle of Chenars
Is broken by laughs and light echoes of feet
From the cool shining walks where the young people meet.

Or at morn, when the magic of daylight awakes
A new wonder each minute as slowly it breaks,
Hills, cupolas, fountains, called forth every one
Out of darkness, as they were just born of the sun ;
When the spirit of fragrance is up with the day,
From his harem of night-flowers stealing away ;
And the wind, full of wantonness, woos like a lover
The young aspen-trees till they tremble all over ;
When the east is as warm as the light of first hopes,
And day, with its banner of radiance unfurled,
Shines in through the mountainous portal that opes,
Sublime, from that valley of bliss to the world !

THOMAS MOORE.

A FOREST HYMN.

THE groves were God's first temples. Ere man learned
To hew the shaft, and lay the architrave,
And spread the roof above them, — ere he framed
The lofty vault, to gather and roll back
The sound of anthems ; in the darkling wood,
Amidst the cool and silence, he knelt down,
And offered to the Mightiest solemn thanks
And supplication. For his simple heart
Might not resist the sacred influences
Which, from the stilly twilight of the place,
And from the gray old trunks that high in heaven
Mingled their mossy boughs, and from the sound
Of the invisible breath that swayed at once
All their green tops, stole over him, and bowed
His spirit with the thought of boundless power
And inaccessible majesty. Ah, why
Should we, in the world's riper years, neglect
God's ancient sanctuaries, and adore
Only among the crowd, and under roofs
That our frail hands have raised ? Let me, at least,
Here, in the shadow of this aged wood,
Offer one hymn, — thrice happy if it find
Acceptance in his ear.

Father, thy hand
Hath reared these venerable columns, thou Didst weave this verdant roof. Thou didst look down
Upon the naked earth, and forthwith rose
All these fair ranks of trees. They in thy sun Budded, and shook their green leaves in thy breeze,
And shot towards heaven. The century-living crow,
Whose birth was in their tops, grew old and died

Among their branches, till at last they stood,
As now they stand, masey and tall and dark,
Fit shrine for humble worshipper to hold
Communion with his Maker. These dim vaults,
These winding aisles, of human pomp or pride
Report not. No fantastic carvings show
The boast of our vain race to change the form
Of thy fair works. But thou art here, — thou fill'st

The solitude. Thou art in the soft winds
That run along the summit of these trees
In music; thou art in the cooler breath
That from the inmost darkness of the place
Comes, scarcely felt; the barky trunks, the ground,

The fresh moist ground, are all instinct with thee.
Here is continual worship; — nature, here,
In the tranquillity that thou dost love,
Enjoys thy presence. Noiselessly around,
From perch to perch, the solitary bird
Passes; and yon clear spring, that, midst its herbs,

Wells softly forth and wandering steeps the roots
Of half the mighty forest, tells no tale
Of all the good it does. Thou hast not left
Thyself without a witness, in these shades,
Of thy perfections. Grandeur, strength, and grace
Are here to speak of thee. This mighty oak, —
By whose immovable stem I stand and seem Almost annihilated, — not a prince,
In all that proud old world beyond the deep,
E'er wore his crown as loftily as he Wears the green coronal of leaves with which Thy hand has graced him. Nestled at his root
Is beauty, such as blooms not in the glare
Of the broad sun. That delicate forest flower
With scented breath, and look so like a smile,
Seems, as it issues from the shapeless mould,
An emanation of the indwelling Life,
A visible token of the upholding Love,
That are the soul of this wide universe.

My heart is awed within me when I think
Of the great miracle that still goes on,
In silence, round me, — the perpetual work
Of thy creation, finished, yet renewed
Forever. Written on thy works I read
The lesson of thy own eternity.
Lo! all grow old and die; but see again,
How on the faltering footsteps of decay
Youth presses, — ever gay and beautiful youth
In all its beautiful forms. These lofty trees
Wave not less proudly that their ancestors
Moulder beneath them. — O, there is not lost
One of Earth's charms! upon her bosom yet,
After the flight of untold centuries,
The freshness of her far beginning lies,
And yet shall lie. Life mocks the idle hate

Of his arch-enemy Death, — yea, seats himself
Upon the tyrant's throne, the sepulchre,
And of the triumphs of his ghastly foe
Makes his own nourishment. For he came forth
From thine own bosom, and shall have no end.

There have been holy men who hid themselves
Deep in the woody wilderness, and gave Their lives to thought and prayer, till they outlived

The generation born with them, nor seemed Less aged than the hoary trees and rocks
Around them; — and there have been holy men
Who deemed it were not well to pass life thus.
But let me often to these solitudes
Retire, and in thy presence reassure
My feeble virtue. Here its enemies,
The passions, at thy plainer footsteps shrink
And tremble, and are still. O God! when thou
Dost scare the world with tempests, set on fire
The heavens with falling thunderbolts, or fill,
With all the waters of the firmament,
The swift dark whirlwind that uproots the woods
And drowns the villages; when, at thy call,
Uprises the great deep, and throws himself
Upon the continent, and overwhelms
Its cities, — who forgets not, at the sight
Of these tremendous tokens of thy power,
His pride, and lays his strifes and follies by?
O, from these sterner aspects of thy face
Spare me and mine, nor let us need the wrath
Of the mad unchained elements to teach
Who rules them. Be it ours to meditate,
In these calm shades, thy milder majesty,
And to the beautiful order of thy works
Learn to conform the order of our lives.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE PRIMEVAL FOREST.

FROM THE INTRODUCTION TO "EVANGELINE."

THIS is the forest primeval. The murmuring pines and the hemlocks, Bearded with moss, and in garments green, indistinct in the twilight,
Stand like Druids of eld, with voices sad and prophetic,
Stand like harpers hoar, with beards that rest
on their bosoms.
Loud from its rocky caverns, the deep-voiced neighboring ocean
Speaks, and in accents disconsolate answers the wail of the forest.
This is the forest primeval; but where are the hearts that beneath it
Leaped like the roe, when he hears in the woodland the voice of the huntsman?

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE GREENWOOD.

O, WHEN 't is summer weather,
 And the yellow bee, with fairy sound,
 The waters clear is humming round,
 And the cuckoo sings unseen,
 And the leaves are waving green, —
 O, then 't is sweet,
 In some retreat,
 To hear the murmuring dove,
 With those whom on earth alone we love,
 And to wind through the greenwood together.

But when 't is winter weather,
 And crosses grieve,
 And friends deceive,
 And rain and sleet
 The lattice beat, —
 O, then 't is sweet
 To sit and sing
 Of the friends with whom, in the days of spring,
 We roamed through the greenwood together.

WILLIAM LISLE BOWLES.

THE BRAVE OLD OAK.

A SONG to the oak, the brave old oak,
 Who hath ruled in the greenwood long ;
 Here 's health and renown to his broad green crown,
 And his fifty arms so strong.
 There 's fear in his frown when the sun goes down,
 And the fire in the west fades out ;
 And he showeth his might on a wild midnight,
 When the storms through his branches shout.

Then here 's to the oak, the brave old oak,
 Who stands in his pride alone ;
 And still flourish he, a hale green tree,
 When a hundred years are gone !

In the days of old, when the spring with cold
 Had brightened his branches gray,
 Through the grass at his feet crept maidens sweet,
 To gather the dew of May.
 And on that day to the rebeck gay
 They frolicked with lovesome swains ;
 They are gone, they are dead, in the churchyard
 laid,
 But the tree it still remains.
 Then here 's, etc.

He saw the rare times when the Christmas chimes
 Were a merry sound to hear,
 When the squire's wide hall and the cottage small
 Were filled with good English cheer.

Now gold hath the sway we all obey,
 And a ruthless king is he ;
 But he never shall send our ancient friend
 To be tossed on the stormy sea.
 Then here 's, etc.

HENRY FOTHERGILL CHORLEY.

THE ARAB TO THE PALM.

NEXT to thee, O fair gazelle,
 O Beddowee girl, beloved so well ;

Next to the fearless Nedjidee,
 Whose fleetness shall bear me again to thee ;

Next to ye both, I love the palm,
 With his leaves of beauty, his fruit of balm ;

Next to ye both, I love the tree
 Whose fluttering shadow wraps us three
 With love and silence and mystery !

Our tribe is many, our poets vie
 With any under the Arab sky ;
 Yet none can sing of the palm but I.

The marble minarets that begem
 Cairo's citadel-diadem
 Are not so light as his slender stem.

He lifts his leaves in the sunbeam's glance,
 As the Almehs lift their arms in dance, —

A slumberous motion, a passionate sign,
 That works in the cells of the blood like wine.

Full of passion and sorrow is he,
 Dreaming where the beloved may be ;

And when the warm south-winds arise,
 He breathes his longing in fervid sighs,

Quickening odors, kisses of balm,
 That drop in the lap of his chosen palm.

The sun may flame, and the sands may stir,
 But the breath of his passion reaches her.

O tree of love, by that love of thine,
 Teach me how I shall soften mine !

Give me the secret of the sun,
 Whereby the wood is ever won !

If I were a king, O stately tree,
 A likeness, glorious as might be,
 In the court of my palace I'd build for thee ;

With a shaft of silver, burnished bright,
 And leaves of beryl and malachite ;

With spikes of golden bloom ablaze,
And fruits of topaz and chrysoprase ;

And there the poets, in thy praise,
Should night and morning frame new lays, —

New measures, sung to tunes divine ;
But none, O palm, should equal mine !

BYARD TAYLOR.

THE PALM-TREE.

Is it the palm, the cocoa-palm,
On the Indian Sea, by the isles of balm ?
Or is it a ship in the breezeless calm ?

A ship whose keel is of palm beneath,
Whose ribs of palm have a palm-bark sheath,
And a rudder of palm it steereth with.

Branches of palm are its spars and rails,
Fibres of palm are its woven sails,
And the rope is of palm that idly trails !

What does the good ship bear so well ?
The cocoa-nut with its stony shell,
And the milky sap of its inner cell.

What are its jars, so smooth and fine,
But hollowed nuts, filled with oil and wine,
And the cabbage that ripens under the Line ?

Who smokes his nargileh, cool and calm ?
The master, whose cunning and skill could charm
Cargo and ship from the bounteous palm.

In the cabin he sits on a palm-mat soft,
From a beaker of palm his drink is quaffed,
And a palm thatch shields from the sun aloft !

His dress is woven of palmy strands,
And he holds a palm-leaf scroll in his hands,
Traced with the Prophet's wise commands !

The turban folded about his head
Was daintily wrought of the palm-leaf braid,
And the fan that cools him of palm was made.

Of threads of palm was the carpet spun
Whereon he kneels when the day is done,
And the foreheads of Islam are bowed as one !

To him the palm is a gift divine,
Wherein all uses of man combine, —
House and raiment and food and wine !

And, in the hour of his great release,
His need of the palm shall only cease
With the shroud wherein he lieth in peace.

"Allah il Allah !" he sings his psalm
On the Indian Sea, by the isles of balm ;
"Thanks to Allah, who gives the palm !"

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

THE HOLLY-TREE.

O READER ! hast thou ever stood to see

The holly-tree ;
The eye that contemplates it well perceives
Its glossy leaves
Ordered by an intelligence so wise
As might confound the atheist's sophistries.

Below, a circling fence, its leaves are seen
Wrinkled and keen ;
No grazing cattle, through their prickly round,
Can reach to wound ;
But as they grow where nothing is to fear,
Smooth and unarmed the pointless leaves appear.

I love to view these things with curious eyes,
And moralize ;
And in this wisdom of the holly-tree
Can emblems see
Wherewith, perchance, to make a pleasant rhyme,
One which may profit in the after-time.

Thus, though abroad, perchance, I might appear
Harsh and austere ;
To those who on my leisure would intrude,
Reserved and rude ;
Gentle at home amid my friends I'd be,
Like the high leaves upon the holly-tree.

And should my youth — as youth is apt, I know —
Some harshness show,
All vain asperities I, day by day,
Would wear away,
Till the smooth temper of my age should be
Like the high leaves upon the holly-tree.

And as, when all the summer trees are seen
So bright and green,
The holly-leaves their fadeless hues display
Less bright than they ;
But when the bare and wintry woods we see,
What then so cheerful as the holly-tree ?

So, serious should my youth appear among
The thoughtless throng ;
So would I seem, amid the young and gay,
More grave than they ;
That in my age as cheerful I might be
As the green winter of the holly-tree.

ROBERT SOUTHEY

THE SPICE-TREE.

THE spice-tree lives in the garden green ;
Beside it the fountain flows ;
And a fair bird sits the boughs between,
And sings his melodious woes.

No greener garden e'er was known
Within the bounds of an earthly king ;
No lovelier skies have ever shone
Than those that illumine its constant spring.

That coil-bound stem has branches three ;
On each a thousand blossoms grow ;
And, old as aught of time can be,
The root stands fast in the rocks below.

In the spicy shade ne'er seems to tire
The fount that builds a silvery dome ;
And flakes of purple and ruby fire
Gush out, and sparkle amid the foam.

The fair white bird of flaming crest,
And azure wings bedropt with gold,
Ne'er has he known a pause of rest,
But sings the lament that he framed of old :

"O princess bright ! how long the night
Since thou art sunk in the waters clear !
How sadly they flow from the depth below, —
How long must I sing and thou wilt not hear ?

"The waters play, and the flowers are gay,
And the skies are sunny above ;
I would that all could fade and fall,
And I, too, cease to mourn my love.

"O, many a year, so wakeful and drear,
I have sorrowed and watched, beloved, for thee !
But there comes no breath from the chambers of death,
While the lifeless fount gushes under the tree."

The skies grow dark, and they glare with red ;
The tree shakes off its spicy bloom ;
The waves of the fount in a black pool spread ;
And in thunder sounds the garden's doom.

Down springs the bird with a long shrill cry,
Into the sable and angry flood ;
And the face of the pool, as he falls from high,
Curdles in circling stains of blood.

But sudden again upswells the fount ;
Higher and higher the waters flow, —
In a glittering diamond arch they mount,
And round it the colors of morning glow.

Finer and finer the watery mound
Softens and melts to a thin-spun veil,
And tones of music circle around,
And bear to the stars the fountain's tale.

And swift the eddying rainbow screen
Falls in dew on the grassy floor ;
Under the spice-tree the garden's queen
Sits by her lover, who wails no more.

JOHN STERLING.

THE GRAPE-VINE SWING.

LITHE and long as the serpent train,
Springing and clinging from tree to tree,
Now darting upward, now down again,
With a twist and a twirl that are strange to see ;
Never took serpent a deadlier hold,
Never the cougar a wilder spring,
Strangling the oak with the boa's fold,
Spanning the beach with the condor's wing.

Yet no foe that we fear to seek, —
The boy leaps wild to thy rude embrace ;
Thy bulging arms bear as soft a cheek
As ever on lover's breast found place ;
On thy waving train is a playful hold
Thou shalt never to lighter grasp persuade ;
While a maiden sits in thy drooping fold,
And swings and sings in the noonday shade !

O giant strange of our Southern woods !
I dream of thee still in the well-known spot,
Though our vessel strains o'er the ocean floods,
And the northern forest beholds thee not ;
I think of thee still with a sweet regret,
As the cordage yields to my playful grasp, —
Dost thou spring and cling in our woodlands yet ?
Does the maiden still swing in thy giant clasp ?

WILLIAM GILMORE SIMMS.

TO BLOSSOMS.

FAIR pledges of a fruitful tree,
Why do ye fall so fast ?
Your date is not so past
But you may stay yet here awhile
To blush and gently smile,
And go at last.

What ! were ye born to be
An hour or half's delight,
And so to bid good-night ?
'T is pity Nature brought ye forth,
Merely to show your worth,
And lose you quite.

But you are lovely leaves, where we
 May read how soon things have
 Their end, though ne'er so brave ;
 And after they have shown their pride
 Like you awhile, they glide
 Into the grave.

ROBERT HERRICK.

ALMOND BLOSSOM.

BLOSSOM of the almond-trees,
 April's gift to April's bees,
 Birthday ornament of spring,
 Flora's fairest daughterling ; —
 Coming when no flowerets dare
 Trust the cruel outer air,
 When the royal king-cup bold
 Dares not don his coat of gold,
 And the sturdy blackthorn spray
 Keeps his silver for the May ; —
 Coming when no flowerets would,
 Save thy lowly sisterhood,
 Early violets, blue and white,
 Dying for their love of light.
 Almond blossom, sent to teach us
 That the spring days soon will reach us,
 Lest, with longing over-ried,
 We die as the violets died, —
 Blossom, clouding all the tree
 With thy crimson broidery,
 Long before a leaf of green
 On the bravest bough is seen, —
 Ah ! when winter winds are swinging
 All thy red bells into ringing,
 With a bee in every bell,
 Almond bloom, we greet thee well !

EDWIN ARNOLD.

THE PLANTING OF THE APPLE-TREE.

COME, let us plant the apple-tree.
 Cleave the tough greensward with the spade ;
 Wide let its hollow bed be made ;
 There gently lay the roots, and there
 Sift the dark mould with kindly care,
 And press it o'er them tenderly,
 As round the sleeping infant's feet
 We softly fold the cradle-sheet ;
 So plant we the apple-tree.

What plant we in this apple-tree ?
 Buds, which the breath of summer days
 Shall lengthen into leafy sprays ;
 Boughs where the thrush with crimson breast
 Shall haunt, and sing, and hide her nest ;

We plant, upon the sunny lea,
 A shadow for the noontide hour,
 A shelter from the summer shower,
 When we plant the apple-tree.

What plant we in this apple-tree ?
 Sweets for a hundred flowery springs
 To load the May-wind's restless wings,
 When, from the orchard row, he pours
 Its fragrance through our open doors ;
 A world of blossoms for the bee,
 Flowers for the sick girl's silent room,
 For the glad infant sprigs of bloom,
 We plant with the apple-tree.

What plant we in this apple-tree !
 Fruits that shall swell in sunny June,
 And redden in the August noon,
 And drop, when gentle airs come by,
 That fan the blue September sky,
 While children come, with cries of glee,
 And seek them where the fragrant grass
 Betrays their bed to those who pass,
 At the foot of the apple-tree.

And when, above this apple-tree,
 The winter stars are quivering bright,
 And winds go howling through the night,
 Girls, whose young eyes o'erflow with mirth,
 Shall peel its fruit by cottage hearth,
 And guests in prouder homes shall see,
 Heaped with the grape of Cintra's vine
 And golden orange of the Line,
 The fruit of the apple-tree.

The fruitage of this apple-tree
 Winds and our flag of stripe and star
 Shall bear to coasts that lie afar,
 Where men shall wonder at the view.
 And ask in what fair groves they grew ;
 And sojourners beyond the sea
 Shall think of childhood's careless day
 And long, long hours of summer play,
 In the shade of the apple-tree.

Each year shall give this apple-tree
 A broader flush of roseate bloom,
 A deeper maze of verdurous gloom,
 And loosen, when the frost-clouds lower,
 The crisp brown leaves in thicker shower.

The years shall come and pass, but we Shall hear no longer, where we lie,
 The summer's songs, the autumn's sigh,
 In the boughs of the apple-tree.

And time shall waste this apple-tree.
 O, when its aged branches throw
 Thin shadows on the ground below,
 Shall fraud and force and iron will Oppress the weak and helpless still ?

What shall the tasks of mercy be,
Amid the toils, the strifes, the tears
Of those who live when length of years
Is wasting this apple-tree?

"Who planted this old apple-tree?"
The children of that distant day
Thus to some aged man shall say;
And, gazing on its mossy stem,
The gray-haired man shall answer them:

"A poet of the land was he,
Born in the rude but good old times;
'Tis said he made some quaint old rhymes
On planting the apple-tree."

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE MAIZE.

"That precious seed into the furrow cast Earliest in spring-time crowns the harvest last."
PHILBE CARY.

A SONG for the plant of my own native West,
Where nature and freedom reside,
By plenty still crowned, and by peace ever blest,
To the corn! the green corn of her pride!
In climes of the East has the olive been sung,
And the grape been the theme of their lays;
But for thee shall a harp of the backwoods be strung,

Thou bright, ever beautiful maize!

Afar in the forest the rude cabins rise,
And send up their pillars of smoke,
And the tops of their columns are lost in the skies,
O'er the heads of the cloud-kissing oak;
Near the skirt of the grove, where the sturdy arm swings
The axe till the old giant sways,
And echo repeats every blow as it rings,
Shoots the green and the glorious maize!

There buds of the buckeye in spring are the first,
And the willow's gold hair then appears,
And snowy the cups of the dogwood that burst
By the red bud, with pink-tinted tears.
And striped the bolls which the poppy holds up
For the dew, and the sun's yellow rays,
And brown is the pawpaw's shade-blossoming cup,
In the wood, near the sun-loving maize!

When through the dark soil the bright steel of the plough
Turns the mould from its unbroken bed
The ploughman is cheered by the finch on the bough,
And the blackbird doth follow his tread.

And idle, afar on the landscape descried,
The deep-lowing kine slowly graze,
And nibbling the grass on the sunny hillside
Are the sheep, hedged away from the maize.

With spring-time and culture, in martial array
It waves its green broadswords on high,
And fights with the gale, in a fluttering fray,
And the sunbeams, which fall from the sky;
It strikes its green blades at the zephyrs at noon,
And at night at the swift-flying fays,
Who ride through the darkness the beams of the moon,
Through the spears and the flags of the maize!

When the summer is fierce still its banners are green,
Each warrior's long beard groweth red,
His emerald-bright sword is sharp-pointed and keen,
And golden his tassel-plumed head.
As a host of armed knights set a monarch at naught,
That defy the day-god to his gaze,
And, revived every morn from the battle that's fought,
Fresh stand the green ranks of the maize!

But brown comes the autumn, and sear grows
the corn,
And the woods like a rainbow are dressed,
And but for the cock and the noontide horn
Old Time would be tempted to rest.
The humming bee fans off a shower of gold
From the mullein's long rod as it sways,
And dry grow the leaves which protecting infold
The ears of the well-ripened maize!

At length Indian Summer, the lovely, doth come,
With its blue frosty nights, and days still,
When distantly clear sounds the waterfall's hum,
And the sun smokes ablaze on the hill!
A dim veil hangs over the landscape and flood,
And the hills are all mellowed in haze,
While Fall, creeping on like a monk 'neath his hood,
Plucks the thick-rustling wealth of the maize.

And the heavy wains creak to the barns large and gray,
Where the treasure securely we hold,
Housed safe from the tempest, dry-sheltered away,
Our blessing more precious than gold!
And long for this manna that springs from the sod
Shall we gratefully give him the praise,
The source of all bounty, our Father and God,
Who sent us from heaven the maize!

WILLIAM W. FOSDICK.

THE PUMPKIN.

O, GREENLY and fair in the lands of the sun,
 The vines of the gourd and the rich melon run,
 And the rock and the tree and the cottage en-
 fold,
 With broad leaves all greenness and blossoms
 all gold,
 Like that which o'er Nineveh's prophet once grew,
 While he waited to know that his warning was true,
 And longed for the storm-cloud, and listened in vain
 For the rush of the whirlwind and red fire-rain.

On the banks of the Xenil, the dark Spanish maiden
 Comes up with the fruit of the tangled vine laden;
 And the Creole of Cuba laughs out to behold
 Through orange-leaves shining the broad spheres
 of gold;
 Yet with dearer delight from his home in the North,
 On the fields of his harvest the Yankee looks forth,
 Where crook-necks are coiling and yellow fruit
 shines,
 And the sun of September melts down on his vines.

Ah! on Thanksgiving Day, when from East and from West,
 From North and from South come the pilgrim
 and guest,
 When the gray-haired New-Englander sees round his board
 The old broken links of affection restored,
 When the care-wearied man seeks his mother
 once more,
 And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before,
 What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye?
 What calls back the past, like the rich pumpkin-pie?

O, fruit loved of boyhood! the old days recalling;
 When wood-grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling!
 When wild, ugly faces we carved in its skin,
 Glaring out through the dark with a candle within!
 When we laughed round the corn-heap, with hearts all in tune,
 Our chair a broad pumpkin, our lantern the moon,
 Telling tales of the fairy who travelled like steam
 In a pumpkin-shell coach, with two rats for her team!

Then thanks for thy present! — none sweeter or better
 E'er smoked from an oven or circled a platter!
 Fairer hands never wrought at a pastry more fine, Brighter eyes never watched o'er its baking, than thine!
 And the prayer, which my mouth is too full to express,
 Swells my heart that thy shadow may never be less,
 That the days of thy lot may be lengthened below,
 And the fame of thy worth like a pumpkin-vine
 grow,
 And thy life be as sweet, and its last sunset sky
 Golden-tinted and fair as thy own pumpkin-pie!

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

HYMN TO THE FLOWERS.

DAY-STARS! that ope your frownless eyes to twinkle
 From rainbow galaxies of earth's creation,
 And dew-drops on her lonely altars sprinkle
 As a libation.

Ye matin worshippers! who bending lowly
 Before the uprisen sun, God's lidless eye,
 Throw from your chalices a sweet and holy Incense on high.

Ye bright mosaics! that with storied beauty
 The floor of Nature's temple tessellate,
 What numerous emblems of instructive duty
 Your forms create!

'Neath cloistered boughs, each floral bell that swingeth
 And tolls its perfume on the passing air,
 Makes Sabbath in the fields, and ever ringeth
 A call to prayer.

Not to the domes where crumbling arch and column
 Attest the feebleness of mortal hand,
 But to that fane, most catholic and solemn,
 Which God hath planned;

To that cathedral, boundless as our wonder,
 Whose quenchless lamps the sun and moon supply;
 Its choir the winds and waves, its organ thunder,
 Its dome the sky.

There, as in solitude and shade I wander
 Through the green aisles, or stretched upon the sod,
 Awed by the silence, reverently ponder
 The ways of God,

Your voiceless lips, O flowers ! are living preachers,
 Each cup a pulpit, every leaf a book,
 Supplying to my fancy numerous teachers
 From loneliest nook.

Floral apostles ! that in dewy splendor
 "Weep without woe, and blush without a crime,"
 O, may I deeply learn, and ne'er surrender
 Your lore sublime !

"Thou wert not, Solomon, in all thy glory,
 Arrayed," the lilies cry, "in robes like ours !
 How vain your grandeur ! ah, how transitory
 Are human flowers !"

In the sweet-scented pictures, heavenly artist,
 With which thou paintest Nature's wide-spread hall,
 What a delightful lesson thou impartest
 Of love to all !

Not useless are ye, flowers ! though made for pleasure ;
 Blooming o'er field and wave, by day and
 night,
 From every source your sanction bids me treasure
 Harmless delight.

Ephemeral sages ! what instructors hoary
 For such a world of thought could furnish scope ?
 Each fading calyx a memento mori,
 Yet fount of hope.

Posthumous glories ! angel-like collection !
 Upraised from seed or bulb interred in earth,
 Ye are to me a type of resurrection
 And second birth.

Were I in churchless solitudes remaining,
 Far from all voice of teachers and divines,
 My soul would find, in flowers of God's ordaining,
 Priests, sermons, shrines !

HORACE SMITH.

FLOWERS.

I WILL not have the mad Clytie,
 Whose head is turned by the sun ;
 The tulip is a courtly quean,
 Whom, therefore, I will shun :
 The cowslip is a country wench,
 The violet is a nun ; —
 But I will woo the dainty rose,
 The queen of every one.

The pea is but a wanton witch,
 In too much haste to wed,
 And clasps her rings on every hand ;
 The wolfsbane I should dread ;
 Nor will I dreary rosemarye,
 That always mourns the dead ;
 But I will woo the dainty rose,
 With her cheeks of tender red.

The lily is all in white, like a saint,
 And so is no mate for me ;
 And the daisy's cheek is tipped with a blush.
 She is of such low degree ;
 Jasmine is sweet, and has many loves,
 And the broom 's betrothed to the bee ; —
 But I will plight with the dainty rose,
 For fairest of all is she.

THOMAS HOOD.

BETROTHED ANEW.

THE sunlight fills the trembling air,
 And balmy days their guerdons bring ;
 The Earth again is young and fair,
 And amorous with musky Spring.

The golden nurslings of the May
 In splendor strew the spangled green,
 And hues of tender beauty play,
 Entangled where the willows lean.

Mark how the rippled currents flow ;
 What lustres on the meadows lie !
 And hark ! the songsters come and go,
 And trill between the earth and sky.

Who told us that the years had fled,
 Or borne afar our blissful youth ?
 Such joys are all about us spread ;
 We know the whisper was not truth.

The birds that break from grass and grove
 Sing every carol that they sung
 When first our veins were rich with love,
 And May her mantle round us flung.

O fresh-lit dawn ! immortal life !
 O Earth's betrothal, sweet and true,
 With whose delights our souls are rife,
 And aye their vernal vows renew !

Then, darling, walk with me this morn ;
 Let your brown tresses drink its sheen ;
 These violets, within them worn,
 Of floral fays shall make you queen.

What though there comes a time of pain
 When autumn winds forebode decay ?
 The days of love are born again ;
 That fabled time is far away !

A SEPTEMBER VIOLET.

FOR days the peaks wore hoods of cloud,
The slopes were veiled in chilly rain;
We said: It is the Summer's shroud,
And with the brooks we moaned aloud,—
Will sunshine never come again?

At last the west wind brought us one
Serene, warm, cloudless, crystal day,
As though September, having blown
A blast of tempest, now had thrown
A gauntlet to the favored May.

Backward to spring our fancies flew,
And, careless of the course of time,
The bloomy days began anew.
Then, as a happy dream comes true,
Or, as a poet finds his rhyme —

Half wondered at, half unbelieved —
I found thee, friendliest of the flowers.
Then Summer's joys came back, green-leaved,
And its doomed dead, awhile reprieved,
First learned how truly they were ours.

Dear violet! Did the Autumn bring
The vernal dreams, till thou, like me,
Didst climb to thy imagining?
Or was it that the thoughtful Spring
Did come again, in search of thee?

ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON.

THE JOYS OF THE ROAD.

TO R. H.

Now the joys of the road are chiefly these:

A crimson touch on the hard-wood trees;
A vagrant's morning wide and blue,
In early fall, when the wind walks, too;
A shadowy highway cool and brown,
Alluring up and enticing down
From rippled water to dappled swamp,
The outward eye, the quiet will,
From purple glory to scarlet pomp;
And the striding heart from hill to hill;
The tempter apple over the fence;
The cobweb bloom on the yellow quince;
The palish asters along the wood,—
A lyric touch of the solitude;

An open hand, an easy shoe,
And a hope to make the day go through,—
Another to sleep with, and a third
To wake me up at the voice of a bird;
The resonant, far-listening morn,
And the hoarse whisper of the corn;
The crickets mourning their comrades lost,
In the night's retreat from the gathering frost;
(Or is it their slogan, plaintive and shrill,
As they beat on their corselets, valiant still?)

A hunger fit for the kings of the sea,
And a loaf of bread for Dickon and me;
A thirst like that of the Thirsty Sword,
And a jug of cider on the board;
An idle noon, a bubbling spring,
The sea in the pine-tops murmuring;

A scrap of gossip at the ferry;
A comrade neither glum nor merry,
Asking nothing, revealing naught,
But minting his words from a fund of thought,
A keeper of silence eloquent,
Needy, yet royally well content,
Of the mettled breed, yet abhorring strife,
And full of the mellow juice of life,
A taster of wine, with an eye for a maid,
Never too bold and never afraid,
Never heart-whole, never heart-sick
(These are the things I worship in Dick),
No fidget and no reformer, just
A calm observer of ought and must,
A lover of books, but a reader of man,
No cynic and no charlatan,
Who never defers and never demands,
But, smiling, takes the world in his hands,—
Seeing it good as when God first saw
And gave it the weight of his will for law.

And oh the joy that is never won,
But follows and follows the journeying sun,
By marsh and tide, by meadow and stream,
A will-o'-the-wind, a light-o'-dream,
Delusion afar, delight anear,
From morrow to morrow, from year to year,
A jack-o'-lantern, a fairy fire,
A dare, a bliss, and a desire!

The racy smell of the forest loam,
When the stealthy, sad-heart leaves go home;
(O leaves, O leaves, I am one with you,
Of the mould and the sun, and the wind and the dew!)

The broad gold wake of the afternoon;
The silent fleck of the cold new moon:
The sound of the hollow sea's release
From stormy tumult to starry peace;
With only another league to wend,
And two brown arms at the journey's end:

These are the joys of the open road—
For him who travels without a load.

BLISS CARMAN.

And never seemed the land so fair
 As now, nor birds such notes to sing,
 Since first within your shining hair
 I wove the blossoms of the spring.

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN.

THE EARLY PRIMROSE.

MILD offspring of a dark and sullen sire !
 Whose modest form, so delicately fine,
 Was nursed in whirling storms
 And cradled in the winds.

Thee, when young Spring first questioned Winter's sway,
 And dared the sturdy blusterer to the fight,
 Thee on this bank he threw
 To mark his victory.

In this low vale the promise of the year,
 Serene, thou openest to the nipping gale,
 Unnoticed and alone,
 Thy tender elegance.

So Virtue blooms, brought forth amid the storms
 Of chill adversity ; in some lone walk
 Of life she rears her head,
 Obscure and unobserved ;

While every bleaching breeze that on her blows
 Chastens her spotless purity of breast,
 And hardens her to bear
 Serene the ills of life.

HENRY KIRKE WHITE

THE RHODORA.

LINES ON BEING ASKED, WHENCE IS THE FLOWER.

IN May, when sea-winds pierced our solitudes,
 I found the fresh rhodora in the woods,
 Spreading its leafless blooms in a damp nook,
 To please the desert and the sluggish brook :
 The purple petals fallen in the pool
 Made the black waters with their beauty gay, —
 Here might the red-bird come his plumes to cool,
 And court the flower that cheapens his array.
 Rhodora ! if the sages ask thee why
 This charm is wasted on the marsh and sky,
 Tell them, that if eyes were made for seeing,
 Then beauty is its own excuse for being.

Why thou wert there, O rival of the rose !
 I never thought to ask ; I never knew,
 But in my simple ignorance suppose
 The self-same Power that brought me there brought you.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

VIOLETS.

WELCOME, maids of honor !
 You doe bring
 In the Spring,
 And wait upon her.

She has virgins many,
 Fresh and faire ;
 Yet you are
 More sweet than any.

Y' are the maiden Posies,
 And, so grac't,
 To be plac't
 'Fore damask roses.

Yet though thus respected,
 By and by
 Ye doe lie,
 Poore girls ! neglected.

ROBERT HERRICK.

THE VIOLET.

O FAINT, delicious, spring-time violet !
 Thine odor, like a key,
 Turns noiselessly in memory's wards to let
 A thought of sorrow free.

The breath of distant fields upon my brow
 Blows through that open door
 The sound of wind-borne bells, more sweet and low,
 And sadder than of yore.

It comes afar, from that beloved place,
 And that beloved hour,
 When life hung ripening in love's golden grace,
 Like grapes above a bower.

A spring goes singing through its reedy grass ;
 The lark sings o'er my head,
 Drowned in the sky — O, pass, ye visions, pass !
 I would that I were dead ! —

Why hast thou opened that forbidden door,
 From which I ever flee ?
 O vanished joy ! O love, that art no more,
 Let my vexed spirit be !

O violet ! thy odor through my brain
 Hath searched, and stung to grief
 This sunny day, as if a curse did stain
 Thy velvet leaf.

WILLIAM WETMORE STORY.

THE DAISY.

FROM THE "LEGEND OF GOOD WOMEN."

Of all the floures in the mede,
 Than love I most these floures white and rede,
 Soch that men callen daisies in our town;
 To hem I have so great affection,
 As I said erst, whan comen is the May,
 That in my bedde there daweth me no day
 That I nam^{*} up and walking in the mede,
 To seene this flour ayenst the Sunne sprede,
 Whan it up riseth early by the morrow.
 That blissful sight softeneth all my sorrow,
 So glad am I, whan that I have the presence
 Of it, to done it all reverence,
 And ever I love it, and ever ylike newe,
 And ever shall, till that mine herte die
 All swere I not, of this I will not lie.

My busie gost, that thursteth alway newe,
 To seene this flour so yong, so fresh of hew,
 Constrained me, with so greedy desire,
 That in my herte I fele yet the fire,
 That made me rise ere it were day,
 And this was now the first morow of May,
 With dreadful[†] herte, and glad devotion
 For to been at the resurrection
 Of this flour, whan that it should uncloze
 Againe the Sunne, that rose as redde as rose.
 And doune on knees anon right I me sette,
 And as I could, this fresh flour I grette,
 Kneeling alway, till it unclosed was,
 Upon the small, soft, swete gras,
 That was with floures swete embrouded all,
 Of such swetenesse, and such odour overall
 That for to speke of gomme, herbe, or tree,
 Comparison may not ymaketh be,
 For it surmounteth plainly all odoures,
 And of rich beaute of floures.
 And Zephirus, and Flora gentelly,
 Yave to these floures soft and tenderly,
 Hir swote[‡] breth, and made hem for to sprede,
 As god and goddesse of the flourie mede,
 In which me thoughte I might day by day,
 Dwelken alway, the joly month of May,
 Withouten slepe, withouten meat or drinke:
 Adoune full softly I gan to sinke,
 And leaning on my elbow and my side,
 The long day I shope me for to abide,
 For nothing els, and I shall nat lie,
 But for to looke upon the daisie,
 That well by reason men it call may
 The daisie, or els the eye of the day,
 The empress and flour of floures all,
 I pray to God that faire mote she fall,
 And all that loven floures for her sake.

CHAUCER.

* I am not.

† Fearful.

‡ Sweet.

TO A MOUNTAIN DAISY,

ON TURNING ONE DOWN WITH THE PLOUGH, IN APRIL, 1786.

WEE, modest, crimson-tippèd flower,
 Thou 's met me in an evil hour,
 For I maun crush among the stoure
 Thy slender stem;
 To spare thee now is past my power,
 Thou bonny gem.

Alas! it's no thy neebor sweet,
 The bonnie lark, companion meet,
 Bending thee 'mang the dewy weet,
 Wi' speckled breast,
 When upward springing, blithe to greet
 The purpling east.

Could blew the bitter-biting north
 Upon thy early, humble birth;
 Yet cheerfully thou glinted forth
 Amid the storm,
 Scarce reared above the parent earth
 Thy tender form.

The flaunting flowers our gardens yield
 High sheltering woods and wa's maun shield
 But thou beneath the random bield
 O' clod or stane,
 Adorns the histie stibble-field,
 Unseen, alane.

There, in thy scanty mantle clad,
 Thy snawie bosom sunward spread,
 Thou lifts thy unassuming head
 In humble guise;
 But now the share uptears thy bed,
 And low thou lies!

Such is the fate of artless maid,
 Sweet floweret of the rural shade!
 By love's simplicity betrayed,
 And guileless trust,
 Till she, like thee, all soiled, is laid
 Low i' the dust.

Such is the fate of simple bard,
 On life's rough ocean luckless starred!
 Unskilful he to note the card
 Of prudent lore,
 Till billows rage, and gales blow hard,
 And whelm him o'er!

Such fate to suffering worth is given,
 Who long with wants and woes has striven,
 By human pride or cunning driven
 To misery's brink,
 Till, wrenched of every stay but Heaven,
 He, ruined, sink!

Even thou who mourn'st the daisy's fate,
That fate is thine, — no distant date :
Stern Ruin's ploughshare drives, elate,
Full on thy bloom,
Till crushed beneath the furrow's weight
Shall be thy doom !

ROBERT BURNS.

THE DAISY.

STAR of the mead ! sweet daughter of the day,
Whose opening flower invites the morning ray,
From the moist cheek and bosom's chilly fold
To kiss the tears of eve, the dew-drops cold !
Sweet daisy, flower of love ! when birds are paired,

'T is sweet to see thee, with thy bosom bared,
Smiling in virgin innocence serene,
Thy pearly crown above thy vest of green.
The lark with sparkling eye and rustling wing
Rejoins his widowed mate in early spring,
And, as he prunes his plumes of russet hue,
Swears on thy maiden blossom to be true.
Oft have I watched thy closing buds at eve,
Which for the parting sunbeams seemed to grieve ;

And when gay morning gild the dew-bright
plain,

Seen them unclasp their folded leaves again ;
Nor he who sung "The daisy is so sweet !"
More dearly loved thy pearly form to greet,
When on his scarf the knight the daisy bound,
And dames to tourneys shone with daisies
crowned,

And fays forsook the purer fields above,
To hail the daisy, flower of faithful love.

JOHN LEYDEN.

THE DAISY.

THERE is a flower, a little flower
With silver crest and golden eye,
That welcomes every changing hour,
And weathers every sky.

The prouder beauties of the field
In gay but quick succession shine ;
Race after race their honors yield,
They flourish and decline.

But this small flower, to Nature dear,
While moons and stars their courses run,
Inwreathes the circle of the year,
Companion of the sun.

It smiles upon the lap of May,
To sultry August spreads its charm,
Lights pale October on his way,
And twines December's arm.

The purple heath and golden broom
On moory mountains catch the gale ;
O'er lawns the lily sheds perfume,
The violet in the vale.

But this bold floweret climbs the hill,
Hides in the forest, haunts the glen,
Plays on the margin of the rill,
Peeps round the fox's den.

Within the garden's cultured round
It shares the sweet carnation's bed ;
And blooms on consecrated ground
In honor of the dead.

The lambkin crops its crimson gem ;
The wild bee murmurs on its breast ;
The blue-fly bends its pensile stem
Light o'er the skylark's nest.

'T is Flora's page, — in every place,
In every season, fresh and fair ;
It opens with perennial grace,
And blossoms everywhere.

On waste and woodland, rock and plain,
Its humble buds unheeded rise ;
The rose has but a summer reign ;
The daisy never dies !

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

DAFFODILS.

I WANDERED lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd, —
A host of golden daffodils
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the Milky Way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay :
Ten thousand saw I, at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Outdid the sparkling waves in glee ;
A poet could not but be gay
In such a jocund company ;
I gazed — and gazed — but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie,
 In vacant or in pensive mood,
 They flash upon that inward eye
 Which is the bliss of solitude ;
 And then my heart with pleasure fills,
 And dances with the daffodils.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

DAFFODILS.

FAIRE daffadills, we weep to see
 You haste away so soone ;
 As yet the early-rising sun
 Has not attained his noone.
 Stay, stay,
 Until the hastening day
 Has run
 But to the even-song ;
 And, having prayed together, we
 Will goe with you along.

We have short time to stay as you,
 We have as short a spring ;
 As quick a growth, to meet decay,
 As you or anything.
 We die,
 As your hours doe, and drie
 Away,
 Like to the summer's raine,
 Or as the pearles of morning's dew,
 Ne'er to be found againe.

ROBERT HERRICK.

THE ROSE.

FROM "HASSAN BEN KHALED."

THEN took the generous host
 A basket filled with roses. Every guest
 Cried, "Give me roses!" and he thus addressed
 His words to all: "He who exalts them most
 In song, he only shall the roses wear."
 Then sang a guest: "The rose's cheeks are fair;
 It crowns the purple bowl, and no one knows
 If the rose colors it, or it the rose."
 And sang another: "Crimson is its hue,
 And on its breast the morning's crystal dew
 Is changed to rubies." Then a third replied:
 "It blushes in the sun's enamored sight,
 As a young virgin on her wedding night,
 When from her face the bridegroom lifts the veil."
 When all had sung their songs, I, Hassan, tried.
 "The rose," I sang, "is either red or pale,
 Like maidens whom the flame of passion burns,
 And love or jealousy controls, by turns.
 Its buds are lips preparing for a kiss;
 Its open flowers are like the blush of bliss

On lovers' cheeks; the thorns its armor are,
 And in its centre shines a golden star,
 As on a favorite's cheek a sequin glows;—
 And thus the garden's favorite is the rose."
 The master from his open basket shook
 The roses on my head.

BAYARD TAYLOR.

THE ROSE.

THE rose had been washed, just washed in a shower,
 Which Mary to Anna conveyed,
 The plentiful moisture encumbered the flower,
 And weighed down its beautiful head.

The cup was all filled, and the leaves were all wet,
 And it seemed, to a fanciful view,
 To weep for the buds it had left with regret,
 On the flourishing bush where it grew.

I hastily seized it, unfit as it was
 For a nosegay, so dripping and drowned,
 And swinging it rudely, too rudely, alas!
 I snapped it, it fell to the ground.

And such, I exclaimed, is the pitiless part
 Some act by the delicate mind,
 Regardless of wringing and breaking a heart
 Already to sorrow resigned.

This elegant rose, had I shaken it less,
 Might have bloomed with its owner awhile;
 And the tear that is wiped with a little address,
 May be followed perhaps by a smile.

WILLIAM COWPER.

THE MOSS ROSE.

THE angel of the flowers, one day,
 Beneath a rose-tree sleeping lay,—
 That spirit to whose charge 't is given
 To bathe young buds in dews of heaven.
 Awaking from his light repose,
 The angel whispered to the rose:
 "O fondest object of my care,
 Still fairest found, where all are fair;
 For the sweet shade thou giv'st to me
 Ask what thou wilt, 't is granted thee."
 "Then," said the rose, with deepened glow,
 "On me another grace bestow."
 The spirit paused, in silent thought,
 What grace was there that flower had not?
 'T was but a moment,—o'er the rose
 A veil of moss the angel throws,
 And, robed in nature's simplest weed,
 Could there a flower that rose exceed?

From the German of KRUMMACHER.

TIS THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

FROM "IRISH MELODIES."

'T is the last rose of summer,
Left blooming alone ;
All her lovely companions
Are faded and gone ;
No flower of her kindred,
No rosebud, is nigh
To reflect back her blushes,
Or give sigh for sigh !

I'll not leave thee, thou lone one !
To pine on the stem ;
Since the lovely are sleeping,
Go, sleep thou with them ;
Thus kindly I scatter
Thy leaves o'er the bed
Where thy mates of the garden
Lie scentless and dead.

So soon may I follow,
When friendships decay,
And from love's shining circle
The gems drop away !
When true hearts lie withered,
And fond ones are flown,
O, who would inhabit
This bleak world alone ?

THOMAS MOORE.

TO THE FRINGED GENTIAN.

Thou blossom, bright with autumn dew,
And colored with the heaven's own blue,
That openest when the quiet light
Succeeds the keen and frosty night ;

Thou comest not when violets lean
O'er wandering brooks and springs unseen,
Or columbines, in purple dressed,
Nod o'er the ground-bird's hidden nest.

Thou waitest late, and com'st alone,
When woods are bare and birds are flown,
And frosts and shortening days portend
The aged Year is near his end.

Then doth thy sweet and quiet eye
Look through its fringes to the sky,
Blue — blue — as if that sky let fall
A flower from its cerulean wall.

I would that thus, when I shall see
The hour of death draw near to me,
Hope, blossoming within my heart,
May look to heaven as I depart.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE VOICE OF THE GRASS.

HERE I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
By the dusty roadside,
On the sunny hillside,
Close by the noisy brook,
In every shady nook,
I come creeping, creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, smiling everywhere ;
All round the open door,
Where sit the aged poor ;
Here where the children play,
In the bright and merry May,
I come creeping, creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
In the noisy city street
My pleasant face you'll meet,
Cheering the sick at heart
Toiling his busy part, —
Silently creeping, creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
You cannot see me coming,
Nor hear my low sweet humming ;
For in the starry night,
And the glad morning light,
I come quietly creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
More welcome than the flowers
In summer's pleasant hours ;
The gentle cow is glad,
And the merry bird not sad,
To see me creeping, creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
When you're numbered with the dead
In your still and narrow bed,
In the happy spring I'll come
And deck your silent home, —
Creeping, silently creeping everywhere.

Here I come creeping, creeping everywhere ;
My humble song of praise
Most joyfully I raise
To Him at whose command
I beautify the land,
Creeping, silently creeping everywhere.

SARAH ROBERTS.

THE IVY GREEN.

O, A DAINTY plant is the ivy green,
That creepeth o'er ruins old !
Of right choice food are his meals, I ween,
In his cell so lone and cold.

The walls must be crumbled, the stones decayed,
 To pleasure his dainty whim ;
 And the mouldering dust that years have made,
 Is a merry meal for him.
 Creeping where no life is seen,
 A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

Fast he stealeth on, though he wears no wings,
 And a staunch old heart has he !
 How closely he twineth, how tight he clings
 To his friend, the huge oak-tree !
 And slyly he traileth along the ground,
 And his leaves he gently waves,
 And he joyously twines and hugs around
 The rich mould of dead men's graves.
 Creeping where grim death has been,
 A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

Whole ages have fled, and their works decayed,
 And nations have scattered been ;
 But the stout old ivy shall never fade
 From its hale and hearty green.
 The brave old plant in its lonely days
 Shall fatten upon the past ;
 For the stateliest building man can raise
 Is the ivy's food at last.

Creeping on where Time has been,
 A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

CHARLES DICKENS.

THE DEATH OF THE FLOWERS.

THE melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,
 Of wailing winds, and naked woods, and meadows
 brown and sear.
 Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the autumn leaves lie dead ;
 They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rab-bit's tread.
 The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,
 And from the wood-top calls the crow through all the gloomy day.

Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood
 In brighter light and softer airs, a beauteous sisterhood ?

Alas ! they all are in their graves ; the gentle race of flowers
 Are lying in their lowly beds with the fair and good of ours.

The rain is falling where they lie ; but the cold
 November rain
 Calls not from out the gloomy earth the lovely ones again.

The wind-flower and the violet, they perished long ago,
 And the brier-rose and the orchis died amid the summer glow ;
 But on the hill the golden-rod, and the aster in the wood,
 And the yellow sunflower by the brook in autumn beauty stood,
 Till fell the frost from the clear cold heaven, as falls the plague on men,
 And the brightness of their smile was gone from upland, glade, and glen.

And now, when comes the calm mild day, as still such days will come,
 To call the squirrel and the bee from out their winter home ;
 When the sound of dropping nuts is heard,
 though all the trees are still,
 And twinkle in the smoky light the waters of the rill ;
 The south-wind searches for the flowers whose fragrance late he bore,
 And sighs to find them in the wood and by the stream no more.

And then I think of one who in her youthful beauty died,
 The fair meek blossom that grew up and faded
 by my side.
 In the cold moist earth we laid her, when the forests cast the leaf,
 And we wept that one so lovely should have a life so brief ;
 Yet not unmeet it was that one, like that young friend of ours,
 So gentle and so beautiful, should perish with the flowers.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE USE OF FLOWERS.

God might have bade the earth bring forth
 Enough for great and small,
 The oak-tree and the cedar-tree,
 Without a flower at all.
 We might have had enough, enough
 For every want of ours,
 For luxury, medicine, and toil,
 And yet have had no flowers.

Then wherefore, wherefore were they made,
 All dyed with rainbow light,
 All fashioned with supremest grace,
 Upspringing day and night : —
 Springing in valleys green and low,
 And on the mountains high,
 And in the silent wilderness
 Where no man passes by ?

Our outward life requires them not, —
 Then wherefore had they birth? —
 To minister delight to man,
 To beautify the earth;
 To comfort man, — to whisper hope,
 Whene'er his faith is dim,
 For who so careth for the flowers
 Will care much more for him!

MARY HOWITT.

THE LION'S RIDE.

THE lion is the desert's king; through his domain so wide
 Right swiftly and right royally this night he means to ride.
 By the sedgy brink, where the wild herds drink,
 close couches the grim chief;
 The trembling sycamore above whispers with every leaf.

At evening, on the Table Mount, when ye can see no more
 The changeful play of signals gay; when the gloom is speckled o'er
 With kraal fires; when the Caffrè wends home through the lone karroo;
 When the boshbok in the thicket sleeps, and by the stream the gnu;

Then bend your gaze across the waste, — what see ye? The giraffe,
 Majestic, stalks towards the lagoon, the turbid lymph to quaff;
 With outstretched neck and tongue adust, he kneels him down to cool
 His hot thirst with a welcome draught from the foul and brackish pool.

A rustling sound, a roar, a bound, — the lion sits astride
 Upon his giant courser's back. Did ever king so ride?
 Had ever king a steed so rare, caparisons of state
 To match the dappled skin whereon that rider sits elate?

In the muscles of the neck his teeth are plunged with ravenous greed;
 His tawny mane is tossing round the withers of the steed.
 Up leaping with a hollow yell of anguish and surprise,
 Away, away, in wild dismay, the cameleopard flies.

His feet have wings; see how he springs across the moonlit plain!
 As from their sockets they would burst, his glaring eyeballs strain;
 In thick black streams of purling blood, full fast
 his life is fleeting;
 The stillness of the desert hears his heart's tumultuous beating.

Like the cloud that, through the wilderness, the path of Israel traced, —
 Like an airy phantom, dull and wan, a spirit of the waste, —
 From the sandy sea uprising, as the water-spout
 from ocean,
 A whirling cloud of dust keeps pace with the courser's fiery motion.

Croaking companion of their flight, the vulture whirs on high;
 Below, the terror of the fold, the panther fierce and sly,
 And hyenas foul, round graves that prowl, join in the horrid race;
 By the footprints wet with gore and sweat, their monarch's course they trace.

They see him on his living throne, and quake with fear, the while
 With claws of steel he tears piecemeal his cushion's painted pile.
 On! on! no pause, no rest, giraffe, while life and strength remain!
 The steed by such a rider backed may mally plunge in vain.

Reeling upon the desert's verge, he falls, and breathes his last;
 The courser, stained with dust and foam, is the rider's fell repast.
 O'er Madagascar, eastward far, a faint flush is deserved: —
 Thus nightly, o'er his broad domain, the king of beasts doth ride.

From the German of FERDINAND FREILIGRATH.

THE BLOOD HORSE.

GAMARRA is a dainty steed,
 Strong, black, and of a noble breed,
 Full of fire, and full of bone,
 With all his line of fathers known;
 Fine his nose, his nostrils thin,
 But blown abroad by the pride within!

His mane is like a river flowing,
And his eyes like embers glowing
In the darkness of the night,
And his pace as swift as light.

Look, — how round his straining throat
Grace and shifting beauty float ;
Siney strength is in his reins,
And the red blood gallops through his veins :
Richer, redder, never ran
Through the boasting heart of man.
He can trace his lineage higher
Than the Bourbon dare aspire, —
Douglas, Guzman, or the Guelph,
Or O'Brien's blood itself !

He, who hath no peer, was born
Here, upon a red March morn.
But his famous fathers dead
Were Arabs all, and Arab-bred,
And the last of that great line
Trod like one of a race divine !
And yet, — he was but friend to one
Who fed him at the set of sun
By some lone fountain fringed with green ;
With him, a roving Bedouin,
He lived (none else would he obey
Through all the hot Arabian day).
And died untamed upon the sands
Where Balkh amidst the desert stands.

THE TIGER.

TIGER ! Tiger ! burning bright,
In the forests of the night ;
What immortal hand or eye
Could frame thy fearful symmetry ?

In what distant deeps or skies
Burned the fire of thine eyes ?
On what wings dare he aspire ?
What the hand dare seize the fire ?

And what shoulder, and what art,
Could twist the sinews of thine heart ?
And when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand ? and what dread feet ?

What the hammer, what the chain ?
In what furnace was thy brain ?
What the anvil ? what dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp ?

When the stars threw down their spears,
And watered heaven with their tears,
Did he smile his work to see ?
Did He, who made the Lamb, make thee !

Tiger ! Tiger ! burning bright,
In the forests of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Dare frame thy fearful symmetry ?

WILLIAM BLAKE.

TO A MOUSE ;

ON TURNING HER UP IN HER NEST WITH THE PLOUGH
NOVEMBER, 1785.

WEE, sleekit, cowerin', timorous beastie,
O, what a panic 's in thy breastie !
Thou needna start awa sae hasty,
Wi' bickering brattle !
I wad be laith to rin an' chase thee,
Wi' murdering pattle !

I'm truly sorry man's dominion
Has broken nature's social union,
An' justifies that ill opinion
Which makes thee startle
At me, thy poor earth-born companion,
An' fellow-mortal !

I doubtna, whyles, but thou may thieve ;
What then? poor beastie, thou maun live !
A daimen-icker* in a thrave †
'S a sma' request ;
I'll get a blessin' wi' the lave,
And never miss 't !

Thy wee bit housie, too, in ruin !
Its silly wa's the win's are strewin' !
An' naething now to big a new ane
O' foggage green !
An' bleak December's winds ensuin',
Baith snell and keen !

Thou saw the fields laid bare an' waste,
An' weary winter comin' fast,
An' cozie here, beneath the blast,
Thou thought to dwell,
Till, crash! the cruel coulter past
Out through thy cell.

That wee bit heap o' leaves an' stibble
Has cost thee mony a weary nibble !
Now thou 's turned out, for a' thy trouble,
But house or hald,
To thole the winter's sleety dribble,
An' cranreuch ‡ cauld !

But, Mousie, thou art no thy lane,
In proving foresight may be vain :
The best-laid schemes o' mice an' men
Gang aft a-gley,
An' lea'e us naught but grief and pain,
For promised joy.

* An ear of corn.
‡ Hoar-frost.

† Twenty-four sheaves.

Still thou art blest, compared wi' me !
 The present only toucheth thee :
 But, och ! I backward cast my e'e
 On prospects drear ;
 An' forward, though I canna see,
 I guess an' fear.

ROBERT BURNS.

LAMBS AT PLAY.

SAY, ye that know, ye who have felt and seen
 Spring's morning smiles, and soul-enlivening
 green,—
 Say, did you give the thrilling transport way,
 Did your eye brighten, when young lambs at play
 Leaped o'er your path with animated pride,
 Or gazed in merry clusters by your side ?
 Ye who can smile—to wisdom no disgrace—
 At the arch meaning of a kitten's face ;
 If spotless innocence and infant mirth
 Excites to praise, or gives reflection birth ;
 In shades like these pursue your favorite joy,
 Midst nature's revels, sports that never cloy.
 A few begin a short but vigorous race,
 And indolence, abashed, soon flies the place :
 Thus challenged forth, see thither, one by one,
 From every side assembling playmates run ;
 A thousand wily antics mark their stay,
 A starting crowd, impatient of delay ;
 Like the fond dove from fearful prison freed,
 Each seems to say, "Come, let us try our speed ;"
 Away they scour, impetuous, ardent, strong,
 The green turf trembling as they bound along
 Adown the slope, then up the hillock climb,
 Where every mole-hill is a bed of thyme,
 Then, panting, stop ; yet scarcely can refrain,—
 A bird, a leaf, will set them off again :
 Or, if a gale with strength unusual blow,
 Scattering the wild-brier roses into snow,
 Their little limbs increasing efforts try ;
 Like the torn flower, the fair assemblage fly.
 Ah, fallen rose ! sad emblem of their doom ;
 Frail as thyself, they perish while they bloom !

ROBERT BLOOMFIELD.

FOLDING THE FLOCKS.

SHEPHERDS all, and maidens fair,
 Fold your flocks up ; for the air
 'Gins to thicken, and the sun
 Already his great course hath run.
 See the dew-drops, how they kiss
 Every little flower that is ;
 Hanging on their velvet heads,
 Like a string of crystal beads.
 See the heavy clouds low falling
 And bright Hesperus down calling

The dead night from underground ;
 At whose rising, mists unsound,
 Damps and vapors, fly apace,
 And hover o'er the smiling face
 Of these pastures ; where they come,
 Striking dead both bud and bloom.
 Therefore from such danger lock
 Every one his loved flock ;
 And let your dogs lie loose without,
 Lest the wolf come as a scout
 From the mountain, and ere day,
 Bear a lamb or kid away ;
 Or the crafty, thievish fox,
 Break upon your simple flocks.
 To secure yourself from these,
 Be not too secure in ease ;
 So shall you good shepherds prove,
 And deserve your master's love.
 Now, good night ! may sweetest slumbers
 And soft silence fall in numbers
 On your eyelids. So farewell :
 Thus I end my evening knell.

BEAUMONT and FLETCHER.

THE SONGSTERS.

FROM "THE SEASONS: SPRING."

UP springs the lark,
 Shrill-voiced and loud, the messenger of morn.
 Ere yet the shadows fly, he mounted sings
 Amid the dawning clouds, and from their haunts
 Calls up the tuneful nations. Every copse
 Deep-tangled, tree irregular, and bush
 Bending with dewy moisture, o'er the heads
 Of the coy quiristers that lodge within,
 Are prodigal of harmony. The thrush
 And woodlark, o'er the kind-contending throng
 Superior heard, run through the sweetest length
 Of notes ; when listening Philomela deigns
 To let them joy, and purposes, in thought
 Elate, to make her night excel their day.
 The blackbird whistles from the thorny brake ;
 The mellow bullfinch answers from the grove ;
 Nor are the linnets, o'er the flowering furze
 Poured out profusely, silent : joined to these,
 Innumerable songsters, in the freshening shade
 Of new-sprung leaves, their modulations mix
 Mellifluous. The jay, the rook, the daw,
 And each harsh pipe, discordant heard alone,
 Aid the full concert ; while the stockdove breathes
 A melancholy murmur through the whole.
 'Tis love creates their melody, and all
 This waste of music is the voice of love ;
 That even to birds and beasts the tender arts
 Of pleasing teaches.

JAMES THOMSON

DOMESTIC BIRDS.

FROM "THE SEASONS: SPRING."

THE careful hen
Calls all her chirping family around,
Fed and defended by the fearless cock,
Whose breast with ardor flames, as on he walks,
Graceful, and crows defiance. In the pond
The finely checkered duck before her train
Rows garrulous. The stately-sailing swan
Gives out her snowy plumage to the gale ;
And, arching proud his neck, with oary feet
Bears forward fierce, and guards his osier-isle,
Protective of his young. The turkey nigh,
Loud-threatening, reddens ; while the peacock spreads

His every-colored glory to the sun,
And swims in radiant majesty along.
O'er the whole homely scene, the cooing dove
Flies thick in amorous chase, and wanton rolls
The glancing eye, and turns the changeful neck.

JAMES THOMSON.

BIRDS.

FROM "THE PELICAN ISLAND."

— BIRDS, the free tenants of land, air, and ocean,
Their forms all symmetry, their motions grace ;
In plumage, delicate and beautiful,
Thick without burden, close as fishes' scales,
Or loose as full-blown poppies to the breeze ;
With wings that might have had a soul within them,
They bore their owners by such sweet enchantment,
— Birds, small and great, of endless shapes and colors,
Here flew and perched, there swam and dived at pleasure ;
Watchful and agile, uttering voices wild
And harsh, yet in accordance with the waves
Upon the beach, the winds in caverns moaning,
Or winds and waves abroad upon the water.
Some sought their food among the finny shoals,
Swift darting from the clouds, emerging soon
With slender captives glittering in their beaks ;
These in recesses of steep crags constructed
Their eyries inaccessible, and trained
Their hardy broods to forage in all weathers :
Others, more gorgeously appa'elled, dwelt
Among the woods, on nature's dainties feeding,
Herbs, seeds, and roots ; or, ever on the wing,
Pursuing insects through the boundless air :
In hollow trees or thickets these concealed
Their exquisitely woven nests ; where lay
Their callow offspring, quiet as the down

On their own breasts, till from her search the dam

With laden bill returned, and shared the meal
Among her clamorous suppliants, all agape ;
Then, cowering o'er them with expanded wings,
She felt how sweet it is to be a mother.
Of these, a few, with melody untaught,
Turned all the air to music within hearing,
Themselves unseen ; while bolder quiriters
On loftiest branches strained their clarion-pipes,
And made the forest echo to their screams
Discordant, — yet there was no discord there,
But tempered harmony ; all tones combining,
In the rich confluence of ten thousand tongues,
To tell of joy and to inspire it. Who Could hear such concert, and not join in chorus !

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

THE MOCKING-BIRD.

FROM "OUT OF THE CRADLE ENDLESSLY ROCKING."

ONCE, Paumanok,
When the snows had melted, and the Fifth-month grass was growing,
Up this sea-shore, in some briers,
Two guests from Alabama, — two together,
And their nest, and four light-green eggs, spotted with brown,
And every day the he-bird, to and fro, near at hand,
And every day the she-bird, crouched on her nest, silent, with bright eyes,
And every day I, a curious boy, never too close,
never disturbing them,
Cautiously peering, absorbing, translating.

"Shine ! shine ! shine !
Pour down your warmth, great Sun !
While we bask — we two together.

"Two together !
Winds blow south, or winds blow north,
Day come white, or night come black,
Home, or rivers and mountains from home,
Singing all time, minding no time,
If we two but keep together."

Till, of a sudden,
Maybe killed, unknown to her mate,
One forenoon the she-bird crouched not on the nest,
Nor returned that afternoon, nor the next,
Nor ever appeared again.

And thenceforward, all summer, in the sound of the sea,
And at night, under the full of the moon, in calmer weather,

Over the hoarse surging of the sea,
Or flitting from brier to brier by day,
I saw, I heard at intervals, the remaining one,
the he-bird,
The solitary guest from Alabama.

"Blow ! blow ! blow !

Blow up, sea-winds, along Paumanok's shore !
I wait and I wait, till you blow my mate to me."

Yes, when the stars glistened,
All night long, on the prong of a moss-scalloped stake,
Down, almost amid the slapping waves,
Sat the lone singer, wonderful, causing tears.

He called on his mate ;
He poured forth the meanings which I, of all men, know.

"Soothe ! soothe ! soothe !
Close on its wave soothes the wave behind,
And again another behind, embracing and lap-
ping, every one close,
But my love soothes not me, not me.

"Low hangs the moon — it rose late.
O, it is lagging — O, I think it is heavy with love, with love.

"O, madly the sea pushes, pushes upon the
land,
With love — with love.

"O night ! do I not see my love fluttering out there among the breakers ?
What is that little black thing I see there in the white ?

"Loud ! loud ! loud !
Loud I call to you, my love !
High and clear I shoot my voice over the waves ;
Surely you must know who is here, is here .
You must know who I am, my love !

"Low-hanging moon !
What is that dusky spot in your brown yellow ?
O, it is the shape, the shape of my mate !
O moon, do not keep her from me any longer.

"Land ! land ! O land !
Whichever way I turn, O, I think you could give me my mate back again, if you only would ;
For I am almost sure I see her dimly whichever way I look.

"O rising stars !
Perhaps the one I want so much will rise, will rise with some of you.

"O throat ! O trembling throat !
Sound clearer through the atmosphere !
Pierce the woods, the earth ;
Somewhere listening to catch you, must be the one I want.

"Shake out, carols !
Solitary here — the night's carols !
Carols of lonesome love ! Death's carols !
Carols under that lagging, yellow, waning moon !
O, under that moon, where she droops almost down into the sea !
O reckless, despairing carols !

"But soft ! sink low ;
Soft ! let me just murmur ;
And do you wait a moment, you husky-noised
sea ;
For somewhere I believe I heard my mate responding to me,
So faint — I must be still, be still to listen ;
But not altogether still, for then she might not come immediately to me.

"Hither, my love !
Here I am ! Here !
With this just-sustained note I announce myself
to you ;
This gentle call is for you, my love, for you.

"Do not be decoyed elsewhere !
That is the whistle of the wind — it is not my
voice ;
That is the fluttering, the fluttering of the spray ;
Those are the shadows of leaves.

"O darkness ! O in vain !
O, I am very sick and sorrowful."

WALT WHITMAN.

TO THE CUCKOO.

HAIL, beauteous stranger of the grove !
Thou messenger of spring !
Now Heaven repairs thy rural seat,
And woods thy welcome sing.

What time the daisy decks the green,
Thy certain voice we hear.
Hast thou a star to guide thy path,
Or mark the rolling year ?

Delightful visitant ! with thee
I hail the time of flowers,
And hear the sound of music sweet
From birds among the bowers.

The school-boy, wandering through the wood
To pull the primrose gay,
Starts, the new voice of Spring to hear,
And imitates thy lay.

What time the pea puts on the bloom,
Thou fliest thy vocal vail,
An annual guest in other lands,
Another spring to hail.

Sweet bird ! thy bower is ever green,
Thy sky is ever clear ;
Thou hast no sorrow in thy song,
No winter in thy year !

O, could I fly, I'd fly with thee !
We'd make, with joyful wing,
Our annual visit o'er the globe,
Companions of the Spring.

JOHN LOGAN.

TO THE CUCKOO.

O BLITHE new-comer ! I have heard,
I hear thee and rejoice.
O cuckoo ! shall I call thee bird,
Or but a wandering voice ?

While I am lying on the grass
Thy twofold shout I hear ;
From hill to hill it seems to pass,
At once far off and near.

Though babbling only to the vail
Of sunshine and of flowers,
Thou bringest unto me a tale
Of visionary hours.

Thrice welcome, darling of the spring !
Even yet thou art to me
No bird, but an invisible thing,
A voice, a mystery ;

The same whom in my school-boy days
I listened to ; that cry
Which made me look a thousand ways,
In bush and tree and sky.

To seek thee did I often rove
Through woods and on the green ;
And thou wert still a hope, a love ;
Still longed for, never seen.

And I can listen to thee yet ;
Can lie upon the plain
And listen, till I do forget
That golden time again.

O blessed bird ! the earth we pace
Again appears to be
An unsubstantial, fairy place ;
That is fit home for thee !

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

THE BELFRY PIGEON.

On the cross-beam under the Old South bell
The nest of a pigeon is builded well.
In summer and winter that bird is there,
Out and in with the morning air ;
I love to see him track the street,
With his wary eye and active feet ;
And I often watch him as he springs,
Circling the steeple with easy wings,
Till across the dial his shade has passed,
And the belfry edge is gained at last ;
'Tis a bird I love, with its brooding note,
And the trembling throb in its mottled throat ;
There's a human look in its swelling breast,
And the gentle curve of its lowly crest ;
And I often stop with the fear I feel, —
He runs so close to the rapid wheel.

Whatever is rung on that noisy bell, —
Chime of the hour, or funeral knell, —
The dove in the belfry must hear it well.
When the tongue swings out to the midnight
moon,

When the sexton cheerly rings for noon,
When the clock strikes clear at morning light,
When the child is waked with "nine at night,"
When the chimes play soft in the Sabbath air,
Filling the spirit with tones of prayer, —
Whatever tale in the bell is heard,
He broods on his folded feet unstirred,
Or, rising half in his rounded nest,
He takes the time to smooth his breast,
Then drops again, with film'd eyes,
And sleeps as the last vibration dies.

Sweet bird ! I would that I could be
A hermit in the crowd like thee !
With wings to fly to wood and glen,
Thy lot, like mine, is cast with men ;
And daily, with unwilling feet,
I tread, like thee, the crowded street,
But, unlike me, when day is o'er,
Thou canst dismiss the world, and soar ;
Or, at a half-felt wish for rest,
Canst smooth the feathers on thy breast,
And drop, forgetful, to thy nest.

I would that in such wings of gold
I could my weary heart upfold ;
I would I could look down unmoved
(Unloving as I am unloved),
And while the world throngs on beneath,
Smooth down my cares and calmly breathe ;

And never sad with others' sadness,
 And never glad with others' gladness,
 Listen, unstirred, to knell or chime,
 And, lapped in quiet, bide my time.

NATHANIEL PARKER WILLIS.

THE SKYLARK.

BIRD of the wilderness,
 Blithesome and cumberless,
 Sweet be thy matin o'er moorland and lea !
 Emblem of happiness,
 Blest is thy dwelling-place, —
 O, to abide in the desert with thee !
 Wild is thy lay and loud
 Far in the downy cloud,
 Love gives it energy, love gave it birth.
 Where, on thy dewy wing,
 Where art thou journeying ?
 Thy lay is in heaven, thy love is on earth.
 O'er fell and fountain sheen,
 O'er moor and mountain green,
 O'er the red streamer that heralds the day,
 Over the cloudlet dim,
 Over the rainbow's rim,
 Musical cherub, soar, singing, away !
 Then, when the gloaming comes,
 Low in the heather blooms
 Sweet will thy welcome and bed of love be !
 Emblem of happiness,
 Blest is thy dwelling-place, —
 O, to abide in the desert with thee !

JAMES HOGG.

TO THE SKYLARK.

HAIL to thee, blithe spirit !
 Bird thou never wert,
 That from heaven, or near it,
 Pourest thy full heart
 In profuse strains of unpremeditated art.
 Higher still and higher
 From the earth thou springest,
 Like a cloud of fire ;
 The blue deep thou wingest,
 And singing still dost soar, and soaring ever singest.
 In the golden lightning
 Of the setting sun,
 O'er which clouds are brightening,
 Thou dost float and run ;
 Like an unbodied joy whose race is just begun.

The pale purple even
 Melts around thy flight ;
 Like a star of heaven,
 In the broad daylight
 Thou art unseen, but yet I hear thy shrill delight.

Keen as are the arrows
 Of that silver sphere,
 Whose intense lamp narrows
 In the white dawn clear,
 Until we hardly see, we feel that it is there.

All the earth and air
 With thy voice is loud,
 As, when night is bare,
 From one lonely cloud
 The moon rains out her beams, and heaven is overflowed.

What thou art we know not ;
 What is most like thee ?
 From rainbow clouds there flow not
 Drops so bright to see,
 As from thy presence showers a rain of melody.

Like a poet hidden
 In the light of thought,
 Singing hymns unbidden,
 Till the world is wrought
 To sympathy with hopes and fears it heeded not ;

Like a high-born maiden
 In a palace tower,
 Soothing her love-laden
 Soul in secret hour
 With music sweet as love, which overflows her bower ;

Like a glow-worm golden,
 In a dell of dew,
 Scattering unbeholden
 Its aerial hue
 Among the flowers and grass which screen it from the view ;

Like a rose embowered
 In its own green leaves,
 By warm winds dowered,
 Till the scent it gives Makes faint with too much sweet these heavy-winged thieves.

Sound of vernal showers
 On the twinkling grass,
 Rain-awakened flowers,
 All that ever was Joyous and fresh and clear thy music doth surpass.

Teach us, sprite or bird,
 What sweet thoughts are thine ;
 I have never heard
 Praise of love or wine
 That panted forth a flood of rapture so divine.

Chorus hymeneal,
 Or triumphant chant,
 Matched with thine, would be all
 But an empty vaunt, —
 A thing wherein we feel there is some hidden want.

What objects are the fountains
 Of thy happy strain ?
 What fields, or waves, or mountains ?
 What shapes of sky or plain ?
 What love of thine own kind ? What ignorance of pain !

With thy clear, keen joyance
 Languor cannot be :
 Shadow of annoyance
 Never come near thee :
 Thou lovest ; but ne'er knew love's sad satiety.

Waking or asleep,
 Thou of death must deem
 Things more true and deep
 Than we mortals dream,
 Or how could thy notes flow in such a crystal stream ?

We look before and after,
 And pine for what is not ;
 Our sincerest laughter
 With some pain is fraught ;
 Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest
 thought.

Yet if we could scorn
 Hate and pride and fear,
 If we were things born
 Not to shed a tear,
 I know not how thy joy we ever should come near.

Better than all measures
 Of delightful sound,
 Better than all treasures
 That in books are found,
 Thy skill to poet were, thou scorner of the ground !

Teach me half the gladness
 That thy brain must know,
 Such harmonious madness
 From my lips would flow,
 The world should listen then, as I am listening
 now.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

HARK, HARK ! THE LARK.

FROM "CYMBELINE," ACT II. SC. 3.

HARK, hark ! the lark at heaven's gate sings,
 And Phœbus 'gins arise,
 His steeds to water at those springs
 On chaliced flowers that lies ;
 And winking Mary-buds begin
 To ope their golden eyes ;
 With everything that pretty bin,
 My lady sweet, arise ;
 Arise, arise !

SHAKESPEARE.

TO THE SKYLARK.

ETHEREAL minstrel ! pilgrim of the sky !
 Dost thou despise the earth where cares abound ?
 Or, while the wings aspire, are heart and eye
 Both with thy nest upon the dewy ground ?
 Thy nest, which thou canst drop into at will,
 Those quivering wings composed, that music still !

To the last point of vision, and beyond,
 Mount, daring warbler ! — that love-prompted strain,
 'Twixt thee and thine a never-failing bond,
 Thrills not the less the bosom of the plain ;
 Yet mightst thou seem, proud privilege ! to sing
 All independent of the leafy spring.

Leave to the nightingale her shady wood ;
 A privacy of glorious light is thine,
 Whence thou dost pour upon the world a flood
 Of harmony, with instinct more divine ;
 Type of the wise, who soar, but never roam, —
 True to the kindred points of Heaven and Home !

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

ANSWER TO A CHILD'S QUESTION.

Do you ask what the birds say ? The sparrow,
 the dove,
 The linnet, and thrush say "I love, and I love !" —
 In the winter they're silent, the wind is so strong ;
 What it says I don't know, but it sings a loud
 song.
 But green leaves, and blossoms, and sunny warm weather,
 And singing and loving — all come back together.
 But the lark is so brimful of gladness and love,
 The green fields below him, the blue sky above,
 That he sings, and he sings, and forever sings he,
 "I love my Love, and my Love loves me."

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE.

THE ENGLISH ROBIN.

SEE yon robin on the spray ;
 Look ye how his tiny form
 Swells, as when his merry lay
 Gushes forth amid the storm.

Though the snow is falling fast,
 Specking o'er his coat with white, —
 Though loud roars the chilly blast,
 And the evening's lost in night, —

Yet from out the darkness dreary
 Cometh still that cheerful note ;
 Praiseful aye, and never weary,
 Is that little warbling throat.

Thank him for his lesson's sake,
 Thank God's gentle minstrel there,
 Who, when storms make others quake,
 Sings of days that brighter were.

HARRISON WEIR.

THE BOBOLINK.

BOBOLINK ! that in the meadow,
 Or beneath the orchard's shadow,
 Keepest up a constant rattle
 Joyous as my children's prattle,
 Welcome to the north again !
 Welcome to mine ear thy strain,
 Welcome to mine eye the sight
 Of thy buff, thy black and white !
 Brighter plumies may greet the sun
 By the banks of Amazon ;
 Sweeter tones may weave the spell
 Of enchanting Philomel ;
 But the tropic bird would fail,
 And the English nightingale,
 If we should compare their worth
 With thine endless, gushing mirth.

When the ides of May are past,
 June and summer nearing fast,
 While from depths of blue above
 Comes the mighty breath of love,
 Calling out each bud and flower
 With resistless, secret power, —
 Waking hope and fond desire,
 Kindling the erotic fire, —
 Filling youths' and maidens' dreams
 With mysterious, pleasing themes ;
 Then, amid the sunlight clear,
 Floating in the fragrant air,
 Thou dost fill each heart with pleasure
 By thy glad ecstatic measure.

A single note, so sweet and low,
 Like a full heart's overflow,
 Forms the prelude ; but the strain
 Gives us no such tone again ;
 For the wild and saucy song
 Leaps and skips the notes among,
 With such quick and sportive play,
 Ne'er was madder, merrier lay.

Gayest songster of the spring !
 Thy melodies before me bring
 Visions of some dream-built land,
 Where, by constant zephyrs fanned,
 I might walk the livelong day,
 Embosomed in perpetual May.
 Nor care nor fear thy bosom knows ;
 For thee a tempest never blows ;
 But when our northern summer's o'er,
 By Delaware's or Schuylkill's shore
 The wild rice lifts its airy head,
 And royal feasts for thee are spread.
 And when the winter threatens there,
 Thy tireless wings yet own no fear,
 But bear thee to more southern coasts,
 Far beyond the reach of frosts.

Bobolink ! still may thy gladness
 Take from me all taints of sadness ;
 Fill my soul with trust unshaken
 In that Being who has taken Care for every living thing, summer, winter, fall, and spring.

THOMAS HILL.

THE O'LINCOLN FAMILY.

A FLOCK of merry singing-birds were sporting in the grove :

Some were warbling cheerily, and some were making love :

There were Bobolincon, Wadolincon, Winterseeble, Conquedle, —

A livelier set was never led by tabor, pipe, or fiddle, —

Crying, " Phew, shew, Wadolincon, see, see,
 Bobolincon,

Down among the tickletops, hiding in the buttereups !

I know the saucy chap, I see his shining cap
 Bobbing in the clover there, — see, see, see ! "

Up flies Bobolincon, perching on an apple-tree, Startled by his rival's song, quickened by his raillery ;

Soon he spies the rogue afloat, curvetting in the air,

And merrily he turns about, and warns him to beware !

"T is you that would a-wooing go, down among the rushes O !

But wait a week, till flowers are cheery, — wait
a week, and, ere you marry,
Be sure of a house wherein to tarry !
Wadolink, Whiskodink, Tom Denny, wait, wait, wait !"

Every one 's a funny fellow ; every one 's a little mellow ;

Follow, follow, follow, follow, o'er the hill and in the hollow !

Merrily, merrily, there they hie ; now they rise and now they fly ;

They cross and turn, and in and out, and down in the middle, and wheel about, —

With a "Phew, shew, Wadolincon ! listen to me, Bobolincon ! —

Happy 's the wooing that 's speedily doing, that 's speedily doing,

That 's merry and over with the bloom of the clover !

Bobolincon, Wadolincon, Winterseoble, follow, follow me !

WILSON FLAGG.

THE TELLTALE.

ONCE, on a golden afternoon,
With radiant faces and hearts in tune,
Two fond lovers in dreaming mood
Threaded a rural solitude.

Wholly happy, they only knew
That the earth was bright and the sky was blue,
That light and beauty and joy and song
Charmed the way as they passed along :
The air was fragrant with woodland scents ;
The squirrel frisked on the roadside fence ;
And hovering near them, "Chee, chee, chink ?"

Queried the curious bobolink,
Pausing and peering with sidelong head,
As saucily questioning all they said ;
While the ox-eye danced on its slender stem,
And all glad nature rejoiced with them.
Over the odorous fields were strown
Wilting windrows of grass new-mown,
And rosy billows of clover bloom
Surged in the sunshine and breathed perfume.

Swinging low on a slender limb,
The sparrow warbled his wedding hymn,
And, balancing on a blackberry-brier,
The bobolink sung with his heart on fire, —
"Chink ? If you wish to kiss her, do !
Do it, do it ! You coward, you !
Kiss her ! Kiss, kiss her ! Who will see ?
Only we three ! we three ! we three !"

Under garlands of drooping vines,
Through dim vistas of sweet-breathed pines,
Past wide meadow-fields, lately mowed,
Wandered the indolent country road.

The lovers followed it, listening still,
And, loitering slowly, as lovers will,
Entered a low-roofed bridge that lay,
Dusky and cool, in their pleasant way.

Under its arch a smooth, brown stream
Silently glided, with glint and gleam,
Shaded by graceful elms that spread
Their verdurous canopy overhead, —
The stream so narrow, the boughs so wide,
They met and mingled across the tide.

Alders loved it, and seemed to keep
Patient watch as it lay asleep,

Mirroring clearly the trees and sky
And the flitting form of the dragon-fly,
Save where the swift-winged swallow played
In and out in the sun and shade,
And darting and circling in merry chase,
Dipped, and dimpled its clear dark face.

Fluttering lightly from brink to brink
Followed the garrulous bobolink,

Rallying loudly, with mirthful din,
The pair who lingered unseen within.

And when from the friendly bridge at last
Into the road beyond they passed,
Again beside them the tempter went,
Keeping the thread of his argument : —
"Kiss her ! kiss her ! chink-a-chee-chee !
I'll not mention it ! Don't mind me !

I'll be sentinel — I can see
All around from this tall birch-tree !"
But ah ! they noted — nor deemed it strange —
In his rollicking chorus a trifling change :
"Do it ! do it !" with might and main
Warbled the telltale — "Do it again !"

ANONYMOUS.

ROBERT OF LINCOLN.

MERRILY swinging on brier and weed,
Near to the nest of his little dame,
Over the mountain-side or mead,
Robert of Lincoln is telling his name :
Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
Spink, spank, spink ;
Snug and safe is that nest of ours,
Hidden among the summer flowers.
Chee, chee, chee.

Robert of Lincoln is gayly dressed,
Wearing a bright black wedding coat ;
White are his shoulders and white his crest,
Hear him call in his merry note :
Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
Spink, spank, spink ;

Look, what a nice new coat is mine,
 Sure there was never a bird so fine.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Robert of Lincoln's Quaker wife,
 Pretty and quiet, with plain brown wings,
 Passing at home a patient life,
 Broods in the grass while her husband sings:
 Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 Brood, kind creature ; you need not fear
 Thieves and robbers while I am here.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Modest and shy as a nun is she,
 One weak chirp is her only note,
 Braggart and prince of braggarts is he,
 Pouring boasts from his little throat :
 Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 Never was I afraid of man ;
 Catch me, cowardly knaves, if you can.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Six white eggs on a bed of hay,
 Flecked with purple, a pretty sight !
 There as the mother sits all day,
 Robert is singing with all his might :
 Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 Nice good wife, that never goes out,
 Keeping house while I frolic about.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Soon as the little ones chip the shell
 Six wide mouths are open for food ;
 Robert of Lincoln bestirs him well,
 Gathering seed for the hungry brood.
 Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 This new life is likely to be
 Hard for a gay young fellow like me.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Robert of Lincoln at length is made
 Sober with work, and silent with care ;
 Off is his holiday garment laid,
 Half forgotten that merry air,
 Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 Nobody knows but my mate and I
 Where our nest and our nestlings lie.
 Chee, chee, chee.

Summer wanes ; the children are grown ;
 Fun and frolic no more he knows ;
 Robert of Lincoln's a humdrum crone ;
 Off he flies, and we sing as he goes :

Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
 Spink, spank, spink ;
 When you can pipe that merry old strain,
 Robert of Lincoln, come back again.
 Chee, chee, chee.
 WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE HEATH-COCK.

Good morrow to thy sable beak
 And glossy plumage dark and sleek,
 Thy crimson moon and azure eye,
 Cock of the heath, so wildly shy :
 I see thee slyly cowering through
 That wiry web of silvery dew,
 That twinkles in the morning air,
 Like casements of my lady fair.

A maid there is in yonder tower,
 Who, peeping from her early bower,
 Half shows, like thee, her simple wile,
 Her braided hair and morning smile.
 The rarest things, with wayward will,
 Beneath the covert hide them still ;
 The rarest things to break of day
 Look shortly forth, and shrink away.

A fleeting moment of delight
 I sunned me in her cheering sight ;
 As short, I ween, the time will be
 That I shall parley hold with thee.
 Through Snowdon's mist red beams the day,
 The climbing herd-boy chants his lay,
 The gnat-flies dance their sunny ring, —
 Thou art already on the wing.

JOANNA BAILLIE

PERSEVERANCE.

A SWALLOW in the spring
 Came to our granary, and 'neath the eaves
 Essayed to make a nest, and there did bring Wet earth and straw and leaves.

Day after day she toiled
 With patient art, but ere her work was crowned,
 Some sad mishap the tiny fabric spoiled,
 And dashed it to the ground.

She found the ruin wrought,
 But, not cast down, forth from the place she flew,
 And with her mate fresh earth and grasses brought
 And built her nest anew.

But scarcely had she placed
 The last soft feather on its ample floor,
 When wicked hand, or chance, again laid waste
 And wrought the ruin o'er.

But still her heart she kept,
And toiled again, — and last night, hearing calls,
I looked, — and lo ! three little swallows slept
Within the earth-made walls.

What truth is here, O man !
Hath hope been smitten in its early dawn ?
Have clouds o'ercast thy purpose, trust, or plan ?
Have faith, and struggle on !

R. S. S. ANDROS.

THE WINGED WORSHIPPERS.

[Addressed to two swallows that flew into the Chauncy Place church during divine service.]

GAY, guiltless pair,
What seek ye from the fields of heaven ?
Ye have no need of prayer ;
Ye have no sins to be forgiven.

Why perch ye here,
Where mortals to their Maker bend ?
Can your pure spirits fear
The God ye never could offend ?

Ye never knew
The crimes for which we come to weep.
Penance is not for you,
Blessed wanderers of the upper deep.

To you 't is given
To wake sweet Nature's untaught lays ;
Beneath the arch of heaven
To chirp away a life of praise.

Then spread each wing
Far, far above, o'er lakes and lands,
And join the choirs that sing
In you blue dome not reared with hands.

Or, if ye stay,
To note the consecrated hour,
Teach me the airy way,
And let me try your envied power.

Above the crowd
On upward wings could I but fly,
I'd bathe in you bright cloud,
And seek the stars that gem the sky.

'T were heaven indeed
Through fields of trackless light to soar,
On Nature's charms to feed,
And Nature's own great God adore.

CHARLES SPRAGUE.

THE SWALLOW.

THE gorse is yellow on the heath,
The banks with speedwell flowers are gay,
The oaks are budding ; and beneath,
The hawthorn soon will bear the wreath,
The silver wreath of May.

The welcome guest of settled spring,
The swallow too is come at last ;
Just at sunset, when thrushes sing,
I saw her dash with rapid wing,
And hailed her as she passed.

Come, summer visitant, attach
To my reed-roof thy nest of clay,
And let my ear thy music catch,
Low twittering underneath the thatch,
At the gray dawn of day.

As fables tell, an Indian sage,
The Hindustani woods among,
Could in his desert hermitage,
As if 't were marked in written page,
Translate the wild bird's song.

I wish I did his power possess,
That I might learn, fleet bird, from thee,
What our vain systems only guess,
And know from what wild wilderness
Thou camest o'er the sea.

CHARLOTTE SMITH.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE SWALLOW

AND is the swallow gone ?
Who beheld it ?
Which way sailed it ?
Farewell bade it none ?

No mortal saw it go ; —
But who doth hear
Its summer cheer
As it flitteth to and fro ?

So the freed spirit flies !
From its surrounding clay
It steals away.
Like the swallow from the skies.

Whither ? wherefore doth it go ?
'T is all unknown :
We feel alone
That a void is left below.

WILLIAM HOWELL.

TO A NIGHTINGALE.

SWEET bird ! that sing'st away the early hours
Of winters past or coming, void of care ;
Well pleased with delights which present are,
Fair seasons, budding sprays, sweet-smelling
flowers :

To rocks, to springs, to rills, from leafy bowers
Thou thy Creator's goodness dost declare,
And what dear gifts on thee he did not spare,
A stain to human sense in sin that lowers.
What soul can be so sick which by thy songs
(Attired in sweetness) sweetly is not driven
Quite to forget earth's turmoils, spites, and wrongs,
And lift a reverent eye and thought to heaven ?
Sweet, artless songster ! thou my mind dost raise
To airs of spheres, — yes, and to angels' lays.

WILLIAM DRUMMOND.

THE NIGHTINGALE.

THE rose looks out in the valley,
And thither will I go !
To the rosy vale, where the nightingale
Sings his song of woe.

The virgin is on the river-side,
Culling the lemons pale :
Thither, — yes ! thither will I go,
To the rosy vale, where the nightingale
Sings his song of woe.

The fairest fruit her hand hath culled,
'T is for her lover all :
Thither, — yes ! thither will I go,
To the rosy vale, where the nightingale
Sings his song of woe.

In her hat of straw, for her gentle swain,
She has placed the lemons pale :
Thither, — yes ! thither will I go,
To the rosy vale, where the nightingale
Sings his song of woe.

From the Portuguese of GIL VICENTE.
Translation of JOHN BOWRING.

THE NIGHTINGALE.

PRIZE thou the nightingale,
Who soothes thee with his tale,
And wakes the woods around ;
A singing feather he, — a winged and wandering
sound ;

Whose tender carolling
Sets all ears listening
Unto that living lyre,
Whence flow the airy notes his ecstasies inspire ;

Whose shrill, capricious song
Breathes like a flute along,
With many a careless tone, —
Music of thousand tongues, formed by one tongue alone.

O charming creature rare !
Can aught with thee compare ?
Thou art all song, — thy breast
Thrills for one month o' the year, — is tranquil all the rest.

Thee wondrous we may call, —
Most wondrous this of all,
That such a tiny throat
Should wake so loud a sound, and pour so loud
a note.

From the Dutch of MARIA TESSERSCHADE VISSCHER
Translation of JOHN BOWRING.

PHILOMELA.

HARK ! ah, the nightingale !
The tawny-throated !
Hark ! from that moonlit cedar what a burst !
What triumph ! hark, — what pain !
O wanderer from a Grecian shore,
Still, — after many years, in distant lands, —
Still nourishing in thy bewildered brain
That wild, unquenched, deep-sunken, Old-World pain, —
Say, will it never heal ?
And can this fragrant lawn,
With its cool trees, and night,
And the sweet, tranquil Thames,
And moonshine, and the dew,
To thy racked heart and brain
Afford no balm ?

Dost thou to-night behold,
Here, through the moonlight on this English grass,

The unfriendly palace in the Thracian wild ?

Dost thou again peruse,
With hot cheeks and seared eyes,
The too clear web, and thy dumb sister's shame ?

Dost thou once more essay
Thy flight ; and feel come over thee,
Poor fugitive ! the feathery change
Once more ; and once more make resound,
With love and hate, triumph and agony,
Lone Daulis, and the high Cephisian vale ?
Listen, Eugenia, —
How thick the bursts come crowding through the leaves !

Again — thou hearest !
Eternal passion !
Eternal pain !

MATTHEW ARNOLD.

TO THE NIGHTINGALE.

As it fell upon a day,
 In the merry month of May,
 Sitting in a pleasant shade
 Which a grove of myrtles made,
 Beasts did leap, and birds did sing,
 Trees did grow, and plants did spring ;
 Everything did banish moan,
 Save the nightingale alone.
 She, poor bird, as all forlorn,
 Leaned her breast up-till a thorn ;
 And there sung the doleful'st ditty
 That to hear it was great pity.
 Fie, fie, fie ! now would she cry ;
 Teru, teru, by and by ;
 That, to hear her so complain,
 Scarce I could from tears refrain ;
 For her griefs, so lively shown,
 Made me think upon mine own.
 Ah ! (thought I) thou mourn'st in vain ;
 None takes pity on thy pain ;
 Senseless trees, they cannot hear thee ;
 Ruthless bears, they will not cheer thee ;
 King Pandion, he is dead ;
 All thy friends are lapped in lead :
 All thy fellow-birds do sing,
 Careless of thy sorrowing !
 Whilst as fickle Fortune smiled,
 Thou and I were both beguiled,
 Every one that flatters thee
 Is no friend in misery.
 Words are easy, like the wind ;
 Faithful friends are hard to find.
 Every man will be thy friend
 Whilst thou hast wherewith to spend ;
 But, if stores of crowns be scant,
 No man will supply thy want.
 If that one be prodigal,
 Bountiful they will him call ;
 And, with such-like flattering,
 " Pity but he were a king."
 If he be addict to vice,
 Quickly him they will entice ;
 But if Fortune once do frown,
 Then farewell his great renown :
 They that fawned on him before,
 Use his company no more.
 He that is thy friend indeed,
 He will help thee in thy need ;
 If thou sorrow, he will weep,
 If thou wake, he cannot sleep.
 Thus, of every grief in heart,
 He with thee doth bear a part.
 These are certain signs to know
 Faithful friend from flattering foe.

RICHARD BARNFIELD.

THE PELICAN.

FROM "THE PELICAN ISLAND."

At early dawn I marked them in the sky,
 Catching the morning colors on their plumes ; —
 Not in voluptuous pastime revelling there,
 Among the rosy clouds, while orient heaven
 Flamed like the opening gates of Paradise,
 Whence issued forth the angel of the sun,
 And gladdened nature with returning day :
 — Eager for food, their searching eyes they fixed
 On ocean's unrolled volume, from a height
 That brought immensity within their scope ;
 Yet with such power of vision looked they down,
 As though they watched the shell-fish slowly gliding
 O'er sunken rocks, or climbing trees of coral.
 On indefatigable wing upheld,
 Breath, pulse, existence, seemed suspended in
 them :
 They were as pictures painted on the sky ;
 Till suddenly, aslant, away they shot,
 Like meteors changed from stars to gleams of lightning,
 And struck upon the deep, where, in wild play,
 Their quarry floundered, unsuspecting harm ;
 With terrible voracity, they plunged
 Their heads among the affrighted shoals, and beat
 A tempest on the surges with their wings,
 Till flashing clouds of foam and spray concealed
 them.
 Nimble they seized and secreted their prey,
 Alive and wriggling in the elastic net,
 Which Nature hung beneath their grasping beaks,
 Till, swollen with captures, the unwieldy burden
 Clogged their slow flight, as heavily to land
 These mighty hunters of the deep returned.
 There on the cragged cliffs they perched at ease,
 Gorging their hapless victims one by one ;
 Then, full and weary, side by side they slept,
 Till evening roused them to the chase again.

Love found that lonely couple on their isle,
 And soon surrounded them with blithe companions.

The noble birds, with skill spontaneous, framed
 A nest of reeds among the giant-grass,
 That waved in lights and shadows o'er the soil.
 There, in sweet thralldom, yet unweening why,
 The patient dam, who ne'er till now had known
 Parental instinct, brooded o'er her eggs,
 Long ere she found the curious secret out,
 That life was hatching in their brittle shells.
 Then, from a wild rapacious bird of prey,
 Tamed by the kindly process, she became
 That gentlest of all living things, — a mother ;
 Gentlest while yearning o'er her naked young,
 Fiercest when stirred by anger to defend them.

Her mate himself the softening power confessed,
 Forgot his sloth, restrained his appetite,
 And ranged the sky and fished the stream for her.
 Or, when c'erwearied Nature forced her off
 To shake her torpid feathers in the breeze,
 And bathe her bosom in the cooling flood,
 He took her place, and felt through every nerve,
 While the plump nestlings throbbed against his heart,

The tenderness that makes the vulture mild ;
 Yea, half unwillingly his post resigned,
 When, homesick with the absence of an hour,
 She hurried back, and drove him from her seat
 With pecking bill and cry of fond distress,
 Answered by him with murmurs of delight,
 Whose gutturals harsh to her were love's own music.

Then, settling down, like foam upon the wave,
 White, flickering, effervescent, soon subsiding,
 Her ruffled pinions smoothly she composed ;
 And, while beneath the comfort of her wings,
 Her crowded progeny quite filled the nest,
 The halcyon sleeps not sounder, when the wind
 Is breathless, and the sea without a curl,
 — Nor dreams the halcyon of serener days,
 Or nights more beautiful with silent stars,
 Than in that hour, the mother pelican,
 When the warm tumults of affection sunk
 Into calm sleep, and dreams of what they were, —
 Dreams more delicious than reality.

He sentinel beside her stood, and watched
 With jealous eye the raven in the clouds,
 And the rank sea-mews wheeling round the cliffs.
 Woe to the reptile then that ventured nigh !
 The snap of his tremendous bill was like
 Death's scythe, down-cutting everything it struck.

The heedless lizard, in his gambols, peeped
 Upon the guarded nest, from out the flowers,
 But paid the instant forfeit of his life ;
 Nor could the serpent's subtlety elude
 Capture, when gliding by, nor in defence
 Might his malignant fangs and venom save him.

Erelong the thriving brood outgrew their cradle,
 Ran through the grass, and dabbled in the pools ;
 No sooner denizens of earth than made
 Free both of air and water ; day by day,
 New lessons, exercises, and amusements
 Employed the old to teach, the young to learn.
 Now floating on the blue lagoon behold them ;
 The sire and dam in swan-like beauty steering,
 Their cygnets following through the foamy wake,
 Picking the leaves of plants, pursuing insects,
 Or catching at the bubbles as they broke :
 Till on some minor fry, in reedy shallows,
 With flapping pinions and unsparing beaks,

The well-taught scholars plied their double art,
 To fish in troubled waters, and secure
 The petty captives in their maiden pouches ;
 Then hurried with their banquet to the shore,
 With feet, wings, breast, half swimming and half flying.

But when their pens grew strong to fight the storm,

And buffet with the breakers on the reef,
 The parents put them to severer proof :
 On beetling rocks the little ones were marshalled ;
 There, by endearments, stripes, example, urged
 To try the void convexity of heaven,
 And plough the ocean's horizontal field.

Timorous at first they fluttered round the verge,
 Balanced and furled their hesitating wings,
 Then put them forth again with steadier aim ;
 Now, gaining courage as they felt the wind
 Dilate their feathers, fill their airy frames
 With buoyancy that bore them from their feet,
 They yielded all their burden to the breeze,
 And sailed and soared where'er their guardians led ;
 Ascending, hovering, wheeling, or alighting,
 They searched the deep in quest of nobler game
 Than yet their inexperience had encountered ;
 With these they battled in that element,
 Where wings or fins were equally at home,
 Till, conquerors in many a desperate strife,
 They dragged their spoils to land, and gorged at leisure.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

TO A WATERFOWL.

WHITHER, midst falling dew,
 While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
 Far, through their rosy depths, dost thou pursue
 Thy solitary way ?

Vainly the fowler's eye
 Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong,
 As, darkly painted on the crimson sky,
 Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink
 Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide,
 Or where the rocking billows rise and sink
 On the chafed ocean-side ?

There is a Power whose care
 Teaches thy way along that pathless coast, —
 The desert and illimitable air, —
 Lone wandering, but not lost.

All day thy wings have fanned,
 At that far height, the cold, thin atmosphere,
 Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land,
 Though the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end ;
 Soon shalt thou find a summer home, and rest,
 And scream among thy fellows ; reeds shall bend,
 Soon, o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven
 Hath swallowed up thy form ; yet, on my heart
 Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,
 And shall not soon depart :

He who, from zone to zone,
 Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
 In the long way that I must tread alone,
 Will lead my steps aright.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

TO A BIRD

THAT HAUNTED THE WATERS OF LAAKEN IN THE WINTER.

O MELANCHOLY bird, a winter's day
 Thou standest by the margin of the pool,
 And, taught by God, dost thy whole being school
 To patience, which all evil can allay.
 God has appointed thee the fish thy prey,
 And given thyself a lesson to the fool
 Unthrifty, to submit to moral rule,
 And his unthinking course by thee to weigh.
 There need not schools nor the professor's chair,
 Though these be good, true wisdom to impart :
 He who has not enough for these to spare,
 Of time or gold, may yet amend his heart,
 And teach his soul by brooks and rivers fair, —
 Nature is always wis in every part.

EDWARD HOVEL, LORD THURLOW.

THE SANDPIPER.

ACROSS the narrow beach we flit,
 One little sandpiper and I ;
 And fast I gather, bit by bit,
 The scattered driftwood bleached and dry.
 The wild waves reach their hands for it,
 The wild wind raves, the tide runs high,
 As up and down the beach we flit, —
 One little sandpiper and I.

Above our heads the sullen clouds
 Scud black and swift across the sky :
 Like silent ghosts in misty shrouds
 Stand out the white light-houses high.
 Almost as far as eye can reach
 I see the close-reefed vessels fly,
 As fast we flit along the beach, —
 One little sandpiper and I.

I watch him as he skims along,
 Uttering his sweet and mournful cry ;
 He starts not at my fitful song,
 Or flash of fluttering drapery ;
 He has no thought of any wrong,
 He scans me with a fearless eye.
 Stanch friends are we, well tried and strong,
 The little sandpiper and I.

Comrade, where wilt thou be to-night
 When the loosed storm breaks furiously ?
 My driftwood-fire will burn so bright !
 To what warm shelter canst thou fly ?
 I do not fear for thee, though wroth
 The tempest rushes through the sky :
 For are we not God's children both,
 Thou, little sandpiper, and I ?

CELIA THAXTER.

THE LITTLE BEACH BIRD.

THOU little bird, thou dweller by the sea,
 Why takest thou its melancholy voice ?
 Why with that boding cry
 O'er the waves dost thou fly ?
 O, rather, bird, with me
 Through the fair land rejoice !

Thy flitting form comes ghostly dim and pale,
 As driven by a beating storm at sea ;
 Thy cry is weak and scared,
 As if thy mates had shared
 The doom of us. Thy wail —
 What does it bring to me ?

Thou call'st along the sand, and haunt'st the surge,
 Restless and sad ; as if, in strange accord
 With motion and with roar
 Of waves that drive to shore,
 One spirit did ye urge —
 The Mystery — the Word.

Of thousands thou both sepulchre and pall,
 Old ocean, art ! A requiem o'er the dead,
 From out thy gloomy cells,
 A tale of mourning tells, —
 Tells of man's woe and fall,
 His sinless glory fled.

Then turn thee, little bird, and take thy flight
 Where the complaining sea shall sadness bring Thy spirit nevermore.
 Come, quit with me the shore,
 For gladness and the light,
 Where birds of summer sing.

RICHARD HENRY DANA

THE STORMY PETREL.

A THOUSAND miles from land are we,
Tossing about on the stormy sea, —
From billow to bounding billow cast,
Like fleecy snow on the stormy blast.
The sails are scattered abroad like weeds ;
The strong masts shake like quivering reeds ;
The mighty cables and iron chains,
The hull, which all earthly strength disdains, —
They strain and they crack ; and hearts like stone
Their natural, hard, proud strength disown.

Up and down ! — up and down !
From the base of the wave to the billow's crown,
And amidst the flashing and feathery foam
The stormy petrel finds a home, —
A home, if such a place may be
For her who lives on the wide, wide sea,
On the craggy ice, in the frozen air,
And only seeketh her rocky lair
To warm her young, and to teach them to spring
At once o'er the waves on their stormy wing !

O'er the deep ! — o'er the deep !
Where the whale and the shark and the swordfish sleep, —
Outflying the blast and the driving rain,
The petrel telleth her tale — in vain ;
For the mariner curseth the warning bird
Which bringeth him news of the storm unheard !
Ah ! thus does the prophet of good or ill
Meet hate from the creatures he serveth still ;
Yet he ne'er falters, — so, petrel, spring
Once more o'er the waves on thy stormy wing !

BRYAN W. PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

LINES TO THE STORMY PETREL.

THE lark sings for joy in her own loved land,
In the furrowed field, by the breezes fanned ;
And so revel we
In the furrowed sea,
As joyous and glad as the lark can be.

On the placid breast of the inland lake
The wild duck delights her pastime to take ;
But the petrel braves
The wild ocean waves,
His wing in the foaming billow he laves.

The halcyon loves in the noontide beam
To follow his sport on the tranquil stream :
He fishes at ease
In the summer breeze,
But we go angling in stormiest seas.

No song-note have we but a piping cry,
That blends with the storm when the wind is high.
When the land-birds wail
We sport in the gale,
And merrily over the ocean we sail.

THE EAGLE.

A FRAGMENT.

HE clasps the crag with hooked hands ;
Close to the sun in lonely lands,
Ringed with the azure world, he stands.

The wrinkled sea beneath him crawls ;
He watches from his mountain walls,
And like a thunderbolt he falls.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE OWL.

IN the hollow tree, in the old gray tower,
The spectral owl doth dwell ;
Dull, hated, despised, in the sunshine hour,
But at dusk he's abroad and well !
Not a bird of the forest e'er mates with him ;
All mock him outright by day ;
But at night, when the woods grow still and dim,
The boldest will shrink away !
*O, when the night falls, and roosts the fowl,
Then, then, is the reign of the horned owl !*

And the owl hath a bride, who is fond and bold,
And loveth the wood's deep gloom ;
And, with eyes like the shine of the moonstone cold,

She awaiteth her ghastly groom ;
Not a feather she moves, not a carol she sings,
As she waits in her tree so still ;
But when her heart heareth his flapping wings,
She hoots out her welcome shrill !
*O, when the moon shines, and dogs do howl,
Then, then, is the joy of the horned owl !*

Mourn not for the owl, nor his gloomy plight !
The owl hath his share of good ;
If a prisoner he be in the broad daylight,
He is lord in the dark greenwood !
Nor lonely the bird, nor his ghastly mate,
They are each unto each a pride ;
Thrice fonder, perhaps, since a strange, dark fate
Hath rent them from all beside !

*So, when the night falls, and dogs do howl,
Sing, ho ! for the reign of the horned owl !
We know not always
Who are kings by day,
But the king of the night is the bold brown owl !*

BRYAN W. PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

TO THE HUMBLEBEE.

BURLY, dozing humblebee !
 Where thou art is clime for me ;
 Let them sail for Porto Rique,
 Far-off heats through seas to seek,
 I will follow thee alone,
 Thou animated torrid zone !
 Zigzag steerer, desert cheerer,
 Let me chase thy waving lines ;
 Keep me nearer, me thy hearer,
 Singing over shrubs and vines.

Insect lover of the sun,
 Joy of thy dominion !
 Sailor of the atmosphere ;
 Swimmer through the waves of air,
 Voyager of light and noon,
 Epicurean of June !
 Wait, I prithee, till I come
 Within earshot of thy hum, —
 All without is martyrdom.

When the south-wind, in May days,
 With a net of shining haze
 Silvers the horizon wall ;
 And, with softness touching all,
 Tints the human countenance
 With the color of romance ;
 And infusing subtle heats
 Turns the sod to violets, —
 Thou in sunny solitudes,
 Rover of the underwoods,
 The green silence dost displace
 With thy mellow breezy bass.

Hot midsummer's petted crone,
 Sweet to me thy drowsy tone
 Tells of countless sunny hours,
 Long days, and solid banks of flowers ;
 Of gulfs of sweetness without bound,
 In Indian wildernesses found ;
 Of Syrian peace, immortal leisure,
 Firmest cheer, and birdlike pleasure.

Aught unsavory or unclean
 Hath my insect never seen ;
 But violets, and bilberry bells,
 Maple sap, and daffodils,
 Grass with green flag half-mast high,
 Succory to match the sky,
 Columbine with horn of honey,
 Scented fern, and agrimony,
 Clover, catchfly, adder's-tongue,
 And brier-roses, dwelt among :
 All beside was unknown waste,
 All was picture as he passed.
 Wiser far than human seer,
 Yellow-breeched philosopher,

Seeing only what is fair,
 Sipping only what is sweet,
 Thou dost mock at fate and care,
 Leave the chaff and take the wheat.
 When the fierce northwestern blast
 Cools sea and land so far and fast, —
 Thou already slumberest deep ;
 Woe and want thou canst outsleep ;
 Want and woe, which torture us,
 Thy sleep makes ridiculous.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON

A SOLILOQUY :

OCCASIONED BY THE CHIRPING OF A GRASSHOPPER.

HAPPY insect ! ever blest
 With a more than mortal rest,
 Rosy dewes the leaves among,
 Humble joys, and gentle song !
 Wretched poet ! ever curst
 With a life of lives the worst,
 Sad despondence, restless fears,
 Endless jealousies and tears.

In the burning summer thou
 Warblest on the verdant bough,
 Meditating cheerful play,
 Mindless of the piercing ray ;
 Scorched in Cupid's fervors, I
 Ever weep and ever die.

Proud to gratify thy will,
 Ready Nature waits thee still ;
 Balmy wines to thee she pours,
 Weeping through the dewy flowers,
 Rich as those by Hebe given
 To the thirsty songs of heaven.

Yet, alas, we both agree.
 Miserable thou like me !
 Each, alike, in youth rehearses
 Gentle strains and tender verses ;
 Ever wandering far from home,
 Mindless of the days to come
 (Such as aged Winter brings Trembling on his icy wings),
 Both alike at last we die ;
 Thou art starved, and so am I !

WALTER HARTE

THE GRASSHOPPER.

HAPPY insect ! what can be
 In happiness compared to thee ?
 Fed with nourishment divine,
 The dewy morning's gentle wine !
 Nature waits upon thee still,
 And thy verdant cup does fill ;
 'Tis filled wherever thou dost tread,
 Nature's self's thy Ganymede.

Thou dost drink and dance and sing,
 Happier than the happiest king !
 All the fields which thou dost see,
 All the plants belong to thee ;
 All the summer hours produce,
 Fertile made with early juice.
 Man for thee does sow and plough,
 Farmer he, and landlord thou !
 Thou dost innocently joy,
 Nor does thy luxury destroy.
 The shepherd gladly heareth thee,
 More harmonious than he.
 Thee country hinds with gladness hear,
 Prophet of the ripened year !
 Thee Phœbus loves, and does inspire ;
 Phœbus is himself thy sire.
 To thee, of all things upon earth,
 Life is no longer than thy mirth.
 Happy insect ! happy thou
 Dost neither age nor winter know ;
 But when thou 'st drunk and danced and sung
 Thy fill, the flowery leaves among, (Voluptuous and wise withal, Epicurean animal !)
 Sated with thy summer feast,
 Thou retir'st to endless rest.

From the Greek of ANACRION, Translation of ABRAHAM COWLEY.

THE GRASSHOPPER AND CRICKET.

THE poetry of earth is never dead ;
 When all the birds are faint with the hot sun
 And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
 From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead.
 That is the grasshopper's, — he takes the lead
 In summer luxury, — he has never done
 With his delights ; for, when tired out with fun,
 He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed.
 The poetry of earth is ceasing never.
 On a lone winter evening, when the frost
 Has wrought a silence, from the stove there shrills
 The cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
 And seems, to one in drowsiness half lost,
 The grasshopper's among some grassy hills.

JOHN KEATS.

TO THE GRASSHOPPER AND CRICKET.

GREEN little vaulter in the sunny grass,
 Catching your heart up at the feel of June, —
 Sole voice that 's heard amidst the lazy noon,
 When even the bees lag at the summoning brass ;
 And you, warm little housekeeper, who class
 With those who think the candles come too soon,
 Loving the fire, and with your tricksome tune
 Nick the glad silent moments as they pass !

O sweet and tiny cousins, that belong,
 One to the fields, the other to the hearth,
 Both have your sunshine ; both, though small,
 are strong
 At your clear hearts ; and both seem given to earth
 To sing in thoughtful ears this natural song, —
 In doors and out, summer and winter, mirth.

LEIGH HUNT

THE CRICKET.

LITTLE inmate, full of mirth,
 Chirping on my kitchen hearth,
 Wheresoe'er be thine abode
 Always harbinger of good,
 Pay me for thy warm retreat
 With a song more soft and sweet ;
 In return thou shalt receive
 Such a strain as I can give.

Thus thy praise shall be expressed,
 Inoffensive, welcome guest !
 While the rat is on the scout,
 And the mouse with curious snout,
 With what vermin else infest
 Every dish, and spoil the best ;
 Frisking thus before the fire,
 Thou hast all thy heart's desire.

Though in voice and shape they be Formed as if akin to thee,
 Thou surpassest, happier far,
 Happiest grasshoppers that are ;
 Theirs is but a summer's song, —
 Thine endures the winter long,
 Unimpaired and shrill and clear,
 Melody throughout the year.

Neither night nor dawn of day
 Puts a period to thy play
 Sing then — and extend thy span
 Far beyond the date of man.
 Wretched man, whose years are spent
 In repining discontent,
 Lives not, aged though he be,
 Half a span, compared with thee.

WILLIAM COWPER

TO AN INSECT.

I LOVE to hear thine earnest voice,
 Wherever thou art hid,
 Thou testy little dogmatist,
 Thou pretty Katydid !
 Thou mindest me of gentlefolks, —
 Old gentlefolks are they, —
 Thou say'st an undisputed thing
 In such a solemn way.

Thou art a female, Katydid !
 I know it by the trill
 That quivers through thy piercing notes,
 So petulant and shrill.
 I think there is a knot of you
 Beneath the hollow tree, —
 A knot of spinster Katydids, —
 Do Katydids drink tea ?

O, tell me where did Katy live,
 And what did Katy do !
 And was she very fair and young,
 And yet so wicked too ?
 Did Katy love a naughty man,
 Or kiss more cheeks than one ?
 I warrant Katy did no more
 Than many a Kate has done.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

TO A LOUSE,

ON SEEING ONE ON A LADY'S BONNET AT CHURCH.

HA ! whare ye gaun, ye crawlin' ferlie ?
 Your impudence protects you sairly :
 I canna say but ye strunt rarely
 Owre gauze an' lace ;
 Though, faith ! I fear ye dine but sparely
 On sic a place.

Ye ugly, creepin', blastit wonner,
 Detested, shunned by saunt an' sinner,
 How dare you set your fit upon her,
 Sae fine a lady ?
 Gae somewhere else, and seek your dinner
 On some poor body.

Swith, in some beggar's haffet squattle ;
 There ye may creep and sprawl and sprattle
 Wi' ither kindred, jumping cattle,
 In shoals and nations :
 Whare horn nor bane ne'er daur unsettle
 Your thick plantations.

Now hand you there, ye 're out o' sight,
 Below the fatt'rels, snug an' tight ;
 Na, faith ye yet ! ye 'll no be right
 Till ye 've got on it,
 The very tapinost tow'ring height
 O' Miss's bonnet.

My sooth ; right bauld ye set your nose out,
 As plump and gray as ony grozet ;
 O for some rank, mercurial rozet,
 Or fell, red smeddum !
 I'd gie you sic a hearty dose o't,
 Wad dress your droddum !

I wad na been surprised to spy
 You on an auld wife's flannen toy ;
 Or aiblins some bit duddie boy,
 On 's wyliecoat ;
 But Miss's fine Lunardi, fie !
 How daur ye do 't ?

O Jenny, dinna toss your head,
 An' set your beauties a' abroad !
 Ye little ken what cursèd speed
 The blastie 's makin' !
 Thae winks and finger-ends, I dread,
 Are notice takin' !

O wad some power the giftie gie us
 To see oursel's as ithers see us !
 It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
 And foolish notion :
 What airs in dress an' gait wad lea'e us,
 And ev'n devotion !

ROBERT BURNS.

REMONSTRANCE WITH THE SNAILS.

YE little snails,
 With slippery tails,
 Who noiselessly travel
 Along this gravel,
 By a silvery path of slime unsightly,
 I learn that you visit my pea-rows nightly.
 Felonious your visit, I guess !
 And I give you this warning,
 That, every morning,
 I'll strictly examine the pods ;
 And if one I hit on,
 With slaver or spit on,
 Your next meal will be with the gods.

I own you're a very ancient race,
 And Greece and Babylon were amid ;
 You have tenanted many a royal dome,
 And dwelt in the oldest pyramid ;
 The source of the Nile ! — O, you have been there !
 In the ark was your floodless bed ;
 On the moonless night of Marathon
 You crawled o'er the mighty dead ;
 But still, though I reverence your ancestries,
 I don't see why you should nibble my peas.

The meadows are yours, — the hedgerow and
 brook,
 You may bathe in their dews at morn ;
 By the aged sea you may sound your shells,
 On the mountains erect your horn ;
 The fruits and the flowers are your rightful dowers,
 Then why — in the name of wonder —
 Should my six pea-rows be the only cause
 To excite your midnight plunder ?

I have never disturbed your slender shells ;
 You have hung round my aged walk ;
 And each might have sat, till he died in his fat,
 Beneath his own cabbage-stalk :
 But now you must fly from the soil of your sires ;
 Then put on your liveliest crawl,
 And think of your poor little snails at home,
 Now orphans or emigrants all.

Utensils domestic and civil and social
 I give you an evening to pack up ;
 But if the moon of this night does not rise on your flight,
 To-morrow I'll hang each man Jack up.
 You'll think of my peas and your thievish tricks,
 With tears of slime, when crossing the Styx.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

THE frugal snail, with forecast of repose,
 Carries his house with him where'er he goes ;
 Peeps out, — and if there comes a shower of rain,
 Retreats to his small domicile again.
 Touch but a tip of him, a horn, — 't is well, —
 He curls up in his sanctuary shell.
 He's his own landlord, his own tenant ; stay
 Long as he will, he dreads no Quarter Day.
 Himself he boards and lodges ; both invites
 And feasts himself ; sleeps with himself o' nights.
 He spares the upholsterer trouble to procure
 Chattels ; himself is his own furniture,
 And his sole riches. Wheresoe'er he roam, — Knock when you will, — he's sure to be at home.

CHARLES LAMB.

TO A MOSQUITO.

FAIR insect, that, with thread-like legs spread out,
 And blood-extracting bill, and filmy wing,
 Dost murmur, as thou slowly sail'st about,
 In pitiless ears, full many a plaintive thing,
 And tell'st how little our large veins should bleed,
 Would we but yield them freely in thy need ;
 I call thee stranger, for the town, I ween,
 Has not the honor of so proud a birth ;
 Thou com'st from Jersey meadows, broad and
 green,
 The offspring of the gods, though born on earth.

At length thy pinions fluttered in Broadway,
 Ah, there were fairy steps, and white necks kissed
 By wanton airs, and eyes whose killing ray
 Shone through the snowy veils like stars through mist !
 And, fresh as morn, on many a cheek and chin.
 Bloomed the bright blood through the transparent skin.

O, these were sights to touch an anchorite ! —
 What, do I hear thy slender voice complain ?
 Thou wailest, when I talk of beauty's light,
 As if it brought the memory of pain :
 Thou art a wayward being, — well, come near,
 And pour thy tale of sorrow in my ear.

What say'st thou, slanderer ? " Rouge makes thee sick,
 And China bloom at best is sorry food ;
 And Rowland's Kalydor, if laid on thick,
 Poisons the thirsty wretch that bores for blood " ?
 Go, 't was a just reward that met thy crime, —
 But shun the sacrilege another time.

That bloom was made to look at, not to touch,
 To worship, not approach, that radiant white ;
 And well might sudden vengeance light on such
 As dared, like thee, most impiously to bite.
 Thou shouldst have gazed at distance, and admired,
 Murmured thy adoration, and retired.

Thou'rt welcome to the town ; but why come here
 To bleed a brother poet, gaunt like thee ?
 Alas ! the little blood I have is dear,
 And thin will be the banquet drawn from me.
 Look round, — the pale-eyed sisters, in my cell,
 Thy old acquaintance, Song and Famine, dwell.

Try some plump alderman : and suck the blood
 Enriched with generous wine and costly meat ;
 In well-filled skins, soft as thy native mud,
 Fix thy light pump, and raise thy freckled feet.
 Go to the men for whom, in ocean's halls,
 The oyster breeds, and the green turtle sprawls.

There corks are drawn, and the red vintage flows,
 To fill the swelling veins for thee ; and now
 The ruddy cheek, and now the ruddier nose,
 Shall tempt thee as thou flittest round the
 brow ;

And when the hour of sleep its quiet brings,
 No angry hand shall rise to brush thy wings.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

PAN IN LOVE.

NAY! if you will not sit upon my knee,
Lie on that bank, and listen while I play
A sylvan song upon these reedy pipes.
In the full moonrise as I lay last night
Under the alders on Peneus' banks,
Dabbling my hoofs in the cool stream that welled
Wine-dark with gleamy ripples round their roots,
I made the song the while I shaped the pipes.
'T is all of you and love, as you shall hear.
The drooping lilies, as I sang it, heaved
Upon their broad green leaves, and underneath,
Swift silvery fishes, poised on quivering fins,
Hung motionless to listen; in the grass
The crickets ceased to shrill their tiny bells;
And even the nightingale, that all the eve,
Hid in the grove's deep green, had throbbled and thrilled,

Paused in his strain of love to list to mine.
Bacchus is handsome, but such songs as this
He cannot shape, and better loves the clash
Of brazen cymbals than my reedy pipes.
Fair as he is without, he's coarse within, —
Gross in his nature, loving noise and wine,
And, tipsy, half the time goes reeling round
Leaning on old Silenus' shoulders fat.
But I have scores of songs that no one knows,
Not even Apollo, no, nor Mercury, —
Their strings can never sing like my sweet pipes, —

Some, that will make fierce tigers rub their fur
Against the oak-trunks for delight, or stretch
Their plump sides for my pillow on the sward.
Some, that will make the satyrs' clattering hoofs
Leap when they hear, and from their noonday dreams

Start up to stamp a wild and frolic dance
In the green shadows. Ay! and better songs,
Made for the delicate nice ears of nymphs,
Which while I sing my pipes shall imitate
The droning bass of honey-seeking bees,
The tinkling tenor of clear pebbly streams,
The breezy alto of the alder's sighs,
And all the airy sounds that lull the grove
When noon falls fast asleep among the hills.
Nor only these, — for I can pipe to you
Songs that will make the slippery vipers pause,
And stay the stags to gaze with their great eyes;
Such songs — and you shall hear them if you will —

'That Bacchus' self would give his hide to hear..
If you'll but love me every day, I'll bring
The coyest flowers, such as you never saw,
To deck you with. I know their secret nooks, —
They cannot hide themselves away from Pan.
And you shall have rare garlands; and your bed
Of fragrant mosses shall be sprinkled o'er

With violets like your eyes, — just for a kiss.
Love me, and you shall do whate'er you like,
And shall be tended wheresoe'er you go,
And not a beast shall hurt you, — not a toad
But at your bidding give his jewel up.
The speckled shining snakes shall never sting,
But twist like bracelets round your rosy arms,
And keep your bosom cool in the hot noon.
You shall have berries ripe of every kind,
And luscious peaches, and wild nectarines,
And sun-flecked apricots, and honeyed dates,
And wine from bee-stung grapes, drunk with the sun

(Such wine as Bacchus never tasted yet).
And not a poisonous plant shall have the power
To tetter your white flesh, if you'll love Pan.
And then I'll tell you tales that no one knows;
Of what the pines talk in the summer nights,
When far above you hear them murmuring,
As they sway whispering to the lifting breeze;
And what the storm shrieks to the struggling oaks

As it flies through them hurrying to the sea
From mountain crags and cliffs. Or, when you're sad,

I'll tell you tales that solemn cypresses
Have whispered to me. There's not anything
Hid in the woods and dales and dark ravines,
Shadowed in dripping caves, or by the shore,
Slipping from sight, but I can tell to you.
Plump, dull-eared Bacchus, thinking of himself,
Never can catch a syllable of this;
But with my shaggy ear against the grass
I hear the secrets hidden underground,
And know how in the inner forge of Earth,
The pulse-like hammers of creation beat.
Old Pan is ugly, rough, and rude to see,
But no one knows such secrets as old Pan.

WILLIAM WETMORE STORY.

GOD EVERYWHERE IN NATURE.

How desolate were nature, and how void
Of every charm, how like a naked waste
Of Africa, were not a present God
Beheld employing, in its various scenes,
His active might to animate and adorn!
What life and beauty, when, in all that breathes,
Or moves, or grows, his hand is viewed at work!
When it is viewed unfolding every bud,
Each blossom tingeing, shaping every leaf,
Wafting each cloud that passes o'er the sky,
Rolling each billow, moving every wing
That fans the air, and every warbling throat
Heard in the tuneful woodlands! In the least
As well as in the greatest of his works

Is ever manifest his presence kind ;
 As well in swarms of glittering insects, seen
 Quick to and fro within a foot of air,
 Dancing a merry hour, then seen no more,
 As in the systems of resplendent worlds,
 Through time revolving in unbounded space.
 His eye, while comprehending in one view
 The whole creation, fixes full on me ;
 As on me shines the sun with his full blaze,
 While o'er the hemisphere he spreads the same,
 His hand, while holding oceans in its palm,
 And compassing the skies, surrounds my life,
 Guards the poor rushlight from the blast of death.

The Old Cumberland Beggar.

WORDSWORTH.

FAIR EXCHANGE NO ROBBERY.

I'll example you with thievery :
 The sun 's a thief, and with his great attraction
 Robs the vast sea : the moon 's an arrant thief,
 And her pale fire she snatches from the sun :
 The sea 's a thief, whose liquid surge resolves
 The moon into salt tears : the earth 's a thief,
 That feeds and breeds by a composture stolen
 From general excrement : each thing 's a thief.

Timon of Athens, Act iv. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

LIGHT AND THE SKY.

Macbeth, Act iii. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

NIGHT.

How beautiful is night !
A dewy freshness fills the silent air ;
No mist obscures, nor cloud, nor speck, nor stain,
Breaks the serene of heaven :
In full-orbed glory, yonder moon divine
Rolls through the dark-blue depths.
Beneath her steady ray
The desert-circle spreads,
Like the round ocean, girdled with the sky.
How beautiful is night !

THE MOON.

There does a sable cloud
Turn forth her silver lining on the night,
And cast a gleam over this tufted grove.

Comus. MILTON.

The dews of summer nights did fall,
The moon, sweet regent of the sky,
Silvered the walls of Cumnor Hall
And many an oak that grew thereby.

Cumnor Hall. W. J. MICKLE.

Fairy elves,
Whose midnight revels, by a forest-side,
Or fountain, some belated peasant sees,
Or dreams he sees, while overhead the moon
Sits arbitress, and nearer to the earth

Devotion ! daughter of astronomy !
An undevout astronomer is mad.

Night Thoughts, Night ix.

DR. E. YOUNG.

THE SEASONS.

So issued forth the seasons of the year ;
First lusty Spring, all dight in leaves of flowers
That freshly budded, and new blossoms did bear,
In which a thousand birds had built their bowers,
That sweetly sung to call forth paramours ;
And in his hand a javelin he did bear,
And on his head (as fit for warlike stores)
A gilt engraven morion he did wear,
That, as some did him love, so others did him
fear.

Romeo and Juliet, Act ii. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Then came the Autumne, all in yellow clad,
As though he joyed in his plenteous store,
Laden with fruits that made him laugh, full glad
That he had banished hunger, which to-fore
Had by the belly oft him pinchèd sore ;
Upon his head a wreath, that was enrold
With ears of corne of every sort, he bore,
And in his hand a sickle he did holde,
To reape the ripened fruit the which the earth had yold.

Lastly came Winter, cloathèd all in frize,
Chattering his teeth for cold that did him chill ;
Whilst on his hoary beard his breath did freeze,
And the dull drops that from his purple bill
As from a limbeck did adown distill ;
In his right hand a tipped staff he held
With which his feeble steps he stayèd still,
For he was faint with cold and weak with eld,
That scarce his loosed limbs he able was to weld.

Faërie Queene, Book vii.

SPENSER.

O Winter, ruler of the inverted year.

I love thee, all unlovely as thou seem'st,
And dreading as thou art !

Was wont to swell, like round and orient pearls,
Stood now within the pretty flow'rets' eyes,
Like tears that did their own disgrace bewail.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act iv. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

A Yellow Pansy

To the wall of the old green garden
A butterfly quivering came;
His wings on the somber lichens
Played like a yellow flame.

He looked at the gray geraniums,
And the sleepy four-o'clocks,
He looked at the low lanes bordered
With the glossy growing box.

He longed for the peace and the silence
And the shadows that lengthened there,
And his wild wee heart was weary
Of skimming the endless air.

And now in the old green garden,—
I know not how it came,—
A single pansy is blooming,
Bright as a yellow flame.

And whenever a gay gust passes,
It quivers as if with pain,
For the butterfly soul within it
Longs for the winds again.

HELEN GRAY CONE.

TO AN ORIOLE.

How falls it, oriole, thou hast come to fly
In tropic splendor through our Northern sky?

At some glad moment was it nature's choice
To dower a scrap of sunset with a voice?

Or did some orange tulip, flaked with black,
In some forgotten garden, ages back,

Yearning toward Heaven until its wish was heard,
Desire unspeakably to be a bird?

EDGAR FAWCETT.

With little here to do or see
Of things that in the great world be,
Sweet daisy ! oft I talk to thee.

For thou art worthy,
Thou unassuming commonplace
Of nature, with that homely face,
And yet with something of a grace
Which love makes for thee !

To the Daisy.

WORDSWORTH.

Myriads of daisies have shone forth in flower
Near the lark's nest, and in their natural hour
Have passed away ; less happy than the one
That, by the unwilling ploughshare, died to prove

The tender charm of poetry and love.

Poems composed in the Summer of 1833. WORDSWORTH.

We meet thee, like a pleasant thought,
When such are wanted.

To the Daisy.

WORDSWORTH.

Dear common flower, that grow'st beside the way,

Fringing the dusty road with harmless gold,
First pledge of blithesome May,
Which children pluck, and, full of pride, uphold,
High-hearted buccaneers, o'erjoyed that they
An El Dorado in the grass have found,

Which not the rich earth's ample round
May match in wealth — thou art more dear to me
Than all the prouder summer-blooms may be.

To the Dandelion.

J. R. LOWELL.

O Proserpina !

For the flowers now, that, frightened, thou let'st fall
From Dis's wagon ! daffodils,
That come before the swallow dares, and take
The winds of March with beauty ; violets, dim,
But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes,
Or Cytherea's breath ; pale primroses,
That die unmarried ere they can behold
Bright Phœbus in his strength — . . .
. bold oxlips, and
The crown imperial ; lilies of all kinds.

The Winter's Tale, Act iv. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

A primrose by a river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more.

Peter Bell.

WORDSWORTH.

I know a bank where the wild thyme blows,
Where ox-lips and the nodding violet grows ;
Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act ii. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Desert caves,

With wild thyme and the gadding vine o'ergrown.

MILTON.

There's rosemary, that's for remembrance ;
pray you, love, remember :— and there is pansies,
that's for thoughts.

SHAKESPEARE.

Gentle

As zephyrs, blowing below the violet,
Not wagging his sweet head.

Cymbeline, Act iv. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE

But earthlier happy is the rose distilled,
Than that which, withering on the virgin thorn,
Grows, lives, and dies, in single blessedness.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act i. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

Then will I raise aloft the milk-white rose,
With whose sweet smell the air shall be perfumed.

ANIMATE NATURE.

I shall not ask Jean Jaques Rousseau
If birds confabulate or no.

'T is clear that they were always able
To hold discourse — at least in fable.

COWPER.

Rise with the lark, and with the lark to bed.

J. HURDIS.

Call for the robin-redbreast and the wren,
Since o'er shady groves they hover,
And with leaves and flowers do cover
The friendless bodies of unburied men.

The White Devil, Act v. Sc. 2.

J. WEBSTER.

What bird so sings, yet so does wail ?

O, 't is the ravished nightingale —

Jug, jug, jug, jug — tereu — she cries,
And still her woes at midnight rise.

Brave prick-song ! who is 't now we hear ?

None but the lark so shrill and clear,

Now at heaven's gate she claps her wings,

The morn not waking till she sings.

Hark, hark ! but what a pretty note,

Poor Robin-redbreast tunes his throat ;

Hark, how the jolly cuckoos sing

"Cuckoo !" to welcome in the spring.

Alexander and Campaspe, Act v. Sc. 1.

JOHN LYLY.

* Bartlett says, " It was Cowper who gave this now common name to the Mignonette."

O nightingale, that on yon bloomy spray
 Warblest at eve, when all the woods are still ;
 Thou with fresh hope the lover's heart dost fill
 While the jolly Hours lead on propitious May.
 Thy liquid notes, that close the eye of day,

Portend success in love.

To the Nightingale.

MILTON.

The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark
 When neither is attended ; and I think
 The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
 When every goose is cackling, would be thought
 No better a musician than the wren.
 How many things by season seasoned are
 To their right praise and true perfection.

Merchant of Venice, Act v. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

So, naturalists observe, a flea
 Has smaller fleas that on him prey ;
 And these have smaller still to bite 'em ;
 And so proceed ad infinitum.

POPE.

A poor sequestered stag,
 That from the hunter's aim had ta'en a hurt,
 Did come to languish ;

POEMS OF PEACE
AND WAR

Close his eyes; his work is done;

What to him is friend or foe-man;

Star of morn or set of sun,

Stand of man or kiss of woman?

Lay him low, 'lay him low,

In the cloven or the snow!

What cares he? he cannot know;

Lay him - low!

POEMS OF PEACE AND WAR.

WAR.

WAR FOR THE SAKE OF PEACE.

FROM "BRITANNIA."

O FIRST of human blessings, and supreme !
Fair Peace ! how lovely, how delightful thou !
By whose wide tie the kindred sons of men
Like brothers live, in amity combined
And unsuspecting faith ; while honest toil
Gives every joy, and to those joys a right
Which idle, barbarous rapine but usurps.
Pure is thy reign.

What would not, Peace ! the patriot bear for
thee ?

What painful patience ? What incessant care ?
What mixed anxiety ? What sleepless toil ?
E'en from the rash protected, what reproach ?
For he thy value knows ; thy friendship he
To human nature : but the better thou,
The richer of delight, sometimes the more
Inevitable WAR, — when ruffian force
Awakes the fury of an injured state.
E'en the good patient man whom reason rules,
Roused by bold insult and injurious rage,
With sharp and sudden check the astonished sons
Of violence confounds ; firm as his cause
His bolder heart ; in awful justice clad ;
His eyes effulging a peculiar fire :
And, as he charges through the prostrate war,
His keen arm teaches faithless men no more
To dare the sacred vengeance of the just.

Then ardent rise ! O, great in vengeance rise !
O'erturn the proud, teach rapine to restore ;
And, as you ride sublimely round the world,
Make every vessel stoop, make every state
At once their welfare and their duty know.

JAMES THOMSON.

WAR.

AH ! whence yon glare,
That fires the arch of heaven ? — that dark-red smoke
Blotting the silver moon ? The stars are quenched

In darkness, and pure and spangling snow
Gleams faintly through the gloom that gathers round !

Hark to that roar, whose swift and deafening peals

In countless echoes through the mountains ring,
Startling pale midnight on her starry throne !
Now swells the intermingling din ; the jar
Frequent and frightful of the bursting bomb ;
The falling beam, the shriek, the groan, the shout,

The ceaseless clangor, and the rush of men
Inebriate with rage ; — loud, and more loud
The discord grows ; till pale death shuts the scene,

And o'er the conqueror and the conquered draws
His cold and bloody shroud. — Of all the men
Whom day's departing beam saw blooming there,
In proud and vigorous health ; of all the hearts
That beat with anxious life at sunset there,
How few survive, how few are beating now !
All is deep silence, like the fearful calm
That slumbers in the storm's portentous pause ;
Save when the frantic wail of widowed love
Comes shuddering on the blast, or the faint moan
With which some soul bursts from the frame of clay

Wrapt round its struggling powers.

The gray morn
Dawns on the mournful scene ; the sulphurous
smoke

Before the icy wind slow rolls away,
And the bright beams of frosty morning dance
Along the spangling snow. There tracks of blood
Even to the forest's depth, and scattered arms,
And lifeless warriors, whose hard lineaments
Death's self could change not, mark the dreadful path

Of the outsallying victors ; far behind,
Black ashes note where their proud city stood.
Within yon forest is a gloomy glen, —
Each tree which guards its darkness from the day

Waves o'er a warrior's tomb.

War is the statesman's game, the priest's delight,
The lawyer's jest, the hired assassin's trade,
And to those royal murderers whose mean thrones
Are bought by crimes of treachery and gore,
The bread they eat, the staff on which they lean.
Guards, garbed in blood-red livery, surround
Their palaces, participate the crimes
That force defends, and from a nation's rage
Secure the crown, which all the curses reach
That famine, frenzy, woe, and penury breathe.
These are the hired bravos who defend
The tyrant's throne.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

BATTLE OF THE ANGELS.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK VI.

THE ARRAY.

Now went forth the morn,
Such as in highest heaven, arrayed in gold
Empyrean; from before her vanished night,
Shot through with orient beams; when all the plain
Covered with thick embattled squadrons bright,
Chariots, and flaming arms, and fiery steeds,
Reflecting blaze on blaze, first met his view.

The apostate in his sun-bright chariot sat,
Idol of majesty divine, enclosed
With flaming cherubim, and golden shields;
Then lighted from his gorgeous throne, for now
Twixt host and host but narrow space was left,
A dreadful interval, and front to front
Presented stood in terrible array
Of hideous length: before the cloudy van,
On the rough edge of battle ere it joined,
Satan, with vast and haughty strides advanced,
Came towering, armed in adamant and gold.

THE CONFLICT.

Michael bid sound
The archangel trumpet; through the vast of heaven
It sounded, and the faithful armies rung
Hosanna to the Highest: nor stood at gaze
The adverse legions, nor less hideous joined
The horrid shock. Now storming fury rose,
And clamor, such as heard in heaven till now
Was never; arms on armor clashing brayed
Horrible discord, and the maddening wheels
Of brazen chariots raged; dire was the noise
Of conflict; overhead the dismal hiss
Of fiery darts in flaming volleys flew,
And flying vaulted either host with fire.
So under fiery cope together rushed
Both battles main, with ruinous assault

And inextinguishable rage. All heaven
Resounded; and had earth been then, all earth
Had to her centre shook.

Deeds of eternal fame
Were done, but infinite: for wide was spread
That war, and various: sometimes on firm ground
A standing fight, then, soaring on main wing,
Tormented all the air; all air seemed then Conflicting fire.

Forthwith (behold the excellence, the power
Which God hath in his mighty angels placed!)
Their arms away they threw, and to the hills
(For earth hath this variety from heaven,
Of pleasure situate in hill and dale),
Light as the lightning glimpse they ran, they flew,

From their foundations loosening to and fro,
They plucked the seated hills, with all their load,
Rocks, waters, woods, and by the shaggy tops
Uplifting bore them in their hands: amaze,
Be sure, and terror, seized the rebel host,
When coming towards them so dread they saw
The bottom of the mountains upward turned,
and on their heads
Main promontories flung, which in the air
Came shadowing, and oppressed whole legions armed;

Their armor helped their harm, crushed in and bruised
Into their substance pent, which wrought them
pain
Implacable, and many a dolorous groan;
Long struggling underneath, ere they could wind
Out of such prison, though spirits of purest light,
Purest at first, now gross by sinning grown.
The rest, in imitation, to like arms
Betook them, and the neighboring hills uptore:
So hills amid the air encountered hills,
Hurled to and fro with jaculation dire,
That underground they fought in dismal shade;
Infernal noise! war seemed a civil game
To this uproar; horrid confusion heaped
Upon confusion rose.

THE VICTOR.

So spake the Son, and into terror changed
His countenance too severe to be beheld,
And full of wrath bent on his enemies.
At once the four spread out their starry wings
With dreadful shade contiguous, and the orbs
Of his fierce chariot rolled, as with the sound
Of torrent floods, or of a numerous host.
He on his impious foes right onward drove,
Gloomy as night: under his burning wheels
The steadfast empyrean shook throughout.

All but the throne itself of God. Full soon
Among them he arrived ; in his right hand
Grasping ten thousand thunders, which he sent
Before him, such as in their souls infixed
Plagues : they, astonished, all resistance lost,
All courage ; down their idle weapons dropt ;
O'er shields, and helmets, and helmeted heads he rode

Of thrones and mighty seraphim prostrate,
That wished the mountains now might be again
Thrown on them, as a shelter from his ire.
Nor less on either side tempestuous fell
His arrows, from the fourfold-visaged Four Distinct with eyes, and from the living wheels
Distinct alike with multitude of eyes ;
One spirit in them ruled ; and every eye
Glared lightning, and shot forth pernicious fire
Among the accursed, that withered all their strength,

And of their wonted vigor left them drained,
Exhausted, spiritless, afflicted, fallen.
Yet half his strength he put not forth, but checked

His thunder in mid volley ; for he meant
Not to destroy, but root them out of heaven :
The overthrown he raised, and as a herd
Of goats or timorous flock together thronged,
Drove them before him thunderstruck, pursued
With terrors and with furies, to the bounds
And crystal wall of heaven ; which, opening wide,
Rolled inward, and a spacious gap disclosed
Into the wasteful deep : the monstrous sight
Struck them with horror backward, but far worse
Urged them behind : headlong themselves they threw

Down from the verge of heaven ; eternal wrath
Burnt after them to the bottomless pit.

MILTON.

THE DESTRUCTION OF SENNACHERIB.

FROM "HEBREW MELODIES."

THE Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and
gold ;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on
the sea,
When the blue wave rolls nightly on deep
Galilee.

Like the leaves of the forest when summer is
green,
That host with their banners at sunset were seen :
Like the leaves of the forest when autumn hath blown,
That host on the morrow lay withered and strown.

For the Angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed ;
And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved, and forever grew still !

And there lay the steed with his nostril all wide,
But through it there rolled not the breath of his pride :
And the foam of his gasping lay white on the turf,
And cold as the spray of the rock-beating surf.

And there lay the rider distorted and pale,
With the dew on his brow, and the rust on his mail ;
And the tents were all silent, the banners alone,
The lances unlifted, the trumpet unblown.

And the widows of Ashur are loud in their wail,
And the idols are broke in the temple of Babel ;
And the might of the Gentile, unsmeared by the sword,

Hath melted like snow in the glance of the Lord !

LORD BYRON.

CATILINE TO THE ROMAN ARMY.

FROM "CATILINE," ACT V. SC. 2.

SOUND all to arms ! (A flourish of trumpets.)
Call in the captains, — (To an officer.)

I would speak with them !

(The officer goes.)

Now, Hope ! away, — and welcome gallant
Death !

Welcome the clanging shield, the trumpet's yell, —

Welcome the fever of the mounting blood,
That makes wounds light, and battle's crimson toil

Seem but a sport, — and welcome the cold bed,
Where soldiers with their upturned faces lie, —
And welcome wolf's and vulture's hungry throats,
That make their sepulchres ! We fight to-night.

(The soldiery enter.)

Centurions ! all is ruined ! I disdain
To hide the truth from you. The die is thrown !
And now, let each that wishes for long life
Put up his sword, and kneel for peace to Rome.
Ye all are free to go. What ! no man stirs !
Not one ! a soldier's spirit in you all ?
Give me your hands ! (This moisture in my eyes
Is womanish, — 't will pass.) My noble hearts !
Well have you chosen to die ! For, in my mind,
The grave is better than o'erburdened life ;

Better the quick release of glorious wounds,
 Than the eternal taunts of galling tongues ;
 Better the spear-head quivering in the heart,
 Than daily struggle against fortune's curse ;
 Better, in manhood's muscle and high blood,
 To leap the gulf, than totter to its edge
 In poverty, dull pain, and base decay.
 Once more, I say, — are ye resolved ?

(The soldiers shout, "All ! All !")

Then, each man to his tent, and take the arms
 That he would love to die in, — for, this hour,
 We storm the Consul's camp. A last farewell !

(He takes their hands.)

When next we meet, — we'll have no time to look,
 How parting clouds a soldier's countenance.
 Few as we are, we'll rouse them with a peal
 That shall shake Rome !

Now to your cohorts' heads ; — the word 's —
 Revenge !

GEORGE CROLY.

THE BALLAD OF AGINCOURT.

FAIR stood the wind for France,
 When we our sails advance,
 Nor now to prove our chance
 Longer will tarry ;
 But putting to the main,
 At Kause, the mouth of Seine,
 With all his martial train,
 Landed King Harry,

And taking many a fort,
 Furnished in warlike sort,
 Marched towards Agincourt

In happy hour, —
 Skirmishing day by day
 With those that stopped his way,
 Where the French general lay
 With all his power,

Which in his height of pride,
 King Henry to deride,
 His ransom to provide
 To the king sending ;
 Which he neglects the while,
 As from a nation vile,
 Yet, with an angry smile,
 Their fall portending.

And turning to his men,
 Quoth our brave Henry then :
 Though they to one be ten,
 Be not amazed ;
 Yet have we well begun,
 Battles so bravely won
 Have ever to the sun
 By fame been raised.

And for myself, quoth he,
 This my full rest shall be ;
 England ne'er mourn for me,
 Nor more esteem me,
 Victor I will remain,
 Or on this earth lie slain ;
 Never shall she sustain
 Loss to redeem me.

Poitiers and Cressy tell,
 When most their pride did swell,
 Under our swords they fell ;
 No less our skill is
 Than when our grandsire great,
 Claiming the regal seat,
 By many a warlike feat
 Lopped the French lilies.

The Duke of York so dread
 The eager vaward led ;
 With the main Henry sped,
 Amongst his henchmen,
 Excester had the rear, —
 A braver man not there :
 O Lord ! how hot they were
 On the false Frenchmen !

They now to fight are gone ;
 Armor on armor shone ;
 Drum now to drum did groan, —
 To hear was wonder ;
 That with the cries they make
 The very earth did shake ;
 Trumpet to trumpet spake,
 Thunder to thunder.

Well it thine age became,
 O noble Erpingham !
 Which did the signal aim
 To our hid forces ;
 When, from a meadow by,
 Like a storm, suddenly,
 The English archery
 Struck the French horses

With Spanish yew so strong,
 Arrows a cloth-yard long,
 That like to serpents stung,
 Piercing the weather ;
 None from his fellow starts,
 But playing manly parts,
 And, like true English hearts,
 Stuck close together.

When down their bows they threw,
 And forth their bilboes drew,
 And on the French they flew,
 Not one was tardy ;

Arms were from shoulders sent ;
 Scalps to the teeth were rent ;
 Down the French peasants went ;
 Our men were hardy.

This while our noble king,
 His broadsword brandishing,
 Down the French host did ding,

As to o'erwhelm it ;
 And many a deep wound lent,
 His arms with blood besprent,
 And many a cruel dent
 Bruised his helmet.

Glo'ster, that duke so good,
 Next of the royal blood,
 For famous England stood
 With his brave brother,
 Clarence, in steel so bright,
 Though but a maiden knight,
 Yet in that furious fight
 Scarce such another.

Warwick in blood did wade ;
 Oxford the foe invade,
 And cruel slaughter made,
 Still as they ran up.
 Suffolk his axe did ply ;
 Beaumont and Willoughby
 Bare them right doughtily,
 Ferrers and Fanhope.

Upon St. Crispin's day
 Fought was this noble fray,
 Which fame did not delay
 To England to carry ;
 O, when shall Englishmen
 With such acts fill a pen,
 Or England breed again
 Such a King Harry ?

MICHAEL DRAYTON.

THE KING TO HIS SOLDIERS BEFORE HARFLEUR.

FROM "KING HENRY V.," ACT III. SC. I.

Once more unto the breach, dear friends,
 once more ;

Or close the wall up with our English dead !
 In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man,
 As modest stillness, and humility :
 But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
 Then imitate the action of the tiger ;
 Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood,
 Disguise fair nature with hard-favored rage :
 Then lend the eye a terrible aspect ;
 Let it pry through the portage of the head,

Like the brass cannon ; let the brow o'erwhelm it,
 As fearfully as doth a gall'd rock
 O'erhang and jutty his confounded base,
 Swilled with the wild and wasteful ocean.

Now set the teeth, and stretch the nostril wide ;
 Hold hard the breath, and bend up every spirit
 To his full height ! — On, on, you noblest English,

Whose blood is fet from fathers of war-proof !
 Fathers, that, like so many Alexanders,
 Have, in these parts, from morn till even fought,
 And sheathed their swords for lack of argument.
 Dishonor not your mothers ; now attest,
 That those whom you called fathers, did beget
 you !

Be copy now to men of grosser blood,
 And teach them how to war ! — And you, good yeomen,

Whose limbs were made in England, show us
 here

The mettle of your pasture ; let us swear
 That you are worth your breeding : which I doubt not ;

For there is none of you so mean and base,
 That hath not noble lustre in your eyes.

I see you stand like greyhounds in the slips,
 Straining upon the start. The game's afoot ;

Follow your spirit ; and, upon this charge,
 Cry — God for Harry ! England ! and Saint

George !

SHAKESPEARE.

OF THE WARRES IN IRELAND.

FROM "EPIGRAMS," BOOK IV. EP. 6.

I PRAISED the speech, but cannot now abide it,
 That warre is sweet to those that have not try'd it ;
 For I have proved it now and plainly see't,
 It is so sweet, it maketh all things sweet.

At home Canarie wines and Greek grow lothsome ;
 Here milk is nectar, water tasteth toothsome.

There without baked, rost, boyl'd, it is no cheere ;
 Bisket we like, and Bonny Clabo here.

There we complaine of one wan rosted chick ;
 Here meat worse cookt ne're makes us sick.

At home in silken sparrers, beds of Down,
 We scant can rest, but still tosse up and down ;

Here we can sleep, a saddle to our pillow,
 A hedge the Curtaine, Canopy a Willow.

There if a child but cry, O what a spite !

Here we can brook three larums in one night.

There homely rooms must be perfumed with
 Roses ;

Here match and powder ne're offend our noses.

There from a storm of rain we run like Pullets ;

Here we stand fast against a showre of bullets.

Lo, then how greatly their opinions erre,
That think there is no great delight in warre ;
But yet for this, sweet warre, Ile be thy debtor.
I shall fore~~er~~ love my home the better.

SIR JOHN HARRINGTON.

THE HEART OF THE BRUCE.

It was upon an April morn,
While yet the frost lay hoar,
We heard Lord James's bugle-horn
Sound by the rocky shore.

Then down we went, a hundred knights,
All in our dark array,
And flung our armor in the ships
That rode within the bay.

We spoke not as the shore grew less,
But gazed in silence back,
Where the long billows swept away
The foam behind our track.

And aye the purple hues decayed
Upon the fading hill,
And but one heart in all that ship
Was tranquil, cold, and still.

The good Lord Douglas paced the deck,
And O, his face was wan !
Unlike the flush it used to wear
When in the battle-van. —

"Come hither, come hither, my trusty knight,
Sir Simon of the Lee ;
There is a freit lies near my soul
I fain would tell to thee.

"Thou know'st the words King Robert spoke
Upon his dying day :
How he bade take his noble heart
And carry it far away ;

"And lay it in the holy soil
Where once the Saviour trod,
Since he might not bear the blessed Cross,
Nor strike one blow for God.

"Last night as in my bed I lay,
I dreamed a dreary dream : —
Methought I saw a Pilgrim stand
In the moonlight's quivering beam.

"His robe was of the azure dye,
Snow-white his scattered hairs,
And even such a cross he bore
As good St. Andrew bears.

"'Why go ye forth, Lord James,' he said,
'With spear and belted brand ?
Why do you take its dearest pledge
From this our Scottish land ?

"'The sultry breeze of Galilee
Creeps through its groves of palm,
The olives on the Holy Mount
Stand glittering in the calm.

"'But 't is not there that Scotland's heart
Shall rest, by God's decree,
Till the great angel calls the dead
To rise from earth and sea !

"'Lord James of Douglas, mark my rede !
That heart shall pass once more
In fiery fight against the foe,
As it was wont of yore.

"'And it shall pass beneath the Cross,
And save King Robert's vow ;
But other hands shall bear it back,
Not, James of Douglas, thou !

"Now, by thy knightly faith, I pray,
Sir Simon of the Lee, —
For truer friend had never man
Than thou hast been to me, —

"If ne'er upon the Holy Land
'T is mine in life to tread,
Bear thou to Scotland's kindly earth
The relics of her dead."

The tear was in Sir Simon's eye
As he wrung the warrior's hand, —
"Betide me weal, betide me woe,
I'll hold by thy command.

"But if in battle-front, Lord James,
'T is ours once more to ride,
Nor force of man, nor craft of fiend,
Shall cleave me from thy side !"

And aye we sailed and aye we sailed
Across the weary sea,
Until one morn the coast of Spain
Rose grimly on our lee.

And as we rounded to the port,
Beneath the watch-tower's wall,
We heard the clash of the atabals,
And the trumpet's wavering call.

"Why sounds yon Eastern music here
So wantonly and long,
And whose the crowd of armed men
That round yon standard throng ?"

"The Moors have come from Africa
To spoil and waste and slay,
And King Alonzo of Castile
Must fight with them to-day."

"Now shame it were," cried good Lord James,
"Shall never be said of me
That I and mine have turned aside
From the Cross in jeopardy !

"Have down, have down, my merry men all,—
Have down unto the plain ;
We'll let the Scottish lion loose
Within the fields of Spain !"

"Now welcome to me, noble lord,
Thou and thy stalwart power ;
Dear is the sight of a Christian knight,
Who comes in such an hour !

"Is it for bond or faith you come,
Or yet for golden fee ?
Or bring ye France's lilies here,
Or the flower of Burgundie ?"

"God greet thee well, thou valiant king,
Thee and thy belted peers, —
Sir James of Douglas am I called,
And these are Scottish spears.

"We do not fight for bond or plight,
Nor yet for golden fee ;
But for the sake of our blessed Lord,
Who died upon the tree.

"We bring our great King Robert's heart
Across the weltering wave,
To lay it in the holy soil
Hard by the Saviour's grave.

"True pilgrims we, by land or sea,
Where danger bars the way ;
And therefore are we here, Lord King,
To ride with thee this day !"

The King has bent his stately head,
And the tears were in his eyne, —
"God's blessing on thee, noble knight,
For this brave thought of thine !

"I know thy name full well, Lord James ;
And honored may I be,
That those who fought beside the Bruce
Should fight this day for me !

"Take thou the leading of the van,
And charge the Moors amain ;
There is not such a lance as thine
In all the host of Spain !"

The Douglas turned towards us then,
O, but his glance was high ! —
"There is not one of all my men
But is as bold as I .

"There is not one of all my knights
But bears as true a spear, —
Then onward, Scottish gentlemen,
And think King Robert's here !"

The trumpets blew, the cross-bolts flew,
The arrows flashed like flame,
As spur in side, and spear in rest,
Against the foe we came.

And many a bearded Saracen
Went down, both horse and man ;
For through their ranks we rode like corn,
So furiously we ran !

But in behind our path they closed,
Though fain to let us through,
For they were forty thousand men,
And we were wondrous few.

We might not see a lance's length,
So dense was their array,
But the long fell sweep of the Scottish blade
Still held them hard at bay.

"Make in ! make in !" Lord Douglas cried —
"Make in, my brethren dear !
Sir William of St. Clair is down ;
We may not leave him here !"

But thicker, thicker grew the swarm,
And sharper shot the rain,
And the horses reared amid the press,
But they would not charge again.

"Now Jesu help thee," said Lord James,
"Thou kind and true St. Clair !
An' if I may not bring thee off,
I'll die beside thee there !"

Then in his stirrups up he stood,
So lion-like and bold,
And held the precious heart aloft,
All in its case of gold.

He flung it from him, far ahead,
And never spake he more,
But — "Pass thou first, thou dauntless heart,
As thou wert wont of yore !"

The roar of fight rose fiercer yet,
And heavier still the stour,
Till the spears of Spain came shivering in,
And swept away the Moor.

"Now praised be God, the day is won !
They fly, o'er flood and fell, —
Why dost thou draw the rein so hard,
Good knight, that fought so well?"

"O, ride ye on, Lord King!" he said,
"And leave the dead to me,
For I must keep the dreariest watch
That ever I shall dree !

"There lies, above his master's heart,
The Douglas, stark and grim ;
And woe is me I should be here,
Not side by side with him !

"The world grows cold, my arm is old,
And thin my lyart hair,
And all that I loved best on earth
Is stretched before me there.

"O Bothwell banks, that bloom so bright
Beneath the sun of May !
The heaviest cloud that ever blew
Is bound for you this day.

"And Scotland! thou mayst veil thy head
In sorrow and in pain
The sorest stroke upon thy brow
Hath fallen this day in Spain !

"We'll bear them back unto our ship,
We'll bear them o'er the sea,
And lay them in the hallowed earth
Within our own countrie.

"And be thou strong of heart, Lord King,
For this I tell thee sure,
The sod that drank the Douglas' blood
Shall never bear the Moor !"

The King he lighted from his horse,
He flung his brand away,
And took the Douglas by the hand,
So stately as he lay.

"God give thee rest, thou valiant soul !
That fought so well for Spain ;
I'd rather half my land were gone,
So thou wert here again !"

We bore the good Lord James away,
And the priceless heart we bore,
And heavily we steered our ship
Towards the Scottish shore.

No welcome greeted our return,
Nor clang of martial tread,
But all were dumb and hushed as death
Before the mighty dead.

We laid our chief in Douglas Kirk,
The heart in fair Melrose ;
And woful men were we that day, —
God grant their souls repose !

WILLIAM EDMUNDSTONE AYTOUN.

HOTSPUR'S DESCRIPTION OF A FOP.

FROM "KING HENRY IV.," PART I. ACT I. SC. 3.

BUT I remember, when the fight was done,
When I was dry with rage and extreme toil,
Breathless and faint, leaning upon my sword,
Came there a certain lord, neat, trimly dressed,
Fresh as a bridegroom ; and his chin, new reaped,
Showed like a stubble-land at harvest-home ;
He was perfumed like a milliner ;
And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
A pouncet-box which ever and anon
He gave his nose, and took 't away again ; —
Who, therewith angry, when it next came there,
Took it in snuff : — and still he smiled and talked ;
And, as the soldiers bore dead bodies by,
He called them untaught knaves, unmannerly,
To bring a slovenly unhandsome course
Betwixt the wind and his nobility.
With many holiday and lady terms
He questioned me ; among the rest, demanded
My prisoners in your majesty's behalf.
I then, all smarting, with my wounds being cold,
To be so pestered with a popinjay,
Out of my grief and my impatience,
Answered neglectingly, I know not what, —
He should, or he should not ; for he made me mad
To see him shine so brisk, and smell so sweet,
And talk so like a waiting gentlewoman,
Of guns, and drums, and wounds, — God save the mark ! —

And telling me, the sovereign'st thing on earth
Was parmaceti for an inward bruise ;
And that it was great pity, so it was,
That villanous saltpetre should be digged
Out of the bowels of the harmless earth,
Which many a good tall fellow had destroyed
So cowardly, and, but for these vile guns,
He would himself have been a soldier.

SHAKESPEARE

HUDIBRAS' SWORD AND DAGGER.

FROM "HUDIBRAS," PART I.

His puissant sword unto his side
Near his undaunted heart was tied,
With basket hilt that would hold bro't
And serve for fight and dinner both.
In it he melted lead for bullets
To shoot at foes, and sometimes pullets,

To whom he bore so fell a grutch
 He ne'er gave quarter to any such.
 The trenchant blade, Toledo trusty,
 For want of fighting was grown rusty,
 And ate into itself, for lack
 Of somebody to hew and hack.
 The peaceful scabbard, where it dwelt,
 The rancor of its edge had felt ;
 For of the lower end two handful
 It had devoured, it was so manful ;
 And so much scorned to lurk in case,
 As if it durst not show its face.

This sword a dagger had, his page,
 That was but little for his age,
 And therefore waited on him so
 As dwarfs unto knight-errants do.
 It was a serviceable dudgeon,
 Either for fighting or for drugging.
 When it had stabbed or broke a head,
 It would scrape trenchers or chip bread,
 Toast cheese or bacon, though it were
 To bait a mouse-trap 't would not care ;
 'T would make clean shoes, and in the earth
 Set leeks and onions, and so forth :
 It had been 'prentice to a brewer,
 Where this and more it did endure ;
 But left the trade, as many more
 Have lately done on the same score.

DR. SAMUEL BUTLER.

THE LORD OF BUTRAGO.

FROM THE SPANISH.

"Your horse is faint, my King, my Lord ! your gallant horse is sick, —
 His limbs are torn, his breast is gored, on his eye the film is thick ;
 Mount, mount on mine, O, mount apace, I pray thee, mount and fly !
 Or in my arms I'll lift your Grace, — their trampling hoofs are nigh !

"My King, my King ! you're wounded sore, —
 the blood runs from your feet ;
 But only lay a hand before, and I'll lift you to your seat ;
 Mount, Juan, for they gather fast ! — I hear their coming cry, —
 Mount, mount, and ride for jeopardy. — I'll save you though I die !

"Stand, noble steed ! this hour of need, — be gentle as a lamb ;
 I'll kiss the foam from off thy mouth, — thy master dear I am, —

Mount, Juan, mount ; whate'er betide, away the bridle fling,
 And plunge the rowels in his side. — My horse shall save my King !

"Nay, never speak ; my sires, Lord King, received their land from yours,
 And joyfully their blood shall spring, so be it thine secures ;
 If I should fly, and thou, my King, be found among the dead,
 How could I stand 'mong gentlemen, such scorn on my gray head ?

"Castile's proud dames shall never point the finger of disdain,
 And say there's one that ran away when our good lords were slain !
 I leave Diego in your care, — you'll fill his father's place ;
 Strike, strike the spur, and never spare. — God's blessing on your Grace !"

So spake the brave Montañez, Butrago's lord was he ;
 And turned him to the coming host in steadfast-
 ness and glee ;
 He flung himself among them, as they came down the hill, —
 He died, God wot ! but not before his sword had drunk its fill.

Translation of JOHN GIBSON LOCKHART.

FLODDEN FIELD.

FROM "MARMION," CANTO VI.

[The battle was fought in September, 1513, between the forces of England and Scotland. The latter were worsted, and King James slain with eight thousand of his men. Lord Surrey commanded the English troops.]

A MOMENT then Lord Marmion stayed,
 And breathed his steed, his men arrayed,
 Then forward moved his band,
 Until, Lord Surrey's rear-guard won,
 He halted by a cross of stone,
 That, on a hillock standing lone,
 Did all the field command.

Hence might they see the full array
 Of either host for deadly fray ;
 Their marshalled lines stretched east and west,
 And fronted north and south,
 And distant salutation past
 From the loud cannon-mouth ;
 Not in the close successive rattle
 That breathes the voice of modern battle,
 But slow and far between. —

The hillock gained, Lord Marmion stayed :

"Here, by this cross," he gently said,

"You well may view the scene ;

Here shalt thou tarry, lovely Clare :

O, think of Marmion in thy prayer ! —

Thou wilt not ! — well, — no less my care

Shall, watchful, for thy weal prepare. —

You, Blount and Eustace, are her guard,

With ten picked archers of my train ;

With England if the day go hard,

To Berwick speed amain, —

But, if we conquer, cruel maid,

My spoils shall at your feet be laid,

When here we meet again."

He waited not for answer there,

And would not mark the maid's despair,

Nor heed the discontented look

From either squire : but spurred amain,

And, dashing through the battle-plain,

His way to Surrey took.

Blount and Fitz-Eustace rested still

With Lady Clare upon the hill ;

On which (for far the day was spent)

The western sunbeams now were bent.

The cry they heard, its meaning knew,

Could plain their distant comrades view ;

Sadly to Blount did Eustace say,

"Unworthy office here to stay !

No hope of gilded spurs to-day. —

But, see ! look up, — on Flodden bent

The Scottish foe has fired his tent." —

And sudden, as he spoke,

From the sharp ridges of the hill,

All downward to the banks of Till

Was wreathed in sable smoke.

Volumed and vast, and rolling far,

The cloud enveloped Scotland's war,

As down the hill they broke ;

Nor martial shout, nor minstrel tone,

Announced their march ; they tread alone,

At times their warning trumpet blown,

At times a stifled hum,

Told England, from his mountain-throne

King James did rushing come. —

Scarce could they hear or see their foes,

Until at weapon-point they close. —

They close in clouds of smoke and dust,

With sword-sway and with lance's thrust ;

And such a yell was there,

Of sudden and portentous birth,

As if men fought upon the earth

And fiends in upper air :

O, life and death were in the shout,

Recoil and rally, charge and rout,

And triumph and despair.

Long looked the anxious squires ; their eye

Could in the darkness naught descry.

At length the freshening western blast

Aside the shroud of battle cast ;

And, first, the ridge of mingled spears

Above the brightening cloud appears ;

And in the smoke the pennons flew,

As in the storm the white sea-mew.

Then marked they, dashing broad and far,

The broken billows of the war,

And plumed crests of chieftains brave

Floating like foam upon the wave ;

But naught distinct they see :

Wide raged the battle on the plain ;

Spears shook, and falchions flashed amain ;

Fell England's arrow-flight like rain ;

Crests rose, and stooped, and rose again,

Wild and disorderly.

Amid the scene of tumult, high

They saw Lord Marmion's falcon fly :

And stainless Tunstall's banner white,

And Edmund Howard's lion bright,

Still bear them bravely in the fight ;

Although against them come

Of gallant Gordons many a one,

And many a stubborn Highlandman,

And many a rugged Border clan,

With Huntley and with Home.

Far on the left, unseen the while,

Stanley broke Lennox and Argyle ;

Though there the western mountaineer

Rushed with bare bosom on the spear,

And flung the feeble targe aside,

And with both hands the broadsword plied,

'T was vain : — But Fortune, on the right,

With fickle smile, cheered Scotland's fight.

Then fell that spotless banner white,

The Howard's lion fell ;

Yet still Lord Marmion's falcon flew

With wavering flight, while fiercer grew

Around the battle-yell.

The Border slogan rent the sky !

A Home ! a Gordon ! was the cry :

Loud were the clanging blows ;

Advanced, — forced back, — now low, now high,

The pennon sunk and rose ;

As bends the bark's mast in the gale,

When rent are rigging, shrouds, and sail,

It wavered mid the foes.

No longer Blount the view could bear : —

"By heaven and all its saints, I swear,

I will not see it lost !

Fitz-Eustace, you with Lady Clare

May bid your beads, and patter prayer, —

I gallop to the lost."

And to the fray he rode amain,

Followed by all the archer train.

The fiery youth, with desperate charge,

Made, for a space, an opening large,

The rescued banner rose,
 But darkly closed the war around,
 Like pine-tree, rooted from the ground,
 It sunk among the foes.
 Then Eustace mounted too ; — yet stayed,
 As loath to leave the helpless maid,
 When, fast as shaft can fly,
 Bloodshot his eyes, his nostrils spread,
 The loose rein dangling from his head,
 Housing and saddle bloody red,
 Lord Marmion's steed rushed by ;
 And Eustace, maddening at the sight,
 A look and sign to Clara cast,
 To mark he would return in haste,
 Then plunged into the fight.

Ask me not what the maiden feels,
 Left in that dreadful hour alone :
 Perchance her reason stoops or reels ;
 Perchance a courage, not her own,
 Braces her mind to desperate tone. —
 The scattered van of England wheels ; —
 She only said, as loud in air
 The tumult roared, " Is Wilton there ? " —
 They fly, or, maddened by despair,
 Fight but to die, — " Is Wilton there ? "
 With that, straight up the hill there rode
 Two horsemen drenched with gore,
 And in their arms, a helpless load,
 A wounded knight they bore.
 His hand still strained the broken brand ;
 His arms were smeared with blood and sand.
 Dragged from among the horses' feet,
 With dinted shield, and helmet beat,
 The falcon-crest and plumage gone,
 Can that be haughty Marmion ! . . .
 Young Blount his armor did unlace,
 And, gazing on his ghastly face,
 Said, — " By St. George, he's gone !
 That spear-wound has our master sped, —
 And see the deep cut on his head !
 Good night to Marmion." —
 " Unnurtured Blount ! thy brawling cease :
 He opes his eyes," said Eustace ; " peace ! "

When, doffed his casque, he felt free air,
 Around 'gan Marmion wildly stare : —
 " Where's Harry Blount ? Fitz-Eustace where ?
 Linger ye here, ye hearts of hare !
 Redeem my pennon, — charge again !
 Cry — ' Marmion to the rescue ! ' — vain !
 Last of my race, on battle-plain
 That shout shall ne'er be heard again ! —
 Yet my last thought is England's : — fly,
 To Dacre bear my signet-ring :
 Tell him his squadrons up to bring : —
 Fitz-Eustace, to Lord Surrey hie ;

Tunstall lies dead upon the field,
 His life-blood stains the spotless shield :
 Edmund is down ; — my life is left ; —
 The Admiral alone is left.
 Let Stanley charge with spur of fire, —
 With Chester charge, and Lancashire,
 Full upon Scotland's central host,
 Or victory and England's lost. —
 Must I bid twice ? — hence, varlets ! fly !
 Leave Marmion here alone — to die."
 They parted, and alone he lay :
 Clare drew her from the sight away,
 Till pain wrung forth a lowly moan,
 And half he murmured, — " Is there none,
 Of all my halls have nurst,
 Page, squire, or groom, one cup to bring,
 Of blessed water from the spring,
 To slake my dying thirst ? "

O woman ! in our hours of ease,
 Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
 And variable as the shade
 By the light quivering aspen made ;
 When pain and anguish wring the brow,
 A ministering angel thou ! —
 Scarce were the piteous accents said,
 When, with the Baron's casque, the maid
 To the nigh streamlet ran ;
 Forgot were hatred, wrongs, and fears ;
 The plaintive voice alone she hears,
 Sees but the dying man.
 She stooped her by the runnel's side,
 But in abhorrence backward drew ;
 For, oozing from the mountain's side,
 Where raged the war, a dark-red tide
 Was curdling in the streamlet blue,
 Where shall she turn ! — behold her mark
 A little fountain cell,
 Where water, clear as diamond-spark,
 In a stone basin fell.
 Above, some half-worn letters say,
 Drink · weary · pilgrim · drink · and · pray ·
 For · the · kind · soul · of · Sybil · Grey ·
 Who · built · this · cross · and · well ·
 She filled the helm, and back she hied,
 And with surprise and joy espied
 A monk supporting Marmion's head ;
 A pious man whom duty brought
 To dubious verge of battle fought,
 To shrive the dying, bless the dead.

Deep drank Lord Marmion of the wave,
 And, as she stooped his brow to lave, —
 " Is it the hand of Clare," he said,
 " Or injured Constance, bathes my head ? "
 Then, as remembrance rose, —
 " Speak not to me of shrift or prayer !
 I must redress her woes.

Short space, few words, are mine to spare ;
 Forgive and listen, gentle Clare ! " —

" Alas ! " she said, " the while, —
 O, think of your immortal weal !
 In vain for Constance is your zeal ;
 She — died at Holy Isle. " —

Lord Marmion started from the ground,
 As light as if he felt no wound ;
 Though in the action burst the tide
 In torrents from his wounded side.

" Then it was truth ! " he said, — " I knew
 That the dark presage must be true. —
 I would the Fiend, to whom belongs
 The vengeance due to all her wrongs,

Would spare me but a day !
 For wasting fire, and dying groan,
 And priests slain on the altar stone,
 Might bribe him for delay.

It may not be ! — this dizzy trance, —
 Curse on yon base marauder's lance,
 And doubly cursed my failing brand !
 A sinful heart makes feeble hand. " —
 Then, fainting, down on earth he sunk,
 Supported by the trembling monk.

With fruitless labor, Clara bound,
 And strove to stanch the gushing wound :
 The monk, with unavailing cares,
 Exhausted all the Church's prayers.
 Ever, he said, that, close and near,
 A lady's voice was in his ear,

And that the priest he could not hear,
 For that she ever sung,

*" In the lost battle, borne down by the flying,
 Where mingles war's rattle with groans of the dying ! " —*

So the notes rung : —
 " Avoid thee, Fiend ! — with cruel hand,
 Shake not the dying sinner's sand ! —

O, look, my son, upon yon sign
 Of the Redeemer's grace divine :

O, think on faith and bliss ! —
 By many a death-bed I have been,
 And many a sinner's parting seen,
 But never aught like this. "

The war, that for a space did fail,
 Now trebly thundering swelled the gale,

And — STANLEY ! was the cry : —
 A light on Marmion's visage spread,
 And fired his glazing eye :
 With dying hand above his head
 He shook the fragment of his blade,
 And shouted " Victory ! —
 Charge, Chester, charge ! On, Stanley, on ! "
 Were the last words of Marmion.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

BEAL' AN DHUINE.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO VI.

THERE is no breeze upon the fern,
 No ripple on the lake,
 Upon her eyrie nods the erne,
 The deer has sought the brake ;
 The small birds will not sing aloud,
 The springing trout lies still,
 So darkly glooms yon thunder-cloud,
 That swathes, as with a purple shroud,
 Benledi's distant hill.
 Is it the thunder's solemn sound
 That mutters deep and dread,
 Or echoes from the groaning ground
 The warrior's measured tread ?
 Is it the lightning's quivering glance
 That on the thicket streams,
 Or do they flash on spear and lance
 The sun's retiring beams ?
 I see the dagger crest of Mar,
 I see the Moray's silver star
 Wave o'er the cloud of Saxon war,
 That up the lake comes winding far !
 To hero bound for battle strife,
 Or bard of martial lay,
 'T were worth ten years of peaceful life,
 One glance at their array !

Their light-armed archers far and near Surveyed the tangled ground,
 Their centre ranks, with pike and spear,
 A twilight forest frowned,
 Their barbed horsemen, in the rear,
 The stern battalia cowered.
 No cymbal clashed, no clarion rang,
 Still were the pipe and drum ;
 Save heavy tread, and armor's clang,
 The sullen march was dumb.
 There breathed no wind their crests to shake,
 Or wave their flags abroad ;
 Scarce the frail aspen seemed to quake,
 That shadowed o'er their road.
 Their vaward scouts no tidings bring,
 Can rouse no lurking foe,
 Nor spy a trace of living thing,
 Save when they stirred the roe ;
 The host moves like a deep sea wave,
 Where rise no rocks its pride to brave,
 High swelling, dark, and slow.
 The lake is passed, and now they gain
 A narrow and a broken plain,
 Before the Trosach's rugged jaws ;
 And here the horse and spearmen pause,
 While, to explore the dangerous glen,
 Dive through the pass the archer men.

At once there rose so wild a yell
 Within that dark and narrow dell,
 As all the fiends, from heaven that fell,
 Had pealed the banner cry of hell !
 Forth from the pass in tumult driven,
 Like chaff before the wind of heaven,
 The archery appear :
 For life ! for life ! their flight they ply —
 And shriek, and shout, and battle-cry,
 And plaids and bounnets waving high,
 And broadswords flashing to the sky,
 Are maddening in the rear.
 Onward they drive, in dreadful race,
 Pursuers and pursued ;
 Before that tide of flight and chase,
 How shall it keep its rooted place,
 The spearmen's twilight wood ?
 — "Down, down," cried Mar, "your lances down !
 Bear back both friend and foe !"
 Like reeds before the tempest's frown,
 That serried grove of lances brown
 At once lay levelled low ;
 And closely shouldering side to side,
 The bristling ranks the onset bide. —
 — "We'll quell the savage mountaineer,
 As their Tinchel* cows the game ;
 They come as fleet as forest deer,
 We'll drive them back as tame."

Bearing before them, in their course,
 The relics of the archer force,
 Like wave with crest of sparkling foam,
 Right onward did Clan-Alpine come.
 Above the tide, each broadsword bright
 Was brandishing like beam of light,
 Each targe was dark below ;
 And with the ocean's mighty swing,
 When heaving to the tempest's wing,
 They hurled them on the foe.
 I heard the lance's shivering crash,
 As when the whirlwind rends the ash ;
 I heard the broadsword's deadly clang,
 As if a hundred anvils rang !
 But Moray wheeled his rearward rank
 Of horsemen on Clan-Alpine's flank —
 "My bannerman, advance !
 I see," he cried, "their columns shake.
 Now, gallants ! for your ladies' sake,
 Upon them with the lance !"
 The horsemen dashed among the rout,
 As deer break through the broom ;
 Their steeds are stout, their swords are out,
 They soon make lightsome room.
 Clan-Alpine's best are backward borne —
 Where, where was Roderick then ?
 One blast upon his bugle-horn
 Were worth a thousand men !

* A circle of sportsmen, surrounding the deer.

And reffluent through the pass of fear
 The battle's tide was poured ;
 Vanished the Saxon's struggling spear,
 Vanished the mountain sword.
 As Bracklinn's chasm, so black and steep,
 Receives her roaring linn,
 As the dark caverns of the deep
 Suck the wild whirlpool in,
 So did the deep and darksome pass
 Devour the battle's mingled mass ;
 None linger now upon the plain,
 Save those who ne'er shall fight again.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

WATERLOO.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO III.

THERE was a sound of revelry by night,
 And Belgium's capital had gathered then
 Her beauty and her chivalry, and bright
 The lamps shone o'er fair women and brave
 men ;
 A thousand hearts beat happily ; and when
 Music arose with its voluptuous swell,
 Soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again,
 And all went merry as a marriage-bell ;
 But hush ! hark ! a deep sound strikes like a rising knell !

Did ye not hear it ? — No ; 't was but the wind,
 Or the car rattling o'er the stony street ;
 On with the dance ! let joy be unconfined !
 No sleep till morn, when Youth and Pleasure meet
 To chase the glowing Hours with flying feet, —
 But, hark ! — that heavy sound breaks in once
 more,
 As if the clouds its echo would repeat ;
 And nearer, clearer, deadlier than before !
 Arm ! arm ! it is — it is — the cannon's opening roar !

Within a windowed niche of that high hall
 Sate Brunswick's fated chieftain ; he did hear
 That sound the first amidst the festival,
 And caught its tone with Death's prophetic
 ear ;
 And when they smiled because he deemed it near,
 His heart more truly knew that peal too well
 Which stretched his father on a bloody bier,
 And roused the vengeance blood alone could quell :
 He rushed into the field, and, foremost fighting,
 fell.

Ah ! then and there was hurrying to and fro,
And gathering tears, and tremblings of distress,

And cheeks all pale which but an hour ago
Blushed at the praise of their own loveliness ;
And there were sudden partings, such as press
The life from out young hearts, and choking sighs

Which ne'er might be repeated : who would guess

If evermore should meet those mutual eyes
Since upon night so sweet such awful morn could rise !

And there was mounting in hot haste : the steed,

The mustering-squadron, and the clattering car,
Went pouring forward with impetuous speed,
And swiftly forming in the ranks of war ;
And the deep thunder peal on peal afar ;
And near, the beat of the alarming drum
Roused up the soldier ere the morning star ;
While thronged the citizens with terror dumb,
Or whispering with white lips, — "The foe ! they come ! they come !"

And wild and high the "Cameron's gathering"
rose,

The war-note of Lochiel, which Albyn's hills
Have heard, — and heard, too, have her Saxon foes :

How in the noon of night that pibroch thrills Savage and shrill ! But with the breath which fills

Their mountain pipe, so fill the mountaineers
With the fierce native daring which instills

The stirring memory of a thousand years,
And Evan's, Donald's fame, rings in each clansman's ears !

And Ardennes waves above them her green
leaves,

Dewy with nature's tear-drops, as they pass,
Grieving, if aught inanimate e'er grieves,
Over the unreturning brave, — alas !
Ere evening to be trodden like the grass
Which now beneath them, but above shall grow
In its next verdure, when this fiery mass
Of living valor, rolling on the foe,
And burning with high hope, shall moulder cold
and low.

Last noon beheld them full of lusty life,
Last eve in Beauty's circle proudly gay,
The midnight brought the signal sound of strife,

The morn the marshalling in arms, — the day
Battle's magnificently stern array !

The thunder-clouds close o'er it, which when rent

The earth is covered thick with other clay,
Which her own clay shall cover, heaped and pent,

Rider and horse, — friend, foe, — in one red burial blent !

Their praise is hymned by loftier harps than
mine ;

Yet one I would select from that proud throng,
Partly because they blend me with his line,
And partly that I did his sire some wrong,
And partly that bright names will hallow song !
And his was of the bravest, and when showered
The death-bolts deadliest the thinned files along,

Even where the thickest of war's tempest
lowered,

They reached no nobler breast than thine, young,
gallant Howard !

There have been tears and breaking hearts for
thee,

And mine were nothing, had I such to give ;
But when I stood beneath the fresh green tree,
Which living waves where thou didst cease to live,

And saw around me the wide field revive
With fruits and fertile promise, and the Spring
Come forth her work of gladness to contrive,
With all her reckless birds upon the wing,
I turned from all she brought to those she could not bring.

I turned to thee, to thousands, of whom each
And one as all a ghastly gap did make
In his own kind and kindred, whom to teach
Forgetfulness were mercy for their sake ;
The Archangel's trump, not glory's, must awake

Those whom they thirst for ; though the sound of Fame

May for a moment soothe, it cannot slake
The fever of vain longing, and the name
So honored but assumes a stronger, bitterer claim.

They mourn, but smile at length ; and, smiling,
mourn :

The tree will wither long before it fall ;
The hull drives on, though mast and sail be torn ;
The roof-tree sinks, but moulders on the hall
In massy hoariness ; the ruined wall
Stands when its wind-worn battlements are gone ;

The bars survive the captive they enthrall ;
The day drags through though storms keep out
the sun ;

And thus the heart will break, yet brokenly live on ;

Even as a broken mirror, which the glass
 In every fragment multiplies, and makes
 A thousand images of one that was
 The same, and still the more, the more it breaks ;
 And thus the heart will do which not forsakes,
 Living in shattered guise, and still, and cold,
 And bloodless, with its sleepless sorrow aches,
 Yet withers on till all without is old,
 Showing no visible sign, for such things are untold.

LORD BYRON.

HOHENLINDEN.

ON Linden, when the sun was low,
 All bloodless lay the untrodden snow,
 And dark as winter was the flow
 Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

But Linden saw another sight
 When the drum beat, at dead of night,
 Commanding fires of death to light
 The darkness of her scenery.

By torch and trumpet fast arrayed,
 Each horseman drew his battle-blade,
 And furious every charger neighed,
 To join the dreadful revelry.

Then shook the hills with thunder riven,
 Then rushed the steed to battle driven,
 And louder than the bolts of heaven
 Far flashed the red artillery.

But redder yet that light shall glow
 On Linden's hills of stained snow,
 And bloodier yet the torrent flow
 Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

'Tis morn, but scarce yon level sun
 Can pierce the war-clouds, rolling dun,
 Where furious Frank and fiery Hun
 Shout in their sulphurous canopy.

The combat deepens. On, ye brave,
 Who rush to glory, or the grave !
 Wave, Munich ! all thy banners wave,
 And charge with all thy chivalry !

Few, few shall part where many meet !
 The snow shall be their winding-sheet,
 And every turf beneath their feet
 Shall be a soldier's sepulchre.

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP.

You know we French stormed Ratisbon :

A mile or so away,
 On a little mound, Napoleon
 Stood on our storming-day ;
 With neck out-thrust, you fancy how,
 Legs wide, arms locked behind,
 As if to balance the prone brow,
 Oppressive with its mind.

Just as perhaps he mused, " My plans
 That soar, to earth may fall,
 Let once my army-leader Lannes
 Waver at yonder wall," —
 Out 'twixt the battery-smokes there flew
 A rider, bound on bound
 Full-galloping ; nor bridle drew
 Until he reached the mound.

Then off there flung in smiling joy,
 And held himself erect
 By just his horse's mane, a boy :
 You hardly could suspect
 (So tight he kept his lips compressed, Scarce any blood came through),
 You looked twice ere you saw his breast
 Was all but shot in two.

" Well," cried he, " Emperor, by God's grace
 We've got you Ratisbon !
 The marshal's in the market-place,
 And you'll be there anon
 To see your flag-bird flap his vans
 Where I, to heart's desire,
 Perched him !" The chief's eye flashed ; his plans
 Soared up again like fire.

The chief's eye flashed ; but presently
 Softened itself, as sheathes
 A film the mother-eagle's eye
 When her bruised eaglet breathes :
 " You're wounded ! " " Nay," his soldier's pride
 Touched to the quick, he said :
 " I'm killed, sire ! " And, his chief beside,
 Smiling, the boy fell dead.

ROBERT BROWNING.

HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD NEWS
FROM GHENT TO AIX.

I SPANG to the stirrup, and Joris and he ;
 I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped all three ;
 " Good speed ! " cried the watch as the gate-
 bolts undrew,
 " Speed ! " echoed the wall to us galloping
 through.
 Behind shut the postern, the lights sank to rest,
 And into the midnight we galloped abreast.

Not a word to each other ; we kept the great pace, —
Neck by neck, stride by stride, never changing our place ;
I turned in my saddle and made its girths tight,
Then shortened each stirrup and set the pique
right,
Rebuckled the check-strap, chained slacker the bit,
Nor galloped less steadily Roland a whit.

'T was a moonset at starting ; but while we drew near Lokeren, the cocks crew and twilight dawned
clear ;
At Boom a great yellow star came out to see ;
At Düffeld 't was morning as plain as could be ;
And from Mecheln church-steeple we heard the half-chime, —
So Joris broke silence with " Yet there is time ! "

At Aerschot up leaped of a sudden the sun,
And against him the cattle stood black every one,
To stare through the mist at us galloping past ;
And I saw my stout galloper Roland at last,
With resolute shoulders, each butting away
The haze, as some bluff river headland its spray ;

And his low head and crest, just one sharp ear bent back
For my voice, and the other pricked out on his track ;
And one eye's black intelligence, — ever that glance
O'er its white edge at me, his own master, askance ;
And the thick heavy spume-flakes, which aye
and anon
His fierce lips shook upward in galloping on.

By Hasselt, Dirck groaned ; and cried Joris,
" Stay spur !
Your Roos galloped bravely, the fault's not in her ;
We'll remember at Aix, " — for one heard the quick wheeze
Of her chest, saw the stretched neck, and staggering knees,
And sunk tail, and horrible heave of the flank,
As down on her haunches she shuddered and sank.

So we were left galloping, Joris and I,
Past Looz and past Tongres, no cloud in the sky ;
The broad sun above laughed a pitiless laugh ;
'Neath our feet broke the brittle, bright stubble like chaff ;
Till over by Dalhem a dome-spire sprang white,
And " Gallop, " gasped Joris, " for Aix is in sight ! "

" How they 'll greet us ! " — and all in a moment his roan
Rolled neck and croup over, lay dead as a stone ;
And there was my Roland to bear the whole weight
Of the news which alone could save Aix from her fate,
With his nostrils like pits full of blood to the brim,
And with circles of red for his eye-sockets' rim.
Then I cast loose my buff-coat, each holster let fall,
Shook off both my jack-boots, let go belt and all,
Stood up in the stirrup, leaned, patted his ear,
Called my Roland his pet name, my horse without peer, —
Clapped my hands, laughed and sung, any noise, bad or good,
Till at length into Aix Roland galloped and stood.

And all I remember is, friends flocking round,
As I sate with his head 'twixt my knees on the ground ;
And no voice but was praising this Roland of
mine,
As I poured down his throat our last measure of wine,
Which (the burgesses voted by common consent)
Was no more than his due who brought good news from Ghent.

ROBERT BROWNING.

THE PRIVATE OF THE BUFFS ; * OR, THE BRITISH SOLDIER IN CHINA.

[* Some Seiks, and a private of the Buffs, having remained behind with the grog-carts, fell into the hands of the Chinese. On the next day they were brought before the authorities and ordered to perform Kotou. The Seiks obeyed, but Moyse, the English soldier, declared he would not prostrate himself before any Chinaman alive, and was immediately knocked upon the head, and his body thrown upon a dunghill." — China Correspondent of the London Times.]

LAST night, among his fellow roughs,
He jested, quaffed, and swore ;
A drunken private of the Buffs,
Who never looked before.
To-day, beneath the foeman's frown,
He stands in Elgin's place,
Ambassador from Britain's crown,
And type of all her race.

Poor, reckless, rude, low-born, untaught,
Bewildered, and alone,
A heart, with English instinct fraught,
He yet can call his own.
Ay, tear his body limb from limb,
Bring cord or axe or flame,
He only knows that not through him
Shall England come to shame.

* The " Buffs " are the East Kent regiment.

Far Kentish hop-fields round him seemed,
 Like dreams, to come and go ;
 Bright leagues of cherry-blossom gleamed,
 One sheet of living snow ;
 The smoke above his father's door
 In gray soft eddyings hung ;
 Must he then watch it rise no more,
 Doomed by himself so young ?

Yes, honor calls ! — with strength like steel
 He put the vision by ;
 Let dusky Indians whine and kneel,
 An English lad must die.
 And thus, with eyes that would not shrink,
 With knee to man unbent,
 Unflinching on its dreadful brink,
 To his red grave he went.

Vain mightiest fleets of iron framed,
 Vain those all-shattering guns,
 Unless proud England keep untamed
 The strong heart of her sons ;
 So let his name through Europe ring, —
 A man of mean estate,
 Who died, as firm as Sparta's king,
 Because his soul was great.

SIR FRANCIS HASTINGS DOYLE.

THE RELIEF OF LUCKNOW.

O, THAT last day in Lucknow fort !
 We knew that it was the last ;
 That the enemy's lines crept surely on,
 And the end was coming fast.

To yield to that foe meant worse than death ;
 And the men and we all worked on ;
 It was one day more of smoke and roar,
 And then it would all be done.

There was one of us, a corporal's wife,
 A fair, young, gentle thing,
 Waxed with fever in the siege,
 And her mind was wandering.

She lay on the ground, in her Scottish plaid,
 And I took her head on my knee ;
 "When my father comes hame frae the plough,"
 she said,
 "Oh ! then please wauken me."

She slept like a child on her father's floor,
 In the flecking of woodbine-shade,
 When the house-dog sprawls by the open door,
 And the mother's wheel is stayed.

It was smoke and roar and powder-stench,
 And hopeless waiting for death ;
 And the soldier's wife, like a full-tired child,
 Seemed scarce to draw her breath.

I sank to sleep ; and I had my dream
 Of an English village-lane,
 And wall and garden ; — but one wild scream
 Brought me back to the roar again.

There Jessie Brown stood listening
 Till a sudden gladness broke
 All over her face ; and she caught my hand
 And drew me near as she spoke : —

"The Hielanders ! O, dinna ye hear
 The slogan far awa ?
 The McGregor's, — O, I ken it weel ;
 It's the grandest o' them a' !

"God bless the bonny Hielanders !
 We're saved ! we're saved !" she cried ;
 And fell on her knees ; and thanks to God
 Flowed forth like a full flood-tide.

Along the battery-line her cry
 Had fallen among the men,
 And they started back ; — they were there to die ;
 But was life so near them, then ?

They listened for life ; the rattling fire
 Far off, and the far-off roar,
 Were all ; and the colonel shook his head,
 And they turned to their guns once more

But Jessie said, "The slogan's done ;
 But winna ye hear it noo.
The Campbells are comin' ? It's no a dream ;
 Our succors hae broken through !"

We heard the roar and the rattle afar,
 But the pipes we could not hear ;
 So the men plied their work of hopeless war,
 And knew that the end was near.

It was not long ere it made its way, —
 A thrilling, ceaseless sound :
 It was no noise from the strife afar,
 Or the sappers under ground.

It was the pipes of the Highlanders !
 And now they played Auld Lang Syne !
 It came to our men like the voice of God,
 And they shouted along the line.

And they wept, and shook one another's hands,
 And the women sobbed in a crowd ;
 And every one knelt down where he stood,
 And we all thanked God aloud.

That happy time, when we welcomed them,
 Our men put Jessie first ;
 And the general gave her his hand, and cheers
 Like a storm from the soldiers burst.

And the pipers' ribbons and tartan streamed,
 Marching round and round our line ;
 And our joyful cheers were broken with tears,
 As the pipes played Auld Lang Syne.

ROBERT T. S. LOWELL.

BY THE ALMA RIVER.

WILLIE, fold your little hands ;
 Let it drop, — that "soldier" toy ;
 Look where father's picture stands, —
 Father, that here kissed his boy
 Not a month since, — father kind,
 Who this night may (never mind
 Mother's sob, my Willie dear)
 Cry out loud that He may hear
 Who is God of battles, — cry,
 "God keep father safe this day
 By the Alma River !"

Ask no more, child. Never heed
 Either Russ, or Frank, or Turk ;
 Right of nations, trampled creed,
 Chance-poised victory's bloody work ;
 Any flag i' the wind may roll
 On thy heights, Sevastopol !
 Willie, all to you and me
 Is that spot, whate'er it be,
 Where he stands — no other word —
Stands — God sure the child's prayers heard —
 Near the Alma River.

Willie, listen to the bells
 Ringing in the town to-day ;
 That's for victory. No knell swells
 For the many swept away, —
 Hundreds, thousands. Let us weep,
 We, who need not, — just to keep
 Reason clear in thought and brain
 Till the morning comes again ;
 Till the third dread morning tell
 Who they were that fought and — fell
 By the Alma River.

Come, we'll lay us down, my child ;
 Poor the bed is, — poor and hard ;
 But thy father, far exiled,
 Sleeps upon the open sward,
 Dreaming of us two at home ;
 Or, beneath the starry dome,

Digs out trenches in the dark,
 Where he buries — Willie, mark ! —
 Where he buries those who died
 Fighting — fighting at his side —
 By the Alma River.

Willie, Willie, go to sleep ;
 God will help us, O my boy !
 He will make the dull hours creep
 Faster, and send news of joy ;
 When I need not shrink to meet
 Those great placards in the street,
 That for weeks will ghastly stare
 In some eyes — child, say that prayer
 Once again, — a different one, —
 Say, "O God ! Thy will be done
 By the Alma River."

DINAH MARIA MULOCK CRAIK.

BALAKLAVA.

O THE charge at Balaklava !
 O that rash and fatal charge !
 Never was a fiercer, braver,
 Than that charge at Balaklava,
 On the battle's bloody marge !
 All the day the Russian columns,
 Fortress huge, and blazing banks,
 Poured their dread destructive volumes
 On the French and English ranks, —
 On the gallant allied ranks !
 Earth and sky seemed rent asunder
 By the loud incessant thunder !
 When a strange but stern command —
 Needless, heedless, rash command —
 Came to Lucan's little band, —
 Scarce six hundred men and horses
 Of those vast contending forces : —
 "England's lost unless you save her !
 Charge the pass at Balaklava !"
 O that rash and fatal charge,
 On the battle's bloody marge !

Far away the Russian Eagles
 Soar o'er smoking hill and dell,
 And their hordes, like howling beagles,
 Dense and countless, round them yell !
 Thundering cannon, deadly mortar,
 Sweep the field in every quarter !
 Never, since the days of Jesus,
 Trembled so the Chersonesus !

Here behold the Gallic Lilies —
 Stout St. Louis' golden Lilies —
 Float as erst at old Ramillies !
 And beside them, lo ! the Lion !
 With her trophied Cross, is flying !
 Glorious standards ! — shall they waver
 On the field of Balaklava ?

No, by Heavens ! at that command —
Sudden, rash, but stern command —
Charges Lucan's little band !

Brave Six Hundred ! lo ! they charge,
On the battle's bloody marge !

Down yon deep and skirted valley,
Where the crowded cannon play, —
Where the Czar's fierce cohorts rally,
Cossack, Calmuck, savage Kalli, —

Down that gorge they swept away !
Down that new Thermopylæ,
Flashing swords and helmets see !
Underneath the iron shower,

To the brazen cannon's jaws,
Heedless of their deadly power,
Press they without fear or pause, —
To the very cannon's jaws !

Gallant Nolan, brave as Roland
At the field of Roncesvalles,
Dashes down the fatal valley,
Dashes on the bolt of death,
Shouting with his latest breath,
"Charge, then, gallants ! do not waver,
Charge the pass at Balaklava !"

O that rash and fatal charge,
On the battle's bloody marge !

Now the bolts of volleyed thunder
Rend that little band asunder,
Steed and rider wildly screaming,
Screaming wildly, sink away ;
Late so proudly, proudly gleaming,
Now but lifeless clods of clay, —
Now but bleeding clods of clay !

Never, since the days of Jesus,
Saw such sight the Chersonesus !
Yet your remnant, brave Six Hundred.
Presses onward, onward, onward,

Till they storm the bloody pass, —
Till, like brave Leonidas,
They storm the deadly pass,

Sabring Cossack, Calmuck, Kalli,
In that wild shot-rended valley, —
Drenched with fire and blood, like lava,
Awful pass at Balaklava !

O that rash and fatal charge,
On the battle's bloody marge !

For now Russia's rallied forces,
Swarming hordes of Cossack horses,
Trampling o'er the reeking corpses,
Drive the thinned assailants back,
Drive the feeble remnant back,
O'er their late heroic track !
Vain, alas ! now rent and sundered,
Vain your struggles, brave Two Hundred !
Thrice your number lie asleep,
In that valley dark and deep.

Weak and wounded you retire
From that hurricane of fire, —
That tempestuous storm of fire, —
But no soldiers, firmer, braver,

Ever trod the field of fame,
Than the Knights of Balaklava, —
Honor to each hero's name !

Yet their country long shall mourn
For her rank so rashly shorn, —
So gallantly, but madly shorn

In that fierce and fatal charge,
On the battle's bloody marge.

ALEXANDER BEAUFORT MEEK.

CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE.

HALF a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.
"Forward, the Light Brigade !
Charge for the guns !" he said ;
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

"Forward, the Light Brigade !"
Was there a man dismayed ?
Not though the soldier knew
Some one had blundered :
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die :
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them
Volleyed and thundered ;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well ;
Into the jaws of Death,
Into the mouth of Hell,
Rode the six hundred.

Flashed all their sabres bare,
Flashed as they turned in air,
Sabring the gunners there,
Charging an army, while
All the world wondered :
Plunged in the battery-smoke,
Right through the line they broke :
Cossack and Russian
Reeled from the sabre-stroke,
Shattered and sundered.
Then they rode back, but not —
Not the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
 Cannon to left of them,
 Cannon behind them
 Volleyed and thundered :
 Stormed at with shot and shell,
 While horse and hero fell,
 They that had fought so well
 Came through the jaws of Death
 Back from the mouth of Hell, —
 All that was left of them,
 Left of six hundred.

When can their glory fade ?
 O the wild charge they made !
 All the world wondered.
 Honor the charge they made !
 Honor the Light Brigade,
 Noble six hundred !

ALFRED TENNYSON.

CAVALRY SONG.

FROM "ALICE OF MONMOUTH."

Our good steeds snuff the evening air,
 Our pulses with their purpose tingle ;
 The foeman's fires are twinkling there ;
 He leaps to hear our sabres jingle !

HALT !

Each carbine send its whizzing ball :
 Now, cling ! clang ! forward all,
 Into the fight !

Dash on beneath the smoking dome :
 Through level lightnings gallop nearer !
 One look to Heaven ! No thoughts of home :
 The guidons that we bear are dearer.

CHARGE !

Cling ! clang ! forward all !
 Heaven help those whose horses fall :
 Cut left and right !

They flee before our fierce attack !
 They fall ! they spread in broken surges.
 Now, comrades, bear our wounded back,
 And leave the foeman to his dirges.

WHEEL !

The bugles sound the swift recall :
 Cling ! clang ! backward all !
 Home, and good night !

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN.

PIBROCH OF DONUIL DHU.*

PIBROCH of Donuil Dhu,
 Pibroch of Donuil,
 Wake thy wild voice anew,
 Summon Clan Conuil.

Gathering-song of Donald the Black.

Come away, come away,
 Hark to the summons !
 Come in your war array,
 Gentles and commons.

Come from deep glen, and
 From mountains so rocky ;
 The war-pipe and pennon
 Are at Inverlochy.
 Come every hill-plaid, and
 True heart that wears one,
 Come every steel blade, and
 Strong hand that bears one.

Leave untended the herd,
 The flock without shelter ;
 Leave the corpse uninterred,
 The bride at the altar ;
 Leave the deer, leave the steer,
 Leave nets and barges ;
 Come with your fighting gear,
 Broadswords and targes.

Come as the winds come, when
 Forests are rended ;
 Come as the waves come, when Navies are stranded ;
 Faster come, faster come,
 Faster and faster,
 Chief, vassal, page and groom,
 Tenant and master.

Fast they come, fast they come ;
 See how they gather !
 Wide waves the eagle plume
 Blended with heather.
 Cast your plaids, draw your blades,
 Forward each man set !
 Pibroch of Donuil Dhu,
 Knell for the onset !

SIR WALTER SCOTT

THE TROOPER'S DEATH.

THE weary night is o'er at last !
 We ride so still, we ride so fast !
 We ride where Death is lying.
 The morning wind doth coldly pass,
 Landlord ! we'll take another glass,
 Ere dying.

Thou, springing grass, that art so green,
 Shalt soon be rosy red, I ween,
 My blood the hue supplying !
 I drink the first glass, sword in hand,
 To him who for the Fatherland
 Lies dying !

Now quickly comes the second draught,
And that shall be to freedom quaffed

While freedom's foes are flying !
The rest, O land, our hope and faith !
We'd drink to thee with latest breath,
Though dying !

My darling ! — ah, the glass is out !
The bullets ring, the riders shout —

No time for wine or sighing !
There ! bring my love the shattered glass —
Charge ! on the foe ! no joys surpass
Such dying !

From the German. Translation of
R. W. RAYMOND.

SONG OF CLAN-ALPINE.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO II.

HAIL to the Chief who in triumph advances !
Honored and blessed be the evergreen Pine !
Long may the tree, in his banner that glances,
Flourish, the shelter and grace of our line !
Heaven send it happy dew,
Earth lend it sap anew,
Gayly to burgeon, and broadly to grow,
While every Highland glen
Sends our shout back again,
"Roderigh Vich Alpine dhu, ho ! ieroe !"

Ours is no sapling, chance-sown by the fountain,
Blooming at Beltane, in winter to fade ;
When the whirlwind has stripped every leaf on the mountain,
The more shall Clan-Alpine exult in her shade.
Moored in the rifted rock,
Proof to the tempest's shock,
Firmer he roots him the ruder it blow ;
Menteith and Breadalbane, then,
Echo his praise again,
"Roderigh Vich Alpine dhu, ho ! ieroe !"

Proudly our pibroch has thrilled in Glen Fruin,
And Bannachar's groans to our slogan replied ;
Glen Luss and Ross-dhu, they are smoking in ruin,
And the best of Loch-Lomond lie dead on her side.

Widow and Saxon maid
Long shall lament our raid,
Think of Clan-Alpine with fear and with woe ;
Lennox and Leven-glen
Shake when they hear again,
"Roderigh Vich Alpine dhu, ho ! ieroe !"

Row, vassals, row, for the pride of the Highlands !
Stretch to your oars for the evergreen Pine !
O that the rosebud that graces yon islands
Were wreathed in a garland around him to twine !

O that some seedling gem,
Worthy such noble stem,
Honored and blessed in their shadow might grow !
Loud should Clan-Alpine then
Ring from her deepmost glen,
"Roderigh Vich Alpine dhu, ho ! ieroe !"

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

THE BATTLE-SONG OF GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS.

FEAR not, O little flock ! the foe
Who madly seeks your overthrow,
Dread not his rage and power ;
What though your courage sometimes faints ?
His seeming triumph o'er God's saints
Lasts but a little hour.

Be of good cheer ; your cause belongs
To him who can avenge your wrongs,
Leave it to him, our Lord.
Though hidden now from all our eyes,
He sees the Gideon who shall rise
To save us, and his world.

As true as God's own word is true,
Not earth or hell with all their crew
Against us shall prevail.
A jest and by-word are they grown ;
God is with us, we are his own,
Our victory cannot fail.

Amen, Lord Jesus ; grant our prayer !
Great Captain, now thine arm make bare •
Fight for us once again !
So shall the saints and martyrs raise
A mighty chorus to thy praise,
World without end ! Amen.

From the German of MICHAEL ALTENBURG.

SWORD SONG.

[Charles Theodore Körner was a young German soldier, scholar, poet, and patriot. He was born at Dresden in the autumn of 1791, and fell in battle for his country at the early age of twenty-two. The "Sword Song," so called, was written in his pocket-book only two hours before he fell, during a halt in a wood previous to the engagement, and was read by him to a comrade just as the signal was given for battle. This bold song represents the soldier chiding his sword, which, under the image of his iron bride, is impatient to come forth from her chamber, the scabbard, and be wedded to him on the field of battle, where each soldier shall press the blade to his lips.]

Körner fell in an engagement with superior numbers near a thicket in the neighborhood of Rosenberg. He had advanced in pursuit of the flying foe too far beyond his comrades. They buried him under an old oak on the site of the battle, and carved his name on the trunk.]

SWORD, on my left side gleaming,
What means thy bright eye's beaming ?
It makes my spirit dance
To see thy friendly glance.
Hurrah !

"A valiant rider bears me ;
A free-born German wears me :
That makes my eye so bright ;
That is the sword's delight."

Hurrah !

Yes, good sword, I am free,
And love thee heartily,
And clasp thee to my side,
E'en as a plighted bride.

Hurrah !

"And I to thee, by Heaven,
My light steel life have given ;
When shall the knot be tied ?
When wilt thou take thy bride ?"

Hurrah !

The trumpet's solemn warning
Shall hail the bridal morning.
When cannon-thunders wake
Then my true-love I take.

Hurrah !

"O blessed, blessed meeting !
My heart is wildly beating :
Come, bridegroom, come for me ;
My garland waiteth thee."

Hurrah !

Why in the scabbard rattle,
So wild, so fierce for battle ?
What means this restless glow ?
My sword, why clatter to ?

Hurrah !

"Well may thy prisoner rattle ;
My spirit yearns for battle.
Rider, 't is war's wild glow
That makes me tremble so."

Hurrah !

Stay in thy chamber near,
My love ; what wilt thou here ?
Still in thy chamber bide :
Soon, soon I take my bride.

Hurrah !

"Let me not longer wait :
Love's garden blooms in state,
With roses bloody-red,
And many a bright death-bed."

Hurrah !

Now, then, come forth, my bride !
Come forth, thou rider's pride !
Come out, my good sword, come !
Forth to thy father's home !

Hurrah !

"O, in the field to prance
The glorious wedding dance !
How, in the sun's bright beams,
Bride-like the clear steel gleams !"

Hurrah !

Then forward, valiant fighters !
And forward, German riders !
And when the heart grows cold,
Let each his love infold.

Hurrah !

Once on the left it hung,
And stolen glances flung ;
Now clearly on your right
Doth God each fond bride plight.

Hurrah !

Then let your hot lips feel
That virgin cheek of steel ;
One kiss, — and woe betide
Him who forsakes the bride.

Hurrah !

Now let the loved one sing ;
Now let the clear blade ring,
Till the bright sparks shall fly,
Heralds of victory !

Hurrah !

For, hark ! the trumpet's warning
Proclaims the marriage morning ;
It dawns in festal pride ;
Hurrah, thou Iron Bride !

Hurrah !

From the German of CHARLES THEODORE KÖRNER
Translation of CHARLES T. BROOKS.

THE NOBLEMAN AND THE PENSIONER.

"OLD man, God bless you ! does your pipe taste sweetly ?

A beauty, by my soul !

A red-clay flower-pot, rimmed with gold so neatly !

What ask you for the bowl ?"

"O sir, that bowl for worlds I would not part with ;

A brave man gave it me,

Who won it — now what think you ? — of a bashaw

At Belgrade's victory.

"There, sir, ah ! there was booty worth the showing, —

Long life to Prince Eugene !

Like after-grass you might have seen us mowing
The Turkish ranks down clean."

"Another time I'll hear your story ; —
Come, old man, be no fool ;
Take these two ducats, — gold for glory, —
And let me have the bowl !"

"I'm a poor churl, as you may say, sir ;
My pension's all I'm worth :
Yet I'd not give that bowl away, sir,
For all the gold on earth.

"Just hear now ! Once, as we hussars, all merry,
Hard on the foe's rear pressed,
A blundering rascal of a janizary
Shot through our captain's breast.

"At once across my horse I hove him, —
The same would he have done, —
And from the smoke and tumult drove him
Safe to a nobleman.

"I nursed him, and, before his end, bequeathing
His money and this bowl
To me, he pressed my hand, just ceased his breathing,
And so he died, brave soul !

"The money thou must give mine host, — so thought I, —
Three plunderings suffered he :
And, in remembrance of my old friend, brought I
The pipe away with me.

"Henceforth in all campaigns with me I bore it,
In flight or in pursuit ;
It was a holy thing, sir, and I wore it
Safe-sheltered in my boot.

"This very limb, I lost it by a shot, sir,
Under the walls of Prague :
First at my precious pipe, be sure, I caught, sir,
And then picked up my leg."

"You move me even to tears, old sire :
What was the brave man's name ?
Tell me, that I, too, may admire,
And venerate his fame."

"They called him only the brave Walter ;
His farm lay near the Rhine." —
"God bless your old eyes ! 't was my father,
And that same farm is mine.

"Come, friend, you've seen some stormy weather,
With me is now your bed ;
We'll drink of Walter's grapes together,
And eat of Walter's bread."

"Now, — done ! I march in, then, to-morrow ;
You're his true heir, I see ;
And when I die, your thanks, kind master,
The Turkish pipe shall be."

From the German of PFEFFEL. Translation of CHARLES T. BROOKS

BINGEN ON THE RHINE.

A SOLDIER of the Legion lay dying in Algiers,
There was lack of woman's nursing, there was dearth of woman's tears ;
But a comrade stood beside him, while his life-
blood ebbed away,
And bent, with pitying glances, to hear what he might say.
The dying soldier faltered, and he took that comrade's hand,
And he said, "I nevermore shall see my own,
my native land ;
Take a message, and a token, to some distant friends of mine,
For I was born at Bingen, — at Bingen on the Rhine.

"Tell my brothers and companions, when they meet and crowd around,
To hear my mournful story, in the pleasant vineyard ground,
That we fought the battle bravely, and when the day was done,
Full many a corse lay ghastly pale beneath the setting sun ;
And, mid the dead and dying, were some grown old in wars, —
The death-wound on their gallant breasts, the last of many scars ;
And some were young, and suddenly beheld life's morn decline, —
And one had come from Bingen, — fair Bingen
on the Rhine.

"Tell my mother that her other son shall comfort her old age ;
For I was still a truant bird, that thought his home a cage.
For my father was a soldier, and even as a child
My heart leaped forth to hear him tell of struggles fierce and wild ;
And when he died, and left us to divide his scanty hoard,
I let them take what'er they would, — but kept
my father's sword ;
And with boyish love I hung it where the bright light used to shine,
On the cottage wall at Bingen, — calm Bingen
on the Rhine.

"Tell my sister not to weep for me, and sob with drooping head,
When the troops come marching home again with glad and gullant tread,
But to look upon them proudly, with a calm and steadfast eye,
For her brother was a soldier too, and not afraid
to die ;

And if a comrade seek her love, I ask her in my name

To listen to him kindly, without regret or shame,
And to hang the old sword in its place (my father's sword and mine)

For the honor of old Bingen, — dear Bingen on the Rhine.

"There's another, — not a sister ; in the happy days gone by

You'd have known her by the merriment that sparkled in her eye ;

Too innocent for coquetry, — too fond for idle scorning, —

O friend ! I fear the lightest heart makes sometimes heaviest mourning !

Tell her the last night of my life (for, ere the moon be risen,

My body will be out of pain, my soul be out of prison), —

I dreamed I stood with her, and saw the yellow sunlight shine

On the vine-clad hills of Bingen, — fair Bingen
on the Rhine.

"I saw the blue Rhine sweep along, — I heard,
or seemed to hear,

The German songs we used to sing, in chorus
sweet and clear ;

And down the pleasant river, and up the slanting hill,

The echoing chorus sounded, through the evening calm and still ;

And her glad blue eyes were on me, as we passed,
with friendly talk,

Down many a path beloved of yore, and well-remembered walk !

And her little hand lay lightly, confidently in mine, —

But we'll meet no more at Bingen, — loved
Bingen on the Rhine."

His trembling voice grew faint and hoarse, — his grasp was childish weak, —

His eyes put on a dying look, — he sighed and ceased to speak ;

His comrade bent to lift him, but the spark of life had fled, —

The soldier of the Legion in a foreign land is dead !

And the soft moon rose up slowly, and calmly
she looked down

On the red sand of the battle-field, with bloody corse strewn ;

Yes, calmly on that dreadful scene her pale light seemed to shine,

As it shone on distant Bingen, — fair Bingen on the Rhine.

MY WIFE AND CHILD.*

THE tattoo beats, — the lights are gone,

The camp around in slumber lies,

The night with solemn pace moves on,

The shadows thicken o'er the skies ;

But sleep my weary eyes hath flown,

And sad, uneasy thoughts arise.

I think of thee, O darling one,

Whose love my early life hath blest —

Of thee and him — our baby son —

Who slumbers on thy gentle breast.

God of the tender, frail, and lone,

O, guard the tender sleeper's rest !

And hover gently, hover near

To her whose watchful eye is wet, —

To mother, wife, — the doubly dear,

In whose young heart have freshly met

Two streams of love so deep and clear,

And cheer her drooping spirits yet.

Now, while she kneels before thy throne,

O, teach her, Ruler of the skies,

That, while by thy behest alone

Earth's mightiest powers fall or rise,

No tear is wept to thee unknown,

No hair is lost, no sparrow dies !

That thou canst stay the ruthless hands

Of dark disease, and soothe its pain ;

That only by thy stern commands

The battle's lost, the soldier's slain ;

That from the distant sea or land

Thou bring'st the wanderer home again.

And when upon her pillow lone

Her tear-wet cheek is sadly pressed,

May happier visions beam upon

The brightening current of her breast,

No frowning look or angry tone

Disturb the Sabbath of her rest !

time Colonel of the 1st Regiment Georgia Volunteers.

Whatever fate these forms may show,
 Loved with a passion almost wild,
 By day, by night, in joy or woe,
 By fears oppressed, or hopes beguiled,
 From every danger, every foe,
 O God, protect my wife and child !

HENRY R. JACKSON.

MONTEREY.

We were not many, — we who stood
 Before the iron sleet that day ;
 Yet many a gallant spirit would Give half his years if but he could
 Have been with us at Monterey.

Now here, now there, the shot it hailed
 In deadly drifts of fiery spray,
 Yet not a single soldier quailed
 When wounded comrades round them wailed
 Their dying shout at Monterey.

And on, still on our column kept,
 Through walls of flame, its withering way ;
 Where fell the dead, the living septe,
 Still charging on the guns which swept
 The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoiled aghast,
 When, striking where he strongest lay,
 We swooped his flanking batteries past,
 And, braving full their murderous blast,
 Stormed home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave,
 And there our evening bugles play ;
 Where orange boughs above their grave,
 Keep green the memory of the brave
 Who fought and fell at Monterey.

We are not many, — we who pressed
 Beside the brave who fell that day ;
 But who of us has not confessed
 He'd rather share their warrior rest
 Than not have been at Monterey ?

CHARLES FENNO HOFFMAN.

IN STATE.

I.

O KEEPER of the Sacred Key,
 And the Great Seal of Destiny,
 Whose eye is the blue canopy,
 Look down upon the warring world, and tell us what the end will be.

“ Lo, through the wintry atmosphere,
 On the white bosom of the sphere,
 A cluster of five lakes appear ;
 And all the land looks like a couch, or warrior's shield, or sheeted bier.

“ And on that vast and hollow field,
 With both lips closed and both eyes sealed,
 A mighty Figure is revealed, — Stretched at full length, and stiff and stark, as in the hollow of a shield.

“ The winds have tied the drifted snow
 Around the face and chin ; and lo,
 The sceptred Giants come and go,
 And shake their shadowy crowns and say : ‘ We always feared it would be so ! ’

“ She came of an heroic race :
 A giant's strength, a maiden's grace,
 Like two in one seem to embrace,
 And match, and blend, and thorough-blend, in her colossal form and face.

“ Where can her dazzling falchion be ?
 One hand is fallen in the sea ;
 The Gulf Stream drifts it far and free ;
 And in that hand her shining brand gleams from the depths resplendently.

“ And by the other, in its rest,
 The starry banner of the West
 Is clasped forever to her breast ;
 And of her silver helmet, lo, a soaring eagle is the crest.

“ And on her brow, a softened light,
 As of a star concealed from sight
 By some thin veil of fleecy white,
 Or of the rising moon behind the raining vapors of the night.

“ The Sisterhood that was so sweet,
 The Starry System sphered complete,
 Which the mazed Orient used to greet,
 The Four-and-Thirty fallen Stars glimmer and glitter at her feet.

“ And over her, — and over all,
 For panoply and coronal, —
 The mighty Immemorial,
 And everlasting Canopy and Starry Arch and Shield of All.

II.

“ Three cold, bright moons have marched and wheeled ;
 And the white cerement that revealed
 A Figure stretched upon a Shield,
 Is turned to verdure ; and the Land is now one mighty Battle-field.

"And lo, the children which she bred,
And more than all else cherished,
To make them true in heart and head,
Stand face to face, as mortal foes, with their swords crossed above the dead.

"Each hath a mighty stroke and stride :
One true, — the more that he is tried ;
The other dark and evil-eyed ; —
And by the hand of one of them, his own dear mother surely died !

"A stealthy step, a gleam of hell, —
It is the simple truth to tell, —
The Son stabbed and the Mother fell :
And so she lies, all mute and pale, and pure and irreproachable !

"And then the battle-trumpet blew ;
And the true brother sprang and drew
His blade to smite the traitor through ;
And so they clashed above the bier, and the Night sweated bloody dew.

"And all their children, far and wide,
That are so greatly multiplied,
Rise up in frenzy and divide ;
And choosing, each whom he will serve, un-sheathe the sword and take their side.

"And in the low sun's bloodshot rays,
Portentous of the coming days,
The Two great Oceans blush and blaze,
With the emergent continent between them,
wrapt in crimson haze.

"Now whichever stand or fall,
As God is great, and man is small,
The Truth shall triumph over all :
Forever and forevermore, the Truth shall triumph over all !

III.

"I see the champion sword-strokes flash ;
I see them fall and hear them clash ;
I hear the murderous engines crash ;
I see a brother stoop to loose a foeman-brother's bloody sash.

"I see the torn and mangled corse,
The dead and dying heaped in scores,
The headless rider by his horse,
The wounded captive bayoneted through and through without remorse.

"I hear the dying sufferer cry,
With his crushed face turned to the sky,
I see him crawl in agony
To the foul pool, and bow his head into bloody slime, and die.

"I see the assassin crouch and fire,
I see his victim fall, — expire ;
I see the murderer creeping nigher
To strip the dead. He turns the head, — the face ! The son beholds his sire !

I hear the curses and the thanks ;
I see the mad charge on the flanks,
The rents, the gaps, the broken ranks,
The vanquished squadrons driven headlong down the river's bridgeless banks.

"I see the death-gripe on the plain,
The grappling monsters on the main,
The tens of thousands that are slain,
And all the speechless suffering and agony of heart and brain.

"I see the dark and bloody spots,
The crowded rooms and crowded cots,
The bleaching bones, the battle blots, —
And writ on many a nameless grave, a legend of forget-me-nots.

"I see the gorged prison-den,
The dead line and the pent-up pen,
The thousands quartered in the fen,
The living-deaths of skin and bone that were the goodly shapes of men.

"And still the bloody Dew must fall !
And His great Darkness with the Pall
Of His dread Judgment cover all,
Till the Dead Nation rise Transformed by Truth to triumph over all !"

"And Last — and Last I see — The Deed."
Thus saith the Keeper of the Key,
And the Great Seal of Destiny,
Whose eye is the blue canopy,
And leaves the Pall of His great Darkness over all the Land and Sea.

FORCE-THE WILLSON.

THE PICKET-GUARD.

"All quiet along the Potomac," they say,
"Except now and then a stray picket
Is shot, as he walks on his beat, to and fro,
By a rifleman hid in the thicket.
'T is nothing : a private or two, now and then,
Will not count in the news of the battle ;
Not an officer lost, — only one of the men,
Moaning out, all alone, the death-rattle."

All quiet along the Potomac to-night,
Where the soldiers lie peacefully dreaming ;
Their tents in the rays of the clear autumn moon,
Or the light of the watch-fires, are gleaming.

A tremulous sigh, as the gentle night-wind
Through the forest leaves softly is creeping ;
While stars up above, with their glittering eyes,
Keep guard, — for the army is sleeping.

There's only the sound of the lone sentry's tread
As he tramps from the rock to the fountain,
And he thinks of the two in the low trundle-bed,
Far away in the cot on the mountain.
His musket falls slack ; his face, dark and grim,
Grows gentle with memories tender,
As he mutters a prayer for the children asleep,
For their mother, — may Heaven defend her !

The moon seems to shine just as brightly as then,
That night when the love yet unspoken
Leaped up to his lips, — when low, murmured vows
Were pledged to be ever unbroken ;
Then drawing his sleeve roughly over his eyes,
He dashes off tears that are welling,
And gathers his gun closer up to its place,
As if to keep down the heart-swelling.

He passes the fountain, the blasted pine-tree, —
The footstep is lagging and weary ;
Yet onward he goes, through the broad belt of light,
Toward the shades of the forest so dreary.
Hark ! was it the night-wind that rustled the leaves ?

Was it moonlight so wondrously flashing ?
It looked like a rifle : " Ha ! Mary, good-by ! "
And the life-blood is ebbing and plashing.

All quiet along the Potomac to-night, —
No sound save the rush of the river ;
While soft falls the dew on the face of the dead, —
The picket's off duty forever.

ETHELIN ELIOT BEERS

CIVIL WAR.

" RIFLEMAN, shoot me a fancy shot
Straight at the heart of yon prowling vidette ;
Ring me a ball in the glittering spot
That shines on his breast like an amulet ! "

" Ah, captain ! here goes for a fine-drawn bead, There's music around when my barrel's in tune ! "

Crack ! went the rifle, the messenger sped,
And dead from his horse fell the ringing dragoon.

" Now, rifleman, steal through the bushes, and snatch

From your victim some trinket to handsel first
blood ;

A button, a loop, or that luminous patch
That gleams in the moon like a diamond stud ! "

" O captain ! I staggered, and sunk on my track,
When I gazed on the face of that fallen vidette,
For he looked so like you, as he lay on his back,
That my heart rose upon me, and masters me yet.

" But I snatched off the trinket, — this locket
of gold ;

An inch from the centre my lead broke its way,
Scarce grazing the picture, so fair to behold,
Of a beautiful lady in bridal array."

" Ha ! rifleman, fling me the locket ! — 't is she,
My brother's young bride, and the fallen dragoon

Was her husband — Hush ! soldier, 't was Heaven's decree,

We must bury him there, by the light of the moon !

" But, hark ! the far bugles their warnings unite ;
War is a virtue, — weakness a sin ;
There's a lurking and loping around us to-night ;
Load again, rifleman, keep your hand in ! "

CHARLES DAWSON SHANLY.

THE BRIER-WOOD PIPE.

HA ! bully for me again, when my turn for picket is over,
And now for a smoke as I lie, with the moonlight, out in the clover.

My pipe, it's only a knot from the root of a brier-wood tree,
But it turns my heart to the Northward — Harry gave it to me.

And I'm but a rough at best, bred up to the row and the riot ;

But a softness comes over my heart, when all are asleep and quiet.

For, many a time, in the night, strange things appear to my eye,
As the breath from my brier-wood pipe curls up between me and the sky.

Last night a beautiful spirit arose with the wisp'ing smoke ;

O, I shook, but my heart felt good, as it spread out its hands and spoke ;

Saying, " I am the soul of the brier ; we grew at the root of a tree

Where lovers would come in the twilight, two ever, for company

"Where lovers would come in the morning —
ever but two, together ;
When the flowers were full in their blow ; the birds, in their song and feather.

"Where lovers would come in the noontide, loitering — never but two,
Looking in each other's eyes, like pigeons that kiss and coo.

"And O, the honeyed words that came when the lips were parted,
And the passion that glowed in the eyes, and the lightning looks that darted !

"Enough : Love dwells in the pipe — so ever it
glows with fire !
I am the soul of the bush, and the spirits call me Sweet Brier."

That's what the brier-wood said, as nigh as my tongue can tell,
And the words went straight to my heart, like the stroke of the fire-bell.

To-night I lie in the clover, watching the blos-somy smoke ;
I'm glad the boys are asleep, for I ain't in the humor to joke.

I lie in the hefty clover : up between me and
the moon
The smoke of my pipe arises : my heart will be quiet, soon.

My thoughts are back in the city, I'm everything I've been ;
I hear the bell from the tower, I run with the swift machine,

I see the red shirts crowding around the engine-
house door,
The foreman's hail through the trumpet comes with a hollow roar.

The reel in the Bowery dance-house, the row in the beer-saloon,
Where I put in my licks at Big Paul, come between me and the moon.

I hear the drum and the bugle, the tramp of the cow-skin boots,
We are marching on our muscle, the Fire-Zouave recruits !

White handkerchiefs wave before me — O, but the sight is pretty
On the white marble steps, as we march through the heart of the city.

Bright eyes and clasping arms, and lips that bade us good hap ;
And the splendid lady who gave me the havelock for my cap.

O, up from my pipe-cloud rises, there between me and the moon,
A beautiful white-robed lady ; my heart will be quiet, soon.

The lovely golden-haired lady ever in dreams I see,
Who gave me the snow-white havelock — but what does she care for me ?

Look at my grimy features ; mountains between us stand :
I with my sledge-hammer knuckles, she with her jewelled hand !

What care I ? — the day that's dawning may see me, when all is over,
With the red stream of my life-blood staining
the hefty clover.

Hark ! the reveille sounding out on the morning
air ;
Devils are we for the battle — Will there be angels there ?

Kiss me again, Sweet Brier, the touch of your lip to mine
Brings back the white-robed lady with hair like the golden wine !

CHARLES DAWSON SHANLY.

WOUNDED TO DEATH.

STEADY, boys, steady !
Keep your arms ready,
God only knows whom we may meet here.
Don't let me be taken ;
I'd rather awaken,
To-morrow, in — no matter where,
Than lie in that foul prison-hole — over there.
Step slowly !
Speak lowly !
These rocks may have life.
Lay me down in this hollow ;
We are out of the strife.
By heavens ! the foemen may track me in blood,
For this hole in my breast is outpouring a flood.
No ! no surgeon for me ; he can give me no aid ;
The surgeon I want is pickaxe and spade.
What, Morris, a tear ? Why, shame on ye, man !
I thought you a hero ; but since you began
To whimper and cry like a girl in her teens,
By George ! I don't know what the devil it means !

Well! well! I am rough; 't is a very rough school,
This life of a trooper, — but yet I 'm no fool!
I know a brave man, and a friend from a foe;
And, boys, that you love me I certainly know;

But was n't it grand

When they came down the hill over sloughing
and sand!

But we stood — did we not? — like immovable
rock,

Unheeding their balls and repelling their shock.

Did you mind the loud cry

When, as turning to fly,

Our men sprang upon them, determined to die?

O, was n't it grand!

God help the poor wretches that fell in that fight;
No time was there given for prayer or for flight;
They fell by the score, in the crash, hand to hand,
And they mingled their blood with the sloughing
and sand.

Huzza!

Great Heavens! this bullet-hole gapes like a grave;

A curse on the aim of the traitorous knave!

Is there never a one of ye knows how to pray,
Or speak for a man as his life ebbs away?

Pray!

Pray!

Our Father! our Father! . . . why don't ye proceed?

Can't you see I am dying? Great God, how I bleed!

Ebbing away!

Ebbing away!

The light of the day

Is turning to gray.

Pray!

Pray!

Our Father in Heaven, — boys, tell me the rest, While I stanch the hot blood from this hole in my breast.

There 's something about the forgiveness of sin —

Put that in! put that in! — and then

I 'll follow your words and say an amen.

Here, Morris, old fellow, get hold of my hand;
And, Wilson, my comrade — O, was n't it grand
When they came down the hill like a thunder-charged cloud!

Where 's Wilson, my comrade? — Here, stoop down your head;

Can't you say a short prayer for the dying and
dead!

"Christ God, who died for sinners all,

Hear thou this suppliant wanderer's cry;

Let not e'en this poor sparrow fall

Unheeded by thy gracious eye.

"Throw wide thy gates to let him in,
And take him, pleading, to thine arms;
Forgive, O Lord! his life-long sin,
And quiet all his fierce alarms."

God bless you, my comrade, for saying that
hymn;

It is light to my path when my eye has grown dim.

I am dying — bend down till I touch you once
more —

Don't forget me, old fellow, — God prosper this war!

Confusion to traitors! — keep hold of my hand —
And float the OLD FLAG o'er a prosperous land!

JOHN W. WATSON.

LEFT ON THE BATTLE-FIELD.

WHAT, was it a dream? am I all alone

In the dreary night and the drizzling rain?

Hist! — ah, it was only the river's moan;

They have left me behind with the mangled slain.

Yes, now I remember it all too well!

We met, from the battling ranks apart;

Together our weapons flashed and fell,

And mine was sheathed in his quivering heart.

In the cypress gloom, where the deed was done,

It was all too dark to see his face;

But I heard his death-groans, one by one,

And he holds me still in a cold embrace.

He spoke but once, and I could not hear

The words he said, for the cannon's roar;

But my heart grew cold with a deadly fear, —

O God! I had heard that voice before!

Had heard it before at our mother's knee,

When we lisped the words of our evening
prayer!

My brother! would I had died for thee, —

This burden is more than my soul can bear!

I pressed my lips to his death-cold cheek,

And begged him to show me, by word or sign,

That he knew and forgave me: he could not speak,

But he nestled his poor cold face to mine.

The blood flowed fast from my wounded side,

And then for a while I forgot my pain,

And over the lakelet we seemed to glide

In our little boat, two boys again.

And then, in my dream, we stood alone
On a forest path where the shadows fell ;
And I heard again the tremulous tone,
And the tender words of his last farewell.

But that parting was years, long years ago,
He wandered away to a foreign land ;
And our dear old mother will never know
That he died to-night by his brother's hand.

The soldiers who buried the dead away
Disturbed not the clasp of that last embrace,
But laid them to sleep till the judgment-day,
Heart folded to heart, and face to face.

SARAH T. BOLTON.

THE DRUMMER-BOY'S BURIAL.

ALL day long the storm of battle through the startled valley swept ;
All night long the stars in heaven o'er the slain sad vigils kept.

O, the ghastly upturned faces gleaming whitely through the night !
O, the heaps of mangled corpses in that dim sepulchral light !

One by one the pale stars faded, and at length
the morning broke ;
But not one of all the sleepers on that field of death awoke.

Slowly passed the golden hours of that long
bright summer day,
And upon that field of carnage still the dead
unburied lay.

Lay there stark and cold, but pleading with a dumb, unceasing prayer,
For a little dust to hide them from the staring sun and air.

But the foeman held possession of that hard-won battle-plain,
In unholy wrath denying even burial to our slain.

Once again the night dropped round them, —
night so holy and so calm
That the moonbeams hushed the spirit, like the sound of prayer or psalm.

On a couch of trampled grasses, just apart from
all the rest,
Lay a fair young boy, with small hands meekly folded on his breast.

Death had touched him very gently, and he lay
as if in sleep ;
Even his mother scarce had shuddered at that slumber calm and deep.

For a smile of wondrous sweetness lent a radiance to the face,
And the hand of cunning sculptor could have added naught of grace

To the marble limbs so perfect in their passion-
less repose,
Robbed of all save matchless purity by hard,
unpitying foes.

And the broken drum beside him all his life's short story told :
How he did his duty bravely till the death-tide o'er him rolled.

Midnight came with ebon garments and a diadem of stars,
While right upward in the zenith hung the fiery planet Mars.

Hark ! a sound of stealthy footsteps and of voices whispering low,
Was it nothing but the young leaves, or the brooklet's murmuring flow ?

Clinging closely to each other, striving never to look round
As they passed with silent shudder the pale corpses on the ground,

Came two little maidens, — sisters, — with a light and hasty tread,
And a look upon their faces, half of sorrow, half of dread.

And they did not pause nor falter till, with throbbing hearts, they stood
Where the drummer-boy was lying in that partial solitude.

They had brought some simple garments from their wardrobe's scanty store,
And two heavy iron shovels in their slender hands they bore.

Then they quickly knelt beside him, crushing
back the pitying tears,
For they had no time for weeping, nor for any girlish fears.

And they robbed the icy body, while no glow of maiden shame
Changed the pallor of their foreheads to a flush of lambent flame.

For their saintly hearts yearned o'er it in that hour of sorest need,
And they felt that Death was holy, and it sanctified the deed.

But they smiled and kissed each other when their new strange task was o'er,
And the form that lay before them its unwonted garments wore.

Then with slow and weary labor a small grave
they hollowed out,
And they lined it with the withered grass and leaves that lay about.

But the day was slowly breaking ere their holy work was done,
And in crimson pomp the morning heralded
again the sun.

Gently then those little maidens—they were children of our foes—
Laid the body of our drummer-boy to undisturbed repose.

"The dead hand clasped a letter."—Special Correspondent.

HERE in this leafy place,
Quiet he lies,
Cold, with his sightless face
Turned to the skies ;
'Tis but another dead ;—
All you can say is said.

Carry his body hence, —
Kings must have slaves ;
Kings climb to eminence
Over men's graves.
So this man's eye is dim ;—
Throw the earth over him.

What was the white you touched,
There at his side ?
Paper his hand had clutched
Tight ere he died ;
Message or wish, may be :—
Smooth out the folds and see.

Hardly the worst of us
Here could have smiled !—
Only the tremulous
Words of a child :—
Prattle, that had for stops
Just a few ruddy drops.

Look. She is sad to miss,
Morning and night,
His — her dead father's — kiss,
Tries to be bright,
Good to mamma, and sweet.
That is all. "Marguerite."

Ah, if beside the dead
Slumbered the pain !
Ah, if the hearts that bled
Slept with the slain !
If the grief died !— But no :—
Death will not have it so.

AUSTIN DOBSON.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM.

OUR bugles sang truce, — for the night-cloud had lowered,
And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky ;
And thousands had sunk on the ground overpowered,
The weary to sleep, and the wounded to die.

When reposing that night on my pallet of straw,
By the wolf-scaring fagot that guarded the
slain ;
At the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw,
And thrice ere the morning I dreamt it again.

Methought from the battle-field's dreadful array,
Far, far I had roamed on a desolate track :
'T was autumn, — and sunshine arose on the way
To the home of my fathers, that welcomed me back.

I flew to the pleasant fields traversed so oft in life's morning march, when my bosom was young ;
I heard my own mountain-goats bleating aloft,
And knew the sweet strain that the corn-reapers sung.

Then pledged we the wine-cup, and fondly I swore,
From my home and my weeping friends never to part ;
My little ones kissed me a thousand times o'er,
And my wife sobbed aloud in her fulness of heart.

"Stay, stay with us, — rest, thou art weary and worn ;"
And fain was their war-broken soldier to stay ;—
But sorrow returned with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.

THOMAS CAMPBELL

WHERE ARE THE MEN?

WHERE are the men who went forth in the morning,

Hope brightly beaming in every face?
Fearing no danger, — the Saxon foe scorning, —
Little thought they of defeat or disgrace!
Fallen is their chieftain — his glory departed —
Fallen are the heroes who fought by his side!
Fatherless children now weep, broken-hearted,
Mournfully wandering by Rhuddlan's dark tide!

Small was the band that escaped from the slaughter,

Flying for life as the tide 'gan to flow;
Hast thou no pity, thou dark rolling water?
More cruel still than the merciless foe!
Death is behind them, and death is before them;
Faster and faster rolls on the dark wave;
One wailing cry — and the sea closes o'er them;
Silent and deep is their watery grave.

From the Welsh of TALHAIRN. Translation of THOMAS OLIPHANT.

THE SOLDIER'S RETURN.

How sweet it was to breathe that cooler air,
And take possession of my father's chair!
Beneath my elbow, on the solid frame,
Appeared the rough initials of my name,
Cut forty years before! The same old clock
Struck the same bell, and gave my heart a shock
I never can forget. A short breeze sprung,
And while a sigh was trembling on my tongue,
Caught the old dangling almanacs behind,
And up they flew like banners in the wind;
Then gently, singly, down, down, down they went,

And told of twenty years that I had spent
Far from my native land. That instant came
A robin on the threshold; though so tame,
At first he looked distrustful, almost shy,
And cast on me his coal-black steadfast eye,
And seemed to say, — past friendship to renew, —
"Ah ha! old worn-out soldier, is it you?"
While thus I mused, still gazing, gazing still,
On bells of moss that spread the window-sill,
I deemed no moss my eyes had ever seen
Had been so lovely, brilliant, fresh, and green,
And guessed some infant hand had placed it there,

And prized its hue, so exquisite, so rare.
Feelings on feelings mingling, doubling rose;
My heart felt everything but calm repose;
I could not reckon minutes, hours, nor years,
But rose at once, and burst into tears;

Then, like a fool, confused, sat down again,
And thought upon the past with shame and pain;
I raved at war and all its horrid cost,
And glory's quagmire, where the brave are lost.
On carnage, fire, and plunder long I mused,
And cursed the murdering weapons I had used.

Two shadows then I saw, two voices heard,
One bespoke age, and one a child's appeared.
In stepped my father with convulsive start,
And in an instant clasped me to his heart.
'Close by him stood a little blue-eyed maid;
And stooping to the child, the old man said,
"Come hither, Nancy, kiss me once again;
This is your Uncle Charles, come home from Spain."

The child approached, and with her fingers light
Stroked my old eyes, almost deprived of sight.
But why thus spin my tale, — thus tedious be?
Happy old soldier! what's the world to me?

ROBERT BLOOMFIELD.

SOLDIER, REST! THY WARFARE O'ER.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO I.

SOLDIER, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows not breaking;
Dream of battled fields no more,
Days of danger, nights of waking.
In our isle's enchanted hall,
Hands unseen thy couch are strewing,
Fairy strains of music fall,
Every sense in slumber dewing.
Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Dream of fighting fields no more;
Sleep the sleep that knows not breaking,
Morn of toil, nor night of waking.

No rude sound shall reach thine ear,
Armor's clang, or war-steed champing,
Trump nor pibroch summon here
Mustering clan, or squadron tramping.
Yet the lark's shrill life may come
At the daybreak from the fallow,
And the bitter sound his drum,
Booming from the sedgy shallow.
Ruder sounds shall none be near,
Guards nor warders challenge here;
Here's no war-steed's neigh and champing,
Shouting clans or squadrons stamping.

Huntsman, rest! thy chase is done,
While our slumberous spells assail ye,
Dream not, with the rising sun,
Bugles here shall sound reveille.
Sleep! the deer is in his den;
Sleep! thy hounds are by thee lying;
Sleep! nor dream in yonder glen
How thy gallant steed lay dying.

Huntsman, rest ! thy chase is done ;
Think not of the rising sun,
For, at dawning to assail ye,
Here no bugles sound reveille.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

DRIVING HOME THE COWS.

OUT of the clover and blue-eyed grass
He turned them into the river-lane ;
One after another he let them pass,
Then fastened the meadow bars again.

Under the willows, and over the hill,
He patiently followed their sober pace ;
The merry whistle for once was still,
And something shadowed the sunny face.

Only a boy ! and his father had said
He never could let his youngest go ;
Two already were lying dead
Under the feet of the trampling foe.

But after the evening work was done,
And the frogs were loud in the meadow-swamp,
Over his shoulder he slung his gun
And stealthily followed the foot-path damp,

Across the clover and through the wheat
With resolute heart and purpose grim,
Though cold was the dew on his hurrying feet,
And the blind bat's flitting startled him.

Thrice since then had the lanes been white,
And the orchards sweet with apple-bloom ;
And now, when the cows came back at night,
The feeble father drove them home.

For news had come to the lonely farm
That three were lying where two had lain ;
And the old man's tremulous, palsied arm
Could never lean on a son's again.

The summer day grew cool and late,
He went for the cows when the work was done ;
But down the lane, as he opened the gate,
He saw them coming one by one, —

Brindle, Ebony, Speckle, and Bess,
Shaking their horns in the evening wind ;
Cropping the buttercups out of the grass, —
But who was it following close behind !

Loosely swung in the idle air
The empty sleeve of army blue ;
And worn and pale, from the crisping hair,
Looked out a face that the father knew.

For Southern prisons will sometimes yawn,
And yield their dead unto life again ;
And the day that comes with a cloudy dawn
In golden glory at last may wane.

The great tears sprang to their meeting eyes ;
For the heart must speak when the lips are dumb ;
And under the silent evening skies
Together they followed the cattle home.

KATE PUTNAM OSGOOD.

DIRGE FOR A SOLDIER.*

CLOSE his eyes ; his work is done !
What to him is friend or foe-man,
Rise of moon or set of sun,
Hand of man or kiss of woman ?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow !
What cares he ? he cannot know ;
Lay him low !

As man may, he fought his fight,
Proved his truth by his endeavor ;
Let him sleep in solemn night,
Sleep forever and forever.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow !
What cares he ? he cannot know ;
Lay him low !

Fold him in his country's stars,
Roll the drum and fire the volley !
What to him are all our wars ? —
What but death-bemocking folly ?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow !
What cares he ? he cannot know ;
Lay him low !

Leave him to God's watching eye ;
Trust him to the hand that made him.
Mortal love weeps idly by ;
God alone has power to aid him.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow !
What cares he ? he cannot know ;
Lay him low !

GEORGE HENRY BOKER.

SOMEBODY'S DARLING.

FROM "SOUTH SONGS."

INTO a ward of the whitewashed walls
Where the dead and the dying lay —
Wounded by bayonets, shells, and balls —
Somebody's darling was borne one day.

* Major-General Philip Kearney, U. S. V., killed at Chantilly, Va., Sept. 1, 1862.

Somebody's darling ! so young and so brave,
Wearing still on his pale, sweet face —
Soon to be hid by the dust of the grave —
The lingering light of his boyhood's grace.

Matted and damp are the curls of gold,
Kissing the snow of that fair young brow ;
Pale are the lips of delicate mould —
Somebody's darling is dying now.
Back from the beautiful blue-veined face
Brush every wandering, silken thread ;
Cross his hands as a sign of grace —
Somebody's darling is still and dead !

Kiss him once for Somebody's sake ;
Murmur a prayer, soft and low ;
One bright curl from the cluster take —
They were Somebody's pride, you know.
Somebody's hand hath rested there ;
Was it a mother's, soft and white ?
And have the lips of a sister fair
Been baptized in those waves of light ?

God knows best. He was Somebody's love ?
Somebody's heart enshrined him here ;
Somebody wafted his name above,
Night and morn, on the wings of prayer.
Somebody wept when he marched away,
Looking so handsome, brave, and grand ;
Somebody's kiss on his forehead lay :
Somebody clung to his parting hand —

Somebody's watching and waiting for him,
Yearning to hold him again to her heart :
There he lies — with the blue eyes dim,
And smiling, child-like lips apart.
Tenderly bury the fair young dead,
Pausing to drop on his grave a tear,
Carve on the wooden slab at his head,
"Somebody's darling lies buried here !"

SENTINEL SONGS.

WHEN falls the soldier brave
Dead — at the feet of wrong, —
The poet sings, and guards his grave
With sentinels of song.

Songs, march ! he gives command,
Keep faithful watch and true ;
The living and dead of the Conquered Land
Have now no guards save you.

Grave Ballads ! mark ye well !
Thrice holy is your trust !
Go ! halt ! by the fields where warriors fell,
Rest arms ! and guard their dust.

List, Songs ! your watch is long !
The soldiers' guard was brief,
Whilst right is right, and wrong is wrong,
Ye may not seek relief.

Go ! wearing the gray of grief !
Go ! watch o'er the Dead in Gray !
Go guard the private and guard the chief,
And sentinel their clay !

And the songs, in stately rhyme,
And with softly sounding tread,
Go forth, to watch for a time — a time,
Where sleep the Deathless Dead.

And the songs, like funeral dirge,
In music soft and low,
Sing round the graves, — whilst hot tears surge
From hearts that are homes of woe.

What though no sculptured shaft
Immortalize each brave ?
What though no monument epitaphed
Be built above each grave ?

When marble wears away,
And monuments are dust, —
The songs that guard our soldiers' clay
Will still fulfil their trust.

With lifted head, and steady tread,
Like stars that guard the skies,
Go watch each bed, where rest the dead,
Brave Songs ! with sleepless eyes.

ABRAM J. RYAN.

ODE.

[Sung on the occasion of decorating the graves of the Confederate dead, at Magnolia Cemetery, Charleston, S. C.]

SLEEP sweetly in your humble graves, —
Sleep, martyrs of a fallen cause !
Though yet no marble column craves
The pilgrim here to pause,

In seeds of laurel in the earth
The blossom of your fame is blown,
And somewhere, waiting for its birth,
The shaft is in the stone !

Meanwhile, behalf the tardy years
Which keep in trust your storied tombs,
Behold ! your sisters bring their tears,
And these memorial blooms.

Small tributes ! but your shades will smile
More proudly on these wreaths to-day,
Than when some cannon-moulded pile
Shall overlook this bay.

Stoop, angels, hither from the skies !
 There is no holier spot of ground
 Than where defeated valor lies,
 By mourning beauty crowned !

HENRY TIMROD.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

[The women of Columbus, Mississippi, strewed flowers alike on the graves of the Confederate and the National soldiers.]

By the flow of the inland river,
 Whence the fleets of iron have fled,
 Where the blades of the grave-grass quiver,
 Asleep are the ranks of the dead ; —
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 Under the one, the Blue ;
 Under the other, the Gray.

These in the robings of glory,
 Those in the gloom of defeat,
 All with the battle-blood gory,
 In the dusk of eternity meet ; —
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 Under the laurel, the Blue ;
 Under the willow, the Gray.

From the silence of sorrowful hours
 The desolate mourners go,
 Lovingly laden with flowers
 Alike for the friend and the foe, —
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 Under the roses, the Blue ;
 Under the lilies, the Gray.

So with an equal splendor
 The morning sun-rays fall,
 With a touch, impartially tender,
 On the blossoms blooming for all ; —
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 'Broidered with gold, the Blue ;
 Mellowed with gold, the Gray.

So, when the summer calleth,
 On forest and field of grain
 With an equal murmur falleth
 The cooling drip of the rain ; —
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 Wet with the rain, the Blue ;
 Wet with the rain, the Gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding,
 The generous deed was done ;
 In the storm of the years that are fading,
 No braver battle was won ; —

Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ; —
 Under the blossoms, the Blue ;
 Under the garlands, the Gray.

No more shall the war-cry sever,
 Or the winding rivers be red ;
 They banish our anger forever
 When they laurel the graves of our dead !
 Under the sod and the dew,
 Waiting the judgment-day ;
 Love and tears for the Blue,
 Tears and love for the Gray.

FRANCIS MILES FINCH.

PEACE.

O LAND, of every land the best, —
 O Land, whose glory shall increase ;
 Now in your whitest raiment drest
 For the great festival of peace :

Take from your flag its fold of gloom,
 And let it float undimmed above,
 Till over all our vales shall bloom
 The sacred colors that we love.

On mountain high, in valley low,
 Set Freedom's living fires to burn ;
 Until the midnight sky shall show
 A redder glory than the morn.

Welcome, with shouts of joy and pride,
 Your veterans from the war-path's track :
 You gave your boys, untrained, untried ;
 You bring them men and heroes back !

And shed no tear, though think you must
 With sorrow of the martyred band ;
 Not even for him whose hallowed dust
 Has made our prairies holy land.

Though by the places where they fell,
 The places that are sacred ground,
 Death, like a sullen sentinel,
 Paces his everlasting round.

Yet when they set their country free,
 And gave her traitors fitting doom,
 They left their last great enemy,
 Baffled, beside an empty tomb.

Not there, but risen, redeemed, they go
 Where all the paths are sweet with flowers ;
 They fought to give us peace, and lo !
 They gained a better peace than ours.

PHOEBE CARY

PEACE.

ODE TO PEACE.

DAUGHTER of God ! that sitt'st on high
Amid the dances of the sky,
And guidest with thy gentle sway
The planets on their tuneful way ;

Sweet Peace ! shall ne'er again
The smile of thy most holy face,
From thine ethereal dwelling-place,
Rejoice the wretched, weary race
Of discord-breathing men ?

Too long, O gladness-giving Queen !
Thy tarrying in heaven has been ;
Too long o'er this fair blooming world
The flag of blood has been unfurled,

Polluting God's pure day ;
Whilst, as each maddening people reels,
War onward drives his scythèd wheels,
And at his horses' bloody heels
Shriek Murder and Dismay.

Oft have I wept to hear the cry
Of widow wailing bitterly ;
To see the parent's silent tear
For children fallen beneath the spear ;

And I have felt so sore
The sense of human guilt and woe,
That I, in Virtue's passionèd glow,
Have cursed (my soul was wounded so)

The shape of man I bore !
Then come from thy serene abode,
Thou gladness-giving child of God !
And cease the world's ensanguined strife,
And reconcile my soul to life ;

For much I long to see,
Ere I shall to the grave descend,
Thy hand its blessèd branch extend,
And to the world's remotest end

Wave Love and Harmony !

WILLIAM TENNANT.

THE BATTLE-FIELD.

ONCE this soft turf, this rivulet's sands,
Were trampled by a hurrying crowd,
And fiery hearts and armed hands
Encountered in the battle-cloud.

Ah ! never shall the land forget
How gushed the life-blood of her brave, —
Gushed, warm with hope and courage yet,
Upon the soil they fought to save.

Now all is calm and fresh and still ;
Alone the chirp of flitting bird,
And talk of children on the hill,
And bell of wandering kine, are heard.

No solemn host goes trailing by
The black-mouthed gun and staggering wain ;
Men start not at the battle-cry, —
O, be it never heard again !

Soon rested those who fought ; but thou
Who minglest in the harder strife
For truths which men receive not now,
Thy warfare only ends with life.

A friendless warfare ! lingering long
Through weary day and weary year ;
A wild and many-weaponed throng
Hang on thy front and flank and rear.

Yet nerve thy spirit to the proof,
And blench not at thy chosen lot ;
The timid good may stand aloof,
The sage may frown, — yet faint thou not.

Nor heed the shaft too surely cast,
The foul and hissing bolt of scorn ;
For with thy side shall dwell, at last,
The victory of endurance born.

Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again, —
The eternal years of God are hers ;
But Error, wounded, writhes in pain,
And dies among his worshippers.

Yea, though thou lie upon the dust,
When they who helped thee flee in fear,
Die full of hope and manly trust,
Like those who fell in battle here !

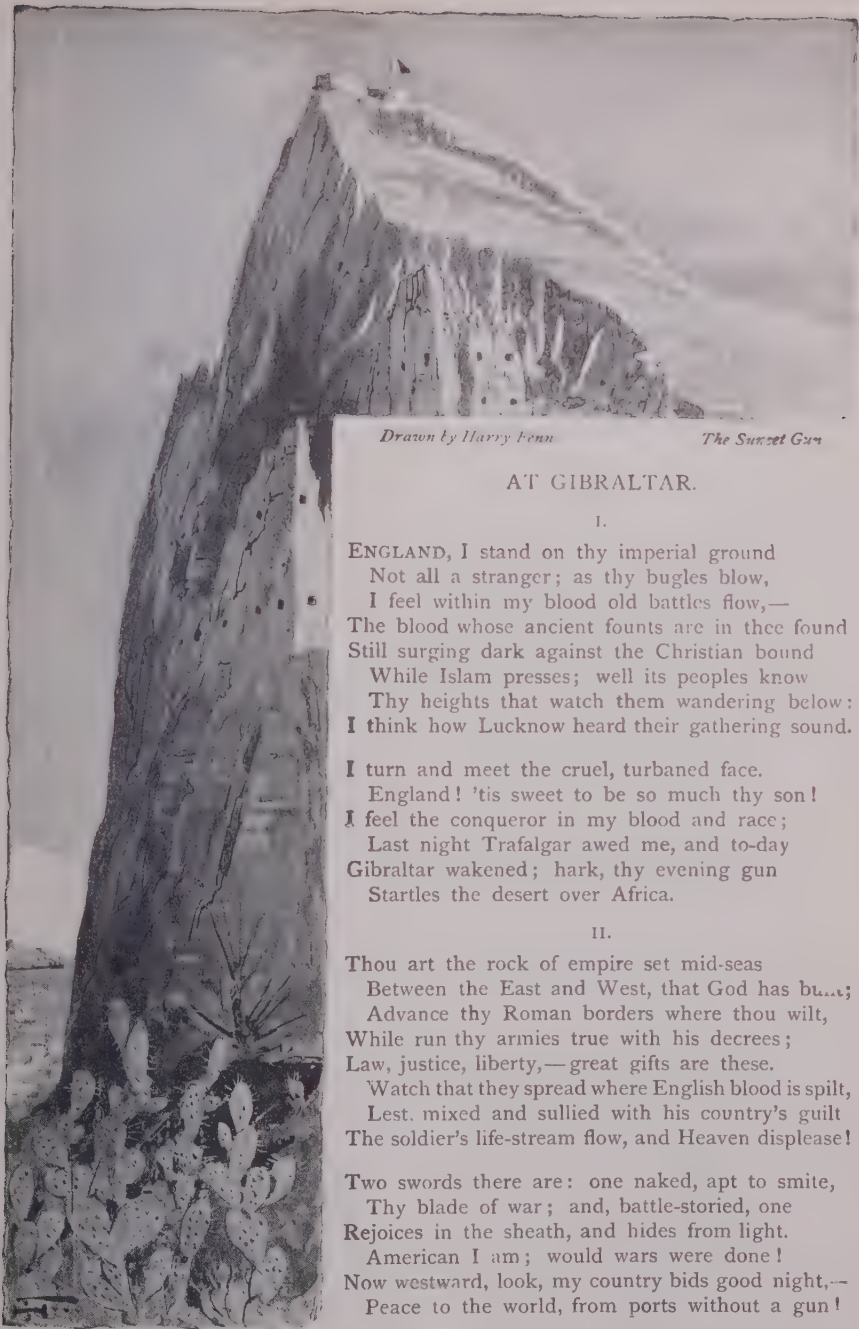

Another hand thy sword shall wield,
Another hand the standard wave,
Till from the trumpet's mouth is pealed
The blast of triumph o'er thy grave.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

NOT ON THE BATTLE-FIELD.

" To fall on the battle-field fighting for my dear country, — that would not be hard." — The Neighbors.

O NO, no, — let me lie
Not on a field of battle when I die !
Let not the iron tread
Of the mad war-horse crush my helmèd head :

The Sunset Gun

AT GIBRALTAR.

I.

ENGLAND, I stand on thy imperial ground
Not all a stranger; as thy bugles blow,
I feel within my blood old battles flow,—
The blood whose ancient founts are in thee found
Still surging dark against the Christian bound
While Islam presses; well its peoples know
Thy heights that watch them wandering below:
I think how Lucknow heard their gathering sound.

I turn and meet the cruel, turbaned face.
England! 'tis sweet to be so much thy son!
I feel the conqueror in my blood and race;
Last night Trafalgar awed me, and to-day
Gibraltar wakened; hark, thy evening gun
Startles the desert over Africa.

II.

Thou art the rock of empire set mid-seas
Between the East and West, that God has built;
Advance thy Roman borders where thou wilt,
While run thy armies true with his decrees;
Law, justice, liberty,—great gifts are these.
Watch that they spread where English blood is spilt,
Lest, mixed and sullied with his country's guilt
The soldier's life-stream flow, and Heaven displease!

Two swords there are: one naked, apt to smite,
Thy blade of war; and, battle-storied, one
Rejoices in the sheath, and hides from light.
American I am; would wars were done!
Now westward, look, my country bids good night,—
Peace to the world, from ports without a gun!

AN OLD BATTLE-FIELD.

THE softest whisperings of the scented South,
And rust and roses in the cannon's mouth;

And, where the thunders of the fight were born,
The wind's sweet tenor in the standing corn;

With song of larks, low-linging in the loam,
And blue skies bending over love and home.

But still the thought: Somewhere,—upon the hills,
Or where the vales ring with the whip-poor-wills,

Sad wistful eyes and broken hearts that beat
For the loved sound of unreturning feet,

And, when the oaks their leafy banners wave,
Dream of the battle and an unmarked grave!

FRANK L. STANTON.

Nor let the reeking knife,
That I have drawn against a brother's life,
Be in my hand when Death
Thunders along, and tramples me beneath
His heavy squadron's heels,
Or gory fellows of his cannon's wheels.

From such a dying bed,
Though o'er it float the stripes of white and red,
And the bald eagle brings
The clustered stars upon his wide-spread wings
To sparkle in my sight,
O, never let my spirit take her flight !

I know that beauty's eye
Is all the brighter where gay pennants fly,
And brazen helmets dance,
And sunshine flashes on the lifted lance ;
I know that bards have sung,
And people shouted till the welkin rung,
In honor of the brave
Who on the battle-field have found a grave ;
I know that o'er their bones
Have grateful hands piled monumental stones.
Some of those piles I've seen :
The one at Lexington upon the green
Where the first blood was shed,
And to my country's independence led ;
And others, on our shore,
The " Battle Monument " at Baltimore,
And that on Bunker's Hill.
Ay, and abroad, a few more famous still ;
Thy " tomb," Themistocles,
That looks out yet upon the Grecian seas,
And which the waters kiss
That issue from the gulf of Salamis.
And thine, too, have I seen,
Thy mound of earth, Patroclus, robed in green,
That, like a natural knoll,
Sheep climb and nibble over as they stroll,
Watched by some turbaned boy,
Upon the margin of the plain of Troy.
Such honors grace the bed,
I know, whereon the warrior lays his head,
And hears, as life ebbs out,
The conquered flying, and the conqueror's shout ;
But as his eye grows dim,
What is a column or a mound to him ?
What, to the parting soul,
The mellow note of bugles ? What the roll
Of drums ! No, let me die
Where the blue heaven bends o'er me lovingly,
And the soft summer air,
As it goes by me, stirs my thin white hair,
And from my forehead dries
The death-damp as it gathers, and the skies
Seem waiting to receive
My soul to their clear depths ! Or let me leave

The world when round my bed
Wife, children, weeping friends are gathered,
And the calm voice of prayer
And holy hymning shall my soul prepare
To go and be at rest
With kindred spirits, — spirits who have blessed
The human brotherhood
By labors, cares, and counsels for their good.

JOHN PIERPONT.

MY AUTUMN WALK.

ON woodlands ruddy with autumn
The amber sunshine lies ;
I look on the beauty round me,
And tears come into my eyes.

For the wind that sweeps the meadows
Blows out of the far Southwest,
Where our gallant men are fighting,
And the gallant dead are at rest.

The golden-rod is leaning,
And the purple aster waves
In a breeze from the land of battles,
A breath from the land of graves.

Full fast the leaves are dropping
Before that wandering breath ;
As fast, on the field of battle,
Our brethren fall in death.

Beautiful over my pathway
The forest spoils are shed ;
They are spotting the grassy hillocks
With purple and gold and red.

Beautiful is the death-sleep
Of those who bravely fight
In their country's holy quarrel,
And perish for the Right.

But who shall comfort the living,
The light of whose homes is gone :
The bride that, early widowed,
Lives broken-hearted on ;

The matron whose sons are lying
In graves on a distant shore ;
The maiden, whose promised husband
Comes back from the war no more ?

I look on the peaceful dwellings
Whose windows glimmer in sight,
With croft and garden and orchard
That bask in the mellow light ;

And I know that, when our couriers
With news of victory come,
They will bring a bitter message
Of hopeless grief to some.

Again I turn to the woodlands,
And I shudder as I see
The mock-grape's* blood-red banner
Hung out on the cedar-tree;

And I think of days of slaughter,
And the night-sky red with flames,
On the Chattahoochee's meadows,
And the wasted banks of the James.

O for the fresh spring-season,
When the groves are in their prime,
And far away in the future
Is the frosty autumn-time!

O for that better season,
When the pride of the foe shall yield,
And the hosts of God and Freedom
March back from the well-won field;

And the matron shall clasp her first-born
With tears of joy and pride;
And the scarred and war-worn lover
Shall claim his promised bride!

The leaves are swept from the branches;
But the living buds are there,
With folded flower and foliage,
To sprout in a kinder air.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

BARCLAY OF URY.

Up the streets of Aberdeen,
By the kirk and college green,
Rode the laird of Ury;
Close behind him, close beside,
Foul of mouth and evil-eyed,
Pressed the mob in fury.

Flouted him the drunken churl,
Jeered at him the serving-girl,
Prompt to please her master;
And the begging carlin, late
Fed and clothed at Ury's gate,
Cursed him as he passed her.

Yet with calm and stately mien
Up the streets of Aberdeen
Came he slowly riding;

And to all he saw and heard
Answering not with bitter word,
Turning not for chiding.

Came a troop with broadswords swinging,
Bits and bridles sharply ringing,
Loose and free and froward:
Quoth the foremost, "Ride him down!
Push him! prick him! through the town
Drive the Quaker coward!"

But from out the thickening crowd
Cried a sudden voice and loud:
"Barclay! Ho! a Barclay!"
And the old man at his side
Saw a comrade, battle-tried,
Scarred and sunburned darkly;

Who, with ready weapon bare,
Fronting to the troopers there,
Cried aloud: "God save us!
Call ye coward him who stood
Ankle-deep in Lutzen's blood,
With the brave Gustavus?"

"Nay, I do not need thy sword, Comrade mine," said Ury's lord;
"Put it up, I pray thee.
Passive to his holy will,
Trust I in my Master still,
Even though he slay me.

"Pledges of thy love and faith,
Proved on many a field of death,
Not by me are needed."
Marvelled much that henchman bold,
That his laird, so stout of old,
Now so meekly pleaded.

"Woe's the day," he sadly said,
With a slowly shaking head,
And a look of pity;
"Ury's honest lord reviled,
Mock of knave and sport of child,
In his own good city!

"Speak the word, and, master mine,
As we charged on Tilly's line,
And his Walloon lancers,
Smiting through their midst, we'll teach
Civil look and decent speech
To these boyish prancers!"

"Marvel not, mine ancient friend, —
Like beginning, like the end!"
Quoth the laird of Ury;
"Is the sinful servant more
Than his gracious Lord who bore
Bonds and stripes in Jewry?"

* Ampelopsis, mock-grape; the botanical name of the Virginia creeper.

"Give me joy that in his name
I can bear, with patient frame,
All these vain ones offer ;
While for them he suffered long,
Shall I answer wrong with wrong,
Scoffing with the scoffer ?

"Happier I, with loss of all, —
Hunted, outlawed, held in thrall,
With few friends to greet me, —
Than when reeve and squire were seen
Riding out from Aberdeen
With bared heads to meet me ;

"When each goodwife, o'er and o'er,
Blessed me as I passed her door ;
And the snooded daughter,
Through her casement glancing down,
Smiled on him who bore renown
From red fields of slaughter.

"Hard to feel the stranger's scoff,
Hard the old friends' falling off,
Hard to learn forgiving ;
But the Lord his own rewards,
And his love with theirs accords
Warm and fresh and living.

"Through this dark and stormy night
Faith beholds a feeble light
Up the blackness streaking ;
Knowing God's own time is best,
In a patient hope I rest
For the full day-breaking !"

So the laird of Ury said,
Turning slow his horse's head
Towards the Tolbooth prison,
Where, through iron gates, he heard
Poor disciples of the Word
Preach of Christ arisen !

Not in vain, confessor old,
Unto us the tale is told
Of thy day of trial !
Every age on him who strays
From its broad and beaten ways
Pours its seven-fold vial.

Happy he whose inward ear
Angel comfortings can hear,
O'er the rabble's laughter ;
And, while hatred's fagots burn,
Glimpses through the smoke discern,
Of the good hereafter.

Knowing this, — that never yet
Share of truth was vainly set
In the world's wide fallow ;

After hands shall sow the seed,
After hands from hill and mead
Reap the harvests yellow.

Thus, with somewhat of the seer,
Must the moral pioneer
From the future borrow, —
Clothe the waste with dreams of grain,
And, on midnight's sky of rain,
Paint the golden morrow !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

TUBAL CAIN.

OLD Tubal Cain was a man of might,
In the days when earth was young ;
By the fierce red light of his furnace bright,
The strokes of his hammer rung :
And he lifted high his brawny hand
On the iron glowing clear,
Till the sparks rushed out in scarlet showers,
As he fashioned the sword and the spear.
And he sang : " Hurrah for my handiwork !
Hurrah for the spear and the sword !
Hurrah for the hand that shall wield them well,
For he shall be king and lord."

To Tubal Cain came many a one,
As he wrought by his roaring fire,
And each one prayed for a strong steel blade
As the crown of his desire :
And he made them weapons sharp and strong,
Till they shouted loud for glee,
And gave him gifts of pearl and gold,
And spoils of the forest free.
And they sang : " Hurrah for Tubal Cain,
Who hath given us strength anew !
Hurrah for the smith, hurrah for the fire,
And hurrah for the metal true !"

But a sudden change came o'er his heart,
Ere the setting of the sun,
And Tubal Cain was filled with pain
For the evil he had done ;
He saw that men, with rage and hate,
Made war upon their kind,
That the land was red with the blood they shed,
In their lust for carnage blind.
And he said : " Alas ! that ever I made,
Or that skill of mine should plan,
The spear and the sword for men whose joy
Is to slay their fellow-man !"

And for many a day old Tubal Cain
Sat brooding o'er his woe ;
And his hand forbore to smite the ore,
And his furnace smouldered low.

But he rose at last with a cheerful face,
 And a bright courageous eye,
 And bared his strong right arm for work,
 While the quick flames mounted high.
 And he sang : " Hurrah for my handiwork !"
 And the red sparks lit the air ;
 " Not alone for the blade was the bright steel made," —
 And he fashioned the first ploughshare.

And men, taught wisdom from the past,
 In friendship joined their hands,
 Hung the sword in the hall, the spear on the wall,
 And ploughed the willing lands ;
 And sang : " Hurrah for Tubal Cain !
 Our stanch good friend is he ;
 And for the ploughshare and the plough
 To him our praise shall be.
 But while oppression lifts its head,
 ' Or a tyrant would be lord,
 Though we may thank him for the plough,
 We'll not forget the sword !"

CHARLES MACKAY.

THE BATTLE OF BLENHEIM.

[The battle of Blenheim in Bavaria was fought Aug. 13, 1704, between the troops of the English and Austrians on one side, under the Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene, and the French and Bavarians on the other side, led by Marshal Tallart and the Elector of Bavaria. The latter party was defeated, and the schemes of Louis XIV. of France were materially checked thereby.]

It was a summer evening, —
 Old Kaspar's work was done,
 And he before his cottage door
 Was sitting in the sun ;
 And by him sported on the green
 His little grandchild Wilhelmine.

She saw her brother Peterkin
 Roll something large and round,
 Which he beside the rivulet,
 In playing there, had found ;
 He came to ask what he had found
 That was so large and smooth and round.

Old Kaspar took it from the boy,
 Who stood expectant by ;
 And then the old man shook his head,
 And, with a natural sigh, —
 " 'T is some poor fellow's skull," said he,
 " Who fell in the great victory.

" I find them in the garden,
 For there's many hereabout ;
 And often, when I go to plough,
 The ploughshare turns them out ;
 For many thousand men," said he,
 " Were slain in the great victory."

" Now tell us what 't was all about,"
 Young Peterkin he cries ;
 And little Wilhelmine looks up
 With wonder-waiting eyes, —
 " Now tell us all about the war,
 And what they fought each other for."

" It was the English," Kaspar cried,
 " Who put the French to rout ;
 But what they fought each other for
 I could not well make out ;
 But everybody said," quoth he,
 " That 't was a famous victory.

" My father lived at Blenheim then,
 Yon little stream hard by ;
 They burnt his dwelling to the ground,
 And he was forced to fly ;
 So with his wife and child he fled,
 Nor had he where to rest his head.

" With fire and sword the country round
 Was wasted far and wide ;
 And many a childing mother there,
 And new-born baby died ;
 But things like that, you know, must be
 At every famous victory.

" They say it was a shocking sight
 After the field was won, —
 For many thousand bodies here
 Lay rotting in the sun ;
 But things like that, you know, must be
 After a famous victory.

" Great praise the Duke of Marlborough won,
 And our good Prince Eugene."
 " Why, 't was a very wicked thing !"
 Said little Wilhelmine.
 " Nay, nay, my little girl !" quoth he,
 " It was a famous victory.

" And everybody praised the duke
 Who this great fight did win."
 " But what good came of it at last ?"
 Quoth little Peterkin.
 " Why, that I cannot tell," said he ;
 " But 'twas a famous victory."

THE KNIGHT'S TOMB.

WHERE is the grave of Sir Arthur O'Kellyn ?
 Where may the grave of that good man be ? —
 By the side of a spring, on the breast of Hel-velyn,
 Under the twigs of a young birch-tree !

The oak that in summer was sweet to hear,
And rustled its leaves in the fall of the year,
And whistled and roared in the winter alone,
Is gone, — and the birch in its stead is grown. —
The knight's bones are dust,
And his good sword rust ; —
His soul is with the saints, I trust.

My robe from her untouch'd sleep,
And put away her soft brown hair,
And, in a tone as low as sleep,
As love's first whisper, breath'd a prayer—

Believe me still, as I have ever been,
The steadfast lover of my fellow-men;

Each fellow broken, but my God, am true!

ELMWOOD.

LOWELL'S HOME AT CAMBRIDGE.

*And one tall elm, this hundredth year,
Doge of our lazy Venice here,
Who, with an annual ring, doth wed
The blue Adriatic overhead,*

*Shadows, with his palatial mass,
The deep canal of flowing grass,
Where glow the dandelions sparse,
For shadows of Italian stars.*

LOWELL.

The great trees murmur at the midnight hour,
The birds in silence wait:
A soul is passing to the Fount of Power,—
Elmwood is desolate.

Lover of nature, lover of his race,
Learned, and true, and strong:
Using for others, with surpassing grace,
The matchless gift of song,—

When clouds hung darkest in our day of pair
He prophesied the light;
He looked adown the ages for the reign
Of Brotherhood and Right.

Proud of his country, helping to unbind
The fetters of the slave:
Two worlds their wreaths of honor have entwined
About one open grave.

Great in his simple love of flower and bird,
Great in the statesman's art,
He has been greatest in his lifting word
To every human heart.

He lived the lesson which Sir Launfal guessed
Through wandering far and wide;
The giver must be given in the quest:
He gave himself, and died.

POEMS OF TEMPERANCE AND LABOR.

TEMPERANCE.

MORAL COSMETICS.

YE who would have your features florid,
Lithe limbs, bright eyes, unwrinkled forehead,
From age's devastation horrid,

Adopt this plan, —
'T will make, in climate cold or torrid,
A hale old man :

Avoid in youth luxurious diet,
Restrain the passions' lawless riot ;
Devoted to domestic quiet,
Be wisely gay ;
So shall ye, spite of age's fiat,
Resist decay.

Seek not in Mammon's worship pleasure,
But find your richest, dearest treasure
In God, his word, his work, not leisure :
The mind, not sense,
Is the sole scale by which to measure
Your opulence.

This is the solace, this the science,
Life's purest, sweetest, best appliance,
That disappoints not man's reliance,
Whate'er his state ;
But challenges, with calm defiance,
Time, fortune, fate.

HORACE SMITH.

THE WATER-DRINKER.

O, WATER for me ! Bright water for me !
Give wine to the tremulous debauchee !
It cooleth the brow, it cooleth the brain,
It maketh the faint one strong again ;
It comes o'er the sense like a breeze from the sea,
All freshness, like infant purity.
O, water, bright water, for me, for me !
Give wine, give wine to the debauchee !

Fill to the brim ! Fill, fill to the brim !
Let the flowing crystal kiss the rim !

My hand is steady, my eye is true,
For I, like the flowers, drink naught but dew.
O, water, bright water's a mine of wealth,
And the ores it yieldeth are vigor and health.
So water, pure water, for me, for me !
And wine for the tremulous debauchee !

Fill again to the brim ! again to the brim !
For water strengtheneth life and limb.
To the days of the aged it addeth length ;
To the might of the strong it addeth strength ;
It freshens the heart, it brightens the sight ;
'T is like quaffing a goblet of morning light.
So, water, I will drink naught but thee,
Thou parent of health and energy !

THE OLD MAN'S COMFORTS,

AND HOW HE GAINED THEM.

"You are old, Father William," the young man
cried ;

"The few locks which are left you are gray ;
You are hale, Father William, a hearty old man ;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."

"In the days of my youth," Father William
replied,

"I remembered that youth would fly fast,
And abused not my health and my vigor at first,
That I never might need them at last."

"You are old, Father William," the young man
cried,

"And pleasures with youth pass away ;
And yet you lament not the days that are gone ;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."

"In the days of my youth," Father William
replied,

"I remembered that youth could not last ;
I thought of the future, whatever I did,
That I never might grieve for the past."

"You are old, Father William," the young man
cried,
"And life must be hastening away ;
You are cheerful, and love to converse upon death ;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."
"I am cheerful, young man," Father William
replied ;
"Let the cause thy attention engage ;
In the days of my youth I remembered my God !
And he hath not forgotten my age."

OLD AGE OF TEMPERANCE.

FROM "AS YOU LIKE IT," ACT II. SC. 2.

ADAM. Let me be your servant ;
Though I look old, yet am I strong and lusty :
For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood ;
Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
The means of weakness and debility.
Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty, but kindly : let me go with you ;
I'll do the service of a younger man
In all your business and necessities.

SHAKESPEARE.

TEMPERANCE, OR THE CHEAP PHYSICIAN.

Go now ! and with some daring drug
Bait thy disease ; and, whilst they tug,
Thou, to maintain their precious strife,
Spend the dear treasures of thy life.
Go ! take physic — dote upon
Some big-named composition,
The oraculous doctor's mystic bills —
Certain hard words made into pills ;
And what at last shalt gain by these ?
Only a costlier disease.
That which makes us have no need
Of physic, that's physic indeed.
Hark, hither, reader ! wilt thou see
Nature her own physician be ?
Wilt see a man all his own wealth,
His own music, his own health —
A man whose sober soul can tell
How to wear her garments well —
Her garments that upon her sit
As garments should do, close and fit —
A well-clothed soul that's not oppressed
Nor choked with what she should be dressed —
A soul sheathed in a crystal shrine,
Through which all her bright features shine :
As when a piece of wanton lawn,
A thin aerial veil, is drawn

O'er beauty's face, seeming to hide,
More sweetly shows the blushing bride —
A soul whose intellectual beams
No mists do mask, no lazy streams —
A happy soul, that all the way
To heaven hath a summer's day ?
Wouldst see a man whose well-warmed blood
Bathes him in a genuine flood ? —
A man whose tuned humors be
A seat of rarest harmony ?
Wouldst see blithe looks, fresh cheeks beguile
Age ? Wouldst see December smile ?
Wouldst see nest of new roses grow
In a bed of reverend snow ?
Warm thoughts, free spirits flattering
Winter's self into a spring ? —
In sum, wouldst see a man that can Live to be old, and still a man ?
Whose latest and most leadened hours
Fall with soft wings, stuck with soft flowers ;
And when life's sweet fable ends,
Soul and body part like friends —
No quarrels, murmurs, no delay —
A kiss, a sigh, and so away ?
This rare one, reader, wouldst thou see ?
Hark, hither ! and thyself be he !

RICHARD CRASHAW.

GO, FEEL WHAT I HAVE FELT.

[By a young lady, who was told that she was a monomaniac in her hatred of alcoholic liquors.]

Go, feel what I have felt,
Go, bear what I have borne ;
Sink 'neath a blow a father dealt,
And the cold, proud world's scorn :
Thus struggle on from year to year,
Thy sole relief the scalding tear.

Go, weep as I have wept
O'er a loved father's fall ;
See every cherished promise swept,
Youth's sweetness turned to gall ;
Hope's faded flowers strewed all the way
That led me up to woman's day.

Go, kneel as I have knelt ;
Implore, beseech, and pray,
Strive the besotted heart to melt,
The downward course to stay ;
Be cast with bitter curse aside, —
Thy prayers burlesqued, thy tears defied.

Go, stand where I have stood,
And see the strong man bow ;
With gnashing teeth, lips bathed in blood,
And cold and livid brow ;
Go, catch his wandering glance, and see
There mirrored his soul's misery.

Go, hear what I have heard, —
The sobs of sad despair,
As memory's feeling-fount hath stirred,
And its revealings there
Have told him what he might have been,
Had he the drunkard's fate foreseen.

Go to a mother's side,
And her crushed spirit cheer ;
Thine own deep anguish hide,
Wipe from her cheek the tear ;
Mark her dimmed eye, her furrowed brow,
The gray that streaks her dark hair now,
The toil-worn frame, the trembling limb,
And trace the ruin back to him
Whose plighted faith, in early youth,
Promised eternal love and truth,
But who, forsworn, hath yielded up
This promise to the deadly cup,
And led her down from love and light,
From all that made her pathway bright,
And chained her there mid want and strife,
That lowly thing, — a drunkard's wife !
And stamped on childhood's brow, so mild,
That withering blight, — a drunkard's child !

Go, hear, and see, and feel, and know
All that my soul hath felt and known,
Then look within the wine-cup's glow ;
See if its brightness can atone ;
Think if its flavor you would try,
If all proclaimed, — ' T is drink and die.

Tell me I hate the bowl, —
Hate is a feeble word ;
I loathe, abhor, — my very soul
By strong disgust is stirred
Whene'er I see, or hear, or tell
Of the DARK BEVERAGE OF HELL !

THE VAGABONDS.

We are two travellers, Roger and I.
Roger's my dog : — come here, you scamp !
Jump for the gentlemen, — mind your eye !
Over the table, — look out for the lamp ! —
The rogue is growing a little old ;
Five years we've tramped through wind and weather,
And slept out-doors when nights were cold,
And ate and drank — and starved together.

We've learned what comfort is, I tell you !
A bed on the floor, a bit of rosin,
A fire to thaw our thumbs (poor fellow !
The paw he holds up there's been frozen),

Plenty of catgut for my fiddle
(This out-door business is bad for the strings),
Then a few nice buckwheats hot from the griddle,
And Roger and I set up for kings !

No, thank ye, sir, — I never drink ;
Roger and I are exceedingly moral, —
Are n't we, Roger ? — see him wink ! —
Well, something hot, then — we won't quarrel.
He's thirsty too, — see him nod his head ?
What a pity, sir, that dogs can't talk !
He understands every word that's said, —
And he knows good milk from water-and-chalk.

The truth is, sir, now I reflect,
I've been so sadly given to grog,
I wonder I've not lost the respect
(Here's to you, sir !) even of my dog.
But he sticks by through thick and thin ;
And this old coat, with its empty pockets,
And rags that smell of tobacco and gin,
He'll follow while he has eyes in his sockets.

There is n't another creature living
Would do it, and prove, through every disaster,
So fond, so faithful, and so forgiving
To such a miserable, thankless master !
No, sir ! — see him wag his tail and grin !
By George ! it makes my old eyes water ! —
That is, there's something in this gin
That chokes a fellow. But no matter !

We'll have some music, if you're willing,
And Roger (hem ! what a plague a cough is, sir !)
Shall march a little. Start, you villain !
Stand straight ! 'Bout face ! Salute your officer !
Put up that paw ! Dress ! Take your rifle !
(Some dogs have arms, you see !) Now hold your
Cap while the gentlemen give a trifle,
To aid a poor old patriot soldier !

March ! Halt ! Now show how the rebel shakes
When he stands up to hear his sentence.
Now tell us how many drams it takes
To honor a jolly new acquaintance.
Five yelps, — that's five ; he's mighty knowing !
The night's before us, fill the glasses ! —
Quick, sir ! I'm ill, — my brain is going !
Some brandy, — thank you, — there ! — it passes !

Why not reform ? That's easily said,
But I've gone through such wretched treatment,
Sometimes forgetting the taste of bread,
And scarce remembering what meat meant,

That my poor stomach 's past reform ;
And there are times when, mad with thinking,
I 'd sell out heaven for something warm
To prop a horrible inward sinking.

Is there a way to forget to think ?
At your age, sir, home, fortune, friends,
A dear girl's love, — but I took to drink, —
The same old story ; you know how it ends.
If you could have seen these classic features, —
You need n't laugh, sir ; they were not then
Such a burning libel on God's creatures ;
I was one of your handsome men !

If you had seen her, so fair and young,
Whose head was happy on this breast !
If you could have heard the songs I sung
When the wine went round, you would n't have guessed

That ever I, sir, should be straying
From door to door, with fiddle and dog,
Ragged and penniless, and playing
To you to-night for a glass of grog !

She 's married since, — a parson's wife ;
'T was better for her that we should part, —
Better the soberest, prosiest life
Than a blasted home and a broken heart.
I have seen her ? Once : I was weak and spent
On the dusty road, a carriage stopped ;
But little she dreamed, as on she went,
Who kissed the coin that her fingers dropped !

You 've set me talking, sir ; I 'm sorry ;
It makes me wild to think of the change !
What do you care for a beggar's story ?
Is it amusing ? you find it strange ?
I had a mother so proud of me !
'T was well she died before — Do you know
If the happy spirits in heaven can see
The ruin and wretchedness here below ?

Another glass, and strong, to deaden
This pain ; then Roger and I will start.
I wonder, has he such a lumpish, leaden,
Aching thing in place of a heart ?
He is sad sometimes, and would weep, if he could,
No doubt, remembering things that were, —
A virtuous kennel, with plenty of food,
And himself a sober, respectable cur.

I 'm better now ; that glass was warming.
You rascal ! limber your lazy feet !
We must be fiddling and performing
For supper and bed, or starve in the street.
Not a very gay life to lead, you think ?
But soon we shall go where lodgings are free,
And the sleepers need neither victuals nor drink ; —
The sooner the better for Roger and me !

JOHN TOWNSEND TROWERIDGE.

A FAREWELL TO TOBACCO.

MAY the Babylonish curse
Straight confound my stammering verse,
If I can a passage see
In this word-perplexity,
Or a fit expression find,
Or a language to my mind
(Still the phrase is wide or scant),
To take leave of thee, GREAT PLANT !
Or in any terms relate
Half my love, or half my hate ;
For I hate, yet love, thee so,
That, whichever thing I show,
The plain truth will seem to be
A constrained hyperbole,
And the passion to proceed
More from a mistress than a weed.

Sooty retainer to the vine !
Bacchus' black servant, negro fine !
Sorcerer ! that mak'st us dote upon
Thy begrimed complexion,
And, for thy pernicious sake,
More and greater oaths to break
Than reclaimed lovers take 'Gainst women ! Thou thy siege dost lay
Much, too, in the female way,
While thou suck'st the laboring breath
Faster than kisses, or than death.

Thou in such a cloud dost bind us
That our worst foes cannot find us,
And ill fortune, that would thwart us,
Shoots at rovers, shooting at us ;
While each man, through thy heightening steam,
Does like a smoking Etna seem ;
And all about us does express
(Fancy and wit in richest dress)
A Sicilian fruitfulness.

Thou through such a mist dost show us
That our best friends do not know us,
And, for those allowed features
Due to reasonable creatures,
Liken'st us to fell chimeras,
Monsters, — that who see us, fear us ;
Worse than Cerberus or Geryon,
Or, who first loved a cloud, Ixion.

Bacchus we know, and we allow
His tipsy rites. But what art thou,
That but by reflex canst show
What his deity can do, —
As the false Egyptian spell
Aped the true Hebrew miracle ?
Some few vapors thou mayst raise
The weak brain may serve to amaze ;

But to the reins and nobler heart
Canst nor life nor heat impart.

Brother of Bacchus, later born !
The old world was sure forlorn,
Wanting thee, that aidest more
The god's victories than, before,
All his panthers, and the brawls
Of his piping Bacchanals.
These, as stale, we disallow,
Or judge of thee meant : only thou
His true Indian conquest art ;
And, for ivy round his dart,
The reformed god now weaves
A finer thyrsus of thy leaves.

Scent to match thy rich perfume
Chemic art did ne'er presume,
Through her quaint alembic strain,
None so sovereign to the brain.
Nature, that did in thee excel,
Framed again no second smell.
Roses, violets, but toys
For the smaller sort of boys,
Or for greener damsels meant ;
Thou art the only manly scent.

Stinkingest of the stinking kind !
Filth of the mouth and fog of the mind !
Africa, that brags her foison,
Breeds no such prodigious poison !
Henbane, nightshade, both together,
Hemlock, aconite —

Nay, rather,
Plant divine, of rarest virtue ;
Blisters on the tongue would hurt you !
'T was but in a sort I blamed thee ;
None e'er prospered who defamed thee ;
Irony all, and feigned abuse,
Such as perplexed lovers use
At a need, when, in despair
To paint forth their fairest fair,
Or in part but to express
That exceeding comeliness
Which their fancies doth so strike,
They borrow language of dislike ;
And, instead of dearest Miss,
Jewel, honey, sweetheart, bliss,
And those forms of old admiring,
Call her cockatrice and siren,

Basilisk, and all that's evil,
Witch, hyena, mermaid, devil,
Ethiop, wench, and blackamoor,
Monkey, ape, and twenty more ;
Friendly trait'ress, loving foe, —
Not that she is truly so,
But no other way they know,
A contentment to express
Borders so upon excess
That they do not rightly wot
Whether it be from pain or not.

Or, as men, constrained to part
With what's nearest to their heart,
While their sorrow's at the height
Lose discrimination quite,
And their hasty wrath let fall,
To appease their frantic gall,
On the darling thing, whatever,
Whence they feel it death to sever,
Though it be, as they, perforce,
Guiltless of the sad divorce.

For I must (nor let it grieve thee,
Friendliest of plants, that I must) leave thee.
For thy sake, Tobacco, I
Would do anything but die,
And but seek to extend my days
Long enough to sing thy praise.
But, as she who once hath been
A king's consort is a queen
Ever after, nor will bate
Any tittle of her state
Though a widow, or divorced,
So I, from thy converse forced,
The old name and style retain,
A right Katherine of Spain ;
And a seat, too, 'mongst the joys
Of the blest Tobacco Boys ;
Where, though I, by sour physician,
Am debarred the full fruition
Of thy favors, I may catch
Some collateral sweets, and snatch
Sidelong odors, that give life
Like glances from a neighbor's wife ;
And still live in the by-places
And the suburbs of thy graces ;
And in thy borders take delight,
An unconquered Canaanite.

LABOR.

THE HAPPY HEART.

FROM "PATIENT GRISSELL," ACT I. SC. I.

ART thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers ?

O sweet content !

ART thou rich, yet is thy mind perplexed ?

O punishment !

Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vexed
To add to golden numbers, golden numbers ?

O sweet content ! O sweet, O sweet content !

Work apace, apace, apace, apace ;

Honest labor bears a lovely face ;

Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny !

Canst drink the waters of the crisped spring ?

O sweet content !

Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears ?

O punishment !

Then he that patiently want's burden bears

No burden bears, but is a king, a king !

O sweet content ! O sweet, O sweet content !

Work apace, apace, apace, apace ;

Honest labor bears a lovely face ;

Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny !

THOMAS DEKKER.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH.

UNDER a spreading chestnut-tree

The village smithy stands ;

The smith, a mighty man is he,

With large and sinewy hands ;

And the muscles of his brawny arms

Are strong as iron bands.

His hair is crisp and black and long ;

His face is like the tan ;

His brow is wet with honest sweat, —

He earns whate'er he can,

And looks the whole world in the face,

For he owes not any man.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,

You can hear his bellows blow ;

You can hear him swing his heavy sledge,

With measured beat and slow,

Like a sexton ringing the village bell,

When the evening sun is low.

And children coming home from school,

Look in at the open door ;

They love to see the flaming forge,

And hear the bellows roar,

And catch the burning sparks that fly
Like chaff from the threshing-floor.

He goes on Sunday to the church,

And sits among his boys ;

He hears the parson pray and preach ;

He hears his daughter's voice,

Singing in the village choir,

And it makes his heart rejoice.

It sounds to him like her mother's voice,

Singing in Paradise !

He needs must think of her once more,

How in the grave she lies ;

And with his hard, rough hand he wipes

A tear out of his eyes.

Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing,

Onward through life he goes ;

Each morning sees some task begin,

Each evening sees it close ;

Something attempted, something done,

Has earned a night's repose.

Thanks, thanks to thee, my worthy friend,

For the lesson thou hast taught !

Thus at the flaming forge of life

Our fortunes must be wrought ;

Thus on its sounding anvil shaped

Each burning deed and thought !

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

TO THE HARVEST MOON.

PLEASING 't is, O modest Moon !

Now the night is at her noon,

'Neath thy sway to musing lie,

While around the zephyrs sigh,

Fanning soft the sun-tanned wheat,

Ripened by the summer's heat ;

Picturing all the rustic's joy

When boundless plenty greets his eye,

And thinking soon,

O modest Moon !

How many a female eye will roam

Along the road,

To see the load,

The last dear load of harvest home.

Storms and tempests, floods and rains,

Stern spoilers of the plains,

Hence, away, the season flee,
 Foes to light-heart jollity !
 May no winds careering high
 Drive the clouds along the sky,
 But may all Nature smile with aspect boon,
 When in the heavens thou show'st thy face, O harvest Moon !

'Neath you lowly roof he lies,
 The husbandman, with sleep-sealed eyes :
 He dreams of crowded barns, and round
 The yard he hears the flail resound ;
 O, may no hurricane destroy
 His visionary views of joy !
 God of the winds ! O, hear his humble prayer,
 And while the Moon of Harvest shines, thy blustering whirlwind spare !

Sons of luxury, to you
 Leave I Sleep's dull power to woo ;
 Press ye still the downy bed,
 While feverish dreams surround your head ;
 I will seek the woodland glade,
 Penetrate the thickest shade,
 Wrapped in Contemplation's dreams,
 Musing high on holy themes,
 While on the gale
 Shall softly sail
 The nightingale's enchanting tune,
 And oft my eyes
 Shall grateful rise
 To thee, the modest Harvest Moon !

HENRY KIRKE WHITE.

THE USEFUL PLOUGH.

A COUNTRY life is sweet !
 In moderate cold and heat,
 To walk in the air how pleasant and fair !
 In every field of wheat,
 The fairest of flowers adorning the bowers,
 And every meadow's brow ;
 So that I say, no courtier may
 Compare with them who clothe in gray,
 And follow the useful plough.

They rise with the morning lark,
 And labor till almost dark,
 Then, folding their sheep, they hasten to sleep
 While every pleasant park
 Next morning is ringing with birds that are singing
 On each green, tender bough.
 With what content and merriment
 Their days are spent, whose minds are bent
 To follow the useful plough.

ANONYMOUS.

THE PLOUGHMAN.

CLEAR the brown path to meet his coulter's gleam !

Lo ! on he comes, behind his smoking team,
 With toil's bright dew-drops on his sunburnt
 brow,

The lord of earth, the hero of the plough !

First in the field before the reddening sun,
 Last in the shadows when the day is done,
 Line after line, along the bursting sod,
 Marks the broad acres where his feet have trod.
 Still where he treads the stubborn clods divide,
 The smooth, fresh furrow opens deep and wide ;
 Matted and dense the tangled turf upheaves,
 Mellow and dark the ridgy cornfield cleaves ;
 Up the steep hillside, where the laboring train
 Slants the long track that scores the level plain,
 Through the moist valley, clogged with oozing
 clay,

The patient convoy breaks its destined way ;
 At every turn the loosening chains resound,
 The swinging ploughshare circles glistening
 round,
 Till the wide field one billowy waste appears,
 And wearied hands unbind the panting steers.

These are the hands whose sturdy labor brings
 The peasant's food, the golden pomp of kings ;
 This is the page whose letters shall be seen,
 Changed by the sun to words of living green ;
 This is the scholar whose immortal pen
 Spells the first lesson hunger taught to men ;
 These are the lines that heaven-commanded Toi
 Shows on his deed, — the charter of the soil !

O gracious Mother, whose benignant breast
 Wakes us to life, and lulls us all to rest,
 How thy sweet features, kind to every clime,
 Mock with their smile the wrinkled front of
 Time !

We stain thy flowers, — they blossom o'er the dead ;

We rend thy bosom, and it gives us bread ;
 O'er the red field that trampling strife has torn,
 Waves the green plumage of thy tasselled corn ;
 Our maddening conflicts scar thy fairest plain,
 Still thy soft answer is the growing grain.
 Yet, O our Mother, while uncounted charms
 Steal round our hearts in thine embracing arms,
 Let not our virtues in thy love decay,
 And thy fond sweetness waste our strength away.

No, by these hills whose banners now displayed
 In blazing cohorts Autumn has arrayed ;
 By yon twin summits, on whose splintery crests
 The tossing hemlocks hold the eagles' nests ;

By these fair plains the mountain circle screens,
And feeds with streamlets from its dark ravines, —

True to their home, these faithful arms shall toil
To crown with peace their own untainted soil;
And, true to God, to freedom, to mankind,
If her chained ban-dogs Faction shall unbind,
These stately forms, that, bending even now,
Bowed their strong manhood to the humble plough,

Shall rise erect, the guardians of the land,
The same stern iron in the same right hand,
Till o'er their hills the shouts of triumph run, —
The sword has rescued what the ploughshare won!

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE MOWERS.

THE sunburnt mowers are in the swath —

Swing, swing, swing!
The towering lilies loath
Tremble and totter and fall;
The meadow-rue

Dashes its tassels of golden dew;
And the keen blade sweeps o'er all —
Swing, swing, swing!

The flowers, the berries, the feathered grass,
Are thrown in a smothered mass;
Hastens away the butterfly;
With half their burden the brown bees hie;
And the meadow-lark shrieks distress,
And leaves the poor younglings all in the nest.
The daisies clasp and fall;
And totters the Jacob's-ladder tall.
Weaving and winding and curving lithe,
O'er plummy hillocks — through dewy hollows,
His subtle scythe
The nodding mower follows —
Swing, swing, swing!

Anon, the chiming whetstones ring —
Ting-a-ling! ting-a-ling!

And the mower now
Pauses and wipes his beaded brow.
A moment he scans the fleckless sky;
A moment, the fish-hawk soaring high;
And watches the swallows dip and dive
Anear and far.
They whisk and glimmer, and chatter and strive;
What do they gossip together?
Cunning fellows they are,
Wise prophets to him!

"Higher or lower they circle and skim —
Fair or foul to-morrow's hay-weather!"

Tallest primroses, or loftiest daisies,
Not a steel-blue feather
Of slim wing grazes:

"Fear not! fear not!" cry the swallows.
Each mower tightens his snath-ring's wedge,
And his finger daintily follows
The long blade's tickle-edge;
Softly the whetstone's last touches ring —
Ting-a-ling! ting-a-ling!
Like a leaf-muffled bird in the woodland nigh,
Faintly the fading echoes reply —
Ting-a-ling! ting-a-ling!

"Perchance the swallows, that flit in their glee,
Of to-morrow's hay-weather know little as we!"
Says Farmer Russet. "Be it hidden in shower
Or sunshine, to-morrow we do not own —

To-day is ours alone! —
Not a twinkle we'll waste of the golden hour.
Grasp tightly the nibs — give heel and give toe! —
Lay a goodly swath, shaved smooth and low!

Prime is the day —
Swing, swing, swing!"

Farmer Russet is aged and gray —
Gray as the frost, but fresh as the spring.
Straight is he
As the green fir-tree;
And with heart most blithe, and sinews lithe,
He leads the row with his merry scythe.

"Come, boys! strike up the old song
While we circle around —
The song we always in haytime sing —
And let the woods ring,
And the echoes prolong
The merry sound!"

SONG.

July is just in the nick of time!
(Hay-weather, hay-weather;)
The midsummer month is the golden prime
For haycocks smelling of clover and thyme; —
(Swing all together!)
July is just in the nick of time!

Chorus.

O, we'll make our hay while the good sun
shines —
We'll waste not a golden minute!
No shadow of storm the blue arch lines;
We'll waste not a minute — not a minute!
For the west-wind is fair;
O, the hay-day is rare! —
The sky is without a brown cloud in it!
June is too early for richest hay;
(Fair weather, fair weather;)

“THE MAN WITH THE HOE.”

WRITTEN AFTER SEEING MILLET'S WORLD-FAMOUS PAINTING.

“God made man in His own image,
In the image of God made He him.”—Genesis.

BOWED by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?
Whose was the hand that slanted back this brow?
Whose breath blew out the light within this brain?

THE MAN WITH THE HOE.

Continued.

Is this the Thing the Lord God made and gave
To have dominion over sea and land;
To trace the stars and search the heavens for power;
To feel the passion of Eternity?
Is this the Dream He dreamed who shaped the suns
And marked their ways upon the ancient deep?
Down all the stretch of Hell to its last gulf
There is no shape more terrible than this —
More tongued with censure of the world's blind greed —
More filled with signs and portents for the soul —
More fraught with menace to the universe.

What gulfs between him and the seraphim!
Slave of the wheel of labor, what to him
Are Plato and the swing of Pleiades?
What the long reaches of the peaks of song,
The rift of dawn, the reddening of the rose?
Through this dread shape the suffering ages look;
Time's tragedy is in that aching stoop;
Through this dread share humanity betrayed,
Plundered, profaned and disinherited,
Cries protest to the Judges of the World,
A protest that is also prophecy.

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
Is this the handiwork you give to God,
This monstrous thing distorted and soul-quenched?
How will you ever straighten up this shape;
Touch it again with immortality;
Give back the upward looking and the light;
Rebuild in it the music and the dream;
Make right the immemorial infamies,
Perfidious wrongs, immedicable woes?

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
How will the Future reckon with this Man?
How answer his brute question in that hour
When whirlwinds of rebellion shake the world?
How will it be with kingdoms and with kings —
With those who shaped him to the thing he is —
When this dumb Terror shall reply to God
After the silence of the centuries?

The corn stretches taller the livelong day ;

But grass is ever too sappy to lay ; —

(Clip all together !)

June is too early for richest hay.

August's a month that too far goes by ;

(Late weather, late weather ;)

Grasshoppers are chipper and kick too high !

And grass that's standing is fodder scorched dry ; —

(Pull all together !)

August's a month that too far goes by.

July is just in the nick of time !

(Best weather, best weather ;)

The midsummer month is the golden prime

For haycocks smelling of clover and thyme ; —

(Strike all together !)

July is just in the nick of time !

Still hiss the scythes !

Shudder the grasses' defenceless blades —

The lily-throw writhes ;

And, as a phalanx of wild-geese streams,

Where the shore of April's cloudland gleams,

On their dizzy way, in serried grades —

Wing on wing, wing on wing —

The mowers, each a step in advance

Of his fellow, time their stroke with a glance

Of swerveless force ;

And far through the meadow leads their course —

Swing, swing, swing !

MYRON B. BENTON.

FROM "THE FARMER'S BOY."

FLED now the sullen murmurs of the north,
The splendid raiment of the Spring peeps forth ;

But unassisted, through each toilsome day,
With smiling brow the ploughman cleaves his
way,

Draws his fresh parallels, and, widening still,
Treads slow the heavy dale, or climbs the hill.

Strong on the wing his busy followers play,
Where writhing earthworms meet the unwelcome
day,

Till all is changed, and hill and level down

Assume a livery of sober brown ;

Again disturbed, when Giles with wearying strides

From ridge to ridge the ponderous harrow guides,

His beels deep sinking, every step he goes,

Till dirt adhesive loads his clouted shoes.

Welcome, green headland ! firm beneath his feet :

Welcome, the friendly bank's refreshing seat ;

There, warm with toil, his panting horses browse

Their sheltering canopy of pendent boughs ;

Till rest delicious chase each transient pain,

And new-born vigor swell in every vein.

Hour after hour and day to day succeeds,

Till every clod and deep-drawn furrow spreads

To crumbling mould, — a level surface clear,

And strewed with corn to crown the rising year ;

And o'er the whole Giles, once transverse again,

In earth's moist bosom buries up the grain.

The work is done ; no more to man is given ;

The grateful farmer trusts the rest to Heaven.

His simple errand done, he homeward hies ;

Another instantly its place supplies.

The clattering dairy-maid, immersed in steam,

Singing and scrubbing midst her milk and cream,

Bawls out, "Go fetch the cows !" — he hears

no more ;

For pigs and ducks and turkeys throng the door,

And sitting hens for constant war prepared, —

A concert strange to that which late he heard.

Straight to the meadow then he whistling goes ;

With well-known halloo calls his lazy cows ;

Down the rich pasture heedlessly they graze,

Or hear the summons with an idle gaze,

For well they know the cow-yard yields no more

Its tempting fragrance, nor its wintry store.

Reluctance marks their steps, sedate and slow,

The right of conquest all the law they know ;

The strong press on, the weak by turns succeed,

And one superior always takes the lead,

Is ever foremost wheresoe'er they stray,

Allowed precedence, undisputed sway :

With jealous pride her station is maintained,

For many a broil that post of honor gained.

At home, the yard affords a grateful scene,

For spring makes e'en a miry cow-yard clean.

Thence from its chalky bed behold conveyed

The rich manure that drenching winter made,

Which, piled near home, grows green with many a weed,

A promised nutriment for autumn's seed.

Forth comes the maid, and like the morning

smiles ;

The mistress too, and followed close by Giles.

A friendly tripod forms their humble seat,

With pails bright scoured and delicately sweet.

Where shadowing elms obstruct the morning ray

Begins the work, begins the simple lay ;

The full-charged udder yields its willing stream

While Mary sings some lover's amorous dream ;

And crouching Giles, beneath a neighboring tree,

Tugs o'er his pail, and chants with equal glee ;

Whose hat with battered brim, of nap so bare,

From the cow's side purloins a coat of hair, —

A mottled ensign of his harmless trade,

An unambitious, peaceable cockade.

As unambitious, too, that cheerful aid
The mistress yields beside her rosy maid ;
With joy she views her plenteous reeking store,
And bears a brimmer to the dairy door ;
Her cows dismissed, the luscious mead to roam,
Till eve again recall them loaded home.

ROBERT BLOOMFIELD.

THE FORGING OF THE ANCHOR.

COME, see the Dolphin's anchor forged ; 't is at a white heat now :

The bellows ceased, the flames decreased ; though on the forge's brow

The little flames still fitfully play through the sable mound :

And fitfully you still may see the grim smiths ranking round,

All clad in leathern panoply, their broad hands only bare ;

Some rest upon their sledges here, some work
the windlass there.

The windlass strains the tackle-chains, the black mound heaves below,

And red and deep a hundred veins burst out at every throe ;

It rises, roars, rends all outright, — O Vulcan, what a glow !

'T is blinding white, 't is blasting bright, the high sun shines not so !

The high sun sees not, on the earth, such a fiery, fearful show, —

The roof-ribs swarth, the candent hearth, the ruddy, lurid row

Of smiths that stand, an ardent band, like men before the foe.

As, quivering through his fleece of flame, the sailing monster slow

Sinks on the anvil, — all about the faces fiery grow.

"Hurrah !" they shout, "leap out, leap out ;"
bang, bang, the sledges go ;

Hurrah ! the jetted lightnings are hissing high
and low ;

A hailing fount of fire is struck at every squash-
ing blow ;

The leathern mail rebounds the hail ; the rattling cinders strew

The ground around ; at every bound the sweltering fountains flow ;

And thick and loud the swinking crowd, at every stroke, pant "Ho !"

Leap out, leap out, my masters ; leap out and lay on load !

Let's forge a goodly anchor, a bower, thick and broad ;

For a heart of oak is hanging on every blow, I
bode,

And I see the good ship riding, all in a perilous road, —

The low reef roaring on her lee, the roll of ocean poured

From stem to stern, sea after sea ; the mainmast
by the board ;

The bulwarks down, the rudder gone, the boats stove at the chains, —

But courage still, brave mariners, the bower still remains,

And not an inch to flinch he deigns save when ye pitch sky-high,

Then moves his head, as though he said, "Fear nothing, — here am I !"

Swing in your strokes in order, let foot and hand
keep time ;

Your blows make music sweeter far than any steeple's chime.

But while you sling your sledges, sing ; and let the burden be,

The Anchor is the Anvil King, and royal craftsmen we !

Strike in, strike in, the sparks begin to dull their rustling red !

Our hammers ring with sharper din, our work will soon be sped ;

Our anchor soon must change his bed of fiery rich array

For a hammock at the roaring bows, or an oozy couch of clay ;

Our anchor soon must change the lay of merry
craftsmen here,

For the Yeo-heave-o, and the Heave-away, and the sighing seaman's cheer ;

When, weighing slow, at eve they go — far, far from love and home,

And sobbing sweethearts, in a row, wail o'er the ocean foam.

In livid and obdurate gloom, he darkens down at last :

A shapely one he is, and strong as e'er from cat was cast.

O trusted and trustworthy guard, if thou hadst life like me,

What pleasures would thy toils reward beneath the deep green sea !

O deep-sea diver, who might then behold such sights as thou ?

The hoary monsters' palaces ! methinks what joy
't were now

To go plumb plunging down amid the assembly of the whales,

And feel the churned sea round me boil beneath their scourging tails !

Then deep in tangle-woods to fight the fierce sea unicorn,
 And send him foiled and bellowing back, for all his ivory horn ;
 To leave the subtle sworder-fish of bony blade forlorn ;
 And for the ghastly-grinning shark, to laugh his jaws to scorn ;
 To leap down on the kraken's back, where mid Norwegian isles
 He lies, a lubber anchorage for sudden shallowed miles,
 Till snorting, like an under-sea volcano, off he rolls ;
 Meanwhile to swing, a-buffeting the far-astonished shoals
 Of his back-browsing ocean calves ; or, haply in a cove,
 Shell-strewn, and consecrate of old to some Undinè's love,
 To find the long-haired mermaidens ; or, hard by icy lands,
 To wrestle with the sea-serpent upon cerulean sands.

O broad-armed fisher of the deep, whose sports can equal thine ?
 The Dolphin weighs a thousand tons that tugs thy cable line ;
 And night by night 't is thy delight, thy glory day by day,
 Through sable sea and breaker white, the giant game to play ;
 But, shamer of our little sports ! forgive the name I gave, —
 A fisher's joy is to destroy, thine office is to save.

O lodger in the sea-king's halls, couldst thou but understand
 Whose be the white bones by thy side, or who that dripping band,
 Slow swaying in the heaving waves that round about thee bend,
 With sounds like breakers in a dream, blessing their ancient friend :
 O, couldst thou know what heroes glide with larger steps round thee,
 Thine iron side would swell with pride ; thou 'dst leap within the sea !

Give honor to their memories who left the pleasant strand
 To shed their blood so freely for the love of fatherland, —
 Who left their chance of quiet age and grassy churchyard grave
 So freely for a restless bed amid the tossing wave ;

O, though our anchor may not be all I have fondly sung,
 Honor him for their memory whose bones he goes among !

SAMUEL FERGUSON.

THE SONG OF STEAM.

HARNESS me down with your iron bands,
 Be sure of your curb and rein,
 For I scorn the strength of your puny hands
 As a tempest scorns a chain.
 How I laughed as I lay concealed from sight
 For many a countless hour,
 At the childish boasts of human might,
 And the pride of human power !

When I saw an army upon the land,
 A navy upon the seas,
 Creeping along, a snail-like band,
 Or waiting the wayward breeze ;
 When I marked the peasant faintly reel
 With the toil that he daily bore,
 As he feebly turned the tardy wheel,
 Or tugged at the weary oar ;

When I measured the panting courser's speed,
 The flight of the carrier dove,
 As they bore the law a king decreed,
 Or the lines of impatient love,
 I could but think how the world would feel,
 As these were outstripped afar,
 When I should be bound to the rushing keel,
 Or chained to the flying car.

Ha ! ha ! ha ! they found me at last,
 They invited me forth at length,
 And I rushed to my throne with a thunder blast,
 And laughed in my iron strength !
 O, then ye saw a wondrous change
 On the earth and ocean wide,
 Where now my fiery armies range,
 Nor wait for wind or tide !

Hurrah ! hurrah ! the waters o'er,
 The mountain's steep decline ;
 Time — space — have yielded to my power :
 The world, the world is mine !
 The rivers the sun hath earliest blest,
 Or those where his beams decline,
 The giant streams of the queenly West,
 Or the Orient floods divine.

The ocean pales wherever I sweep
 To hear my strength rejoice,
 And monsters of the briny deep
 Cower trembling at my voice.

I carry the wealth of the lord of earth,
The thoughts of his godlike mind ;
The wind lags after my going forth,
The lightning is left behind.

In the darksome depths of the fathomless mine
My tireless arm doth play,
Where the rocks ne'er saw the sun's decline
Or the dawn of the glorious day ;
I bring earth's glittering jewels up
From the hidden caves below,
And I make the fountain's granite cup
With a crystal gush o'erflow.

I blow the bellows, I forge the steel,
In all the shops of trade ;
I hammer the ore and turn the wheel
Where my arms of strength are made ;
I manage the furnace, the mill, the mint,
I carry, I spin, I weave,
And all my doings I put into print
On every Saturday eve.

I've no muscles to weary, no brains to decay,
No bones to be laid on the shelf,
And soon I intend you may go and play,
While I manage the world myself.
But harness me down with your iron bands,
Be sure of your curb and rein,
For I scorn the strength of your puny hands
As the tempest scorns the chain.

GEORGE W. CUTTER.

LABOR SONG.

FROM "THE BELL-FOUNDER."

AH ! little they know of true happiness, they whom satiety fills,
Who, flung on the rich breast of luxury, eat of the rankness that kills.
Ah ! little they know of the blessedness toil-purchased slumber enjoys
Who, stretched on the hard rack of indolence, taste of the sleep that destroys ;
Nothing to hope for, or labor for ; nothing to sigh for, or gain ;
Nothing to light in its vividness, lightning-like,
bosom and brain ;
Nothing to break life's monotony, rippling it o'er with its breath ; —
Nothing but dulness and lethargy, weariness, sorrow, and death !
But blessed that child of humanity, happiest man among men,
Who, with hammer or chisel or pencil, with rudder or ploughshare or pen,

Laboreth ever and ever with hope through the morning of life,
Winning home and its darling divinities, — love-worshipped children and wife.
Round swings the hammer of industry, quickly
the sharp chisel rings,
And the heart of the toiler has throbbings that stir not the bosom of kings, —
He the true ruler and conqueror, he the true
king of his race,
Who nerveth his arm for life's combat, and looks the strong world in the face.

DENIS FLORENCE MAC-CARTHY.

A LANCASHIRE DOXOLOGY.

"Some cotton has lately been imported into Farringdon, where the mills have been closed for a considerable time. The people, who were previously in the deepest distress, went out to meet the cotton : the women wept over the bales and kissed them, and finally sang the Doxology over them." — Spectator of May 14, 1863.

"PRAISE God from whom all blessings flow,"
Praise him who sendeth joy and woe.
The Lord who takes, the Lord who gives,
O, praise him, all that dies, and lives.

He opens and he shuts his hand,
But why we cannot understand :
Pours and dries up his mercies' flood,
And yet is still All-perfect Good.

We fathom not the mighty plan,
The mystery of God and man ;
We women, when afflictions come,
We only suffer and are dumb.

And when, the tempest passing by,
He gleams out, sunlike, through our sky,
We look up, and through black clouds riven
We recognize the smile of Heaven.

Ours is no wisdom of the wise,
We have no deep philosophies ;
Childlike we take both kiss and rod,
For he who loveth knoweth God.

DINAH MARIA MULOCK CRAIK.

TO LABOR IS TO PRAY.

PAUSE not to dream of the future before us ;
Pause not to weep the wild cares that come o'er us ;
Hark, how Creation's deep musical chorus,
Unintermitting, goes up into heaven !
Never the ocean wave falters in flowing ;
Never the little seed stops in its growing ;
More and more richly the rose-heart keeps glow-
ing,
Till from its nourishing stem it is riven.

"Labor is worship!" the robin is singing;
 "Labor is worship!" the wild bee is ringing;
 Listen! that eloquent whisper, upspringing,
 Speaks to thy soul from out Nature's great heart.
 From the dark cloud flows the life-giving shower;
 From the rough sod blows the soft-breathing flower;
 From the small insect, the rich coral bower;
 Only man, in the plan, shrinks from his part.

Labor is life! 't is the still water faileth;
 Idleness ever despaireth, bewaileth;
 Keep the watch wound, or the dark rust assail-
 eth;

Flowers droop and die in the stillness of noon.
 Labor is glory! — the flying cloud lightens;
 Only the waving wing changes and brightens;
 Idle hearts only the dark future frightens;
 Play the sweet keys, wouldst thou keep them
 in tune!

Labor is rest — from the sorrows that greet us;
 Rest from all petty vexations that meet us;
 Rest from sin-promptings that ever entreat us;
 Rest from world-sirens that lure us to ill.
 Work, — and pure slumbers shall wait on thy pillow;
 Work, — thou shalt ride over Care's coming bil-
 low;
 Lie not down wearied 'neath Woe's weeping wil-
 low,
 Work with a stout heart and resolute will!

Labor is health! Lo, the husbandman reaping,
 How through his veins goes the life-current leaping!
 How his strong arm in its stalworth pride sweeping,

True as a sunbeam the swift sickle guides.
 Labor is wealth, — in the sea the pearl groweth;
 Rich the queen's robe from the frail cocoon
 floweth;

From the fine acorn the strong forest bloweth;
 Temple and statue the marble block hides.

Droop not, — though shame, sin, and anguish are round thee!

Bravely fling off the cold chain that hath bound
 thee!

Look to the pure heaven smiling beyond thee!

Rest not content in thy darkness, — a clod!

Work for some good, be it ever so slowly!

Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly!

Labor! — all labor is noble and holy;

Let thy great deed be thy prayer to thy God.

FRANCES SARGENT OSGOOD.

THE LABORER.

TOILING in the naked fields,
 Where no bush a shelter yields,
 Needy Labor dithering stands,
 Beats and blows his numbing hands,
 And upon the crumping snows
 Stamps in vain to warm his toes.

Though all's in vain to keep him warm,
 Poverty must brave the storm,
 Friendship none its aid to lend,
 Constant health his only friend,
 Granting leave to live in pain,
 Giving strength to toil in vain.

JOHN CLARE.

CORN-LAW HYMN.

LORD! call thy pallid angel,
 The tamer of the strong!
 And bid him whip with want and woe
 The champions of the wrong!
 O, say not thou to ruin's flood,
 "Up, sluggard! why so slow?"
 But alone, let them groan,
 The lowest of the low;
 And basely beg the bread they curse,
 Where millions curse them now!

No; wake not thou the giant
 Who drinks hot blood for wine;
 And shouts unto the east and west,
 In thunder-tones like thine;
 Till the slow to move rush all at once,
 An avalanche of men,
 While he raves over waves
 That need no whirlwind then;
 Though slow to move, moved all at once,
 A sea, a sea of men!

EBENEZER ELLIOTT.

DUTY.

I SLEPT and dreamed that life was Beauty:
 I woke and found that life was Duty:
 Was then thy dream a shadowy lie?
 Toil on, sad heart, courageously,
 And thou shalt find thy dream to be
 A noonday light and truth to thee.

ANONYMOUS.

TRUE REST.

SWEET is the pleasure
 Itself cannot spoil!
 Is not true leisure
 One with true toil?

Thou that wouldst taste it,
Still do thy best ;
Use it, not waste it, —
Else 't is no rest.

Wouldst behold beauty
Near thee ? all round ?
Only hath duty
Such a sight found.

Rest is not quitting
The busy career ;
Rest is the fitting
Of self to its sphere.

'T is the brook's motion,
Clear without strife,
Fleeing to ocean
After its life.

Deeper devotion
Nowhere hath knelt ;
Fuller emotion
Heart never felt.

'T is loving and serving
The highest and best ;
'T is onwards ! unswerving, —
And that is true rest.

JOHN SULLIVAN DWIGHT.

GOOD NIGHT.

Good night,
To each weary, toil-worn wight !
Now the day so sweetly closes,
Every aching brow reposes
Peacefully till morning light.
Good night !

Home to rest !
Close the eye and calm the breast ;
Stillness through the streets is stealing,
And the watchman's horn is pealing,
And the night calls softly, "Haste !
Home to rest !"

Sweetly sleep !
Eden's breezes round ye sweep.
O'er the peace-forsaken lover
Let the darling image hover,
As he lies in transport deep
Sweetly sleep !

So, good night !
Slumber on till morning light ;

Slumber till another morrow
Brings its stores of joy and sorrow ;
Fearless, in the Father's sight,
Slumber on. Good night !

The Star-spangled banner.

O say! can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hail'd as the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the clouds of the fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?

And the rocket's red glare - the bomb bursting in air, gave proof through the night that our flag was still there!

O say, does that Star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free & the home of the brave? —

Thy sacred leaves, Jan Freedom's flower,
Shall ever float on dome and tower,

Then hail the banner of the free,
The starry Flower of Liberty!

POEMS OF PATRIOTISM AND FREEDOM.

BREATHES THERE THE MAN.

FROM "THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL," CANTO VI.

BREATHES there the man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,

This is my own, my native land !
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned

From wandering on a foreign strand ?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well ;
For him no minstrel raptures swell ;
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentréd all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

MY COUNTRY.

THERE is a land, of every land the pride,
Beloved by Heaven o'er all the world beside,
Where brighter suns dispense serener light,
And milder moons imparadise the night ;
A land of beauty, virtue, valor, truth,
Time-tutored age, and love-exalted youth :
The wandering mariner, whose eye explores
The wealthiest isles, the most enchanting shores,
Views not a realm so bountiful and fair,
Nor breathes the spirit of a purer air.
In every clime, the magnet of his soul,
Touched by remembrance, trembles to that pole ;
For in this land of Heaven's peculiar race,
The heritage of nature's noblest grace,
There is a spot of earth supremely blest,
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest,
Where man, creation's tyrant, casts aside
His sword and sceptre, pageantry and pride,
While in his softened looks benignly blend
The sire, the son, the husband, brother, friend.
Here woman reigns ; the mother, daughter, wife,
Strew with fresh flowers the narrow way of life :

In the clear heaven of her delightful eye
An angel-guard of love and graces lie ;
Around her knees domestic duties meet,
And fireside pleasures gambol at her feet.
" Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found ? "

Art thou a man ? — a patriot ? — look around ;
O, thou shalt find, howe'er thy footsteps roam,
That land thy country, and that spot thy home !

Man, through all ages of revolving time,
Unchanging man, in every varying clime,
Deems his own land of every land the pride,
Beloved by Heaven o'er all the world beside ;
His home the spot of earth supremely blest,
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest.

HOW SLEEP THE BRAVE.

How sleep the brave, who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest !
When Spring, with dewy fingers cold,
Returns to deck their hallowed mould,
She there shall dress a sweeter sod
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy hands their knell is rung ;
By forms unseen their dirge is sung ;
There Honor comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the turf that wraps their clay ;
And Freedom shall awhile repair,
To dwell a weeping hermit there !

WILLIAM COLLINS.

THE BRAVE AT HOME.

THE maid who binds her warrior's sash
With smile that well her pain dissembles,
The while beneath her drooping lash
One starry tear-drop hangs and trembles,
Though Heaven alone records the tear,
And Fame shall never know her story,
Her heart has shed a drop as dear
As e'er bedewed the field of glory !

The wife who girds her husband's sword,
 Mid little ones who weep or wonder,
 And bravely speaks the cheering word,
 What though her heart be rent asunder,
 Doomed nightly in her dreams to hear
 The bolts of death around him rattle,
 Hath shed as sacred blood as e'er
 Was poured upon the field of battle !

The mother who conceals her grief
 While to her breast her son she presses,
 Then breathes a few brave words and brief,
 Kissing the patriot brow she blesses,
 With no one but her secret God
 To know the pain that weighs upon her,
 Sheds holy blood as e'er the sod
 Received on Freedom's field of honor !

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

THE DEATH OF LEONIDAS.

It was the wild midnight, —
 A storm was on the sky ;
 The lightning gave its light,
 And the thunder echoed by.

The torrent swept the glen,
 The ocean lashed the shore ;
 Then rose the Spartan men,
 To make their bed in gore !

Swift from the deluged ground
 Three hundred took the shield ;
 Then, silent, gathered round
 The leader of the field !

He spake no warrior word,
 He bade no trumpet blow,
 But the signal thunder roared,
 And they rushed upon the foe.

The fiery element
 Showed, with one mighty gleam,
 Rampart, and flag, and tent,
 Like the spectres of a dream.

All up the mountain's side,
 All down the woody vale,
 All by the rolling tide
 Waved the Persian banners pale.

And foremost from the pass,
 Among the slumbering band,
 Sprang King Leonidas,
 Like the lightning's living brand.

Then double darkness fell,
 And the forest ceased its moan ;
 But there came a clash of steel,
 And a distant dying groan.

Anon, a trumpet blew,
 And a fiery sheet burst high,
 That o'er the midnight threw
 A blood-red canopy.

A host glared on the hill ;
 A host glared by the bay ;
 But the Greeks rushed onward still
 Like leopards in their play.

The air was all a yell,
 And the earth was all a flame,
 Where the Spartan's bloody steel
 On the silken turbans came ;

And still the Greek rushed on
 Where the fiery torrent rolled,
 Till like a rising sun
 Shone Xerxes' tent of gold.

They found a royal feast,
 His midnight banquet, there ;
 And the treasures of the East
 Lay beneath the Doric spear.

Then sat to the repast
 The bravest of the brave !
 That feast must be their last,
 That spot must be their grave.

They pledged old Sparta's name
 In cups of Syrian wine,
 And the warrior's deathless fame
 Was sung in strains divine.

They took the rose-wreathed lyres
 From eunuch and from slave,
 And taught the languid wires
 The sounds that Freedom gave.

But now the morning star
 Crowned Eta's twilight brow ;
 And the Persian horn of war
 From the hills began to blow.

Up rose the glorious rank,
 To Greece one cup poured high,
 Then hand in hand they drank,
 "To immortality !"

Fear on King Xerxes fell,
 When, like spirits from the tomb,
 With shout and trumpet knell,
 He saw the warriors come.

But down swept all his power,
 With chariot and with charge ;
 Down poured the arrows' shower,
 Till sank the Dorian's target.

They gathered round the tent,
 With all their strength unstrung ;
 To Greece one look they sent,
 Then on high their torches flung.

The king sat on the throne,
 His captains by his side,
 While the flame rushed roaring on,
 And their Pæan loud replied.

Thus fought the Greek of old !
 Thus will he fight again !
 Shall not the self-same mould
 Bring forth the self-same men ?

GEORGE CROLY.

HORATIUS AT THE BRIDGE.

LARS PORSENA of Clusium,
 By the Nine Gods he swore
 That the great house of Tarquin
 Should suffer wrong no more.
 By the Nine Gods he swore it,
 And named a trysting-day,
 And bade his messengers ride forth,
 East and west and south and north,
 To summon his array.

East and west and south and north
 The messengers ride fast,
 And tower and town and cottage
 Have heard the trumpet's blast.
 Shame on the false Etruscan
 Who lingers in his home,
 When Porsena of Clusium
 Is on the march for Rome !

The horsemen and the footmen
 Are pouring in amain
 From many a stately market-place,
 From many a fruitful plain,
 From many a lonely hamlet,
 Which, hid by beech and pine,
 Like an eagle's nest hangs on the crest
 Of purple Apennine :

From lordly Volaterræ,
 Where scowls the far-famed hold
 Piled by the hands of giants
 For godlike kings of old ;
 From sea-girt Populonia,
 Whose sentinels descry
 Sardinia's snowy mountain-tops
 Fringing the southern sky ;

From the proud mart of Pisæ,
 Queen of the western waves,
 Where ride Massilia's triremes,
 Heavy with fair-haired slaves ;
 From where sweet Clanis wanders
 Through corn and vines and flowers,
 From where Cortona lifts to heaven
 Her diadem of towers.

Tall are the oaks whose acorns
 Drop in dark Ausser's rill ;
 Fat are the stags that champ the boughs
 Of the Ciminian hill ;
 Beyond all streams, Clitumnus
 Is to the herdsman dear ;
 Best of all pools the fowler loves
 The great Volsinian mere.

But now no stroke of woodman
 Is heard by Ausser's rill ;
 No hunter tracks the stag's green path
 Up the Ciminian hill ;
 Unwatched along Clitumnus
 Grazes the milk-white steer ;
 Unharm'd the water-fowl may dip
 In the Volsinian mere.

The harvests of Arretium,
 This year, old men shall reap ;
 This year, young boys in Umbro
 Shall plunge the struggling sheep ;
 And in the vats of Luna,
 This year, the must shall foam
 Round the white feet of laughing girls
 Whose sires have marched to Rome.

There be thirty chosen prophets,
 The wisest of the land,
 Who always by Lars Porsena
 Both morn and evening stand.
 Evening and morn the Thirty
 Have turned the verses o'er,
 Traced from the right on linen white
 By mighty seers of yore ;

And with one voice the Thirty
 Have their glad answer given :
 " Go forth, go forth, Lars Porsena, —
 Go forth, beloved of Heaven !
 Go, and return in glory
 To Clusium's royal dome,
 And hang round Nurscia's altars
 The golden shields of Rome ! "

And now hath every city
 Sent up her tale of men ;
 The foot are fourscore thousand,
 The horse are thousands ten.

Before the gates of Sutrium
Is met the great array ;
A proud man was Lars Porsena
Upon the trysting-day.

For all the Etruscan armies
Were ranged beneath his eye,
And many a banished Roman,
And many a stout ally ;
And with a mighty following,
To join the muster, came
The Tusculan Mamilius,
Prince of the Latian name.

But by the yellow Tiber
Was tumult and affright ;
From all the spacious champaign
To Rome men took their flight.
A mile around the city
The throng stopped up the ways ;
A fearful sight it was to see
Through two long nights and days.

For aged folk on crutches,
And women great with child,
And mothers, sobbing over babes
That clung to them and smiled,
And sick men borne in litters
High on the necks of slaves,
And troops of sunburned husbandmen
With reaping-hooks and staves,

And droves of mules and asses
Laden with skins of wine,
And endless flocks of goats and sheep,
And endless herds of kine,
And endless trains of wagons,
That creaked beneath the weight
Of corn-sacks and of household goods,
Choked every roaring gate.

Now, from the rock Tarpeian,
Could the wan burghers spy
The line of blazing villages
Red in the midnight sky.
The Fathers of the City,
They sat all night and day,
For every hour some horseman came
With tidings of dismay.

To eastward and to westward
Have spread the Tuscan bands,
Nor house, nor fence, nor dove-cote
In Crustumium stands.
Verbenna down to Ostia
Hath wasted all the plain ;
Astur hath stormed Janiculum,
And the stout guards are slain.

I wis, in all the Senate
There was no heart so bold
But sore it ached, and fast it beat,
When that ill news was told.
Forthwith up rose the Consul,
Up rose the Fathers all ;
In haste they girded up their gowns,
And hid them to the wall.

They held a council, standing
Before the River-gate ;
Short time was there, ye well may guess,
For musing or debate.
Out spake the Consul roundly :
"The bridge must straight go down ;
For, since Janiculum is lost,
Naught else can save the town."

Just then a scout came flying,
All wild with haste and fear :
"To arms ! to arms ! Sir Consul, — Lars Porsena is here."
On the low hills to westward
The Consul fixed his eye,
And saw the swarthy storm of dust
Rise fast along the sky.

And nearer fast and nearer
Doth the red whirlwind come ;
And louder still, and still more loud,
From underneath that rolling cloud,
Is heard the trumpets' war-note proud,
The trampling and the hum.
And plainly and more plainly
Now through the gloom appears,
Far to left and far to right,
In broken gleams of dark-blue light,
The long array of helmets bright,
The long array of spears.

And plainly and more plainly,
Above that glimmering line,
Now might ye see the banners
Of twelve fair cities shine ;
But the banner of proud Clusium
Was highest of them all, —
The terror of the Umbrian,
The terror of the Gaul.

And plainly and more plainly
Now might the burghers know,
By port and vest, by horse and crest,
Each warlike Lucumo :
There Cilnius of Arretium
On his fleet roan was seen ;
And Astur of the fourfold shield,
Girt with the brand none else may wield ;
Tolumnius with the belt of gold,
And dark Verbeina from the hold
By reedy Thrasymene.

Fast by the royal standard,
 O'erlooking all the war,
 Lars Porsena of Clusium
 Sat in his ivory car.
 By the right wheel rode Mamilius,
 Prince of the Latian name ;
 And by the left false Sextus,
 That wrought the deed of shame.

But when the face of Sextus
 Was seen among the foes,
 A yell that rent the firmament
 From all the town arose.
 On the house-tops was no woman
 But spat towards him and hissed,
 No child but screamed out curses,
 And shook its little fist.

But the Consul's brow was sad,
 And the Consul's speech was low,
 And darkly looked he at the wall,
 And darkly at the foe :
 "Their van will be upon us
 Before the bridge goes down ;
 And if they once may win the bridge,
 What hope to save the town ?"

Then out spake brave Horatius,
 The Captain of the gate :
 "To every man upon this earth
 Death cometh soon or late.
 And how can man die better
 Than facing fearful odds
 For the ashes of his fathers
 And the temples of his gods,

"And for the tender mother
 Who dandled him to rest,
 And for the wife who nurses
 His baby at her breast,
 And for the holy maidens
 Who feed the eternal flame, —
 To save them from false Sextus
 That wrought the deed of shame ?

"Hew down the bridge, Sir Consul,
 With all the speed ye may ;
 I, with two more to help me,
 Will hold the foe in play.
 In yon strait path a thousand
 May well be stopped by three :
 Now who will stand on either hand,
 And keep the bridge with me ?"

Then out spake Spurius Lartius, —
 A Ramnian proud was he :
 "Lo, I will stand at thy right hand,
 And keep the bridge with thee."

And out spake strong Herminius, —
 Of Titian blood was he :
 "I will abide on thy left side,
 And keep the bridge with thee."

"Horatius," quoth the Consul,
 "As thou sayest so let it be."
 And straight against that great array
 Went forth the dauntless three.
 For Romans in Rome's quarrel
 Spared neither land nor gold,
 Nor son nor wife, nor limb nor life,
 In the brave days of old.

Then none was for a party —
 Then all were for the state ;
 Then the great man helped the poor,
 And the poor man loved the great ;
 Then lands were fairly portioned !
 Then spoils were fairly sold :
 The Romans were like brothers
 In the brave days of old.

Now Roman is to Roman
 More hateful than a foe,
 And the tribunes beard the high,
 And the fathers grind the low.
 As we wax hot in faction,
 In battle we wax cold ;
 Wherefore men fight not as they fought
 In the brave days of old.

Now while the three were tightening
 Their harness on their backs,
 The Consul was the foremost man
 To take in hand an axe ;
 And fathers, mixed with commons,
 Seized hatchet, bar, and crow,
 And smote upon the planks above,
 And loosed the props below.

Meanwhile the Tuscan army,
 Right glorious to behold,
 Came flashing back the noonday light,
 Rank behind rank, like surges bright
 Of a broad sea of gold.
 Four hundred trumpets sounded
 A peal of warlike glee,
 As that great host with measured tread,
 And spears advanced, and ensigns spread,
 Rolled slowly towards the bridge's head,
 Where stood the dauntless three.

The three stood calm and silent,
 And looked upon the foes,
 And a great shout of laughter
 From all the vanguard rose ;

And forth three chiefs came spurring
 Before that deep array ;
 To earth they sprang, their swords they drew,
 And lifted high their shields, and flew
 To win the narrow way.

Aunus, from green Tifernum,
 Lord of the Hill of Vines ;
 And Seius, whose eight hundred slaves
 Sicken in Ilva's mines ;
 And Picus, long to Clusium
 Vassal in peace and war,
 Who led to fight his Umbrian powers
 From that gray crag where, girt with towers,
 The fortress of Nequinum lowers
 O'er the pale waves of Nar.

Stout Lartius hurled down Aunus
 Into the stream beneath ;
 Herminius struck at Seius,
 And clove him to the teeth ;
 At Picus brave Horatius
 Darted one fiery thrust,
 And the proud Umbrian's gilded arms
 Clashed in the bloody dust.

Then Ocnus of Falerii
 Rushed on the Roman three ;
 And Lausulus of Urge,
 The rover of the sea ;
 And Aruns of Volsinium,
 Who slew the great wild boar, —
 The great wild boar that had his den
 Amidst the reeds of Cosa's fen,
 And wasted fields, and slaughtered men,
 Along Albinia's shore.

Herminius smote down Aruns ;
 Lartius laid Ocnus low ;
 Right to the heart of Lausulus
 Horatius sent a blow :
 "Lie there," he cried, "fell pirate !
 No more, aghast and pale,
 From Ostia's walls the crowd shall mark
 The track of thy destroying bark ;
 No more Campania's hinds shall fly
 To woods and caverns, when they spy
 Thy thrice-accursèd sail !"

But now no sound of laughter
 Was heard among the foes ;
 A wild and wrathful clamor
 From all the vanguard rose.
 Six spears' length from the entrance,
 Halted that mighty mass,
 And for a space no man came forth
 To win the narrow pass.

But, hark ! the cry is Astur :
 And lo ! the ranks divide ;
 And the great lord of Luna
 Comes with his stately stride.
 Upon his ample shoulders
 Clangs loud the fourfold shield,
 And in his hand he shakes the brand
 Which none but he can wield.

He smiled on those bold Romans,
 A smile serene and high ;
 He eyed the flinching Tuscans,
 And scorn was in his eye.
 Quoth he, "The she-wolf's litter
 Stand savagely at bay ;
 But will ye dare to follow,
 If Astur clears the way ?"

Then, whirling up his broadsword
 With both hands to the height,
 He rushed against Horatius,
 And smote with all his might.
 With shield and blade Horatius
 Right deftly turned the blow.
 The blow, though turned, came yet too nigh ;
 It missed his helm, but gashed his thigh.
 The Tuscans raised a joyful cry
 To see the red blood flow.

He reeled, and on Herminius
 He leaned one breathing-space,
 Then, like a wild-cat mad with wounds,
 Sprang right at Astur's face.
 Through teeth and skull and helmet
 So fierce a thrust he sped,
 The good sword stood a handbreadth out
 Behind the Tuscan's head.

And the great lord of Luna
 Fell at that deadly stroke,
 As falls on Mount Avernus
 A thunder-smitten oak.
 Far o'er the crashing forest
 The giant arms lie spread ;
 And the pale augurs, muttering low
 Gaze on the blasted head.

On Astur's throat Horatius
 Right firmly pressed his heel,
 And thrice and four times tugged amain,
 Ere he wrenched out the steel.
 And "See," he cried, "the welcome,
 Fair guests, that waits you here !
 What noble Lucuno comes next
 To taste our Roman cheer ?"

But at his haughty challenge
 A sullen murmur ran,
 Mingled with wrath and shame and dread,
 Along that glittering van.

There lacked not men of prowess,
Nor men of lordly race,
For all Etruria's noblest
Were round the fatal place.

But all Etruria's noblest
Felt their hearts sink to see
On the earth the bloody corpses,
In the path the dauntless three ;
And from the ghastly entrance,
Where those bold Romans stood,
All shrank, — like boys who, unaware,
Ranging the woods to start a hare,
Come to the mouth of the dark lair
Where, growling low, a fierce old bear
Lies amidst bones and blood.

Was none who would be foremost
To lead such dire attack ;
But those behind cried " Forward !"
And those before cried " Back !"
And backward now and forward
Wavers the deep array ;
And on the tossing sea of steel
To and fro the standards reel,
And the victorious trumpet-peal
Dies fitfully away.

Yet one man for one moment
Strode out before the crowd ;
Well known was he to all the three,
And they gave him greeting loud :
" Now welcome, welcome, Sextus !
Now welcome to thy home !
Why dost thou stay, and turn away ?
Here lies the road to Rome."

Thrice looked he at the city ;
Thrice looked he at the dead ;
And thrice came on in fury,
And thrice turned back in dread ;
And, white with fear and hatred,
Scowled at the narrow way
Where, wallowing in a pool of blood,
The bravest Tuscans lay.

But meanwhile axe and lever
Have manfully been plied ;
And now the bridge hangs tottering
Above the boiling tide.
" Come back, come back, Horatius !"
Loud cried the Fathers all, —
" Back, Lartius ! back, Herminius !
Back, ere the ruin fall !"

Back darted Spurius Lartius, —
Herminius darted back ;
And, as they passed, beneath their feet
They felt the timbers crack.

But when they turned their faces,
And on the farther shore
Saw brave Horatius stand alone,
They would have crossed once more ;

But with a crash like thunder
Fell every loosened beam,
And, like a dam, the mighty wreck
Lay right athwart the stream ;
And a long shout of triumph
Rose from the walls of Rome,
As to the highest turret-tops
Was splashed the yellow foam.

And like a horse unbroken,
When first he feels the rein,
The furious river struggled hard,
And tossed his tawny mane,
And burst the curb, and bounded,
Rejoicing to be free ;
And whirling down, in fierce career,
Battlement and plank and pier,
Rushed headlong to the sea.

Alone stood brave Horatius,
But constant still in mind, —
Thrice thirty thousand foes before,
And the broad flood behind.
" Down with him !" cried false Sextus,
With a smile on his pale face ;
" Now yield thee," cried Lars Porsena,
" Now yield thee to our grace !"

Round turned he, as not deigning
Those craven ranks to see ;
Naught spake he to Lars Porsena,
To Sextus naught spake he ;
But he saw on Palatinus
The white porch of his home ;
And he spake to the noble river
That rolls by the towers of Rome :

" O Tiber ! Father Tiber !
To whom the Romans pray,
A Roman's life, a Roman's arms,
Take thou in charge this day !"
So he spake, and, speaking, sheathed
The good sword by his side,
And, with his harness on his back,
Plunged headlong in the tide.

No sound of joy or sorrow
Was heard from either bank,
But friends and foes in dumb surprise,
With parted lips and straining eyes,
Stood gazing where he sank ;
And when above the surges

They saw his crest appear,
All Rome sent forth a rapturous cry,
And even the ranks of Tuscany
Could scarce forbear to cheer.

But fiercely ran the current,
Swollen high by months of rain ;
And fast his blood was flowing,
And he was sore in pain,
And heavy with his armor,
And spent with changing blows ;
And oft they thought him sinking,
But still again he rose.

Never, I ween, did swimmer,
In such an evil case,
Struggle through such a raging flood
Safe to the landing-place ;
But his limbs were borne up bravely
By the brave heart within,
And our good Father Tiber
Bare bravely up his chin.

"Curse on him !" quoth false Sextus, —
"Will not the villain drown ?
But for this stay, ere close of day
We should have sacked the town !"
"Heaven help him !" quoth Lars Porsena,
"And bring him safe to shore ;
For such a gallant feat of arms
Was never seen before."

And now he feels the bottom ;
Now on dry earth he stands ;
Now round him throng the Fathers
To press his gory hands ;
And now, with shouts and clapping,
And noise of weeping loud,
He enters through the River-gate,
Borne by the joyous crowd.

They gave him of the corn-land,
That was of public right,
As much as two strong oxen
Could plough from morn till night ;
And they made a molten image,
And set it up on high, —
And there it stands unto this day
To witness if I lie.

It stands in the Comitium,
Plain for all folk to see, —
Horatius in his harness,
Halting upon one knee ;
And underneath is written,
In letters all of gold,
How valiantly he kept the bridge
In the brave days of old.

And still his name sounds stirring
Unto the men of Rome,
As the trumpet-blast that cries to them
To charge the Volscian home ;
And wives still pray to Juno
For boys with hearts as bold
As his who kept the bridge so well
In the brave days of old.

And in the nights of winter,
When the cold north-winds blow,
And the long howling of the wolves
Is heard amidst the snow ;
When round the lonely cottage
Roars loud the tempest's din,
And the good logs of Algidus
Roar louder yet within ;

When the oldest cask is opened,
And the largest lamp is lit ;
When the chestnuts glow in the embers,
And the kid turns on the spit ;
When young and old in circle
Around the firebrands close ;
When the girls are weaving baskets,
And the lads are shaping bows ;

When the goodman mends his armor,
And trims his helmet's plume ;
When the goodwife's shuttle merrily
Goes flashing through the loom ;
With weeping and with laughter
Still is the story told,
How well Horatius kept the bridge
In the brave days of old.

THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY

SEMPRONIUS'S SPEECH FOR WAR.

FROM "CATO," ACT II. SC. L

My voice is still for war.
Gods ! can a Roman senate long debate
Which of the two to choose, slavery or death ?
No ; let us rise at once, gird on our swords,
And at the head of our remaining troops
Attack the foe, break through the thick array
Of his thronged legions, and charge home upon him.
Perhaps some arm, more lucky than the rest,
May reach his heart, and free the world from bondage.
Rise ! Fathers, rise ! 'tis Rome demands your help :
Rise, and revenge her slaughtered citizens,
Or share their fate ! The corpse of half her senate

CANADA NOT LAST.

AT VENICE.

Lo! Venice, gay with color, lights and song, Calls from St. Mark's with ancient voice and strange:

I am the Witch of Cities! glide along
My silver streets that never wear by change
Of years: forget the years, and pain, and wrong,
And every sorrow reigning men among.

Know I can soothe thee, please and marry thee
To my illusions. Old and siren strong,
I smile immortal, while the mortals flee
Who whiten on to death in wooing me.

AT FLORENCE.

Say, what more fair by Arno's bridged gleam
Than Florence, viewed from San Miniato's slope
At eventide, when west along the stream

The last of day reflects a silver hope! —
Lo, all else softened in the twilight beam: —
The city's mass blent in one hazy cream,

The brown Dome 'midst it, and the Lily tower,
And stern Old Tower more near, and hills that seem

Afar, like clouds to fade, and hills of power
On this side greenly dark with cypress, vine and bower.

AT ROME.

End of desire to stray I feel would come
Though Italy were all fair skies to me,
Though France's fields went mad with flowery foam

And Blanc put on a special majesty,
Not all could match the growing thought of home
Nor tempt to exile. Look I not on Rome —

This ancient, modern, medieval queen —
Yet still sigh westward over hill and dome,
Imperial ruin and villa's princely scene
Lovely with pictured saints and marble gods serene.

REFLECTION.

Rome, Florence. Venice — noble, fair and quaint,
They reign in robes of magic round me here;
But fading, blotted, dim, a picture faint,

With spell more silent, only pleads a tear.
Plead not! Thou hast my heart, O picture dim!
I see the fields, I see the autumn hand

Of God upon the maples! Answer Him
With weird, translucent glories, ye that stand
Like spirits in scarlet and in amethyst!

I see the sun break over you: the mist
On hills that lift from iron bases grand
Their heads superb! — the dream, it is my native land.

WILLIAM DOUW LIGHTHALL.

GIFTS.

"O World-God, give me Wealth!" the Egyptian cried. His prayer was granted. High as heaven behold Palace and Pyramid; the brimming tide Of lavish Nile washed all his land with gold. Armies of slaves toiled ant-wise at his feet, World-circling traffic roared through mart and street, His priests were gods, his spice-balmed kings enshrined Set death at naught in rock-ribbed charnels deep. Seek Pharaoh's race to-day, and ye shall find Rust and the moth, silence and dusty sleep. "O World-God, give me Beauty!" cried the Greek. His prayer was granted. All the earth became Plastic and vocal to his sense; each peak, Each grove, each stream, quick with Promethean flame, Peopled the world with imaged grace and light. The lyre was his, and his the breathing might Of the immortal marble, his the play Of diamond-pointed thought and golden tongue. Go seek the sunshine race. Ye find to-day A broken column and a lute unstrung.	"O World-God, give me Power!" the Roman cried. His prayer was granted. The vast world was chained A captive to the chariot of his pride. The blood of myriad provinces was drained To feed that fierce, insatiable red heart — Invulnerably bulwarked every part With serried legions and with close-meshed Code. Within, the burrowing worm had gnawed its home: A roofless ruin stands where once abode The imperial race of everlasting Rome. "O God-head, give me Truth!" the Hebrew cried. His prayer was granted. He became the slave Of the Idea, a pilgrim far and wide, Cursed, hated, spurned, and scourged with none to save. The Pharaohs knew him, and when Greece beheld, His wisdom wore the hoary crown of Eld. Beauty he hath forsworn, and wealth and power. Seek him to-day, and find in every land. No fire consumes him, neither floods devour; Immortal through the lamp within his hand.

EMMA LAZARUS.

Manures the fields of Thessaly, while we Sit here deliberating, in cold debate,
If we should sacrifice our lives to honor,
Or wear them out in servitude and chains.
Rouse up, for shame ! our brothers of Pharsalia Point at their wounds, and cry aloud, — "To battle !"

Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,

And Scipio's ghost walks unrevenged amongst us.

JOSEPH ADDISON.

CARACTACUS.

BEFORE prond Rome's imperial throne
In mind's unconquered mood,
As if the triumph were his own,
The dauntless captive stood.
None, to have seen his free-born air,
Had fancied him a captive there.

Though, through the crowded streets of Rome,
With slow and stately tread,
Far from his own loved island home,
That day in triumph led, —
Unbound his head, unbent his knee,
Undimmed his eye, his aspect free.

A free and fearless glance he cast
On temple, arch, and tower,
By which the long procession passed
Of Rome's victorious power ;
And somewhat of a scornful smile
Upcurled his haughty lip the while.

And now he stood, with brow serene,
Where slaves might prostrate fall,
Bearing a Briton's manly mien
In Caesar's palace hall ;
Claiming, with kindled brow and cheek,
The liberty e'en there to speak.

Nor could Rome's haughty lord withstand
The claim that look preferred,
But motioned with uplifted hand
The suppliant should be heard, —
If he indeed a suppliant were Whose glance demanded audience there.

Deep stillness fell on all the crowd,
From Claudius on his throne
Down to the meanest slave that bowed
At his imperial throne ;
Silent his fellow-captive's grief
As fearless spoke the Island Chief :

"Think not, thou eagle Lord of Rome,
And master of the world,
Though victory's banner o'er thy dome
In triumph now is furled,
I would address thee as thy slave,
But as the bold should greet the brave !

"I might, perchance, could I have deigned
To hold a vassal's throne,
E'en now in Britain's isle have reigned
A king in name alone,
Yet holding, as thy meek ally,
A monarch's mimic pageantry.

"Then through Rome's crowded streets to-day
I might have rode with thee,
Not in a captive's base array,
But fetterless and free, —
If freedom he could hope to find,
Whose bondage is of heart and mind.

"But canst thou marvel that, freeborn,
With heart and soul unquelled,
Throne, crown, and sceptre I should scorn,
By thy permission held ?
Or that I should retain my right
Till wrested by a conqueror's might ?

"Rome, with her palaces and towers,
By us unwished, unreft,
Her homely huts and woodland bowers
To Britain might have left ;
Worthless to you their wealth must be,
But dear to us, for they were free !

"I might have bowed before, but where
Had been thy triumph now ?
To my resolve no yoke to bear
Thou ow'st thy laurelled brow ;
Inglorious victory had been thine,
And more inglorious bondage mine.

"Now I have spoken, do thy will ;
Be life or death my lot,
Since Britain's throne no more I fill,
To me it matters not.
My fame is clear ; but on my fate
Thy glory or thy shame must wait."

He ceased ; from all around upsprang
A murmur of applause,
For well had truth and freedom's tongue
Maintained their holy cause.
The conqueror was the captive then ;
He bade the slave be free again.

BERNARD BARTON.

BOADICEA.

WHEN the British warrior queen,
Bleeding from the Roman rods,
Sought, with an indignant mien,
Counsel of her country's gods,

Sage beneath the spreading oak
Sat the Druid, hoary chief ;
Every burning word he spoke
Full of rage and full of grief.

" Princess ! if our aged eyes
Weep upon thy matchless wrongs,
'T is because resentment ties
All the terrors of our tongues.

" Rome shall perish — write that word
In the blood that she has spilt, —
Perish, hopeless and abhorred,
Deep in ruin as in guilt.

" Rome, for empire far renowned,
Tramples on a thousand states ;
Soon her pride shall kiss the ground, —
Hark ! the Gaul is at her gates !

" Other Romans shall arise,
Heedless of a soldier's name ;
Sounds, not arms, shall win the prize,
Harmony the path to fame.

" Then the urogeny that springs
From the forests of our land,
Armed with thunder, clad with wings,
Shall a wider world command.

" Regions Cæsar never knew
Thy posterity shall sway ;
Where his eagles never flew,
None invincible as they."

Such the bard's prophetic words,
Pregnant with celestial fire,
Bending as he swept the chords
Of his sweet but awful lyre.

She, with all a monarch's pride,
Felt them in her bosom glow ;
Rushed to battle, fought, and died, —
Dying, hurled them at the foe.

Ruffians, pitiless as proud,
Heaven awards the vengeance due ;
Empire is on us bestowed,
Shame and ruin wait for you !

WILLIAM COWPER.

RIENZI TO THE ROMANS.

FROM "RIENZI."

FRIENDS !

I come not here to talk. Ye know too well
The story of our thralldom. We are slaves !
The bright sun rises to his course, and lights
A race of slaves ! he sets, and his last beam
Falls on a slave ! Not such as, swept along
By the full tide of power, the conqueror leads
To crimson glory and undying fame,
But base, ignoble slaves ! — slaves to a horde
Of petty tyrants, feudal despots ; lords
Rich in some dozen paltry villages,
Strong in some hundred spearmen, only great
In that strange spell, — a name ! Each hour, dark fraud,

Or open rapine, or protected murder,
Cries out against them. But this very day
An honest man, my neighbor (pointing to PA-OLO), — there he stands, —
Was struck — struck like a dog — by one who wore

The badge of Ursini ! because, forsooth,
He tossed not high his ready cap in air,
Nor lifted up his voice in servile shouts,
At sight of that great ruffian ! Be we men,
And suffer such dishonor ? men, and wash not
The stain away in blood ? Such shames are common.

I have known deeper wrongs. I, that speak to ye.
I had a brother once, a gracious boy,
Full of all gentleness, of calmest hope,
Of sweet and quiet joy ; there was the look
Of Heaven upon his face which lingers give
To the beloved disciple. How I loved
That gracious boy ! younger by fifteen years,
Brother at once and son ! He left my side ;
A summer bloom on his fair cheeks, a smile
Parting his innocent lips. In one short hour
The pretty, harmless boy was slain ! I saw
The corse, the mangled corse, and then I cried
For vengeance ! Rouse ye, Romans ! Rouse ye, slaves !

Have ye brave sons ? — Look in the next fierce brawl

To see them die ! Have ye fair daughters ? — Look
To see them live, torn from your arms, distained,
Dishonored ; and, if ye dare call for justice,
Be answered by the lash ! Yet this is Rome,
That sat on her seven hills, and from her throne
Of beauty ruled the world ! Yet we are Romans !
Why, in that elder day, to be a Roman
Was greater than a king ! And once again —
Hear me, ye walls, that echoed to the tread
Of either Brutus ! — once again, I swear,
The eternal city shall be free ; her sons shall walk with princes.

MARY RUSSELL MITFORD.

BRUCE AND THE SPIDER.

FOR Scotland's and for freedom's right
 The Bruce his part had played,
 In five successive fields of fight
 Been conquered and dismayed ;
 Once more against the English host
 His band he led, and once more lost
 The meed for which he fought ;
 And now from battle, faint and worn,
 The homeless fugitive forlorn
 A hut's lone shelter sought.

And cheerless was that resting-place
 For him who claimed a throne :
 His canopy, devoid of grace,
 The rude, rough beams alone ;
 The heather couch his only bed, —
 Yet well I ween had slumber fled
 From couch of eider-down !
 Through darksome night till dawn of day,
 Absorbed in wakeful thoughts he lay
 Of Scotland and her crown.

The sun rose brightly, and its gleam
 Fell on that hapless bed,
 And tinged with light each shapeless beam
 Which roofed the lowly shed ;
 When, looking up with wistful eye,
 The Bruce beheld a spider try
 His filmy thread to fling
 From beam to beam of that rude cot ;
 And well the insect's toilsome lot
 Taught Scotland's future king.

Six times his gossamery thread
 The wary spider threw ;
 In vain the filmy line was sped,
 For powerless or untrue
 Each aim appeared, and back recoiled
 The patient insect, six times foiled,
 And yet unconquered still ;
 And soon the Bruce, with eager eye,
 Saw him prepare once more to try
 His courage, strength, and skill.

One effort more, his seventh and last —
 The hero hailed the sign ! —
 And on the wished-for beam hung fast
 That slender, silken line !
 Slight as it was, his spirit caught
 The more than omen, for his thought
 The lesson well could trace,
 Which even "he who runs may read,"
 That Perseverance gains its meed,
 And Patience wins the race.

BERNARD BARTON.

BANNOCKBURN.

AT Bannockburn the English lay, —
 The Scots they were na far away,
 But waited for the break o' day
 That glinted in the east.

But soon the sun broke through the heath
 And lighted up that field o' death,
 When Bruce, wi' saul-inspiring breath,
 His heralds thus addressed : —

Scots, wha hae wi' Wallace bled,
 Scots, wham Bruce has after led ;
 Welcome to your gory bed,
 Or to victorie.

Now 's the day, and now 's the hour
 See the front o' battle lour :
 See approach proud Edward's power, —
 Chains and slavery !

Wha will be a traitor knave ?
 Wha can fill a coward's grave ?
 Wha sae base as be a slave ?
 Let him turn and flee !

Wha for Scotland's king and law
 Freedom's sword will strongly draw,
 Freeman stand, or freeman fa' ?
 Let him follow me !

By Oppression's woes and pains !
 By your sons in servile chains,
 We will drain our dearest veins,
 But they shall be free !

Lay the proud usurpers low !
 Tyrants fall in every foe !
 Liberty's in every blow !
 Let us do, or die !

ROBERT BURNS

LOCHIEL'S WARNING.

WIZARD. — LOCHIEL.

WIZARD.

LOCHIEL, Lochiel ! beware of the day
 When the Lowlands shall meet thee in battle array !
 For a field of the dead rushes red on my sight,
 And the clans of Culloden are scattered in fight.
 They rally, they bleed, for their kingdom and crown ;
 Woe, woe to the riders that trample them down !
 Proud Cumberland prances, insulting the slain,
 And their hoof-beaten bosoms are trod to the plain.

But hark ! through the fast-flashing lightning of war,

What steed to the desert flies frantic and far ?

'Tis thine, O Glenullin ! whose bride shall await,
Like a love-lighted watch-fire, all night at the gate.

A steed comes at morning : no rider is there ;
But its bridle is red with the sign of despair.
Weep, Albin ! to death and captivity led !
O, weep ! but thy tears cannot number the dead ;
For a merciless sword on Culloden shall wave,
Culloden ! that reeks with the blood of the brave.

LOCHIEL.

Go, preach to the coward, thou death-telling seer !

Or, if gory Culloden so dreadful appear,
Draw, dotard, around thy old wavering sight
This mantle, to cover the phantoms of fright.

WIZARD.

Ha ! laugh'st thou, Lochiel, my vision to scorn ?
Proud bird of the mountain, thy plume shall be torn !

Say, rushed the bold eagle exultingly forth
From his home in the dark rolling clouds of the north ?

Lo ! the death-shot of foemen outspeeding, he rode

Companionless, bearing destruction abroad ;
But down let him stoop from his havoc on high !
Ah ! home let him speed, — for the spoiler is nigh.

Why flames the far summit ? Why shoot to the blast

Those embers, like stars from the firmament cast ?
'Tis the fire-shower of ruin, all dreadfully driven
From his eyrie, that beacons the darkness of heaven.

O crested Lochiel ! the peerless in might,
Whose banners arise on the battlements' height,
Heaven's fire is around thee, to blast and to burn ;
Return to thy dwelling ! all lonely return !

For the blackness of ashes shall mark where it stood,

And a wild mother scream o'er her famishing brood.

LOCHIEL.

False Wizard, avaunt ! I have marshalled my clan,
Their swords are a thousand, their bosoms are one !

They are true to the last of their blood and their breath,

And like reapers descend to the harvest of death.
Then welcome be Cumberland's steed to the shock !

Let him dash his proud foam like a wave on the rock !

But woe to his kindred, and woe to his cause,
When Albin her claymore indignantly draws ;
When her bonneted chieftains to victory crowd,
Clanronald the dauntless, and Moray the proud,
All plaided and plumed in their tartan array —

WIZARD.

— Lochiel, Lochiel ! beware of the day ;
For, dark and despairing, my sight I may seal,
But man cannot cover what God would reveal ;
'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before.
I tell thee, Culloden's dread echoes shall ring
With the bloodhounds that bark for thy fugitive king.

Lo ! anointed by Heaven with the vials of wrath,
Behold where he flies on his desolate path !
Now in darkness and billows he sweeps from my sight —

Rise, rise ! ye wild tempests, and cover his flight !
'Tis finished. Their thunders are hushed on the moors :

Culloden is lost, and my country deplores,
But where is the iron-bound prisoner ? Where ?
For the red eye of battle is shut in despair.

Say, mounts he the ocean-wave, banished, forlorn,

Like a limb from his country cast bleeding and torn ?

Ah no ! for a darker departure is near ;
The war-drum is muffled, and black is the bier ;
His death-bell is tolling : O mercy, dispel
Yon sight, that it freezes my spirit to tell !
Life flutters convulsed in his quivering limbs,
And his blood-streaming nostril in agony swims.
Accursed be the bagots that blaze at his feet,
Where his heart shall be thrown ere it ceases to beat,

With the smoke of its ashes to poison the gale —

LOCHIEL.

— Down, soothless insulter ! I trust not the tale ;
For never shall Albin a destiny meet,
So black with dishonor, so foul with retreat !
Though my perishing ranks should be strewed in their gore,

Like ocean-weeds heaped on the surf-beaten shore,
Lochiel, untainted by flight or by chains,
While the kindling of life in his bosom remains,
Shall victor exult, or in death be laid low,
With his back to the field, and his feet to the foe ;
And leaving in battle no blot on his name,
Look proudly to Heaven from the death-bed of fame !

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

SCOTLAND.

FROM "THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL," CANTO VI.

O CALEDONIA ! stern and wild,
 Meet nurse for a poetic child !
 Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,
 Land of the mountain and the flood,
 Land of my sires ! what mortal hand
 Can e'er untie the filial band
 That knits me to thy rugged strand ?
 Still, as I view each well-known scene,
 Think what is now, and what hath been,
 Seems as, to me, of all bereft,
 Sole friends thy woods and streams were left ;
 And thus I love them better still,
 Even in extremity of ill.
 By Yarrow's stream still let me stray,
 Though none should guide my feeble way ;
 Still feel the breeze down Ettrick break,
 Although it chilled my withered cheek ;
 Still lay my head by Teviot stone,
 Though there, forgotten and alone,
 The bard may draw his parting groan.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

ENGLAND.

FROM "THE TIMEPIECE": "THE TASK," BOOK II.

ENGLAND, with all thy faults, I love thee still, —
 My country ! and, while yet a nook is left
 Where English minds and manners may be found,
 Shall be constrained to love thee. Though thy clime

Be fickle, and thy year most part deformed
 With dripping rains, or withered by a frost,
 I would not yet exchange thy sullen skies,
 And fields without a flower, for warmer France
 With all her vines ; nor for Ausonia's groves
 Of golden fruitage and her myrtle bowers.
 To shake thy senate, and from Leight sublime
 Of patriot eloquence to flash down fire
 Upon thy foes, was never meant my task :
 But I can feel thy fortunes, and partake
 Thy joys and sorrows with as true a heart
 As any thunderer there. And I can feel
 Thy follies too ; and with a just disdain
 Frown at effeminates whose very looks
 Reflect dishonor on the land I love.
 How, in the name of soldiership and sense,
 Should England prosper, when such things, as smooth

And tender as a girl, all essenced o'er
 With odors, and as profligate as sweet,
 Who sell their laurel for a myrtle wreath,
 And love when they should fight, — when such as these

Presume to lay their hand upon the ark
 Of her magnificent and awful cause ?
 Time was when it was praise and boast enough
 In every clime, and travel where we might,
 That we were born her children. Praise enough
 To fill the ambition of a private man,
 That Chatham's language was his mother tongue,
 And Wolfe's great name compatriot with his own.

WILLIAM COWPER

THE ROAST BEEF OF OLD ENGLAND.

WHEN mighty roast beef was the Englishman's food,
 It ennobled our hearts, and enrichèd our blood ;
 Our soldiers were brave, and our courtiers were good.

*O, the Roast Beef of old England,
 And O, the old English Roast Beef !*

But since we have learned from effeminate
 France

To eat their ragouts, as well as to dance,
 We are fed up with nothing but vain complaisance.

O, the Roast Beef, etc.

HENRY FIELDING.

Our fathers of old were robust, stout, and strong.
 And kept open house with good cheer all day long,
 Which made their plump tenants rejoice in this song.

O, the Roast Beef, etc.

When good Queen Elizabeth sat on the throne,
 Ere coffee and tea, and such slip-slops, were known,

The world was in terror, if e'en she did frown.

O, the Roast Beef, etc.

In those days, if fleets did presume on the main,
 They seldom or never returned back again ;
 As witness the vaunting Armada of Spain.

O, the Roast Beef, etc.

O, then we had stomachs to eat and to fight,
 And when wrongs were cooking, to set ourselves
 right ;

But now we're a -- hum ! -- I could, but -- good night !

O, the Roast Beef, etc.

The four last stanzas added by RICHARD LOVERIDGE.

RULE, BRITANNIA.

FROM "ALFRED," ACT II. SC. 5.

WHEN Britain first, at Heaven's command,
 Arose from out the azure main,
 This was the charter of the land,
 And guardian angels sung the strain :
Rule, Britannia, rule the waves !
For Britons never will be slaves.

The nations not so blest as thee
 Must, in their turns, to tyrants fall ;
 Whilst thou shalt flourish, great and free,
 The dread and envy of them all.
Rule, Britannia ! etc.

Still more majestic shalt thou rise,
 More dreadful from each foreign stroke ;
 As the loud blasts that tear the skies
 Serve but to root thy native oak.
Rule, Britannia ! etc.

Thee haughty tyrants ne'er shall tame ;
 All their attempts to bend thee down
 Will but arouse thy generous flame,
 And work thy woe — but thy renown.
Rule, Britannia ! etc.

To thee belongs the rural reign ;
 Thy cities shall with commerce shine ;
 All thine shall be the subject main,
 And every shore it circles thine.
Rule, Britannia ! etc.

The Muses, still with Freedom found,
 Shall to thy happy coast repair ;
 Blest Isle ! with matchless beauty crowned,
 And manly hearts to guard the fair.
Rule, Britannia ! etc.

JAMES THOMSON.

 NASEBY.

BY OBADIAH BIND-THEIR-KINGS-IN-CHAINS-AND-THEIR-NO-BLES-WITH-LINKS-OF-IRON ; SERGEANT IN IRETON'S REGIMENT.

O, WHEREFORE come ye forth, in triumph from the north,
 With your hands and your feet and your raiment
 all red ?
 And wherefore doth your rout send forth a joyous shout ?
 And whence be the grapes of the wine-press that ye tread ?

O, evil was the root, and bitter was the fruit,
 And crimson was the juice of the vintage that we trod ;

For we trampled on the throng of the haughty
 and the strong,
 Who sate in the high places and slew the saints
 of God.

It was about the noon of a glorious day of June,
 That we saw their banners dance and their cuirasses shine,
 And the man of blood was there, with his long
 essenced hair,
 And Astley, and Sir Marmaduke, and Rupert of
 the Rhine.

Like a servant of the Lord, with his Bible and his sword,
 The General rode along us to form us to the fight ;
 When a murmuring sound broke out, and swelled into a shout
 Among the godless horsemen upon the tyrant's
 right.

And hark ! like the roar of the billows on the shore,
 The cry of battle rises along their charging line !
 For God ! for the cause ! — for the Church ! for the laws !
 For Charles, king of England, and Rupert of the Rhine !

The furious German comes, with his clarions and his drums,
 His bravoos of Alsatia, and pages of Whitehall ;
 They are bursting on our flanks. Grasp your pikes ! Close your ranks !
 For Rupert never comes but to conquer, or to fall.

They are here ! They rush on ! We are broken !
 We are gone !

Our left is borne before them like stubble on the blast.

O Lord, put forth thy might ! O Lord, defend the right !

Stand back to back, in God's name ! and fight it to the last !

Stout Skippon hath a wound ; the centre hath given ground :

Hark ! hark ! what means the trampling of horsemen on our rear ?

Whose banner do I see, boys ! 'T is he ! thank God ! 't is he, boys !

Bear up another minute ! Brave Oliver is here.

Their heads all stooping low, their points all in a row,

Like a whirlwind on the trees, like a deluge on the dikes,

Our cuirassiers have burst on the ranks of the Accurst,
And at a shock have scattered the forest of his pikes.

Fast, fast the gallants ride, in some safe nook to hide

Their coward heads, predestined to rot on Temple Bar ;

And he, — he turns, he flies : — shame on those cruel eyes

That bore to look on torture, and dare not look on war !

Ho ! comrades, scour the plain ; and, ere ye strip
the slain,

First give another stab to make your search secure ;

Then shake from sleeves and pockets their broad-pieces and lockets,

The tokens of the wanton, the plunder of the poor.

Fools ! your doublets shone with gold, and your hearts were gay and bold,

When you kissed your lily hands to your lemans
to-day ;

And to-morrow shall the fox, from her chambers
in the rocks,

Lead forth her tawny cubs to howl above the prey.

Where be your tongues that late mocked at heaven and hell and fate ?

And the fingers that once were so busy with your blades,

Your perfumed satin clothes, your catches and your oaths !

Your stage-plays and your sonnets, your diamonds and your spades ?

Down ! down ! forever down, with the mitre and the crown !

With the Belial of the court, and the Mammon of the Pope !

There is woe in Oxford halls ; there is wail in Durham's stalls ;

The Jesuit smites his bosom ; the bishop rends his cope.

And she of the seven hills shall mourn her children's ills,

And tremble when she thinks on the edge of England's sword ;

And the kings of earth in fear shall shudder
when they hear

What the hand of God hath wrought for the Houses and the Word !

THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY.

THE HARP THAT ONCE THROUGH TARA'S HALLS.

THE harp that once through Tara's halls

The soul of music shed,

Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls

As if that soul were fled.

So sleeps the pride of former days,

So glory's thrill is o'er,

And hearts that once beat high for praise

Now feel that pulse no more !

No more to chiefs and ladies bright

The harp of Tara swells ;

The chord alone that breaks at night

Its tale of ruin tells.

Thus Freedom now so seldom wakes,

The only throb she gives

Is when some heart indignant breaks,

To show that still she lives.

THOMAS MOORE.

AS BY THE SHORE AT BREAK OF DAY.

As by the shore, at break of day,

A vanquished chief expiring lay,

Upon the sands, with broken sword,

He traced his farewell to the free ;

And there the last unfinished word

He dying wrote, was " Liberty ! "

At night a sea-bird shrieked the knell

Of him who thus for freedom fell :

The words he wrote, ere evening came,

Were covered by the sounding sea ; —

So pass away the cause and name

Of him who dies for liberty !

THOMAS MOORE.

GOUGAUNE BARRA.

[The lake of Gougaune Barra, i. e. the hollow, or recess of St Finn Bar, in the rugged territory of Ibh-Laoghaire (the O'Learys' country) in the west end of the county of Cork, is the parent of the river Lee. Its waters embrace a small but verdant island of about half an acre in extent, which approaches its eastern shore. The lake, as its name implies, is situate in a deep hollow, surrounded on every side (save the east, where its superabundant waters are discharged) by vast and almost perpendicular mountains, whose dark inverted shadows are gloomily reflected in its still waters beneath.]

THERE is a green island in lone Gougaune Barra,
Where Allua of songs rushes forth as an arrow ;
In deep-valleyed Desmond — a thousand wild fountains

Come down to that lake from their home in the mountains.

There grows the wild ash, and á time-stricken willow

Looks chidingly down on the mirth of the billow :

As, like some gay child, that sad monitor scorn-
ing,
It lightly laughs back to the laugh of the morning.

And its zone of dark hills, — O, to see them all brightening,
When the tempest flings out its red banner of lightning,
And the waters rush down, mid the thunder's deep rattle,
Like clans from their hills at the voice of the battle ;
And brightly the fire-crested billows are gleaming,
And wildly from Mullagh the eagles are screaming !

O, where is the dwelling, in valley or highland,
So meet for a bard as this lone little island ?

How oft, when the summer sun rested on Clara,
And lit the dark heath on the hills of Ivera,
Have I sought thee, sweet spot, from my home
by the ocean,

And trod all thy wilds with a minstrel's devotion,
And thought of thy bards, when assembling together,

In the cleft of thy rocks, or the depth of thy heather ;

They fled from the Saxon's dark bondage and slaughter,

And waked their last song by the rush of thy water.

High sons of the lyre, O, how proud was the feeling,

To think while alone through that solitude steal-
ing,

Though loftier minstrels green Erin can number,
I only awoke your wild harp from its slumber,
And mingled once more with the voice of those fountains

The songs even Echo forgot on her mountains ;
And gleaned each gray legend that darkly was sleeping

Where the mist and the rain o'er their beauty were creeping !

Least bard of the hills, — were it mine to inherit
The fire of thy harp and the wing of thy spirit,
With the wrongs which like thee to our country have bound me,

Did your mantle of song fling its radiance around
me,

Still, still in those wilds might young Liberty rally,

And send her strong shout over mountain and valley,

The star of the west might yet rise in its glory,
And the land that was darkest be brightest in story.

I too shall be gone ; — but my name shall be spoken

When Erin awakes and her fetters are broken.
Some minstrel will come, in the summer eve's
gleaming,

When Freedom's young light on his spirit is beaming,

And bend o'er my grave with a tear of emotion,
Where calm Avon-Buee seeks the kisses of ocean,
Or plant a wild wreath, from the banks of that river,

O'er the heart and the harp that are sleeping forever.

JAMES JOSEPH CALLANAN.

EXILE OF ERIN.

THERE came to the beach a poor exile of Erin,
The dew on his thin robe was heavy and chill ;
For his country he sighed, when at twilight repairing

To wander alone by the wind-beaten hill.
But the day-star attracted his eye's sad devotion,
For it rose o'er his own native isle of the ocean,
Where once, in the fire of his youthful emotion,
He sang the bold anthem of Erin go bragh.

Sad is my fate ! said the heart-broken stranger ;
The wild deer and wolf to a covert can flee,
But I have no refuge from famine and danger,
A home and a country remain not to me.

Never again in the green sunny bowers
Where my forefathers lived shall I spend the sweet hours,

Or cover my harp with the wild-woven flowers,
And strike to the numbers of Erin go bragh !

Erin, my country ! though sad and forsaken,
In dreams I revisit thy sea-beaten shore ;
But, alas ! in a far foreign land I awaken,
And sigh for the friends who can meet me no
more !

O cruel fate ! wilt thou never replace me
In a mansion of peace, where no perils can chase
me ?

Never again shall my brothers embrace me ?
They died to defend me, or live to deplore !

Where is my cabin door, fast by the wildwood ?
Sisters and sire, did ye weep for its fall ?
Where is the mother that looked on my childhood ?

And where is the bosom-friend, dearer than all ?
O my sad heart ! long abandoned by pleasure,
Why did it dote on a fast-fading treasure ?
Tears, like the rain-drop, may fall without measure,

But rapture and beauty they cannot recall.

Yet, all its sad recollections suppressing,
 One dying wish my lone bosom can draw, —
 Erin, an exile bequeaths thee his blessing!
 Land of my forefathers, Erin go bragh!
 Buried and cold, when my heart stills her motion,
 Green be thy fields, sweetest isle of the ocean!
 And thy harp-striking bards sing aloud with devotion, —

Erin mavourneen, Erin go bragh !*

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

MY NATIVE LAND.

It chanced to me upon a time to sail
 Across the Southern ocean to and fro ;
 And, landing at fair isles, by stream and vale
 Of sensuous blessing did we ofttimes go.
 And months of dreamy joys, like joys in sleep,
 Or like a clear, calm stream o'er mossy stone,
 Unnoted passed our hearts with voiceless sweep,
 And left us yearning still for lands unknown.

And when we found one, — for 't is soon to find
 In thousand-isled Cathay another isle, —
 For one short noon its treasures filled the mind,
 And then again we yearned, and ceased to smile.

And so it was, from isle to isle we passed,
 Like wanton bees or boys on flowers or lips ;
 And when that all was tasted, then at last
 We thirsted still for draughts instead of sips.

I learned from this there is no Southern land
 Can fill with love the hearts of Northern men.
 Sick minds need change ; but, when in health they stand

'Neath foreign skies, their love flies home agen.
 And thus with me it was : the yearning turned
 From laden airs of cinnamon away,
 And stretched far westward, while the full heart burned
 With love for Ireland, looking on Cathay !

My first dear love, all dearer for thy grief !
 My land, that has no peer in all the sea
 For verdure, vale, or river, flower or leaf, —
 If first to no man else, thou'rt first to me.
 New loves may come with duties, but the first
 Is deepest yet, — the mother's breath and smiles :
 Like that kind face and breast where I was nursed
 Is my poor land, the Niobe of isles.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

* Ireland my darling, Ireland forever !

IRELAND.

1847.

THEY are dying ! they are dying ! where the golden corn is growing ;
 They are dying ! they are dying ! where the crowded herds are lowing ;
 They are gasping for existence where the streams
 of life are flowing,
 And they perish of the plague where the breeze
 of health is blowing !

God of justice ! God of power !
 Do we dream ? Can it be,
 In this land, at this hour,
 With the blossom on the tree,
 In the gladsome month of May,
 When the young lambs play,
 When Nature looks around
 On her waking children now,
 The seed within the ground,
 The bud upon the bough ?
 Is it right, is it fair,
 That we perish of despair
 In this land, on this soil,
 Where our destiny is set,
 Which we cultured with our toil,
 And watered with our sweat ?
 We have ploughed, we have sown
 But the crop was not our own ;
 We have reaped, but harpy hands
 Swept the harvest from our lands ;
 We were perishing for food,
 When lo ! in pitying mood,
 Our kindly rulers gave
 The fat fluid of the slave,
 While our corn filled the manger
 Of the war-horse of the stranger !

God of mercy ! must this last ?
 Is this land preordained,
 For the present and the past
 And the future, to be chained, —
 To be ravaged, to be drained,
 To be robbed, to be spoiled,
 To be hushed, to be whipt,
 Its soaring pinions clipt,
 And its every effort foiled ?

Do our numbers multiply
 But to perish and to die ?
 Is this all our destiny below, —
 That our bodies, as they rot,
 May fertilize the spot
 Where the harvests of the stranger grow !

If this be, indeed, our fate,
 Far, far better now, though late,

That we seek some other land and try some other
zone ;

The coldest, bleakest shore
Will surely yield us more

Than the storehouse of the stranger that we dare not call our own.

Kindly brothers of the West,
Who from Liberty's full breast

Have fed us, who are orphans beneath a step-dame's frown,

Behold our happy state,
And weep your wretched fate

That you share not in the splendors of our empire and our crown !

Kindly brothers of the East, —
Thou great tiaraed priest,

Thou sanctified Rienzi of Rome and of the earth, —

Or thou who bear'st control
Over golden Istambol,

Who felt for our misfortunes and helped us in our dearth, —

Turn here your wondering eyes,
Call your wisest of the wise,

Your muftis and your ministers, your men of deepest lore ;

Let the sagest of your sages
Ope our island's mystic pages,

And explain unto your highness the wonders of our shore.

A fruitful, teeming soil,
Where the patient peasants toil

Beneath the summer's sun and the watery winter
sky ;

Where they tend the golden grain
Till it bends upon the plain,

Then reap it for the stranger, and turn aside to die ;

Where they watch their flocks increase,
And store the snowy fleece

Till they send it to their masters to be woven o'er the waves ;

Where, having sent their meat
For the foreigner to eat,

Their mission is fulfilled, and they creep into their graves.

'T is for this they are dying where the golden corn is growing,

'T is for this they are dying where the crowded herds are lowing,

'T is for this they are dying where the streams
of life are flowing,

And they perish of the plague where the breeze
of health is blowing !

DENIS FLORENCE MAC-CARTHY.

SONG OF THE GREEK POET.

FROM "DON JUAN," CANTO III.

THE isles of Greece, the isles of Greece !

Where burning Sappho loved and sung, —
Where grew the arts of war and peace, —

Where Delos rose, and Phœbus sprung !
Eternal summer gilds them yet ;
But all, except their sun, is set.

The Scian and the Teian muse,

The hero's harp, the lover's lute,
Have found the fame your shores refuse ;

Their place of birth alone is mute
To sounds which echo farther west
Than your sires' "Islands of the Blest."

The mountains look on Marathon,
And Marathon looks on the sea ;

And musing there an hour alone,
I dreamed that Greece might still be free ;
For, standing on the Persians' grave,
I could not deem myself a slave.

A king sat on the rocky brow

Which looks o'er sea-born Salamis ;
And ships by thousands lay below,
And men in nations, — all were his !
He counted them at break of day, —
And when the sun set, where were they ?

And where are they ? and where art thou,
My country ? On thy voiceless shore

The heroic lay is tuneless now, —
The heroic bosom beats no more !
And must thy lyre, so long divine,
Degenerate into hands like mine ?

'T is something, in the dearth of fame,
Though linked among a fettered race,

To feel at least a patriot's shame,
Even as I sing, suffuse my face ;
For what is left the poet here ?
For Greeks a blush, — for Greece a tear.

Must we but weep o'er days more blest ?

Must we but blush ? — our fathers bled.
Earth ! render back from out thy breast
A remnant of our Spartan dead !
Of the three hundred, grant but three
To make a new Thermopylæ !

What, silent still ? and silent all ?

Ah, no ! the voices of the dead
Sound like a distant torrent's fall,
And answer, " Let one living head,
But one, arise, — we come, we come !"
'T is but the living who are dumb.

In vain,—in vain ; strike other chords ;
 Fill high the cup with Samian wine !
 Leave battles to the Turkish hordes,
 And shed the blood of Sajo's vine !
 Hark ! rising to the ignoble call,
 How answers each bold Bacchanal !

You have the Pyrrhic dance as yet, —
 Where is the Pyrrhic phalanx gone ?
 Of two such lessons, why forget
 The nobler and the manlier one ?
 You have the letters Cadmus gave, —
 Think ye he meant them for a slave ?

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine !
 We will not think of themes like these !
 It made Anacreon's song divine :
 He served, but served Polycrates, —
 A tyrant ; but our masters then
 Were still, at least, our countrymen.

The tyrant of the Chersonese
 Was freedom's best and bravest friend ;
 That tyrant was Miltiades !
 O that the present hour would lend
 Another despot of the kind !
 Such chains as his were sure to bind.

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine !
 On Suli's rock and Parga's shore
 Exists the remnant of a line
 Such as the Doric mothers bore ;
 And there perhaps some seed is sown
 The Heracleidan blood might own.

Trust not for freedom to the Franks, —
 They have a king who buys and sells :
 In native swords, and native ranks,
 The only hope of courage dwells ;
 But Turkish force, and Latin fraud,
 Would break your shield, however broad.

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine !
 Our virgins dance beneath the shade, —
 I see their glorious black eyes shine ;
 But, gazing on each glowing maid,
 My own the burning tear-drop laves,
 To think such breasts must suckle slaves.

Place me on Sunium's marbled steep,
 Where nothing, save the waves and I,
 May hear our mutual murmurs sweep ;
 There, swan-like, let me sing and die.
 A land of slaves shall ne'er be mine, —
 Dash down yon cup of Samian wine !

LORD BYRON.

GREECE.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO. II.

FAIR Greece ! sad relic of departed worth !
 Immortal, though no more ; though fallen, great !
 Who now shall lead thy scattered children forth,
 And long-accustomed bondage uncreate ?
 Not such thy sons who whilom did await,
 The hopeless warriors of a willing doom,
 In bleak Thermopylæ's sepulchral strait, —
 O, who that gallant spirit shall resume,
 Leap from Eurotas' banks, and call thee from the tomb ?

Spirit of Freedom ! when on Phyle's brow
 Thou sat'st with Thrasybulus and his train,
 Couldst thou forebode the dismal hour which
 now
 Dims the green beauties of thine Attic plain ?
 Not thirty tyrants now enforce the chain,
 But every carle can lord it o'er thy land ;
 Nor rise thy sons, but idly rail in vain,
 Trembling beneath the scourge of Turkish hand,
 From birth till death enslaved ; in word, in deed, unmaned.

In all save form alone, how changed ! and who
 That marks the fire still sparkling in each eye,
 Who but would deem their bosoms burned anew
 With thy unquenched beam, lost Liberty !
 And many dream withal the hour is nigh
 That gives them back their fathers' heritage ;
 For foreign arms and aid they fondly sigh,
 Nor solely dare encounter hostile rage,
 Or their name defiled from Slavery's mournful page.

Hereditary bondsmen ! know ye not,
 Who would be free themselves must strike the blow ?
 By their right arms the conquest must be wrought ?
 Will Gaul or Muscovite redress ye ? No !
 True, they may lay your proud despoilers low,
 But not for you will Freedom's altars flame.
 Shades of the Helots ! triumph o'er your foe !
 Greece ! change thy lords, thy state is still the same ;
 Thy glorious day is o'er, but not thy years of shame !

LORD BYRON

GREECE.

FROM "THE GIAOUR."

CLIME of the unforgotten brave !
 Whose land, from plain to mountain-cave,
 Was Freedom's home or Glory's grave !
 Shrine of the mighty ! can it be

That this is all remains of thee ?
 Approach, thou craven, crouching slave ;
 Say, is not this Thermopylæ ?
 These waters blue that round you lave,
 O servile offspring of the free, —
 Pronounce what sea, what shore is this ?
 The gulf, the rock of Salamis !
 These scenes, their story not unknown,
 Arise, and make again your own ;
 Snatch from the ashes of your sires
 The embers of their former fires ;
 And he who in the strife expires
 Will add to theirs a name of fear
 That Tyranny shall quake to hear,
 And leave his sons a hope, a fame,
 They too will rather die than shame ;
 For Freedom's battle once begun,
 Bequeathed by bleeding sire to son,
 Though baffled oft is ever won.
 Bear witness, Greece, thy living page ;
 Attest it, many a deathless age :
 While kings, in dusty darkness hid,
 Have left a nameless pyramid,
 Thy heroes, though the general doom
 Hath swept the column from their tomb,
 A mightier monument command,
 The mountains of their native land !
 There points thy Muse to stranger's eye
 The graves of those that cannot die !
 'T were long to tell, and sad to trace,
 Each step from splendor to disgrace :
 Enough, — no foreign foe could quell
 Thy soul, till from itself it fell ;
 Yes ! self-abasement paved the way
 To villain-bonds and despot sway.

What can he tell who treads thy shore ?
 No legend of thine olden time,
 No theme on which the Muse might soar,
 High as thine own in days of yore,
 When man was worthy of thy clime.
 The hearts within thy valleys bred,
 The fiery souls that might have led
 Thy sons to deeds sublime,
 Now crawl from cradle to the grave,
 Slaves — nay, the bondsmen of a slave,
 And callous save to crime.

LORD BYRON.

MARCO BOZZARIS.

[Marco Bozzaris, the Epaninondas of modern Greece, fell in a slight attack upon the Turkish camp at Laspi, the site of the ancient Platæa, Aug. 20, 1823, and expired in the moment of victory. His last words were : " To die for liberty is a pleasure, and not a pain."]

At midnight, in his guarded tent,
 The Turk was dreaming of the hour
 When Greece, her knee in supppliance bent,
 Should tremble at his power.

In dreams, through camp and court, he bore
 The trophies of a conqueror ;
 In dreams his song of triumph heard ;
 Then wore his monarch's signet-ring,
 Then pressed that monarch's throne — a king ;
 As wild his thoughts, and gay of wing,
 As Eden's garden bird.

At midnight, in the forest shades,
 Bozzaris ranged his Suliote band, —
 True as the steel of their tried blades,
 Heroes in heart and hand.
 There had the Persian's thousands stood,
 There had the glad earth drunk their blood.
 On old Platæa's day ;
 And now there breathed that haunted air
 The sons of sires who conquered there,
 With arm to strike, and soul to dare,
 As quick, as far, as they.

An hour passed on, the Turk awoke :
 That bright dream was his last ;
 He woke — to hear his sentries shriek,
 " To arms ! they come ! the Greek ! the Greek !"
 He woke — to die midst flame, and smoke,
 And shout, and groan, and sabre-stroke,
 And death-shots falling thick and fast
 As lightnings from the mountain-cloud ;
 And heard, with voice as trumpet loud,
 Bozzaris cheer his band :
 " Strike — till the last armed foe expires ;
 Strike — for your altars and your fires ;
 Strike — for the green graves of your sires,
 God, and your native land !"

They fought — like brave men, long and well ;
 They piled that ground with Moslem slain :
 They conquered — but Bozzaris fell,
 Bleeding at every vein.
 His few surviving comrades saw
 His smile when rang their proud hurrah,
 And the red field was won ;
 Then saw in death his eyelids close
 Calmly, as to a night's repose,
 Like flowers at set of sun.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death,
 Come to the mother, when she feels,
 For the first time, her first-born's breath ;
 Come when the blessed seals
 That close the pestilence are broke,
 And crowded cities wait its stroke ;
 Come in consumption's ghastly form,
 The earthquake shock, the ocean storm ;
 Come when the heart beats high and warm,
 With banquet song and dance and wine, —
 And thou art terrible ; the tear,

The groan, the knell, the pall, the bier,
And all we know, or dream, or fear
Of agony, are thine.

But to the hero, when his sword
Has won the battle for the free,
Thy voice sounds like a prophet's word,
And in its hollow tones are heard
The thanks of millions yet to be.
Come when his task of fame is wrought ;
Come with her laurel-leaf, blood-bought ;
Come in her crowning hour, — and then
Thy sunken eye's unearthly light
To him is welcome as the sight
Of sky and stars to prisoned men ;
Thy grasp is welcome as the hand
Of brother in a foreign land ;
Thy summons welcome as the cry
That told the Indian isles were nigh
To the world-seeking Genoese,
When the land-wind, from woods of palm,
And orange-groves, and fields of balm,
Blew o'er the Haytian seas.

Bozzaris ! with the storied brave
Greece nurtured in her glory's time,
Rest thee ; there is no prouder grave,
Even in her own proud clime.
She wore no funeral weeds for thee,
Nor bade the dark hearse wave its plume,
Like torn branch from death's leafless tree,
In sorrow's pomp and pageantry,
The heartless luxury of the tomb.
But she remembers thee as one
Long loved, and for a season gone.
For thee her poet's lyre is wreathed,
Her marble wrought, her music breathed ;
For thee she rings the birthday bells ;
Of thee her babes' first lisping tells ;
For thine her evening prayer is said
At palace couch and cottage bed.
Her soldier, closing with the foe,
Gives for thy sake a deadlier blow ;
His plighted maiden, when she fears
For him, the joy of her young years,
Thinks of thy fate, and checks her tears.
And she, the mother of thy boys,
Though in her eye and faded cheek
Is read the grief she will not speak,
The memory of her buried joys, —
And even she who gave thee birth, —
Will, by her pilgrim-circled hearth,
Talk of thy doom without a sigh ;
For thou art freedom's now, and fame's, —
One of the few, the immortal names
That were not born to die.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

POLAND.

FROM "THE PLEASURES OF HOPE," PART I.

WARSAW'S last champion from her height surveyed,
Wide o'er the fields, a waste of ruin laid ;
"O Heaven !" he cried, "my bleeding country save ! —

Is there no hand on high to shield the brave ?
Yet, though destruction sweep these lovely plains,
Rise, fellow-men ! our country yet remains !
By that dread name, we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live — with her to die !"

He said, and on the rampart-heights arrayed
His trusty warriors, few, but undismayed ;
Firm-paced and slow, a horrid front they form,
Still as the breeze, but dreadful as the storm ;
Low murmuring sounds along their banners fly,
Revenge, or death, — the watchword and reply ;
Then pealed the notes, omnipotent to charm,
And the loud tocsin tolled their last alarm ! —

In vain, alas ! in vain, ye gallant few !
Fram rank to rank your volleyed thunder flew : —
O, bloodiest picture in the book of Time !
Sarmatia fell, unwept, without a crime ;
Found not a generous friend, a pitying foe,
Strength in her arms, nor mercy in her woe !
Dropped from her nerveless grasp the shattered spear,

Closed her bright eye, and curbed her high career ;
Hoped, for a season, bade the world farewell,
And Freedom shrieked — as Kosciusko fell !

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

MEN AND BOYS.

THE storm is out ; the land is roused ;
Where is the coward who sits well housed ?
Fie on thee, boy, disguised in curls,
Behind the stove, 'mong gluttons and girls !
A graceless, worthless wight thou must be ;
No German maid desires thee,
No German song inspires thee,
No German Rhine-wine fires thee.
Forth in the van,
Man by man,
Swing the battle-sword who can !

When we stand watching, the livelong night,
Through piping storms, till morning light,
Thou to thy downy bed canst creep,
And there in dreams of rapture sleep.
A graceless, worthless wight, etc.

When, hoarse and shrill, the trumpet's blast,
Like the thunder of God, makes our hearts beat fast,

Thou in the theatre lov'st to appear,
Where trills and quavers tickle the ear.
A graceless, worthless wight, etc.

When the glare of noonday scorches the brain,
When our parched lips seek water in vain,
Thou canst make champagne corks fly
At the groaning tables of luxury.
A graceless, worthless wight, etc.

When we, as we rush to the strangling fight,
Send home to our true-loves a long "Good-
night,"
Thou canst lie thee where love is sold,
And buy thy pleasure with paltry gold.
A graceless, worthless wight, etc.

When lance and bullet come whistling by,
And death in a thousand shapes draws nigh,
Thou canst sit at thy cards, and kill
King, queen, and knave with thy spadille.
A graceless, worthless wight, etc.

If on the red field our bell should toll,
Then welcome be death to the patriot's soul !
Thy pampered flesh shall quake at its doom,
And crawl in silk to a hopeless tomb.
A pitiful exit thine shall be ;
No German maid shall weep for thee,
No German song shall they sing for thee,
No German goblets shall ring for thee.
Forth in the van,
Man for man,
Swing the battle-sword who can !

From the German of KÖRNER. Translation of CHARLES T. BROOKS.

THE MARSEILLAISE.

YE sons of freedom, wake to glory !
Hark ! hark ! what myriads bid you rise !
Your children, wives, and grandsires hoary,
Behold their tears and hear their cries !
Shall hateful tyrants, mischiefs breeding,
With hireling hosts, a ruffian band,
Affright and desolate the land,
While peace and liberty lie bleeding ?
To arms ! to arms ! ye brave !
The avenging sword unsheathe ;
March on ! march on ! all hearts resolved
On victory or death.

Now, now the dangerous storm is rolling,
Which treacherous kings confederate raise ;
The dogs of war, let loose, are howling,
And lo ! our fields and cities blaze ;

And shall we basely view the ruin,
While lawless force, with guilty stride,
Spreads desolation far and wide,
With crimes and blood his hands imbruing.
To arms ! to arms ! ye brave, etc.

O Liberty ! can man resign thee,
Once having felt thy generous flame ?
Can dungeons, bolts, or bars confine thee ?
Or whips thy noble spirit tame ?
Too long the world has wept, bewailing
That falsehood's dagger tyrants wield,
But freedom is our sword and shield,
And all their arts are unavailing.
To arms ! to arms ! ye brave, etc.

Abbreviated, from the French of ROUGET DE LISLE

MAKE WAY FOR LIBERTY.

[On the exploit of Arnold Winkelried at the battle of Sempach, in the fourteenth century, in which the Swiss, fighting for their independence, totally defeated the Austrians.]

"MAKE way for Liberty !" — he cried ;
Made way for Liberty, and died !
In arms the Austrian phalanx stood,
A living wall, a human wood !
A wall, where every conscious stone
Seemed to its kindred thousands grown ;
A rampart all assaults to bear,
Till time to dust their frames should wear ;
A wood, like that enchanted grove
In which with fiends Rinaldo strove,
Where every silent tree possessed
A spirit prisoned in its breast,
Which the first stroke of coming strife
Would startle into hideous life :
So dense, so still, the Austrians stood,
A living wall, a human wood !
Impregnable their front appears,
All horrent with projected spears,
Whose polished points before them shine,
From flank to flank, one brilliant line,
Bright as the breakers' splendors run
Along the billows to the sun.

Opposed to these, a hovering band
Contended for their native land :
Peasants, whose new-found strength had broke
From manly necks the ignoble yoke,
And forged their fetters into swords,
On equal terms to fight their lords,
And what insurgent rage had gained
In many a mortal fray maintained :
Marshalled once more at Freedom's call,
They came to conquer or to fall,
Where he who conquered, he who fell,
Was deemed a dead, or living, Tell !

Such virtue had that patriot breathed,
So to the soil his soul bequeathed,
That wheresoe'er his arrows flew
Heroes in his own likeness grew,
And warriors sprang from every sod
Which his awakening footsteps trod.

And now the work of life and death
Hung on the passing of a breath ;
The fire of conflict burnt within,
The battle trembled to begin :
Yet, while the Austrians held their ground,
Point for attack was nowhere found ;
Where'er the impatient Switzers gazed,
The unbroken line of lances blazed :
That line 't were suicide to meet,
And perish at their tyrants' feet, —
How could they rest within their graves,
And leave their homes the homes of slaves ?
Would they not feel their children tread
With clanging chains above their head ?

It must not be : this day, this hour, .
Annihilates the oppressor's power ;
All Switzerland is in the field,
She will not fly, she cannot yield, —
She must not fall ; her better fate
Here gives her an immortal date.
Few were the numbers she could boast ;
But every freeman was a host,
And felt as though himself were he
On whose sole arm hung victory.

It did depend on one indeed ;
Behold him, — Arnold Winkelried !
There sounds not to the tramp of fame
The echo of a nobler name.
Unmarked he stood amid the throng,
In rumination deep and long,
Till you might see, with sudden grace,
The very thought come o'er his face,
And by the motion of his form
Anticipate the bursting storm,
And by the uplifting of his brow
Tell where the bolt would strike, and how.

But 't was no sooner thought than done,
The field was in a moment won : —

"Make way for Liberty !" he cried,
Then ran, with arms extended wide,
As if his dearest friend to clasp ;
Ten spears he swept within his grasp.

"Make way for Liberty !" he cried ;
Their keen points met from side to side ;
He bowed amongst them like a tree,
And thus made way for Liberty.

Swift to the breach his comrades fly ;
"Make way for Liberty !" they cry,
And through the Austrian phalanx dart,
As rushed the spears through Arnold's heart ;
While, instantaneous as his fall,
Rout, ruin, panic, scattered all :
An earthquake could not overthrow
A city with a surer blow.

Thus Switzerland again was free ;
Thus Death made way for Liberty !

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

SWITZERLAND.

FROM "WILLIAM TELL."

ONCE Switzerland was free ! With what a pride
I used to walk these hills, — look up to heaven
And bless God that it was so ! It was free
From end to end, from cliff to lake 't was free
Free as our torrents are, that leap our rocks,
And plough our valleys, without asking leave :
Or as our peaks, that wear their caps of snow
In very presence of the regal sun !
How happy was I in it then ! I loved
Its very storms. Ay, often have I sat
In my boat at night, when, midway o'er the lake
The stars went out, and down the mountain gorge
The wind came roaring, — I have sat and eyed
The thunder breaking from his cloud, and smiled
To see him shake his lightnings o'er my head,
And think — I had no master save his own !

JAMES SHERIDAN KNOWLES.

A COURT LADY.

HER hair was tawny with gold, her eyes with purple were dark,
Her cheeks' pale opal burnt with a red and restless spark.

Never was lady of Milan nobler in name and in race ;
Never was lady of Italy fairer to see in the face.

Never was lady on earth more true as woman and wife,
Larger in judgment and instinct, prouder in manners and life.

She stood in the early morning, and said to her maidens, "Bring
That silken robe made ready to wear at the court of the king.

"Bring me the clasps of diamond, lucid, clear of the mote,
Clasp me the large at the waist, and clasp me
the small at the throat.

"Diamonds to fasten the hair, and diamonds to fasten the sleeves,
Laces to drop from their rays, like a powder of snow from the eaves."

Gorgeous she entered the sunlight which gathered her up in a flame,
While straight, in her open carriage, she to the hospital came.

In she went at the door, and gazing, from end to end,
"Many and low are the pallets, but each is the place of a friend."

Up she passed through the wards, and stood at a young man's bed :
Bloody the band on his brow, and livid the droop of his head.

"Art thou a Lombard, my brother? Happy art thou!" she cried,
And smiled like Italy on him : he dreamed in her face and died.

Pale with his passing soul, she went on still to a second :
He was a grave, hard man, whose years by dungeons were reckoned.

Wounds in his body were sore, wounds in his life were sorer.
"Art thou a Romagnole?" Her eyes drove lightnings before her.

"Austrian and priest had joined to double and tighten the cord
Able to bind thee, O strong one, — free by the stroke of a sword.

"Now be grave for the rest of us, using the life overcast
To ripen our wine of the present (too new) in glooms of the past."

Down she stepped to a pallet where lay a face like a girl's,
Young, and pathetic with dying, — a deep black hole in the curls.

"Art thou from Tuscany, brother? and seest
thou, dreaming in pain,
Thy mother stand in the piazza, searching the list of the slain?"

Kind as a mother herself, she touched his cheeks with her hands :

"Blessed is she who has borne thee, although she should weep as she stands."

On she passed to a Frenchman, his arm carried off by a ball :

Kneeling, . . "O more than my brother! how shall I thank thee for all?"

"Each of the heroes around us has fought for his land and line,
But thou hast fought for a stranger, in hate of a wrong not thine.

"Happy are all free peoples, too strong to be dispossessed ;
But blessed are those among nations who dare to be strong for the rest!"

Ever she passed on her way, and came to a couch where pined
One with a face from Venetia, white with a hope out of mind.

Long she stood and gazed, and twice she tried at the name,
But two great crystal tears were all that faltered and came.

Only a tear for Venice? — she turned as in passion and loss,
And stooped to his forehead and kissed it, as if she were kissing the cross.

Faint with that strain of heart, she moved on then to another,
Stern and strong in his death. "And dost thou suffer, my brother?"

Holding his hands in hers : — "Out of the Piedmont lion
Cometh the sweetness of freedom! sweetest to live or to die on."

Holding his cold, rough hands, — "Well, O, well have ye done
In noble, noble Piedmont, who would not be noble alone."

Back he fell while she spoke. She rose to her feet with a spring, —
"That was a Piedmontese! and this is the Court of the King."

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

THE LANDING OF THE PILGRIM FATHERS IN NEW ENGLAND.

THE breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed ;

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On the wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They, the true-hearted, came ;
Not with the roll of the stirring drums,
And the trumpet that sings of fame :

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear ; —
They shook the depths of the desert gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amidst the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea ;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free.

The ocean eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam,
And the rocking pines of the forest roared, —
This was their welcome home.

There were men with hoary hair
Amidst that pilgrim-band :
Why had they come to wither there,
Away from their childhood's land ?

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth ;
There was manhood's brow serenely high,
And the fiery heart of youth.

What sought they thus afar ?
Bright jewels of the mine ?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war ? —
They sought a faith's pure shrine !

Ay, call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod ;
They have left unstained what there they found, —
Freedom to worship God.

FELICIA HEMANS.

ON THE PROSPECT OF PLANTING ARTS AND LEARNING IN AMERICA.

THE Muse, disgusted at an age and clime
Barren of every glorious theme,
In distant lands now waits a better time,
Producing subjects worthy fame.

In happy climes, where from the genial sun
And virgin earth such scenes ensue,
The force of art by nature seems outdone,
And fancied beauties by the true :

In happy climes, the seat of innocence,
Where nature guides and virtue rules,
Where men shall not impose for truth and sense
The pedantry of courts and schools :

There shall be sung another golden age,
The rise of empire and of arts,
The good and great inspiring epic rage,
The wisest heads and noblest hearts.

Not such as Europe breeds in her decay :
Such as she bred when fresh and young,
When heavenly flame did animate her clay,
By future poets shall be sung.

Westward the course of empire takes its way ;
The first four acts already past,
A fifth shall close the drama with the day ;
Time's noblest offspring is the last.

BISHOP GEORGE BERKELEY.

AMERICA.

O MOTHER of a mighty race,
Yet lovely in thy youthful grace !
The elder dames, thy haughty peers,
Admire and hate thy blooming years ;
With words of shame
And taunts of scorn they join thy name.

For on thy cheeks the glow is spread
That tints thy morning hills with red ;
Thy step, — the wild deer's rustling feet
Within thy woods are not more fleet ;
Thy hopeful eye
Is bright as thine own sunny sky.

Ay, let them rail, those haughty ones,
While safe thou dwellest with thy sons.
They do not know how loved thou art,
How many a fond and fearless heart
Would rise to throw
Its life between thee and the foe.

They know not, in their hate and pride,
What virtues with thy children bide, —
How true, how good, thy graceful maids
Make bright, like flowers, the valley shades ;
What generous men
Spring, like thine oaks, by hill and glen ;

What cordial welcomes greet the guest
By thy lone rivers of the west ;

How faith is kept, and truth revered,
And man is loved, and God is feared,
In woodland homes,
And where the ocean border foams.

There's freedom at thy gates, and rest
For earth's down-trodden and opprest,
A shelter for the hunted head,
For the starved laborer toil and bread.
Power, at thy bounds,
Stops, and calls back his baffled hounds.

O fair young mother ! on thy brow
Shall sit a nobler grace than now.
Deep in the brightness of thy skies,
The thronging years in glory rise,
And, as they fleet,
Drop strength and riches at thy feet.

Thine eye, with every coming hour,
Shall brighten, and thy form shall tower ;
And when thy sisters, elder born,
Would brand thy name with words of scorn,
Before thine eye
Upon their lips the taunt shall die.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

COLUMBIA.

COLUMBIA, Columbia, to glory arise,
The queen of the world, and the child of the skies !
Thy genius commands thee : with rapture behold,
While ages on ages thy splendors unfold.
Thy reign is the last and the noblest of time,
Most fruitful thy soil, most inviting thy clime ;
Let the crimes of the east ne'er encrimson thy
name,
Be freedom and science and virtue thy fame.

To conquest and slaughter let Europe aspire ;
Whelm nations in blood, and wrap cities in fire ;
Thy heroes the rights of mankind shall defend,
And triumph pursue them, and glory attend.
A world is thy realm ; for a world be thy laws
Enlarged as thine empire, and just as thy cause ;
On Freedom's broad basis that empire shall rise,
Extend with the main, and dissolve with the skies.

Fair Science her gates to thy sons shall unbar,
And the East see thy morn hide the beams of her
star ;
New bards and new sages unrivalled shall soar
To fame unextinguished when time is no more ;
To thee, the last refuge of virtue designed,
Shall fly from all nations the best of mankind ;
Here, grateful to Heaven, with transport shall bring
Their incense, more fragrant than odors of spring.

Nor less shall thy fair ones to glory ascend,
And genius and beauty in harmony blend ;
The graces of form shall awake pure desire,
And the charms of the soul ever cherish the fire ;
Their sweetness unmingled, their manners refined,
And virtue's bright image, enstamped on the
mind,
With peace and soft rapture shall teach life to glow,
And light up a smile on the aspect of woe.

Thy fleets to all regions thy power shall display,
The nations admire, and the ocean obey ;
Each shore to thy glory its tribute unfold,
And the East and the South yield their spices and
gold.
As the dayspring unbounded thy splendor shall flow,
And earth's little kingdoms before thee shall bow,
While the ensigns of union, in triumph unfurled,
Hush the tumult of war, and give peace to the world.

Thus, as down a lone valley, with cedars o'er-spread,
From war's dread confusion, I pensively strayed,—
The gloom from the face of fair heaven retired ;
The wind ceased to murmur, the thunders expired ;
Perfumes, as of Eden, flowed sweetly along,
And a voice, as of angels, enchantingly sung :
" Columbia, Columbia, to glory arise,
The queen of the world, and the child of the skies ! "

TIMOTHY DWIGHT.

AMERICA TO GREAT BRITAIN.

ALL hail ! thou noble land,
Our Fathers' native soil !
O, stretch thy mighty hand,
Gigantic grown by toil,
O'er the vast Atlantic wave to our shore !
For thou with magic might Canst reach to where the light
Of Phœbus travels bright
The world o'er !

The genius of our clime
From his pine-embattled steep
Shall hail the guest sublime ;
While the Tritons of the deep
With their conchs the kindred league shall proclaim.
Then let the world combine, —
O'er the main our naval line
Like the Milky Way shall shine
Bright in fame !

R. W. Emerson.

Though ages long have passed
 Since our Fathers left their home,
 Their pilot in the blast,
 O'er untravell'd seas to roam,
 Yet lives the blood of England in our veins !
 And shall we not proclaim
 That blood of honest fame
 Which no tyranny can tame
 By its chains ?

While the language free and bold
 Which the Bard of Avon sung,
 In which our Milton told
 How the vault of heaven rung
 When Satan, blasted, fell with his host ;
 While this, with reverence meet,
 Ten thousand echoes greet,
 From rock to rock repeat
 Round our coast ;

While the manners, while the arts,
 That mould a nation's soul,
 Still cling around our hearts, —
 Between let OURS roll,
 Our joint communion breaking with the sun :
 Yet still from either beach
 The voice of blood shall reach,
 More audible than speech,
 " We are One."

WASHINGTON ALLSTON.

SONG OF MARION'S MEN.

Our band is few, but true and tried,
 Our leader frank and bold ;
 The British soldier trembles
 When Marion's name is told.
 Our fortress is the good greenwood,
 Our tent the cypress-tree ;
 We know the forest round us,
 As seamen know the sea ;
 We know its walls of thorny vines,
 Its glades of reedy grass,
 Its safe and silent islands
 Within the dark morass.

Woe to the English soldiery
 That little dread us near !
 On them shall light at midnight
 A strange and sudden fear ;
 When, waking to their tents on fire,
 They grasp their arms in vain,
 And they who stand to face us
 Are beat to earth again ;
 And they who fly in terror deem
 A mighty host behind,
 And hear the tramp of thousands
 Upon the hollow wind.

Then sweet the hour that brings release
 From danger and from toil ;
 We talk the battle over,
 And share the battle's spoil.
 The woodland rings with laugh and shout,
 As if a hunt were up,
 And woodland flowers are gathered
 To crown the soldier's cup.
 With merry songs we mock the wind
 That in the pine-top grieves,
 And slumber long and sweetly
 On beds of oaken leaves.

Well, knows the fair and friendly moon
 The band that Marion leads, —
 The glitter of their rifles,
 The scampering of their steeds.
 'T is life to guide the fiery barb
 Across the moonlight plain ;
 'T is life to feel the night-wind
 That lifts his tossing mane.
 A moment in the British camp —
 A moment — and away
 Back to the pathless forest,
 Before the peep of day.

Grave men there are by broad Santee,
 Grave men with hoary hairs ;
 Their hearts are all with Marion,
 For Marion are their prayers.
 And lovely ladies greet our band
 With kindest welcoming,
 With smiles like those of summer,
 And tears like those of spring.
 For them we wear these trusty arms,
 And lay them down no more
 Till we have driven the Briton
 Forever from our shore.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

HYMN :

SUNG AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONCORD MONUMENT,
 APRIL 19, 1836.

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
 Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
 Here once the embattled farmers stood,
 And fired the shot heard round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept ;
 Alike the conqueror silent sleeps ;
 And Time the ruined bridge has swept
 Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream,
 We set to-day a votive stone ;
 That memory may their deed redeem,
 When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit, that made those heroes dare
To die, or leave their children free,
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

WARREN'S ADDRESS.

STAND! the ground's your own, my braves!
Will ye give it up to slaves?
Will ye look for greener graves?
Hope ye mercy still?
What's the mercy despots feel?
Hear it in that battle-peal!
Read it on yon bristling steel!
Ask it, — ye who will.

Fear ye foes who kill for hire?
Will ye to your homes retire?
Look behind you! — they're afire!
And, before you, see
Who have done it! From the vale
On they come! — and will ye quail?
Leaden rain and iron hail
Let their welcome be!

In the God of battles trust!
Die we may, — and die we must:
But, O, where can dust to dust
Be consigned so well,
As where heaven its dews shall shed
On the martyred patriot's bed,
And the rocks shall raise their head,
Of his deeds to tell?

JOHN PIERPONT.

CARMEN BELLICOSUM.

In their ragged regimentals
Stood the old Continentals,
Yielding not,
When the grenadiers were lunging,
And like hail fell the plunging
Cannon-shot;
When the files
Of the isles,
From the smoky night encampment, bore the banner of the rampant
Unicorn,
And grummer, grummer, grummer rolled the roll of the drummer,
Through the morn!

Then with eyes to the front all,
And with guns horizontal,
Stood our sires;
And the balls whistled deadly,
And in streams flashing redly
Blazed the fires;

As the roar
On the shore,
Swept the strong battle-breakers o'er the green-sodded acres
Of the plain;
And louder, louder, louder, cracked the black gunpowder,
Cracking again!

Now like smiths at their forges
Worked the red St. George's Cannoneers;
And the "villanous saltpetre"
Rung a fierce, discordant metre
Round their ears;
As the swift
Storm-drift,
With hot sweeping anger, came the horseguards' clangor
On our flanks;
Then higher, higher, higher, burned the old-fashioned fire
Through the ranks!

Then the bare-headed colonel
Galloped through the white infernal
Powder-cloud;
And his broad sword was swinging,
And his brazen throat was ringing
Trumpet-loud.
Then the blue
Bullets flew,
And the trooper-jackets reddened at the touch of the leaden
Rifle-breath;
And rounder, rounder, rounder, roared the iron six-pounder,
Hurling death!

GUY HUMPHREY MCMASTER.

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE.

LISTEN, my children, and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
On the eighteenth of April, in 'Seventy-five;
Hardly a man is now alive
Who remembers that famous day and year.

He said to his friend, "If the British march
By land or sea from the town to-night,
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch
Of the North Church tower as a signal light, —
One, if by land, and two, if by sea;
And I on the opposite shore will be,
Ready to ride and spread the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm,
For the country folk to be up and to arm."

Then he said, "Good night !" and with muffled oar

Silently rowed to the Charlestown shore,
Just as the moon rose over the bay,
Where swinging wide at her moorings lay
The Somerset, British man-of-war ;
A phantom ship, with each mast and spar
Across the moon like a prison bar,
And a huge black hulk, that was magnified
By its own reflection in the tide.

Meanwhile, his friend, through alley and street,
Wanders and watches with eager ears,
Till in the silence around him he hears
The muster of men at the barrack door,
The sound of arms, and the tramp of feet,
And the measured tread of the grenadiers,
Marching down to their boats on the shore.

Then he climbed the tower of the Old North Church

By the wooden stairs, with stealthy tread,
To the belfry-chamber overhead,
And startled the pigeons from their perch
On the sombre rafters, that round him made
Masses and moving shapes of shade, —
By the trembling ladder, steep and tall,
To the highest window in the wall,
Where he paused to listen and look down
A moment on the roofs of the town,
And the moonlight flowing over all.

Beneath, in the churchyard, lay the dead,
In their night-encampment on the hill,
Wrapped in silence so deep and still
That he could hear, like a sentinel's tread,
The watchful night-wind, as it went
Creeping along from tent to tent,
And seeming to whisper, "All is well !"
A moment only he feels the spell
Of the place and the hour, and the secret dread
Of the lonely belfry and the dead ;
For suddenly all his thoughts are bent
On a shadowy something far away,
Where the river widens to meet the bay, —
A line of black that bends and floats
On the rising tide, like a bridge of boats.

Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride,
Booted and spurred, with a heavy stride,
On the opposite shore walked Paul Revere.
Now he patted his horse's side,
Now gazed at the landscape far and near,
Then, impetuous, stamped the earth,
And turned and tightened his saddle-girth ;
But mostly he watched with eager search
The belfry-tower of the Old North Church,

As it rose above the graves on the hill,
Lonely and spectral and sombre and still.
And lo ! as he looks, on the belfry's height
A glimmer, and then a gleam of light !
He springs to the saddle, the bridle he turns,
But lingers and gazes, till full on his sight
A second lamp in the belfry burns !

A hurry of hoofs in a village street,
A shape in the moonlight, a bulk in the dark,
And beneath, from the pebbles, in passing, a spark
Struck out by a steed flying fearless and fleet :
That was all ! And yet, through the gloom and the light,
The fate of a nation was riding that night ;
And the spark struck out by that steed, in his flight,
Kindled the land into flame with its heat.

He has left the village and mounted the steep,
And beneath him, tranquil and broad and deep,
Is the Mystic, meeting the ocean tides ;
And under the alders, that skirt its edge,
Now soft on the sand, now loud on the ledge,
Is heard the tramp of his steed as he rides.

It was twelve by the village clock
When he crossed the bridge into Medford town.
He heard the crowing of the cock,
And the barking of the farmer's dog,
And felt the damp of the river fog,
That rises after the sun goes down.

It was one by the village clock
When he galloped into Lexington.
He saw the gilded weathercock
Swim in the moonlight as he passed,
And the meeting-house windows, blank and bare,
Gaze at him with a spectral glare,
As if they already stood aghast
At the bloody work they would look upon.

It was two by the village clock
When he came to the bridge in Concord town.
He heard the bleating of the flock,
And the twitter of birds among the trees,
And felt the breath of the morning breeze
Blowing over the meadows brown.
And one was safe and asleep in his bed
Who at the bridge would be first to fall,
Who that day would be lying dead,
Pierced by a British musket-ball.

You know the rest. In the books you have read,
How the British Regulars fired and fled, —
How the farmers gave them ball for ball,
From behind each fence and farm-yard wall,

Chasing the redcoats down the lane,
Then crossing the fields to emerge again
Under the trees at the turn of the road,
And only pausing to fire and load.

So through the night rode Paul Revere ;
And so through the night went his cry of alarm
To every Middlesex village and farm, —
A cry of defiance and not of fear,
A voice in the darkness, a knock at the door,
And a word that shall echo forevermore !
For, borne on the night-wind of the Past,
Through all our history, to the last,
In the hour of darkness and peril and need,
The people will waken and listen to hear
The hurrying hoof-beats of that steed
And the midnight message of Paul Revere.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

WHEN Freedom, from her mountain height,
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the stars of glory there !
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
The milky baldrick of the skies,
And striped its pure, celestial white
With streakings of the morning light ;
Then, from his mansion in the sun,
She called her eagle-bearer down,
And gave into his mighty hand
The symbol of her chosen land !

Majestic monarch of the cloud !
Who rear'st aloft thy regal form,
To hear the tempest trumping loud,
And see the lightning lances driven,
When strive the warriors of the storm,
And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven, —
Child of the Sun ! to thee 't is given
To guard the banner of the free,
To hover in the sulphur smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blendings shine afar,
Like rainbows on the cloud of war,
The harbingers of victory !

Flag of the brave ! thy folds shall fly,
The sign of hope and triumph high !
When speaks the signal-trumpet tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on,
Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet,
Each soldier's eye shall brightly turn
To where thy sky-born glories burn,
And, as his springing steps advance,
Catch war and vengeance from the glance.

And when the cannon-mouthings loud
Heave in wild wreaths the battle shroud,
And gory sabres rise and fall
Like shoots of flame on midnight's pall,
Then shall thy meteor glances glow,
And cowering foes shall shrink beneath
Each gallant arm that strikes below
That lovely messenger of death.

Flag of the seas ! on ocean wave
Thy stars shall glitter o'er the brave ;
When death, careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the bellied sail,
And frightened waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,
Each dying wanderer of the sea
Shall look at once to heaven and thee,
And smile to see thy splendors fly
In triumph o'er his closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's hope and home,
By angel hands to valor given !
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.
Forever float that standard sheet !
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us !

JOSEPH RODMAN DRAKE.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

O SAY, can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming ? —
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming !
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there ;
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave ?

On that shore, dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence
reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, now conceals, now discloses ?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected, now shines on the stream ;

'T is the star-spangled banner! O, long may it
wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution.

No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave;

And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

O, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!

Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the Heaven-rescued land

Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "In God is our trust;"

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY.

THE LITTLE CLOUD.

[1853.]

As when, on Carmel's sterile steep,
The ancient prophet bowed the knee,
And seven times sent his servant forth
To look toward the distant sea;

There came at last a little cloud,
Scarce larger than the human hand,
Spreading and swelling till it broke
In showers on all the herbless land;

And hearts were glad, and shouts went up,
And praise to Israel's mighty God,
As the sear hills grew bright with flowers,
And verdure clothed the valley sod, —

Even so our eyes have waited long;
But now a little cloud appears,
Spreading and swelling as it glides
Onward into the coming years.

Bright cloud of Liberty! full soon,
Far stretching from the ocean strand,
Thy glorious folds shall spread abroad,
Encircling our beloved land.

Like the sweet rain on Judah's hills,
The glorious boon of love shall fall,
And our bond millions shall arise,
As at an angel's trumpet-call.

Then shall a shout of joy go up,
The wild, glad cry of freedom come
From hearts long crushed by cruel hands,
And songs from lips long sealed and dumb

And every bondman's chain be broke,
And every soul that moves abroad
In this wide realm shall know and feel
The blessed Liberty of God.

JOHN HOWARD BRYANT.

SONNET.

WRITTEN WHILE IN PRISON FOR DENOUNCING THE DOMESTIC SLAVE-TRADE.

HIGH walls and huge the body may confine,
And iron gates obstruct the prisoner's gaze,
And massive bolts may baffle his design,
And vigilant keepers watch his devious ways;
But scorns the immortal mind such base control
No chains can bind it and no cell enclose.
Swifter than light it flies from pole to pole,
And in a flash from earth to heaven it goes.
It leaps from mount to mount; from vale to vale
It wanders, plucking honeyed fruits and flowers;
It visits home to hear the fireside tale
And in sweet converse pass the joyous hours;
'T is up before the sun, roaming afar,
And in its watches wearies every star.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON

SLAVERY.

FROM "THE TIMEPIECE": "THE TASK," BOOK II.

O FOR a lodge in some vast wilderness,
Some boundless contiguity of shade,
Where rumor of oppression and deceit,
Of unsuccessful or successful war,
Might never reach me more! My ear is pained,
My soul is sick, with every day's report
Of wrong and outrage with which earth is filled
There is no flesh in man's obdurate heart;
It does not feel for man; the natural bond
Of brotherhood is severed as the flax,
That falls asunder at the touch of fire.
He finds his fellow guilty of a skin
Not colored like his own, and, having power
To enforce the wrong, for such a worthy cause
Dooms and devotes him as his lawful prey.
Lands intersected by a narrow frith
Abhor each other. Mountains interposed

Make enemies of nations, who had else
 Like kindred drops been mingled into one.
 Thus man devotes his brother, and destroys ;
 And, worse than all, and most to be deplored
 As human nature's broadest, foulest blot,
 Chains him, and tasks him, and exacts his sweat
 With stripes, that Mercy, with a bleeding heart,
 Weeps, when she sees inflicted on a beast.
 Then what is man ? And what man, seeing this,
 And having human feelings, does not blush,
 And hang his head, to think himself a man ?
 I would not have a slave to till my ground,
 To carry me, to fan me while I sleep,
 And tremble when I wake, for all the wealth
 That sinews bought and sold have ever earned.
 No ; dear as freedom is, and in my heart's
 Just estimation prized above all price,
 I had much rather be myself the slave,
 And wear the bonds, than fasten them on him.
 We have no slaves at home. — Then why abroad ?
 And they themselves once ferried o'er the wave
 That parts us are emancipate and loosed.
 Slaves cannot breathe in England ; if their lungs
 Receive our air, that moment they are free ;
 They touch our country, and their shackles fall.
 That's noble, and bespeaks a nation proud
 And jealous of the blessing. Spread it then,
 And let it circulate through every vein
 Of all your empire ; that, where Britain's power
 Is felt, mankind may feel her mercy too.

WILLIAM COWPER.

BATTLE-HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

MINE eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord :
 He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes
 of wrath are stored ;
 He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword :
 His truth is marching on.

I have seen him in the watch-fires of a hundred circling camps ;
 They have builded him an altar in the evening
 dews and damps ;
 I can read his righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps :
 His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel, writ in burnished rows of steel :
 "As ye deal with my contemners, so with you
 my grace shall deal ;
 Let the Hero, born of woman, crush the serpent with his heel,
 Since God is marching on."

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat ;
 He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment-seat :
 O, be swift, my soul, to answer him ! be jubilant,
 my feet !
 Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across
 the sea,
 With a glory in his bosom that transfigures you and me ;
 As he died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
 While God is marching on.

JULIA WARD HOWE.

SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

Up from the South at break of day,
 Bringing to Winchester fresh dismay,
 The affrighted air with a shudder bore,
 Like a herald in haste, to the chieftain's door,
 The terrible grumble and rumble and roar,
 Telling the battle was on once more,
 And Sheridan twenty miles away.

And wider still those billows of war
 Thundered along the horizon's bar ;
 And louder yet into Winchester rolled
 The roar of that red sea uncontrolled,
 Making the blood of the listener cold
 As he thought of the stake in that fiery fray,
 With Sheridan twenty miles away.

But there is a road from Winchester town,
 A good, broad highway, leading down ;
 And there, through the flash of the morning light,
 A steed as black as the steeds of night
 Was seen to pass as with eagle flight.
 As if he knew the terrible need,
 He stretched away with the utmost speed ;
 Hills rose and fell, — but his heart was gay,
 With Sheridan fifteen miles away.

Still sprung from those swift hoofs, thundering
 South,
 The dust, like smoke from the cannon's mouth ;
 Or the trail of a comet, sweeping faster and faster,
 Foreboding to traitors the doom of disaster.
 The heart of the steel and the heart of the master
 Were beating, like prisoners assaulting their walls,
 Impatient to be where the battle-field calls ;
 Every nerve of the charger was strained to full
 play,
 With Sheridan only ten miles away

Under his spurning feet, the road
 Like an arrowy Alpine river flowed,
 And the landscape sped away behind,
 Like an ocean flying before the wind ;
 And the steed, like a bark fed with furnace ire,
 Swept on, with his wild eyes full of fire ;
 But, lo ! he is nearing his heart's desire,
 He is snuffing the smoke of the roaring fray,
 With Sheridan only five miles away.

The first that the General saw were the groups
 Of stragglers, and then the retreating troops ;
 What was done, — what to do, — a glance told him both,
 And, striking his spurs with a terrible oath,
 He dashed down the line mid a storm of huzzas,
 And the wave of retreat checked its course there,
 because

The sight of the master compelled it to pause.
 With foam and with dust the black charger was gray ;

By the flash of his eye, and his nostril's play,
 He seemed to the whole great army to say,
 " I have brought you Sheridan all the way
 From Winchester down, to save the day ! "

Hurrah, hurrah for Sheridan !
 Hurrah, hurrah for horse and man !
 And when their statues are placed on high,
 Under the dome of the Union sky, —
 The American soldier's Temple of Fame, —
 There with the glorious General's name
 Be it said in letters both bold and bright :
 " Here is the steed that saved the day
 By carrying Sheridan into the fight,
 From Winchester, — twenty miles away ! "

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

THE BLACK REGIMENT.

[MAY 27, 1863.]

DARK as the clouds of even,
 Ranked in the western heaven,
 Waiting the breath that lifts
 All the dead mass, and drifts
 Tempest and falling brand
 Over a ruined land, —
 So still and orderly,
 Arm to arm, knee to knee,
 Waiting the great event,
 Stands the black regiment.

Down the long dusky line
 Teeth gleam and eyeballs shine ;
 And the bright bayonet,
 Bristling and firmly set,

Flashed with a purpose grand,
 Long ere the sharp command
 Of the fierce rolling drum
 Told them their time had come,
 Told them what work was sent
 For the black regiment.

" Now," the flag-sergeant cried,
 " Though death and hell betide,
 Let the whole nation see
 If we are fit to be
 Free in this land ; or bound
 Down, like the whining hound, —
 Bound with red stripes of pain
 In our cold chains again ! "
 O, what a shout there went
 From the black regiment !

" Charge ! " Trump and drum awoke ;
 Onward the bondmen broke ;
 Bayonet and sabre-stroke
 Vainly opposed their rush.
 Through the wild battle's crush,
 With but one thought aflush,
 Driving their lords like chaff,
 In the guns' mouths they laugh ;
 Or at the slippery brands
 Leaping with open hands,
 Down they tear man and horse,
 Down in their awful course ;
 Trampling with bloody heel
 Over the crashing steel, —
 All their eyes forward bent,
 Rushed the black regiment.

" Freedom ! " their battle-cry, —
 " Freedom ! or leave to die ! "
 Ah ! and they meant the word,
 Not as with us 't is heard,
 Not a mere party shout ;
 They gave their spirits out,
 Trusted the end to God,
 And on the gory sod
 Rolled in triumphant blood.
 Glad to strike one free blow,
 Whether for weal or woe ;
 Glad to breathe one free breath,
 Though on the lips of death ;
 Praying, — alas ! in vain ! —
 That they might fall again,
 So they could once more see
 That burst to liberty !
 This was what " freedom " lent
 To the black regiment.

Hundreds on hundreds fell ;
 But they are resting well ;
 Scourges and shackles strong
 Never shall do them wrong.

O, to the living few,
 Soldiers, be just and true !
 Hail them as comrades tried ;
 Fight with them side by side ;
 Never, in field or tent,
 Scorn the black regiment !

GEORGE HENRY BOKER.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE.

Up from the meadows rich with corn,
 Clear in the cool September morn,

The clustered spires of Frederick stand
 Green-walled by the hills of Maryland.

Round about them orchards sweep,
 Apple and peach tree fruited deep,

Fair as a garden of the Lord
 To the eyes of the famished rebel horde,

On that pleasant morn of the early fall
 When Lee marched over the mountain wall, —

Over the mountains, winding down,
 Horse and foot into Frederick town.

Forty flags with their silver stars,
 Forty flags with their crimson bars,

Flapped in the morning wind ; the sun
 Of noon looked down, and saw not one.

Up rose old Barbara Frietchie then,
 Bowed with her fourscore years and ten ;

Bravest of all in Frederick town,
 She took up the flag the men hauled down ;

In her attic-window the staff she set,
 To show that one heart was loyal yet.

Up the street came the rebel tread,
 Stonewall Jackson riding ahead.

Under his slouched hat left and right
 He glanced : the old flag met his sight.

"Halt !" — the dust-brown ranks stood fast ;
 "Fire !" — out blazed the rifle-blast.

It shivered the window, pane and sash ;
 It rent the banner with seam and gash.

Quick, as it fell, from the broken staff
 Dame Barbara snatched the silken scarf ;

She leaned far out on the window-sill,
 And shook it forth with a royal will.

"Shoot, if you must, this old gray head,
 But spare your country's flag," she said.

A shade of sadness, a blush of shame,
 Over the face of the leader came ;

The nobler nature within him stirred
 To life at that woman's deed and word :

"Who touches a hair of yon gray head
 Dies like a dog ! March on !" he said.

All day long through Frederick street
 Sounded the tread of marching feet ;

All day long that free flag tost
 Over the heads of the rebel host.

Ever its torn folds rose and fell
 On the loyal winds that loved it well ;

And through the hill-gaps sunset light
 Shone over it with a warm good-night.

Barbara Frietchie's work is o'er,
 And the rebel rides on his raids no more.

Honor to her ! and let a tear
 Fall, for her sake, on Stonewall's bier.

Over Barbara Frietchie's grave,
 Flag of freedom and union, wave !

Peace and order and beauty draw
 Round thy symbol of light and law ;

And ever the stars above look down
 On thy stars below in Frederick town !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

THE CAUSE OF THE SOUTH.

FROM "SENTINEL SONGS."

THE fallen cause still waits, —
 Its bard has not come yet,
 His song — through one of to-morrow's gates
 Shall shine — but never set.

But when he comes — he'll sweep
 A harp with tears all stringed,
 And the very notes he strikes will weep,
 As they come, from his hand, woe-winged.

Ah ! grand shall be his strain,
 And his songs shall fill all climes,
 And the Rebels shall rise and march again
 Down the lines of his glorious rhymes.

TENNYSON

THE POET

None sang of Love more nobly; few as well;
Of Friendship none with pathos as profound;
Of Duty sternliest-proved when myrtle-crowned;
Of English grove and rivulet, mead and dell:
Great Arthur's Legend he alone dared tell;
Milton and Dryden feared to tread that ground;
For him alone o'er Camelot's faery bound
The 'horns of Elfland' blew their magic spell.
Since Shakespeare and since Wordsworth none hath sung
So well his England's greatness; none hath given
Reproof more fearless or advice more sage:
None inlier taught how near to earth is Heaven;
With what vast concords Nature's harp is strung;
How base false pride;—faction's fanatic rage.

AUBREY DE VERE

HOME OF ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON.

*Trust me, Clara Vere de Vere,
From yon blue heavens above us bent
The grand old gardener and his wife
Smile at the claims of long descent.*

*Howe'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.*

And through his verse shall gleam
The swords that flashed in vain,
And the men who wore the gray shall seem
To be marshalling again.

But hush ! between his words
Peer faces sad and pale,
And you hear the sound of broken chords
Beat through the poet's wail.

Through his verse the orphans cry —
The terrible undertone !
And the father's curse and the mother's sigh,
And the desolate young wife's moan.

I sing, with a voice too low
To be heard beyond to-day,
In minor keys of my people's woe ;
And my songs pass away.

To-morrow hears them not
To-morrow belongs to fame :
My songs — like the birds' — will be forgot,
And forgotten shall be my name.

And yet who knows ! betimes
The grandest songs depart,
While the gentle, humble, and low-toned rhymes
Will echo from heart to heart.

ABRAM J. RYAN.

LAUS DEO !

[On hearing the bells ring on the passage of the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery.]

It is done !
Clang of bell and roar of gun
Send the tidings up and down.
How the belfries rock and reel !
How the great guns, peal on peal,
Fling the joy from town to town !

Ring, O bells !
Every stroke exulting tells
Of the burial hour of crime.
Loud and long, that all may hear,
Ring for every listening ear
Of Eternity and Time !

Let us kneel :
God's own voice is in that peal,
And this spot is holy ground.
Lord, forgive us ! What are we,
That our eyes this glory see,
That our ears have heard the sound !

For the Lord
On the whirlwind is abroad ;
In the earthquake he has spoken ;
He has smitten with his thunder
The iron walls asunder,
And the gates of brass are broken !

Loud and long
Lift the old exulting song ;
Sing with Miriam by the sea :
He has cast the mighty down ;
Horse and rider sink and drown ;
He has triumphed gloriously !

Did we dare,
In our agony of prayer,
Ask for more than He has done ?
When was ever his right hand
Over any time or land
Stretched as now beneath the sun ?

How they pale,
Ancient myth and song and tale,
In this wonder of our days,
When the cruel rod of war
Blossoms white with righteous law,
And the wrath of man is praise !

Blotted out !
All within and all about
Shall a fresher life begin ;
Freer breathe the universe
As it rolls its heavy curse
On the dead and buried sin.

It is done !
In the circuit of the sun
Shall the sound thereof go forth.
It shall bid the sad rejoice,
It shall give the dumb a voice,
It shall belt with joy the earth !

Ring and swing,
Bells of joy ! On morning's wing
Send the song of praise abroad !
With a sound of broken chains,
Tell the nations that He reigns,
Who alone is Lord and God !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

BOSTON HYMN.

READ IN MUSIC HALL, JAN. 1, 1863.

THE word of the Lord by night
To the watching Pilgrims came,
As they sat by the seaside,
And filled their hearts with flame

God said, I am tired of kings,
I suffer them no more;
Up to my ear the morning brings
The outrage of the poor.

Think ye I made this ball
A field of havoc and war,
Where tyrants great and tyrants small
Might harry the weak and poor?

My angel, — his name is Freedom, —
Choose him to be your king;
He shall cut pathways east and west,
And fend you with his wing.

Lo! I uncover the land
Which I hid of old time in the West,
As the sculptor uncovers the statue
When he has wrought his best;

I show Columbia, of the rocks
Which dip their foot in the seas,
And soar to the air-borne flocks
Of clouds, and the boreal fleece.

I will divide my goods;
Call in the wretch and slave:
None shall rule but the humble,
And none but Toil shall have.

I will have never a noble,
No lineage counted great;
Fishers and choppers and ploughmen
Shall constitute a state.

Go, cut down trees in the forest,
And trim the straightest boughs;
Cut down trees in the forest,
And build me a wooden house.

Call the people together,
The young men and the sires,
The digger in the harvest-field,
Hireling, and him that hires;

And here in a pine state-house
They shall choose men to rule
In every needful faculty,
In church and state and school.

Lo, now! if these poor men
Can govern the land and sea,
And make just laws below the sun,
As planets faithful be.

And ye shall succor men;
'Tis nobleness to serve;
Help them who cannot help again:
Beware from right to swerve.

I break your bonds and masterships,
And I unchain the slave:
Free be his heart and hand henceforth
As wind and wandering wave.

I cause from every creature
His proper good to flow;
As much as he is and doeth,
So much he shall bestow.

But, laying hands on another
To coin his labor and sweat,
He goes in pawn to his victim
For eternal years in debt.

To-day unbind the captive,
So only are ye unbound;
Lift up a people from the dust,
Trump of their rescue, sound!

I pay ransom to the owner,
And fill the bag to the brim.
Who is the owner? The slave is owner,
And ever was. Pay him.

O North! give him beauty for rags,
And honor, O South! for his shame;
Nevada! coin thy golden crags
With Freedom's image and name.

Up! and the dusky race
That sat in darkness long,
Be swift their feet as antelopes,
And as behemoth strong.

Come, East and West and North,
By races, as snow-flakes,
And carry my purpose forth,
Which neither halts nor shakes.

My will fulfilled shall be,
For, in daylight or in dark,
My thunderbolt has eyes to see
His way home to the mark.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON

THE PEOPLE'S SONG OF PEACE.

FROM THE "SONG OF THE CENTENNIAL."

THE grass is green on Bunker Hill,
The waters sweet in Brandywine;
The sword sleeps in the scabbard still,
The farmer keeps his flock and vine;
Then who would mar the scene to-day
With vaunt of battle-field or fray?

The brave corn lifts in regiments
 Ten thousand sabres in the sun ;
 The ricks replace the battle-tents,
 The bannered tassels toss and run.
 The neighing steed, the bugle's blast,
 These be but stories of the past.

The earth has healed her wounded breast,
 The cannons plough the field no more ;
 The heroes rest ! O, let them rest
 In peace along the peaceful shore !
 They fought for peace, for peace they fell ;
 They sleep in peace, and all is well.

The fields forget the battles fought,
 The trenches wave in golden grain :
 Shall we neglect the lessons taught,
 And tear the wounds agape again ?
 Sweet Mother Nature, nurse the land,
 And heal her wounds with gentle hand.

Lo ! peace on earth ! Lo ! flock and fold !
 Lo ! rich abundance, fat increase,
 And valleys clad in sheen of gold !
 O, rise and sing a song of peace !
 For Theseus roams the land no more,
 And Janus rests with rusted door.

JOAQUIN MILLER.

BROWN OF OSSAWATOMIE.

JOHN BROWN OF OSSAWATOMIE spake on his dying day :

"I will not have to shrive my soul a priest in Slavery's pay ;
 But let some poor slave-mother whom I have striven to free,
 With her children, from the gallows-stair put up a prayer for me !"

John Brown of Ossawatomie, they led him out
 to die ;

And lo ! a poor slave-mother with her little child pressed nigh :

Then the bold, blue eye grew tender, and the old
 harsh face grew mild,

As he stooped between the jeering ranks and kissed the negro's child !

The shadows of his stormy life that morient fell
 apart,

And they who blamed the bloody hand forgave
 the loving heart ;

That kiss from all its guilty means redeemed the good intent,

And round the grisly fighter's hair the martyr's aureole bent !

Perish with him the folly that seeks through evil good !

Long live the generous purpose unstained with human blood !

Not the raid of midnight terror, but the thought which underlies ;

Not the borderer's pride of daring, but the Christian's sacrifice.

Nevermore may yon Blue Ridges the Northern rifle hear,

Nor see the light of blazing homes flash on the negro's spear ;

But let the tree-winged angel Truth their guarded passes scale,

To teach that right is more than might, and justice more than mail !

So vainly shall Virginia set her battle in array ;
 In vain her trampling squadrons knead the winter snow with clay !

She may strike the pouncing eagle, but she dares not harm the dove ;

And every gate she bars to Hate shall open wide to Love !

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

WHAT CONSTITUTES A STATE ?

WHAT constitutes a State ?

Not high-raised battlement or labored mound,
 Thick wall or moated gate ;

Not cities proud with spires and turrets crowned ;
 Not bays and broad-armed ports,

Where, laughing at the storm, rich navies ride ;
 Not starred and spangled courts,

Where low-browed baseness wafts perfume to pride.

No : — men, high-minded men,

With powers as far above dull brutes endued
 In forest, brake, or den,

As beasts excel cold rocks and brambles rude, —
 Men who their duties know,

But know their rights, and, knowing, dare maintain,

Prevent the long-aimed blow,

And crush the tyrant while they rend the chain ;
 These constitute a State ;

And sovereign law, that State's collected will,
 O'er thrones and globes elate

Sits empress, crowning good, repressing ill.
 Smit by her sacred frown,

The fiend, Dissension, like a vapor sinks ;
 And e'en the all-dazzling crown

Hides his faint rays, and at her bidding shrinks.

Such was this heaven-loved isle,
 Than Lesbos fairer and the Cretan shore !
 No more shall freedom smile ?
 Shall Britons languish, and be men no more ?
 Since all must life resign,
 Those sweet rewards which decorate the brave
 'T is folly to decline,
 And steal inglorious to the silent grave.

SIR WILLIAM JONES.

THE FREEMAN.

FROM "THE WINTER MORNING WALK :"
"THE TASK," BOOK VI.

He is the freeman whom the truth makes free,
 And all are slaves beside. There's not a chain
 That hellish foes confederate for his harm
 Can wind around him, but he casts it off
 With as much ease as Samson his green withes.
 He looks abroad into the varied field
 Of nature ; and though poor, perhaps, compared
 With those whose mansions glitter in his sight,
 Calls the delightful scenery all his own.
 His are the mountains, and the valley his,
 And the resplendent rivers. His to enjoy
 With a propriety that none can feel
 But who, with filial confidence inspired,
 Can lift to heaven an unpresumptuous eye,
 And smiling say, " My Father made them all ! "
 Are they not his by a peculiar right,
 And by an emphasis of interest his,
 Whose eyes they fill with tears of holy joy,
 Whose heart with praise, and whose exalted mind
 With worthy thoughts of that unwearied love
 That planned and built, and still upholds, a world

So clothed with beauty for rebellious man ?
 Yes, ye may fill your garner, ye that reap
 The loaded soil, and ye may waste much good
 In senseless riot ; but ye will not find
 In feast, or in the chase, in song or dance,
 A liberty like his, who, unimpeached
 Of usurpation, and to no man's wrong,
 Appropriates nature as his Father's work,
 And has a richer use of yours than you.
 He is indeed a freeman. Free by birth
 Of no mean city, planned or e'er the hills
 Were built, the fountains opened, or the sea
 With all his roaring multitude of waves.
 His freedom is the same in every state ;
 And no condition of this changeful life,
 So manifold in cares, whose every day
 Brings its own evil with it, makes it less.
 For he has wings that neither sickness, pain,
 Nor penury can cripple or confine ;
 No nook so narrow but he spreads them there

With ease, and is at large. The oppressor holds
 His body bound ; but knows not what a range
 His spirit takes, unconscious of a chain ;
 And that to bind him is a vain attempt,
 Whom God delights in, and in whom he dwells

WILLIAM COWPER.

THE REFORMER.

ALL grim and soiled and brown with tan,
 I saw a Strong One, in his wrath,
 Smiting the godless shrines of man
 Along his path.

The Church beneath her trembling dome
 Essayed in vain her ghostly charm :
 Wealth shook within his gilded home
 With strange alarm.

Fraud from his secret chambers fled
 Before the sunlight bursting in :
 Sloth drew her pillow o'er her head
 To drown the din.

" Spare," Art implored, " yon holy pile ;
 That grand old time-worn turret spare : "
 Meek Reverence, kneeling in the aisle,
 Cried out, " Forbear ! "

Gray-bearded Use, who, deaf and blind,
 Groped for his old accustomed stone,
 Leaned on his staff, and wept to find
 His seat o'erthrown.

Young Romance raised his dreamy eyes,
 O'erhung with paly locks of gold, —
 " Why smite," he asked in sad surprise,
 " The fair, the old ? "

Yet louder rang the Strong One's stroke,
 Yet nearer flashed his axe's gleam ;
 Shuddering and sick of heart I woke,
 As from a dream.

I looked : aside the dust-cloud rolled, —
 The Waster seemed the Builder too ;
 Upspringing from the ruined Old
 I saw the New.

'T was but the ruin of the bad, —
 The wasting of the wrong and ill ;
 Whate'er of good the old time had
 Was living still.

Calm grew the brows of him I feared ;
 The frown which awed me passed away,
 And left behind a smile which cheered
 Like breaking day.

The grain grew green on battle-plains,
O'er swarded war-mounds grazed the cow ;
The slave stood forging from his chains
The spade and plough.

Where frowned the fort, pavilions gay
And cottage windows, flower-entwined,
Looked out upon the peaceful bay
And hills behind.

Through vine-wreathed cups with wine once red,
The lights on brimming crystal fell,
Drawn, sparkling, from the rivulet head
And mossy well.

Through prison-walls, like Heaven-sent hope,
Fresh breezes blew, and sunbeams strayed,
And with the idle gallows-rope
The young child played.

Where the doomed victim in his cell
Had counted o'er the weary hours,
Glad school-girls, answering to the bell,
Came crowned with flowers.

Grown wiser for the lesson given,
I fear no longer, for I know
That where the share is deepest driven
The best fruits grow.

The outworn rite, the old abuse,
The pious fraud transparent grown,
The good held captive in the use
Of wrong alone, —

These wait their doom, from that great law
Which makes the past time serve to-day ;
And fresher life the world shall draw
From their decay.

O backward-looking son of time !
The new is old, the old is new,
The cycle of a change sublime
Still sweeping through.

So wisely taught the Indian seer ;
Destroying Seva, forming Brahm,
Who wake by turn Earth's love and fear,
Are one, the same.

Idly as thou, in that old day
Thou mournest, did thy sire repine ;
So, in his time, thy child grown gray
Shall sigh for thine.

But life shall on and upward go ;
Th' eternal step of Progress beats
To that great anthem, calm and slow,
Which God repeats.

Take heart ! — the Waster builds again, —
A charmed life old Goodness hath ;
The tares may perish, — but the grain
Is not for death.

God works in all things ; all obey
His first propulsion from the night :
Wake thou and watch ! — the world is gray
With morning light !

 Fierce in their native hardness of soul,
 True to imagined right, above control, —
 While even the peasant boasts these rights to

 And learns to venerate himself as man.

"CENTENNIAL" ECHOES.

Sun of the stately Day,
 Let Asia into the shadow drift,
 Let Europe bask in thy ripened ray,
 And over the severing ocean lift
 A brow of broader splendor !
 Give light to the eager eyes
 Of the Land that waits to behold thee rise :
 The gladness of morning lend her,
 With the triumph of noon attend her,
 And the peace of the vesper skies !
 For lo ! she cometh now
 With hope on the lip and pride on the brow,
 Stronger, and dearer, and fairer,
 To smile on the love we bear her, —
 To live, as we dreamed her and sought her,
 Liberty's latest daughter !
 In the clefts of the rocks, in the secret places,
 We found her traces ;
 On the hills, in the crash of woods that fall,
 We heard her call ;
 When the lines of battle broke,
 We saw her face in the fiery smoke ;
 Through toil, and anguish, and desolation,
 We followed, and found her
 With the grace of a virgin Nation
 As a sacred zone around her !
 Who shall rejoice
 With a righteous voice,
 Far-heard through the ages, if not she ?
 For the menace is dumb that defied her,
 The doubt is dead that denied her,
 And she stands acknowledged, and strong, and free !

 Philadelphia, July 4, 1876*

BAYARD TAYLOR.

Our fathers' God ! from out whose hand
 The centuries fall like grains of sand,
 We meet to-day, united, free,
 And loyal to our land and thee,
 To thank thee for the era done,
 And trust thee for the opening one.

O, make thou us, through centuries long,
 In peace secure, in justice strong ;
 Around our gift of freedom draw
 The safeguards of thy righteous law ;
 And, cast in some diviner mould,
 Let the new cycle shame the old !

Centennial Hymn : International Exposition, Philadelphia, May 10, 1876.

WHITTIER.

Long as thine Art shall love true love,
 Long as thy Science truth shall know,
 Long as thine Eagle harms no Dove,
 Long as thy Law by law shall grow,
 Long as thy God is God above,
 Thy brother every man below, —
 So long, dear Land of all my love,
 Thy name shall shine, thy fame shall glow !

Centennial Meditation of Columbia : International Exposition, Philadelphia, May 10, 1876.

S. LANIER.

Who cometh over the hills,
 Her garments with morning sweet,
 The dance of a thousand rills
 Making music before her feet ?
 Her presence freshens the air,
 Sunshine steals light from her face,
 The leaden footstep of Care
 Leaps to the tune of her pace,
 Fairness of all that is fair,
 Grace at the heart of all grace !
 Sweetener of hut and of hall,
 Bringer of life out of naught,
 Freedom, O, fairest of all
 The daughters of Time and Thought !

Ode to Freedom : Centennial Anniversary of the Battle of Concord, April 19, 1875.

POEMS OF THE SEA

They turned to the Earth, but she frowns on her child;
They turned to the Sea, and he smiled as of old:
Sweeter was the peril of the breakers white and wild,
Sweeter than the land, with its bondage and gold!

Bayard Taylor,

The star of Love now shines above,
Cool zephyrus kiss the sea;
Among the leaves the wind-harp moves
Its serenade for thee.

POEMS OF THE SEA.

THE SEA.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO IV.

THERE is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society where none intrudes
By the deep sea, and music in its roar :
I love not man the less, but nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe, and feel
What I can ne'er express, yet cannot all conceal.

Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean, — roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain ;
Man marks the earth with ruin, — his control
Stops with the shore ; — upon the watery plain
The wrecks are all thy deed, nor doth remain
A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
When, for a moment, like a drop of rain,
He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined, and unknown.

His steps are not upon thy paths, — thy fields
Are not a spoil for him, — thou dost arise
And shake him from thee ; the vile strength
he wields
For earth's destruction thou dost all despise,
Spurning him from thy bosom to the skies,
And send'st him, shivering in thy playful spray
And howling, to his gods, where haply lies
His petty hope in some near port or bay,
And dashest him again to earth : — there let him
lay.

The armaments which thunderstrike the walls
Of rock-built cities, bidding nations quake
And monarchs tremble in their capitals,
The oak leviathans, whose huge ribs make
Their clay creator the vain title take
Of lord of thee and arbiter of war, —
These are thy toys, and, as the snowy flake,
They melt into thy yeast of waves, which mar
Alike the Armada's pride or spoils of Trafalgar.

Thy 'shores are empires, changed in all save
thee ;
Assyria, Greece, Rome, Carthage, what are they ?
Thy waters wasted them while they were free,
And many a tyrant since ; their shores obey
The stranger, slave, or savage ; their decay
Has dried up realms to deserts : not so thou ;
Unchangeable save to thy wild waves' play,
Time writes no wrinkles on thine azure brow ;
Such as creation's dawn beheld, thou rollest now.

Thou glorious mirror, where the Almighty's form
Glasses itself in tempests ; in all time,
Calm or convulsed, — in breeze, or gale, or storm,
Icing the pole, or in the torrid clime
Dark-heaving ; boundless, endless, and sub-line,
The image of Eternity, — the throne
Of the Invisible ! even from out thy slime
The monsters of the deep are made ; each zone
Obeyes thee ; thou goest forth, dread, fathomless,
alone.

And I have loved thee, Ocean ! and my joy
Of youthful sports was on thy breast to be Borne, like thy bubbles, onward ; from a boy
I wantoned with thy breakers, — they to me
Were a delight ; and if the freshening sea
Made them a terror, 't was a pleasing fear ;
For I was as it were a child of thee,
And trusted to thy billows far and near,
And laid my hand upon thy mane, — as I do here.

LORD BYRON.

THE SEA.

BEAUTIFUL, sublime, and glorious ;
Mild, majestic, foaming, free, —
Over time itself victorious,
Image of eternity !

Sun and moon and stars shine o'er thee,
See thy surface ebb and flow,
Yet attempt not to explore thee
In thy soundless depths below.

Whether morning's splendors steep thee
With the rainbow's glowing grace,
Tempests rouse, o. navies sweep thee,
'T is but for a moment's space.

Earth, — her valleys and her mountains,
Mortal man's behests obey ;
The unfathomable fountains
Scoff his search and scorn his sway.

Such art thou, stupendous Ocean !
But, if overwhelmed by thee,
Can we think, without emotion,
What must thy Creator be ?

BERNARD BARTON.

THE OCEAN.

[Written at Scarborough, in the Summer of 1805.]

ALL hail to the ruins, the rocks, and the shores !
Thou wide-rolling Ocean, all hail !
Now brilliant with sunbeams and dimpled with oars,

Now dark with the fresh-blowing gale,
While soft o'er thy bosom the cloud-shadows sail,
And the silver-winged sea-fowl on high,
Like meteors bespangle the sky,
Or dive in the gulf, or triumphantly ride,
Like foam on the surges, the swans of the tide.

From the tumult and smoke of the city set free,
With eager and awful delight,
From the crest of the mountain I gaze upon thee,
I gaze, — and am changed at the sight ;
For mine eye is illumined, my genius takes flight,
My soul, like the sun, with a glance
Embraces the boundless expanse,
And moves on thy waters, wherever they roll,
From the day-darting zone to the night-shadowed pole.

My spirit descends where the dayspring is born,
Where the billows are rubies on fire,
And the breezes that rock the light cradle of morn

Are sweet as the Phoenix's pyre.
O regions of beauty, of love and desire !
O gardens of Eden ! in vain
Placed far on the fathomless main,
Where Nature with Innocence dwelt in her youth,
When pure was her heart and unbroken her truth.

But now the fair rivers of Paradise wind
Through countries and kingdoms o'erthrown ;
Where the giant of tyranny crushes mankind,
Where he reigns, — and will soon reign alone ;
For wide and more wide, o'er the sun-beaming

zone

He stretches his hundred-fold arms,
Despoiling, destroying its charms ;
Beneath his broad footstep the Ganges is dry,
And the mountains recoil from the flash of his eye.

Thus the pestilent Upas, the demon of trees,
Its boughs o'er the wilderness spreads,
And with livid contagion polluting the breeze,
Its mildewing influence sheds ;
The birds on the wing, and the flowers in their beds,

Are slain by its venomous breath,
That darkens the noonday with death,
And pale ghosts of travellers wander around,
While their mouldering skeletons whiten the ground.

Ah ! why hath Jehovah, in forming the world,
With the waters divided the land,
His ramparts of rocks round the continent hurled,

And cradled the deep in his hand,
If man may transgress his eternal command,
And leap o'er the bounds of his birth,
To ravage the uttermost earth,
And violate nations and realms that should be
Distinct as the billows, yet one as the sea ?

There are, gloomy Ocean, a brotherless clan,
Who traverse thy banishing waves,
The poor disinherited outcasts of man,
Whom Avarice coins into slaves.
From the homes of their kindred, their forefathers' graves,
Love, friendship, and conjugal bliss,
They are dragged on the hoary abyss ;
The shark hears their shrieks, and, ascending
to-day,
Demands of the spoiler his share of the prey.

Then joy to the tempest that whelms them beneath,

And makes their destruction its sport ;
But woe to the winds that propitiously breathe,
And waft them in safety to port,
Where the vultures and vampires of Mammon resort ;

Where Europe exultingly drains
The life-blood from Africa's veins ;
Where man rules o'er man with a merciless rod,
And spurns at his footstool the image of God !

The hour is approaching, — a terrible hour !
 And Vengeance is bending her bow ;
 Already the clouds of the hurricane lower,
 And the rock-rending whirlwinds blow ;
 Back rolls the huge Ocean, hell opens below ;
 The floods return headlong, — they sweep
 The slave-cultured lands to the deep,
 In a moment entombed in the horrible void,
 By their Maker himself in his anger destroyed.

Shall this be the fate of the cane-planted isles,
 More lovely than clouds in the west,
 When the sun o'er the ocean descending in smiles,
 Sinks softly and sweetly to rest ?
 No ! — Father of mercy ! befriend the opprest ;
 At the voice of thy gospel of peace
 May the sorrows of Africa cease ;
 And slave and his master devoutly unite
 To walk in thy freedom and dwell in thy light !

As homeward my weary-winged Fancy extends
 Her star-lighted course through the skies,
 High over the mighty Atlantic ascends,
 And turns upon Europe her eyes :
 Ah me ! what new prospects, new horrors, arise !
 I see the war-tempested flood
 All foaming, and panting with blood ;
 The panic-struck Ocean in agony roars,
 Rebounds from the battle, and flies to his shores.

For Britannia is wielding the trident to-day,
 Consuming her foes in her ire,
 And hurling her thunder with absolute sway
 From her wave-ruling chariots of fire.
 She triumphs ; the winds and the waters conspire
 To spread her invincible name ;
 The universe rings with her fame ;
 But the cries of the fatherless mix with her
 praise,
 And the tears of the widow are shed on her bays.

O Britain, dear Britain ! the land of my birth ;
 O Isle most enchantingly fair !
 Thou Pearl of the Ocean ! thou Gem of the Earth !

O my Mother, my Mother, beware,
 For wealth is a phantom, and empire a snare !
 O, let not thy birthright be sold
 For reprobate glory and gold !
 Thy distant dominions like wild graftings shoot,
 They weigh down thy trunk, they will tear up thy root, —

The root of thine oak, O my country ! that stands
 Rock-planted and flourishing free ;
 Its branches are stretched o'er the uttermost lands,
 And its shadow eclipses the sea.
 The blood of our ancestors nourished the tree ;

From their tombs, from their ashes, it sprung ;
 Its boughs with their trophies are hung ;
 Their spirit dwells in it, and — hark ! for it spoke,

The voice of our fathers ascends from their oak :

“Ye Britons, who dwell where we conquered of old,

Who inherit our battle-field graves ;
 Though poor were your fathers, — gigantic and bold,

We were not, we could not be, slaves ;
 But firm as our rocks, and as free as our waves,
 The spears of the Romans we broke,
 We never stooped under their yoke.

In the shipwreck of nations we stood up alone, —
 The world was great Caesar's, but Britain our own.”

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

HAMPTON BEACH.

THE sunlight glitters keen and bright,
 Where, miles away,
 Lies stretching to my dazzled sight
 A luminous belt, a misty light,
 Beyond the dark pine bluffs and wastes of sandy
 gray.

The tremulous shadow of the Sea !
 Against its ground
 Of silvery light, rock, hill, and tree,
 Still as a picture, clear and free,
 With varying outline mark the coast for miles around.

On — on — we tread with loose-flung rein
 Our seaward way,
 Through dark-green fields and blossoming grain,
 Where the wild brier-rose skirts the lane,
 And bends above our heads the flowering locust
 spray.

Ha ! like a kind hand on my brow
 Comes this fresh breeze,
 Cooling its dull and feverish glow,
 While through my being seems to flow
 The breath of a new life, — the healing of the seas !

Now rest we, where this grassy mound
 His feet hath set
 In the great waters, which have bound
 His granite ankles greenly round
 With long and tangled moss, and weeds with cool spray wet.

Good-by to pain and care ! I take
 Mine ease to-day ;
 Here, where the sunny waters break,
 And ripples this keen breeze, I shake
 All burdens from the heart, all weary thoughts
 away.

I draw a freer breath — I seem Like all I see —
 Waves in the sun — the white-winged gleam
 Of sea-birds in the slanting beam —
 And far-off sails which flit before the south-wind
 free.

So when Time's veil shall fall asunder,
 The soul may know
 No fearful change, nor sudden wonder,
 Nor sink the weight of mystery under,
 But with the upward rise, and with the vastness
 grow.

And all we shrink from now may seem
 No new revealing, —
 Familiar as our childhood's stream,
 Or pleasant memory of a dream,
 The loved and cherished Past upon the new life stealing.

Serene and mild, the untried light
 May have its dawning ;
 And, as in summer's northern night
 The evening and the dawn unite,
 The sunset hues of Time blend with the soul's new morning.

I sit alone ; in foam and spray
 Wave after wave
 Breaks on the rocks which, stern and gray,
 Shoulder the broken tide away,
 Or murmurs hoarse and strong through mossy
 cleft and cave.

What heed I of the dusty land
 And noisy town ?
 I see the mighty deep expand
 From its white line of glimmering sand
 To where the blue of heaven on bluer waves shuts down !

In listless quietude of mind,
 I yield to all
 The change of cloud and wave and wind ;
 And passive on the flood reclined,
 I wander with the waves, and with them rise and fall.

But look, thou dreamer ! — wave and shore
 In shadow lie ;
 The night-wind warns me back once more

To where, my native hill-tops o'er,
 Bends like an arch of fire the glowing sunset
 sky !

So then, beach, bluff, and wave, farewell !
 I bear with me
 No token stone nor glittering shell,
 But long and oft shall Memory tell
 Of this brief thoughtful hour of musing by the Sea.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

TWILIGHT AT SEA.

THE twilight hours, like birds, flew by,
 As lightly and as free,
 Ten thousand stars were in the sky,
 Ten thousand on the sea ;
 For every wave, with dimpled face,
 That leaped upon the air,
 Had caught a star in its embrace,
 And held it trembling there.

AMELIA B. WELBY.

OCEAN.

FROM "THE COURSE OF TIME," BOOK I.

GREAT Ocean ! strongest of creation's sons,
 Unconquerable, unrepoused, untired,
 That rolled the wild, profound, eternal bass
 In nature's anthem, and made music such
 As pleased the ear of God ! original,
 Unmarred, unfaded work of Deity !
 And unburlesqued by mortal's puny skill ;
 From age to age enduring, and unchanged,
 Majestic, inimitable, vast,
 Loud uttering satire, day and night, on each
 Succeeding race, and little pompous work
 Of man ; unfallen, religious, holy sea !
 Thou bowedst thy glorious head to none, fearedst
 none,
 Heardst none, to none didst honor, but to God
 Thy Maker, only worthy to receive
 Thy great obeisance.

ROBERT POLLON.

THE SEA.

BEHOLD the Sea,

The opaline, the plentiful and strong,
 Yet beautiful as is the rose in June,
 Fresh as the trickling rainbow of July :
 Sea full of food, the nourisher of kinds,
 Purger of earth, and medicine of men ;
 Creating a sweet climate by my breath,
 Washing out harms and griefs from memory,
 And, in my mathematic ebb and flow,

Giving a hint of that which changes not.
 Rich are the sea-gods : — who gives gifts but they ?
 They grope the sea for pearls, but more than pearls :
 They pluck Force thence, and give it to the wise.
 For every wave is wealth to Dædalus,
 Wealth to the cunning artist who can work
 This matchless strength. Where shall he find,
 O waves !

A load your Atlas shoulders cannot lift ?

I with my hammer pounding evermore
 The rocky coast, smite Andes into dust,
 Strewing my bed, and, in another age,
 Rebuild a continent of better men.
 Then I unbar the doors : my paths lead out
 The exodus of nations : I disperse
 Men to all shores that front the hoary main.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON

THE DISAPPOINTED LOVER.

FROM "THE TRIUMPH OF TIME."

I WILL go back to the great sweet mother —
 Mother and lover of men, the Sea.
 I will go down to her, I and none other,
 Close with her, kiss her, and mix her with me ;
 Cling to her, strive with her, hold her fast.
 O fair white mother, in days long past
 Born without sister, born without brother,
 Set free my soul as thy soul is free.

O fair green-girdled mother of mine,
 Sea, that art clothed with the sun and the rain,
 Thy sweet hard kisses are strong like wine,
 Thy large embraces are keen like pain.
 Save me and hide me with all thy waves,
 Find me one grave of thy thousand graves,
 Those pure cold populous graves of thine, —
 Wrought without hand in a world without stain.

I shall sleep, and move with the moving ships,
 Change as the winds change, veer in the tide ;
 My lips will feast on the foam of thy lips,
 I shall rise with thy rising, with thee subside ;
 Sleep, and not know if she be, if she were, —
 Filled full with life to the eyes and hair,
 As a rose is full filled to the rose-leaf tips
 With splendid summer and perfume and pride.

This woven raiment of nights and days,
 Were it once cast off and unwound from me,
 Naked and glad would I walk in thy ways,
 Alive and aware of thy waves and thee ;
 Clear of the whole world, hidden at home,
 Clothed with the green, and crowned with the foam,

A pulse of the life of thy straits and bays,
 A vein in the heart of the streams of the Sea.

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE.

DOVER BEACH.

THE sea is calm to-night,
 The tide is full, the moon lies fair
 Upon the Straits ; — on the French coast, the light
 Gleams and is gone ; the cliffs of England stand,
 Glimmering and vast, out in the tranquil bay.
 Come to the window ; sweet is the night air !
 Only, from the long line of spray
 Where the ebb meets the moon-blanch'd sand,
 Listen ! you hear the grating roar
 Of pebbles which the waves suck back, and fling,
 At their return, up the high strand.
 Begin and cease, and then again begin,
 With tremulous cadence slow, and bring
 The eternal note of sadness in.

MATTHEW ARNOLD.

ADDRESS TO THE OCEAN.

O THOU vast Ocean ! ever-sounding Sea !
 Thou symbol of a drear immensity !
 Thou thing that windest round the solid world
 Like a huge animal, which, downward hurled
 From the black clouds, lies weltering and alone,
 Lashing and writhing till its strength be gone !
 Thy voice is like the thunder, and thy sleep
 Is as a giant's slumber, loud and deep.
 Thou speakest in the east and in the west
 At once, and on thy heavily laden breast
 Fleets come and go, and shapes that have no life
 Or motion, yet are moved and meet in strife.
 The earth has naught of this : no chance or change

Ruffles its surface, and no spirits dare
 Give answer to the tempest-wakened air ;
 But o'er its wastes the weakly tenants range
 At will, and wound its bosom as they go :
 Ever the same, it hath no ebb, no flow :
 But in their stated rounds the seasons come,
 And pass like visions to their wonted home ;
 And come again, and vanish ; the young Spring
 Looks ever bright with leaves and blossoming ;
 And Winter always winds his sullen horn,
 When the wild Autumn, with a look forlorn,
 Dies in his stormy manhood ; and the skies
 Weep, and flowers sicken, when the summer flies.
 O, wonderful thou art, great element,
 And fearful in thy spleeny humors bent,
 And lovely in repose ! thy summer form
 Is beautiful, and when thy silver waves
 Make music in earth's dark and winding caves,
 I love to wander on thy pebbled beach,
 Marking the sunlight at the evening hour,
 And hearken to the thoughts thy waters teach, —
 Eternity — Eternity — and Power.

BRYAN WALLER PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

ON THE LOSS OF THE ROYAL GEORGE.

WRITTEN WHEN THE NEWS ARRIVED : 1782.

Toll for the brave, —
The brave that are no more !
All sunk beneath the wave,
Fast by their native shore.

Eight hundred of the brave,
Whose courage well was tried,
Had made the vessel heel,
And laid her on her side.

A land-breeze shook the shrouds,
And she was overset ;
Down went the Royal George,
With all her crew complete.

Toll for the brave !
Brave Kempenfelt is gone ;
His last sea-fight is fought,
His work of glory done.

It was not in the battle ;
No tempest gave the shock ;
She sprang no fatal leak ;
She ran upon no rock.

His sword was in its sheath,
His fingers held the pen,
When Kempenfelt went down
With twice four hundred men.

Weigh the vessel up,
Once dreaded by our foes !
And mingle with our cup
The tear that England owes.

Her timbers yet are sound,
And she may float again,
Full charged with England's thunder,
And plough the distant main.

But Kempenfelt is gone ;
His victories are o'er ;
And he and his eight hundred
Shall plough the wave no more.

WILLIAM COWPER.

THE SHIPWRECK.

IN vain the cords and axes were prepared,
For now the audacious seas insult the yard ;
High o'er the ship they throw a horrid shade,
And o'er her burst in terrible cascade.
Uplifted on the surge, to heaven she flies,
Her shattered top half buried in the skies,

Then headlong plunging thunders on the ground ;
Earth groans ! air trembles ! and the deeps re-
sound !

Her giant-bulk the dread concussion feels,
And quivering with the wound in torment reels.
So reels, convulsed with agonizing throes,
The bleeding bull beneath the murderer's blows.
Again she plunges ! hark ! a second shock
Tears her strong bottom on the marble rock :
Down on the vale of death, with dismal cries,
The fated victims, shuddering, roll their eyes
In wild despair ; while yet another stroke,
With deep convulsion, rends the solid oak ;
Till like the mine, in whose infernal cell
The lurking demons of destruction dwell,
At length asunder torn her frame divides,
And, crashing, spreads in ruin o'er the tides.
O, were it mine with tuneful Maro's art

To wake to sympathy the feeling heart ;
Like him the smooth and mournful verse to dress
In all the pomp of exquisite distress,
Then too severely taught by cruel fate,
To share in all the perils I relate,
Then might I with unrivalled strains deplore
The impervious horrors of a leeward shore !

As o'er the surge the stooping mainmast hung,
Still on the rigging thirty seamen clung ;
Some, struggling, on a broken crag were cast,
And there by oozy tangles grappled fast.
Awhile they bore the o'erwhelming billows' rage,
Unequal combat with their fate to wage ;
Till, all benumbed and feeble, they forego
Their slippery hold, and sink to shades below.
Some, from the main-yard-arm impetuous thrown
On marble ridges, die without a groan.
Three with Palemon on their skill depend,
And from the wreck on bars and rafts descend.
Now on the mountain wave on high they ride,
Then downward plunge beneath the involving tide,

Till one, who seems in agony to strive,
The whirling breakers heave on shore alive ;
The rest a speedier end of anguish knew,
And pressed the stony beach, a lifeless crew !

WILLIAM FALCONER.

THE SEA FIGHT.

AS TOLD BY AN ANCIENT MARINER.

AH, yes, — the fight ! Well, messmates, well,
I served on board that Ninety-eight ;
Yet what I saw I loathe to tell.
To-night be sure a crushing weight
Upon my sleeping breast, a hell
Of dread, will sit. At any rate,
Though land-locked here, a watch I'll keep, —
Grog cheers us still. Who cares for sleep ?

That Ninety-eight I sailed on board ;
 Along the Frenchman's coast we flew ;
 Right aft the rising tempest roared ;
 A noble first-rate hove in view ;
 And soon high in the gale there soared
 Her streamed-out bunting, — red, white, blue !
 We cleared for fight, and landward bore,
 To get between the chase and shore.

Masters, I cannot spin a yarn
 Twice laid with words of silken stuff.
 A fact 's a fact ; and ye may learn
 The rights o' this, though wild and rough
 My words may loom. 'T is your consarn,
 Not mine, to understand. Enough ;
 We neared the Frenchman where he lay,
 And as we neared, he blazed away.

We tacked, hove to ; we filled, we wore ;
 Did all that seamanship could do
 To take him aft, or by the fore, —
 Now rounded off, and now broached to ;
 And now our starboard broadside bore,
 And showers of iron through and through
 His vast hull hissed ; our larboard then
 Swept from his threefold decks his men.

As we, like a huge serpent, toiled,
 And wound about, through that wild sea,
 The Frenchman each manœuvre foiled,
 'Vantage to neither there could be.
 Whilst thus the waves between us boiled,
 We both resolved right manfully
 To fight it side by side ; — began
 Then the fierce strife of man to man.

Gun bellows forth to gun, and pain
 Rings out her wild, delirious scream !
 Redoubling thunders shake the main ;
 Loud crashing, falls the shot-rent beam.
 The timbers with the broadsides strain ;
 The slippery decks send up a steam
 From hot and living blood, and high
 And shrill is heard the death-pang cry.

The shredded limb, the splintered bone,
 The unstiffened corpse, now block the way !
 Who now can hear the dying groan ?
 The trumpet of the judgment-day,
 Had it pealed forth its mighty tone,
 We should not then have heard, — to say
 Would be rank sin ; but this I tell,
 That could alone our madness quell.

Upon the forecastle I fought
 As captain of the for'ad gun.
 A scattering shot the carriage caught !
 What mother then had known her son

Of those who stood around ? — distraught,
 And smeared with gore, about they run,
 Then fall, and writhe, and howling die !
 But one escaped, — that one was I !

Night darkened round, and the storm pealed ;
 To windward of us lay the foe.
 As he to leeward over keeled,
 He could not fight his guns below ;
 So just was going to strike, — when reeled
 Our vessel, as if some vast blow
 From an Almighty hand had rent
 The huge ship from her element.

Then howled the thunder. Tumult then
 Had stunned herself to silence. Round
 Were scattered lightning-blasted men !
 Our mainmast went. All stifled, drowned,
 Arose the Frenchman's shout. Again
 The bolt burst on us, and we found
 Our masts all gone, — our decks all riven :
 Man's war mocks faintly that of heaven !

Just then, — nay, messmates, laugh not now, —
 As I, amazed, one minute stood
 Amidst that rout, — I know not how.
 'T was silence all, — the raving flood,
 The guns that pealed from stem to bow,
 And God's own thunder, — nothing could
 I then of all that tumult hear,
 Or see aught of that scene of fear, —

My aged mother at her door
 Sat mildly o'er her humming wheel ;
 The cottage, orchard, and the moor, —
 I saw them plainly all. I'll kneel,
 And swear I saw them ! O, they wore
 A look all peace ! Could I but feel
 Again that bliss that then I felt,
 That made my heart, like childhood's, melt !

The blessed tear was on my cheek,
 She smiled with that old smile I know :
 "Turn to me, mother, turn and speak,"
 Was on my quivering lips, — when lo !
 All vanished, and a dark, red streak
 Glared wild and vivid from the foe,
 That flashed upon the blood-stained water, —
 For fore and aft the flames had caught her.

She struck and hailed us. On us fast
 All burning, helplessly, she came, —
 Near, and more near ; and not a mast
 Had we to help us from that flame.
 'T was then the bravest stood aghast, —
 'T was then the wicked on the name
 (With danger and with guilt appalled)
 Of God, too long neglected, called.

The eddying flames with ravening tongue
 Now on our ship's dark bulwarks dash, —
 We almost touched, — when ocean rung
 Down to its depths with one loud crash !
 In heaven's top vault one instant hung
 The vast, intense, and blinding flash !
 Then all was darkness, stillness, dread, —
 The wave moaned o'er the valiant dead.

She's gone ! blown up ! that gallant foe !
 And though she left us in a plight,
 We floated still ; long were, I know,
 And hard, the labors of that night
 To clear the wreck. At length in tow
 A frigate took us, when 't was light ;
 And soon an English port we gained, —
 A hulk all battered and blood-stained.

So many slain, — so many drowned !
 I like not of that fight to tell.
 Come, let the cheerful grog go round !
 Messmates, I've done. A spell, ho ! spell, —
 Though a pressed man, I'll still be found
 To do a seaman's duty well.
 I wish our brother landsmen knew
 One half we jolly tars go through.

ANONYMOUS.

CASABIANCA.

[Young Casabianca, a boy about thirteen years old, son of the Admiral of the Orient, remained at his post (in the Battle of the Nile) after the ship had taken fire and all the guns had been abandoned, and perished in the explosion of the vessel, when the flames had reached the powder.]

THE boy stood on the burning deck,
 Whence all but him had fled ;
 The flame that lit the battle's wreck
 Shone round him o'er the dead.

Yet beautiful and bright he stood,
 As born to rule the storm ;
 A creature of heroic blood,
 A proud though childlike form.

The flames rolled on ; he would not go
 Without his father's word ;
 That father, faint in death below,
 His voice no longer heard.

He called aloud, " Say, father, say,
 If yet my task be done !"
 He knew not that the chieftain lay
 Unconscious of his son.

" Speak, father !" once again he cried,
 " If I may yet be gone !"
 And but the booming shots replied,
 And fast the flames rolled on.

Upon his brow he felt their breath,
 And in his waving hair,
 And looked from that lone post of death
 In still yet brave despair ;

And shouted but once more aloud,
 " My father ! must I stay ?"
 While o'er him fast, through sail and shroud,
 The wreathing fires made way.

They wrapt the ship in splendor wild,
 They caught the flag on high,
 And streamed above the gallant child,
 Like banners in the sky.

There came a burst of thunder sound ;
 The boy, — Oh ! where was he ?
 Ask of the winds, that far around
 With fragments strewn the sea, —

With shroud and mast and pennon fair,
 That well had borne their part, —
 But the noblest thing that perished there
 Was that young, faithful heart.

ETHELIA HUMANS.

THE MARINER'S DREAM.

IN slumbers of midnight the sailor-boy lay ;
 His hammock swung loose at the sport of the wind ;

But watch-worn and weary, his cares flew away,
 And visions of happiness danced o'er his mind.

He dreamt of his home, of his dear native
 bowers,
 And pleasures that waited on life's merry
 morn ;
 While Memory stood sideways, half covered with flowers,
 And restored every rose, but secreted its thorn.

Then Fancy her magical pinions spread wide,
 And bade the young dreamer in ecstasy rise ;
 Now far, far behind him the green waters glide,
 And the cot of his forefathers blesses his eyes.

The jessamine clammers in flowers o'er the thatch,
 And the swallow chirps sweet from her nest in the wall ;
 All trembling with transport he raises the latch,
 And the voices of loved ones reply to his call.

A father bends o'er him with looks of delight ;
 His cheek is imperaled with a mother's warm tear ;
 And the lips of the boy in a love-kiss unite
 With the lips of the maid whom his bosom holds dear.

The heart of the sleeper beats high in his breast :
Joy quickens his pulse, all his hardships seem o'er ;

And a murmur of happiness steals through his rest, —

“O God ! thou hast blest me, I ask for no
more.”

Ah ! whence is that flame which now bursts on his eye ?

Ah ! what is that sound which now laments his ear ?

’Tis the lightning’s red glare, painting hell on the sky !

’Tis the crash of the thunder, the groan of the sphere !

He springs from his hammock, he flies to the deck ;

Amazement confronts him with images dire ;
Wild winds and mad waves drive the vessel a
wreck ;

The masts fly in splinters ; the shrouds are on fire.

Like mountains the billows tremendously swell ;

In vain the lost wretch calls on mercy to save ;
Unseen hands of spirits are ringing his knell,

And the death-angel flaps his broad wing o’er
the wave !

O sailor-boy, woe to thy dream of delight !

In darkness dissolves the gay frost-work of bliss.

Where now is the picture that Fancy touched bright, —

Thy parents’ fond pressure, and love’s honeyed kiss ?

O sailor-boy ! sailor-boy ! never again

Shall home, love, or kindred thy wishes repay ;
Unblessed and unhonored, down deep in the main,

Full many a fathom, thy frame shall decay.

No tomb shall e’er plead to remembrance for
thee,

Or redeem form or fame from the merciless surge ;

But the white foam of waves shall thy winding-sheet be,

And winds in the midnight of winter thy dirge !

On a bed of green sea-flowers thy limbs shall be laid, —

Around thy white bones the red coral shall grow ;

Of thy fair yellow locks threads of amber be
made,

And every part suit to thy mansion below.

Days, months, years, and ages shall circle away,
And still the vast waters above thee shall roll ;

Earth loses thy pattern forever and aye,

O sailor-boy ! sailor-boy ! peace to thy soul !

WILLIAM DIMOND.

POOR JACK.

Go, patter to lubbers and swabs, do ye see,

’Bout danger, and fear, and the like ;

A tight-water boat and good sea-room give me,

And it a’n’t to a little I’ll strike.

Though the tempest topgallant-masts smack smooth should smite,

And shiver each splinter of wood,

Clear the deck, stow the yards, and bouse everything tight,

And under reefed foresail we’ll scud :

Avast ! nor don’t think me a milksop so soft

To be taken for trifles aback ;

For they say there’s a Providence sits up aloft,

To keep watch for the life of poor Jack !

I heard our good chaplain, palaver one day

About souls, heaven, mercy, and such ;

And, my timbers ! what lingo he’d coil and belay ;

Why, ’t was just all as one as High Dutch ;

For he said how a sparrow can’t founder, d’ye see,

Without orders that come down below ;

And a many fine things that proved clearly to me

That Providence takes us in tow :

“For,” says he, do you mind me, “let storms e’er so oft

Take the topsails of sailors aback,

There’s a sweet little cherub that sits up aloft,

To keep watch for the life of poor Jack !”

I said to our Poll, — for, d’ye see, she would cry, —

When last we weighed anchor for sea,

“What argufies snivelling and piping your eye ?

Why, what a blamed fool you must be !

Can’t you see, the world’s wide, and there’s room for us all,

Both for seamen and lubbers ashore ?

And if to old Davy I should go, friend Poll,

You never will hear of me more.

What then ? All’s a hazard : come, don’t be so soft :

Perhaps I may laughing come back ;

For, d’ye see, there’s a cherub sits smiling aloft,

To keep watch for the life of poor Jack !”

D'ye mind me, a sailor should be every inch
 All as one as a piece of the ship,
 And with her brave the world, not offering to flinch
 From the moment the anchor's a-trip.
 As for me, in all weathers, all times, sides, and ends,
 Naught's a trouble from duty that springs,
 For my heart is my Poll's, and my rhino's my friend's,
 And as for my will, 't is the king's.
 Even when my time comes, ne'er believe me so soft
 As for grief to be taken aback ;
 For the same little cherub that sits up aloft
 Will look out a good berth for poor Jack !

CHARLES DIBDIN.

NAPOLEON AND THE BRITISH SAILOR.

I LOVE contemplating — apart
 From all his homicidal glory —
 The traits that soften to our heart
 Napoleon's glory !

'T was when his banners at Boulogne
 Armed in our island every freeman,
 His navy chanced to capture one
 Poor British seaman.

They suffered him — I know not how —
 Unprisoned on the shore to roam ;
 And aye was bent his longing brow
 On England's home.

His eye, methinks ! pursued the flight
 Of birds to Britain half-way over ;
 With envy they could reach the white
 Dear cliffs of Dover.

A stormy midnight watch, he thought,
 Than this sojourn would have been dearer,
 If but the storm his vessel brought To England nearer.

At last, when care had banished sleep,
 He saw one morning, dreaming, doting,
 An empty hogshcad from the deep
 Come shoreward floating ;

He hid it in a cave, and wrought
 The livelong day laborious ; lurking
 Until he launched a tiny boat
 By mighty working.

Heaven help us ! 't was a thing beyond
 Description wretched ; such a wherry
 Perhaps ne'er ventured on a pond,
 Or crossed a ferry.

For, ploughing in the salt-sea field,
 It would have made the boldest shudder ;
 Untarred, uncompassed, and unkeeled, —
 No sail, no rudder.

From neighboring woods he interlaced
 His sorry skill with wattled willows ;
 And thus equipped he would have passed
 The foaming billows, —

But Frenchmen caught him on the beach,
 His little Argo sorely jeering ;
 Till tidings of him chanced to reach
 Napoleon's hearing.

With folded arms Napoleon stood,
 Serene alike in peace and danger ;
 And, in his wonted attitude,
 Addressed the stranger : —

"Rash man, that wouldst you Channel pass
 On twigs and staves so rudely fashioned,
 Thy heart withsome sweet British lass
 Must be impassioned."

"I have no sweetheart," said the lad ;
 "But — absent long from one another —
 Great was the longing that I had
 To see my mother."

"And so thou shalt," Napoleon said,
 "Ye've both my favor fairly won ;
 A noble mother must have bled
 So brave a son."

He gave the tar a piece of gold,
 And, with a flag of truce, commanded
 He should be shipped to England Old,
 And safely landed.

Our sailor oft could scarcely shift
 To find a dinner, plain and hearty,
 But never changed the coin and gift
 Of Bonaparte.

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

HOW'S MY BOY ?

"Ho, sailor of the sea !
 How's my boy — my boy ?"
 "What's your boy's name, good wife,
 And in what ship sailed he ?"

"My boy John —
 He that went to sea —
 What care I for the ship, sailor ?
 My boy's my boy to me

Robert Browning,

"You come back from sea,
And not know my John?
I might as well have asked some landsman,
Yonder down in the town.
There's not an ass in all the parish
But he knows my John.

"How's my boy — my boy?
And unless you let me know,
I'll swear you are no sailor,
Blue jacket or no,
Brass buttons or no, sailor,
Anchor and crown or no!
Sure his ship was the 'Jolly Briton' —
"Speak low, woman, speak low!"

"And why should I speak low, sailor,
About my own boy John?
If I was loud as I am proud
I'd sing him over the town!
Why should I speak low, sailor?"
"That good ship went down."

"How's my boy — my boy?
What care I for the ship, sailor?
I was never aboard her.
Be she afloat or be she aground,
Sinking or swimming, I'll be bound
Her owners can afford her!
I say, how's my John?"
"Every man on board went down,
Every man aboard her."

"How's my boy — my boy?
What care I for the men, sailor?
I'm not their mother —
How's my boy — my boy?
Tell me of him and no other!
How's my boy — my boy?"

SYDNEY DOBELL.

HERVÉ RIEL.

On the sea and at the Hogue, sixteen hundred ninety-two,
Did the English fight the French, — woe to France!
And, the thirty-first of May, helter-skelter
through the blue,
Like a crowd of frightened porpoises a shoal of sharks pursue,
Came crowding ship on ship to St. Malo on the Rance,
With the English fleet in view.

'T was the squadron that escaped, with the victor in full chase,
First and foremost of the drove, in his great ship, Damfreville;
Close on him fled, great and small,
Twenty-two good ships in all;
And they signalled to the place,
"Help the winners of a race!"
Get us guidance, give us harbor, take us quick,
— or, quicker still,
Here's the English can and will!"

Then the pilots of the place put out brisk and leaped on board.
"Why, what hope or chance have ships like these to pass?" laughed they;
"Rocks to starboard, rocks to port, all the passage scarred and scored,
Shall the Formidable here, with her twelve and eighty guns,
Think to make the river-mouth by the single narrow way,
Trust to enter where 't is ticklish for a craft of twenty tons,
And with flow at full beside?
Now 't is slackest ebb of tide.
Reach the mooring? Rather say,
While rock stands or water runs,
Not a ship will leave the bay!"

Then was called a council straight;
Brief and bitter the debate:
"Here's the English at our heels; would you have them take in tow
All that's left us of the fleet, linked together
stern and bow,
For a prize to Plymouth Sound?
Better run the ships aground!"
(Ended Damfreville his speech.)
"Not a minute more to wait!
Let the captains all and each Shove ashore, then blow up, burn the vessels on the beach!
France must undergo her fate."

"Give the word!" But no such word
Was ever spoke or heard;
For up stood, for out stepped, for in struck amid all these,
A captain? A lieutenant? A mate, — first, second, third?
No such man of mark, and meet
With his betters to compete!
But a simple Breton sailor pressed by Tourville for the fleet, —
A poor coasting-pilot he, Hervé Riel the Croi-sickese.

And "What mockery or malice have we here?"
cries Hervé Riel;
"Are you mad, you Malouins? Are you cowards, fools, or rogues?
Talk to me of rocks and shoals, me who took the soundings, tell
On my fingers every bank, every shallow, every swell
"Twixt the offing here and Greve, where the river disembogues?
Are you bought by English gold? Is it love the lying's for?
Morn and eve, night and day,
Have I piloted your bay,
Entered free and anchored fast at the foot of Solidor,
Burn the fleet, and ruin France? That were worse than fifty Hogue's!
Sirs, they know I speak the truth! Sirs, believe me, there's a way!
Only let me lead the line,
Have the biggest ship to steer,
Get this Formidable clear,
Make the others follow mine,
And I lead them most and least by a passage I know well,
Right to Solidor, past Greve,
And there lay them safe and sound;
And if one ship misbehave, —
Keel so much as grate the ground, —
Why, I've nothing but my life; here's my head!" cries Hervé Riel.
Not a minute more to wait.
"Steer us in, then, small and great!
Take the helm, lead the line, save the squadron!" cried its chief.
Captains, give the sailor place!
He is Admiral, in brief.
Still the north-wind, by God's grace.
See the noble fellow's face
As the big ship, with a bound,
Clears the entry like a hound,
Keeps the passage as its inch of way were the wide sea's profound!
See, safe through shoal and rock,
How they follow in a flock.
Not a ship that misbehaves, not a keel that grates the ground,
Not a spar that comes to grief!
The peril, see, is past,
All are harbored to the last;
And just as Hervé Riel halloos "Anchor!" — sure as fate,
Up the English come, too late.
So the storm subsides to calm;
They see the green trees wave
On the heights o'erlooking Greve:

Hearts that bled are stanch'd with balm.
"Just our rapture to enhance,
Let the English rake the bay,
Gnash their teeth and glare askance
As they cannonade away!
'Neath rampired Solidor pleasant riding on the Rance!"
How hope succeeds despair on each captain's countenance!
Outburst all with one accord,
"This is Paradise for Hell!
Let France, let France's King
Thank the man that did the thing!"
What a shout, and all one word,
"Hervé Riel,"
As he stepped in front once more,
Not a symptom of surprise
In the frank blue Breton eyes,
Just the same man as before.

Then said Damfreville, "My friend,
I must speak out at the end,
Though I find the speaking hard:
Praise is deeper than the lips;
You have saved the king his ships,
You must name your own reward.
Faith, our sun was near eclipse!
Demand whatever you will,
France remains your debtor still.
Ask to heart's content, and have! or my name's not Damfreville."

Then a beam of fun outbroke
On the bearded mouth that spoke,
As the honest heart laughed through
Those frank eyes of Breton blue:
"Since I needs must say my say,
Since on board the duty's done,
And from Malo Roads to Croisic Point, what is it but a run?
Since 't is ask and have I may, —
Since the others go ashore, —
Come! A good whole holiday!
Leave to go and see my wife, whom I call the Belle Aurore!"
That he asked, and that he got, — nothing more.

Name and deed alike are lost;
Not a pillar nor a post
In his Croisic keeps alive the feat as it befell;
Not a head in white and black
On a single fishing-smack
In memory of the man but for whom had gone to wrack
All that France saved from the fight whence
England bore the bell.
Go to Paris; rank on rank
Search the heroes flung pell-mell

On the Louvre, face and flank ;

You shall look long enough ere you come to Hervé Riel.

So, for better and for worse,

Hervé Riel, accept my verse !

In my verse, Hervé Riel, do thou once more

Save the squadron, honor France, love thy wife
the Belle Aurore.

ROBERT BROWNING.

TACKING SHIP OFF SHORE.

THE weather leach of the topsail shivers,

The bowlines strain and the lee shrouds slacken,

The braces are taut and the lithe boom quivers,

And the waves with the coming squall-cloud blacken.

Open one point on the weather bow

Is the light-house tall on Fire Island Head ;

There's a shade of doubt on the captain's brow,

And the pilot watches the heaving lead.

I stand at the wheel and with eager eye

To sea and to sky and to shore I gaze,

Till the muttered order of "FULL AND BY!"

Is suddenly changed to "FULL FOR STAYS!"

The ship bends lower before the breeze,

As her broadside fair to the blast she lays ;

And she swifter springs to the rising sea

As the pilot calls, "STAND BY FOR STAYS!"

It is silence all, as each in his place,

With the gathered coils in his hardened hands,

By tack and bowline, by sheet and brace,

Waiting the watchword impatient stands.

And the light on Fire Island Head draws near,

As, trumpet-winged, the pilot's shout

From his post on the bowsprit's heel I hear,

With the welcome call of "READY! ABOUT!"

No time to spare ! it is touch and go,

And the captain growls, "DOWN HELM ! HARD
DOWN !"

As my weight on the whirling spokes I throw,

While heaven grows black with the stormcloud's frown.

High o'er the knight-heads flies the spray,

As we meet the shock of the plunging sea ;

And my shoulder stiff to the wheel I lay, —

As I answer, "AY, AY, SIR ! HARD A LEE !"

With the swerving leap of a startled steed

The ship flies fast in the eye of the wind,

The dangerous shoals on the lee recede,

And the headland white we have left behind.

The topsails flutter, the jibs collapse

And belly and tug at the groaning cleats ;

The spanker slaps and the mainsail flaps,

And thunders the order, "TACKS AND SHEETS!"

Mid the rattle of blocks and the tramp of the CREW

Hisses the rain of the rushing squall ;

The sails are aback from clew to clew,

And now is the moment for "MAINSAIL, HAUL !"

And the heavy yards like a baby's toy

By fifty strong arms are swiftly swung ;

She holds her way, and I look with joy

For the first white spray o'er the bulwarks flung.

"LET GO, AND HAUL !" 't is the last command,

And the head-sails fill to the blast once more ;

Astern and to leeward lies the land,

With its breakers white on the shingly shore.

What matters the reef, or the rain, or the squall ?

I steady the helm for the open sea ;

The first-mate clamors, "BELAY THERE, ALL !"

And the captain's breath once more comes free.

And so off shore let the good ship fly ;

Little care I how the gusts may blow,

In my fo'castle-bunk in a jacket dry, —

Eight bells have struck, and my watch is below.

WALTER F. MITCHELL.

THE TREASURES OF THE DEEP.

WHAT hid'st thou in thy treasure-caves and cells ?

Thou hollow-sounding and mysterious main ! —

Pale glistening pearls and rainbow-colored shells,

Bright things which gleam unrecked of and in vain ! —

Keep, keep thy riches, melancholy sea !

We ask not such from thee.

Yet more, the depths have more ! — what wealth
untold,

Far down, and shining through their stillness lies !

Thou hast the starry gems, the burning gold,

Won from ten thousand royal argosies ! —

Sweep o'er thy spoils, thou wild and wrathful
main !

Earth claims not these again.

Yet more, the depths have more ! — thy waves have rolled
Above the cities of a world gone by !
Sand hath filled up the palaces of old,
Sea-weed o'ergrown the halls of revelry.
Dash o'er them, Ocean, in thy scornful play !
Man yields them to decay.

Yet more, the billows and the depths have more !
High hearts and brave are gathered to thy breast !

They hear not now the booming waters roar,
The battle-thunders will not break their rest. —
Keep thy red gold and gems, thou stormy grave !
Give back the true and brave !

Give back the lost and lovely ! — those for whom
The place was kept at board and hearth so long !
The prayer went up through midnight's breathless gloom,

And the vain yearning woke midst festal song !
Hold fast thy buried isles, thy towers o'er-thrown, —
But all is not thine own.

To thee the love of woman hath gone down,
Dark flow thy tides o'er manhood's noble head,
O'er youth's bright locks, and beauty's flowery
crown ;

Yet must thou hear a voice, — Restore the dead !
Earth shall reclaim her precious things from
thee ! —
Restore the dead, thou sea !

FELICIA HEMANS

"OLD IRONSIDES."

[Written with reference to the proposed breaking up of the famous
U. S. frigate "Constitution."]]

AY, tear her tattered ensign down !
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky ;
Beneath it rung the battle-shout,
And burst the cannon's roar ;
The meteor of the ocean air
Shall sweep the clouds no more !

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee :
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea !

O better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave !
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave :
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale !

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE INCHCAPE ROCK.

No stir in the air, no stir in the sea, —
The ship was as still as she could be ;
Her sails from heaven received no motion ;
Her keel was steady in the ocean.

Without either sign or sound of their shock,
The waves flowed over the Inchcape rock ;
So little they rose, so little they fell,
They did not move the Inchcape bell.

The holy Abbot of Aberbrothok
Had placed that bell on the Inchcape rock ;
On a buoy in the storm it floated and swung,
And over the waves its warning rung.

When the rock was hid by the surges' swell,
The mariners heard the warning bell ;
And then they knew the perilous rock,
And blessed the Abbot of Aberbrothok.

The sun in heaven was shining gay, —
All things were joyful on that day ;
The sea-birds screamed as they wheeled around,
And there was joyance in their sound.

The buoy of the Inchcape bell was seen,
A darker speck on the ocean green ;
Sir Ralph, the rover, walked his deck,
And he fixed his eye on the darker speck.

He felt the cheering power of spring, —
It made him whistle, it made him sing ;
His heart was mirthful to excess ;
But the rover's mirth was wickedness.

His eye was on the bell and float :
Quoth he, " My men, put out the boat ;
And row me to the Inchcape rock,
And I'll plague the priest of Aberbrothok."

The boat is lowered, the boatmen row,
And to the Inchcape rock they go ;
Sir Ralph bent over from the boat,
And cut the warning bell from the float.

Down sank the bell with a gurgling sound ;
The bubbles rose, and burst around.
Quoth Sir Ralph, "The next who comes to the rock
Will not bless the Abbot of Aberbrothok."

Sir Ralph, the rover, sailed away,
He scoured the seas for many a day ;
And now, grown rich with plundered store,
He steers his course to Scotland's shore.

So thick a haze o'erspreads the sky
They cannot see the sun on high ;
The wind hath blown a gale all day ;
At evening it hath died away.

On the deck the rover takes his stand ;
So dark it is they see no land.
Quoth Sir Ralph, "It will be lighter soon,
For there is the dawn of the rising moon."

"Canst hear," said one, "the breakers roar ?
For yonder, methinks, should be the shore.
Now where we are I cannot tell,
But I wish we could hear the Inchcape bell."

They hear no sound ; the swell is strong ;
Though the wind hath fallen, they drift along ;
Till the vessel strikes with a shivering shock, —
O Christ ! it is the Inchcape rock !

Sir Ralph, the rover, tore his hair ;
He cursed himself in his despair.
The waves rush in on every side ;
The ship is sinking beneath the tide.

But ever in his dying fear
One dreadful sound he seemed to hear, —
A sound as if with the Inchcape bell
The Devil below was ringing his knell.

ROBERT SOUTHEY.

THE THREE FISHERS.

THREE fishers went sailing out into the west, —
Out into the west as the sun went down ;
Each thought of the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town ;
For men must work, and women must weep ;
And there 's little to earn, and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the light-house tower,
And trimmed the lamps as the sun went down ;
And they looked at the squall, and they looked at the shower,
And the rack it came rolling up, ragged and brown ;

But men must work, and women must weep,
Though storms be sudden, and waters deep,
And the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are watching and wringing their hands,
For those who will never come back to the town ;
For men must work, and women must weep, —
And the sooner it 's over, the sooner to sleep, —
And good-by to the bar and its moaning.

CHARLES KINGSLEY.

THE SANDS O' DEE.

"O MARY, go and call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
Across the sands o' Dee !"
The western wind was wild and dank wi' foam,
And all alone went she.

The creeping tide came up along the sand,
And o'er and o'er the sand,
And round and round the sand,
As far as eye could see ;
The blinding mist came down and hid the land :
And never home came she.

"O, is it weed, or fish, or floating hair, —
A tress o' golden hair,
O' drownèd maiden's hair, —
Above the nets at sea ?
Was never salmon yet that shone so fair,
Among the stakes on Dee."

They rowed her in across the rolling foam, —
The cruel, crawling foam,
The cruel, hungry foam, —
To her grave beside the sea ;
But still the boatmen hear her call the cattle home
Across the sands o' Dee.

CHARLES KINGSLEY.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

The sea crashed over the grim gray rocks,
It thundered beneath the height,
It swept by reef and sandy dune,
It glittered beneath the harvest moon,
That bathed it in yellow light.

Shell, and sea-weed, and sparkling stone,
It flung on the golden sand.
Strange relics torn from its deepest caves,
Sad trophies of wild victorious waves,
It scattered upon the strand.

Spars that had looked so strong and true,
 At many a gullant launch,
 Shattered and broken, flung to the shore,
 While the tide in its wild triumphant roar
 Rang a dirge for the vessel stanch.

Petty trifles that lovers had brought
 From many a foreign clime,
 Snatched by the storm from the clinging clasp
 Of hands that the lonely will never grasp,
 While the world yet measures time.

Back, back to its depths went the ebbing tide,
 Leaving its stores to rest,
 Unsought and unseen in the silent bay,
 To be gathered again, ere close of day,
 To the ocean's mighty breast.

Kinder than man art thou, O sea ;
 Frankly we give our best,
 Truth, and hope, and love, and faith,
 Devotion that challenges time and death
 Its sterling worth to test.

We fling them down at our darling's feet,
 Indifference leaves them there.
 The careless footstep turns aside,
 Weariness, changefulness, scorn, or pride,
 Bring little of thought or care.

No tide of human feeling turns ;
 Once ebb'd, love never flows ;
 The pitiful wreckage of time and strife,
 The flotsam and jetsam of human life,
 No saving reflux knows.

ANONYMOUS.

SEA WEED.

WHEN descends on the Atlantic
 The gigantic
 Storm-wind of the equinox,
 Landward in his wrath he scourges
 The toiling surges,
 Laden with sea-weed from the rocks :

From Bermuda's reefs ; from edges
 Of sunken ledges,
 In some far-off, bright Azore ;
 From Bahama, and the dashing,
 Silver-flashing
 Surges of San Salvador ;

From the tumbling surf, that buries
 The Orkneyan skerries,
 Answering the hoarse Hebrides ;
 And from wrecks of ships, and drifting
 Spars, uplifting
 On the desolate, rainy seas ; —

Ever drifting, drifting, drifting
 On the shifting
 Currents of the restless main ;
 Till in sheltered coves, and reaches
 Of sandy beaches,
 All have found repose again.

So when storms of wild emotion
 Strike the ocean
 Of the poet's soul, erelong,
 From each cave and rocky fastness
 In its vastness,
 Floats some fragment of a song :

From the far-off isles enchanted
 Heaven has planted
 With the golden fruit of Truth ;
 From the flashing surf, whose vision
 Gleams Elysian
 In the tropic clime of Youth ;

From the strong Will, and the Endeavor
 That forever
 Wrestles with the tides of Fate ;
 From the wreck of Hopes far-scattered,
 Tempest-shattered,
 Floating waste and desolate ; —

Ever drifting, drifting, drifting
 On the shifting
 Currents of the restless heart ;
 Till at length in books recorded,
 They, like hoarded
 Household words, no more depart.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

GULF-WEED.

A WEARY weed, tossed to and fro,
 Drearly drenched in the ocean brine,
 Soaring high and sinking low,
 Lashed along without will of mine ;
 Sport of the spume of the surging sea ;
 Flung on the foam, afar and anear,
 Mark my manifold mystery, —
 Growth and grace in their place appear.

I bear round berries, gray and red,
 Rootless and rover though I be ;
 My spangled leaves, when nicely spread,
 Arborese as a trunkless tree ;
 Corals curious coat me o'er,
 White and hard in apt array ;
 Mid the wild waves' rude uproar
 Gracefully grow I, night and day.

Hearts there are on the sounding shore,
 Something whispers soft to me,
 Restless and roaming forevermore,
 Like this weary weed of the sea ;
 Bear they yet on each beating breast
 The eternal type of the wondrous whole,
 Growth unfolding amidst unrest,
 Grace informing with silent soul.

CORNELIUS GEORGE FENNER.

SEA LIFE.

FROM "THE PELICAN ISLAND."

LIGHT as a flake of foam upon the wind
 Keel-upward from the deep emerged a shell,
 Shaped like the moon ere half her horn is filled ;
 Fraught with young life, it righted as it rose,
 And moved at will along the yielding water.
 The native pilot of this little bark
 Put out a tier of oars on either side,
 Spread to the wafting breeze a twofold sail,
 And mounted up and glided down the billow
 In happy freedom, pleased to feel the air,
 And wander in the luxury of light.
 Worth all the dead creation, in that hour,
 To me appeared this lonely Nautilus,
 My fellow-being, like myself, alive.
 Entranced in contemplation, vague yet sweet,
 I watched its vagrant course and rippling wake,
 Till I forgot the sun amidst the heavens.

It closed, sunk, dwindled to a point, then nothing ;
 While the last bubble crowned the dimpling
 eddy,
 Through which mine eyes still giddily pursued it,
 A joyous creature vaulted through the air, —
 The aspiring fish that fain would be a bird,
 On long, light wings, that flung a diamond-
 shower
 Of dew-drops round its evanescent form,
 Sprang into light, and instantly descended.
 Ere I could greet the stranger as a friend,
 Or mourn his quick departure on the surge,
 A shoal of dolphins tumbling in wild glee,
 Glowed with such orient tints, they might have been

The rainbow's offspring, when it met the ocean
 In that resplendent vision I had seen.
 While yet in ecstasy I hung o'er these,
 With every motion pouring out fresh beauties,
 As though the conscious colors came and went
 At pleasure, glorying in their subtle changes, —
 Enormous o'er the flood, Leviathan
 Looked forth, and from his roaring nostrils sent
 Two fountains to the sky, then plunged amain
 In headlong pastime through the closing gulf.

These were but preludes to the revelry
 That reigned at sunset : then the deep let loose
 Its blithe adventurers to sport at large,
 As kindly instinct taught them ; buoyant shells,
 On stormless voyages, in fleets or single,
 Wherried their tiny mariners ; aloof,
 On wing-like fins, in bow-and-arrow figures,
 The flying-fishes darted to and fro ;
 While spouting whales projected watery columns,

That turned to arches at their height, and seemed
 The skeletons of crystal palaces
 Built on the blue expanse, then perishing,
 Frail as the element which they were made of ;
 Dolphins, in gambols, lent the lucid brine
 Hues richer than the canopy of eve,
 That overhung the scene with gorgeous clouds,
 Decaying into gloom more beautiful
 Than the sun's golden liveries which they lost :
 Till light that hides, and darkness that reveals
 The stars, — exchanging guard, like sentinels
 Of day and night, — transformed the face of nature :

Above was wakefulness, silence around,
 Beneath, repose, — repose that reached even me.
 Power, will, sensation, memory, failed in turn ;
 My very essence seemed to pass away,
 Like a thin cloud that melts across the moon,
 Lost in the blue immensity of heaven.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

THE CORAL INSECT.

TOIL on ! toil on ! ye ephemeral train,
 Who build in the tossing and treacherous main ;
 Toil on ! for the wisdom of man ye mock,
 With your sand-based structures and domes of
 rock,

Your columns the fathomless fountains' cave,
 And your arches spring up to the crested wave ;
 Ye're a puny race thus to boldly rear
 A fabric so vast in a realm so drear.

Ye bind the deep with your secret zone, —
 The ocean is sealed, and the surge a stone ;
 Fresh wreaths from the coral pavement spring,
 Like the terraced pride of Assyria's king ;
 The turf looks green where the breakers rolled ;
 O'er the whirlpool ripens the rind of gold ;
 The sea-snatched isle is the home of men,
 And mountains exult where the wave hath been.

But why do ye plant, 'neath the billows dark,
 The wrecking reef for the gallant bark ?
 There are snares enough on the tented field,
 Mid the blossomed sweets that the valleys yield ;
 There are serpents to coil ere the flowers are up,
 There's a poison drop in man's purest cup.

There are foes that watch for his cradle breath,
And why need ye sow the floods with death ?

With mouldering bones the deeps are white,
From the ice-clad pole to the tropics bright ;
The mermaid hath twisted her fingers cold
With the mesh of the sea-boy's curls of gold,
And the gods of the ocean have frowned to see
The mariner's bed in their halls of glee ;
Hath earth no graves, that ye thus must spread
The boundless sea for the thronging dead !

Ye build — ye build — but ye enter not in,
Like the tribes whom the desert devoured in their sin ;

From the land of promise ye fade and die
Ere its verdure gleams forth on your weary eye :
As the kings of the cloud-crowned pyramid,
Their noiseless bones in oblivion hid,
Ye slumber unmarked mid the desolate main,
While the wonder and pride of your works remain.

LYDIA HUNTLEY SIGOURNEY.

THE CORAL REEF.

FROM "THE PELICAN ISLAND."

EVERY one,
By instinct taught, performed its little task, —
To build its dwelling and its sepulchre,
From its own essence exquisitely modelled ;
There breed, and die, and leave a progeny,
Still multiplied beyond the reach of numbers,
To frame new cells and tombs ; then breed and die
As all their ancestors had done, — and rest,
Hermetically sealed, each in its shrine,
A statue in this temple of oblivion !
Millions of millions thus, from age to age,
With simplest skill and toil unwearable,
No moment and no movement unimproved,
Laid line on line, on terrace terrace spread,
To swell the heightening, brightening, gradual mound,
By marvellous structure climbing towards the day.

A point at first
It peered above those waves ; a point so small
I just perceived it, fixed where all was floating ;
And when a bubble crossed it, the blue film
Expanded like a sky above the speck ;
That speck became a hand-breadth ; day and
night

It spread, accumulated, and ere long
Presented to my view a dazzling plain,
White as the moon amid the sapphire sea ;
Bare at low water, and as still as death,
But when the tide came gurgling o'er the surface
'T was like a resurrection of the dead :

From graves innumerable, punctures fine
In the close coral, capillary swarms
Of reptiles, horrent as Medusa's snakes,
Covered the bald-pate reef ;

Ere long the reef o'ertopt the spring-flood's height,
And mocked the billows when they leapt upon it,
Unable to maintain their slippery hold,
And falling down in foam-wreaths round its verge.

Steep were the flanks, with precipices sharp,
Descending to their base in ocean gloom.
Chasms few and narrow and irregular
Formed harbors, safe at once and perilous, —
Safe for defence, but perilous to enter.
A sea-lake shone amidst the fossil isle,
Reflecting in a ring its cliffs and caverns,
With heaven itself seen like a lake below.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

THE CORAL GROVE.

DEEP in the wave is a coral grove,
Where the purple mullet and gold-fish rove ;
Where the sea-flower spreads its leaves of blue
That never are wet with falling dew,
But in bright and changeful beauty shine
Far down in the green and glassy brine.
The floor is of sand, like the mountain drift,
And the pearl-shells spangle the flinty snow ;
From coral rocks the sea-plants lift
Their boughs, where the tides and billows flow :
The water is calm and still below,
For the winds and waves are absent there,
And the sands are bright as the stars that glow
In the motionless fields of upper air.
There, with its waving blade of green,
The sea-flag streams through the silent water,
And the crimson leaf of the dulse is seen
To blush, like a banner bathed in slaughter.
There, with a light and easy motion,
The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea ;
And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean
Are bending like corn on the upland lea :
And life, in rare and beautiful forms,
Is sporting amid those bowers of stone,
And is safe when the wrathful Spirit of storms
Has made the top of the wave his own.
And when the ship from his fury flies,
Where the myriad voices of Ocean roar ;
When the wind-god frowns in the murky skies,
And demons are waiting the wreck on shore ;
Then, far below, in the peaceful sea,
The purple mullet and gold-fish rove,
Where the waters murmur tranquilly,
Through the bending twigs of the coral grove.

JAMES GATES PERCIVAL.

THE CHAMBERED NAUTILUS.

THIS is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
 Sails the unshadowed main, —
 The venturous bark that flings
 On the sweet summer wind its purpled wings
 In gulfs enchanted, where the Siren sings,
 And coral reefs lie bare,
 Where the cold sea-maids rise to sun their streaming hair.

Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl;
 Wrecked is the ship of pearl!
 And every chambered cell,
 Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell,
 As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell,
 Before thee lies revealed, —
 Its irised ceiling rent, its sunless crypt unsealed!

Year after year beheld the silent toil
 That spread his lustrous coil;
 Still, as the spiral grew,
 He left the past year's dwelling for the new,
 Stole with soft step its shining archway through,
 Built up its idle door,
 Stretched in his last-found home, and knew the old no more.

Thanks for the heavenly message brought by
 thee,
 Child of the wandering sea,
 Cast from her lap, forlorn!
 From thy dead lips a clearer note is born
 Than ever Triton blew from wreathed horn!
 While on mine ear it rings,
 Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings: —

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
 As the swift seasons roll!
 Leave thy low-vaulted past!
 Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
 Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
 Till thou at length art free,
 Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting
 sea!

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE SEA.

THE sea! the sea! the open sea!
 The blue, the fresh, the ever free!
 Without a mark, without a bound,
 It runneth the earth's wide regions round;
 It plays with the clouds; it mocks the skies;
 Or like a cradled creature lies.

I'm on the sea! I'm on the sea!
 I am where I would ever be;
 With the blue above, and the blue below,
 And silence wheresoe'er I go;
 If a storm should come and awake the deep,
 What matter? I shall ride and sleep.

I love, O, how I love to ride
 On the fierce, foaming, bursting tide,
 When every mad wave drowns the moon,
 Or whistles aloft his tempest tune,
 And tells how goeth the world below,
 And why the sou'west blasts do blow.

I never was on the dull, tame shore,
 But I loved the great sea more and more,
 And backwards flew to her billowy breast,
 Like a bird that seeketh its mother's nest;
 And a mother she was, and is, to me;
 For I was born on the open sea!

The waves were white, and red the morn,
 In the noisy hour when I was born;
 And the whale it whistled, the porpoise rolled,
 And the dolphins bared their backs of gold;
 And never was heard such an outcry wild
 As welcomed to life the ocean-child!

I've lived since then, in calm and strife,
 Full fifty summers, a sailor's life,
 With wealth to spend and a power to range,
 But never have sought nor sighed for change;
 And Death, whenever he comes to me,
 Shall come on the wild, unbounded sea!

BRYAN WALLER PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

SONG OF THE EMIGRANTS IN BERMUDA.

WHERE the remote Bermudas ride
 In the ocean's bosom unspied,
 From a small boat that rowed along
 The listening winds received this song:
 "What should we do but sing His praise
 That led us through the watery maze
 Where he the huge sea monsters wracks,
 That lift the deep upon their backs,
 Unto an isle so long unknown,
 And yet far kinder than our own?
 He lands us on a grassy stage,
 Safe from the storms, and prelate's rage;
 He gave us this eternal spring
 Which here enamels everything,
 And sends the fowls to us in care
 On daily visits through the air.
 He hangs in shades the orange bright
 Like golden lamps in a green night.

And does in the pomegranates close
 Jewels more rich than Ormus shows :
 He makes the figs our mouths to meet,
 And throws the melons at our feet ;
 But apples, plants of such a price,
 No tree could ever bear them twice.
 With cedars chosen by his hand
 From Lebanon he stores the land ;
 And makes the hollow seas that roar
 Proclaim the ambergris on shore.
 He cast (of which we rather boast)
 The gospel's pearl upon our coast ;
 And in these rocks for us did frame
 A temple where to sound his name.
 O, let our voice his praise exalt
 Till it arrive at heaven's vault,
 Which then perhaps rebounding may Echo beyond the Mexique bay !"—
 Thus sung they in the English boat
 A holy and a cheerful note ;
 And all the way, to guide their chime,
 With falling oars they kept the time.

ANDREW MARVELL.

A WET SHEET AND A FLOWING SEA.

A WET sheet and a flowing sea, —
 A wind that follows fast,
 And fills the white and rustling sail,
 And bends the gallant mast, —
 And bends the gallant mast, my boys,
 While, like the eagle free,
 Away the good ship flies, and leaves
 Old England on the lee.

O for a soft and gentle wind !
 I heard a fair one cry ;
 But give to me the snoring breeze
 And white waves heaving high, —
 And white waves heaving high, my boys,
 The good ship tight and free ;
 The world of waters is our home,
 And merry men are we.

There's tempest in yon horned moon,
 And lightning in yon cloud ;
 And hark the music, mariners !
 The wind is piping loud, —
 The wind is piping loud, my boys,
 The lightning flashing free ;
 While the hollow oak our palace is,
 Our heritage the sea.

ALLAN CUNNINGHAM.

SONG OF THE ROVER.

FROM "THE CORSAIR," CANTO I.

O'ER the glad waters of the dark blue sea,
 Our thoughts as boundless and our souls as free,
 Far as the breeze can bear, the billows foam,
 Survey our empire, and behold our home !
 These are our realms, no limits to their sway, —
 Our flag the sceptre all who meet obey.
 Ours the wild life in tumult still to range
 From toil to rest, and joy in every change.
 O, who can tell? not thou, luxurious slave !
 Whose soul would sicken o'er the heaving wave ;
 Not thou, vain lord of wantonness and ease !
 Whom slumber soothes not, — pleasure cannot please. —

O, who can tell save he whose heart hath tried,
 And danced in triumph o'er the waters wide,
 The exulting sense, the pulse's maddening play,
 That thrills the wanderer of that trackless way ?
 That for itself can woo the approaching fight,
 And turn what some deem danger to delight ;
 That seeks what cravens shun with more than zeal,

And where the feebler faint can only feel —
 Feel to the rising bosom's inmost core,
 Its hope awaken and its spirit soar ?
 No dread of death — if with us die our foes —
 Save that it seems even duller than repose :
 Come when it will — we snatch the life of life —
 When lost — what reck's it — by disease or strife ?
 Let him who crawls enamored of decay,
 Cling to his couch and sicken years away ;
 Heave his thick breath, and shake his palsied
 head :

Ours — the fresh turf, and not the feverish bed.
 While gasp by gasp he falters forth his soul,
 Ours with one pang — one bound — escapes control.

His corse may boast its urn and narrow cave,
 And they who loathed his life may gild his grave :
 Ours are the tears, though few, sincerely shed,
 When Ocean shrouds and sepulchres our dead.
 For us, even banquets fond regrets supply
 In the red cup that crowns our memory ;
 And the brief epitaph in danger's day,
 When those who win at length divide the prey,
 And cry, Remembrance saddening o'er each brow,
 How had the brave who fell exulted now !

LORD BYRON.

MY BRIGANTINE.

FROM "THE WATER WITCH."

Just in thy mould and beauteous in thy form,
 Gentle in roll and buoyant on the surge,
 Light as the sea-fowl rocking in the storm,
 In breeze and gale thy onward course we urge,

My water-queen !
 Lady of mine,
 More light and swift than thou none thread the sea

With surer keel or steadier on its path,
 We brave each waste of ocean-mystery
 And laugh to hear the howling tempest's wrath,
 For we are thine.

My brigantine !
 Trust to the mystic power that points thy way,
 Trust to the eye that pierces from afar ;
 Trust the red meteors that around thee play,
 And, fearless, trust the Sea-Green Lady's star,
 Thou bark divine !

JAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

THE HEAVING OF THE LEAD.

For England when with favoring gale
 Our gallant ship up channel steered,
 And, scudding under easy sail,
 The high blue western land appeared ;
 To heave the lead the seaman sprung,
 And to the pilot cheerly sung,
 " By the deep — nine ! "

And bearing up to gain the port,
 Some well-known object kept in view, —
 An abbey-tower, a harbor-fort,
 Or beacon to the vessel true ;
 While oft the lead the seaman flung,
 And to the pilot cheerly sung,
 " By the mark — seven ! "

And as the much-loved shore we near,
 With transport we behold the roof
 Where dwelt a friend or partner dear,
 Of faith and love a matchless proof.
 The lead once more the seaman flung,
 And to the watchful pilot sung,
 " Quarter less — five ! "

Now to her berth the ship draws nigh :
 We shorten sail, — she feels the tide, —
 " Stand clear the cable " is the cry, —
 The anchor's gone ; we safely ride.
 The watch is set, and through the night
 We hear the seamen with delight
 Proclaim, — " All's well ! "

CHARLES DIBDIN

ALL'S WELL.

FROM "THE BRITISH FLEET."

DESERTED by the waning moon,
 When skies proclaim night's cheerless noon,
 On tower, or fort, or tented ground
 The sentry walks his lonely round ;

And should a footstep haply stray
 Where caution marks the guarded way,
 " Who goes there ? Stranger, quickly tell ! "
 " A friend ! " " The word ? " " Good-night ; "
 all's well.

Or, sailing on the midnight deep,
 When weary messmates soundly sleep,
 The careful watch patrols the deck,
 To guard the ship from foes or wreck ;
 And while his thoughts oft homewards veer,
 Some friendly voice salutes his ear, —
 " What cheer ? Brother, quickly tell ;
 Above, — below. " Good-night ; all's well.

THOMAS DIBDIN.

THE TEMPEST.

We were crowded in the cabin,
 Not a soul would dare to sleep, —
 It was midnight on the waters
 And a storm was on the deep.

'T is a fearful thing in winter
 To be shattered by the blast,
 And to hear the rattling trumpet
 Thunder, " Cut away the mast ! "

So we shuddered there in silence, —
 For the stoutest held his breath,
 While the hungry sea was roaring,
 And the breakers talked with Death.

As thus we sat in darkness,
 Each one busy in his prayers,
 " We are lost ! " the captain shouted
 As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
 As she took his icy hand,
 " Is n't God upon the ocean
 Just the same as on the land ? "

Then we kissed the little maiden,
 And we spoke in better cheer,
 And we anchored safe in harbor
 When the morn was shining clear.

JAMES THOMAS FIELDS

THE MINUTE-GUN.

WHEN in the storm on Albion's coast,
 The night-watch guards his weary post,
 From thoughts of danger free,
 He marks some vessel's dusky form,
 And hears, amid the howling storm,
 The minute-gun at sea.

Swift on the shore a hardy few
 The life-boat man with a gallant crew
 And dare the dangerous wave ;
 Through the wild surf they cleave their way,
 Lost in the foam, nor know dismay,
 For they go the crew to save.

But O, what rapture fills each breast
 Of the hopeless crew of the ship distressed !
 Then, landed safe, what joy to tell
 Of all the dangers that befell !
 Then is heard no more,
 By the watch on shore,
 The minute-gun at sea.

R. S. SHARPLE.

THE BAY OF BISCAY.

LOUD roared the dreadful thunder,
 The rain a deluge showers,
 The clouds were rent asunder
 By lightning's vivid powers ;
 The night both drear and dark,
 Our poor devoted bark,
 Till next day, there she lay,
 In the Bay of Biscay, O !

Now dashed upon the billow,
 Her opening timbers creak,
 Each fears a watery pillow,
 None stops the dreadful leak ;
 To cling to slippery shrouds
 Each breathless seaman crowds,
 As she lay, till the day,
 In the Bay of Biscay, O !

At length the wished-for morrow
 Broke through the hazy sky,
 Absorbed in silent sorrow,
 Each heaved a bitter sigh ;
 The dismal wreck to view
 Struck horror to the crew,
 As she lay, on that day,
 In the Bay of Biscay, O !

Her yielding timbers sever,
 Her pitchy seams are rent,
 When Heaven, all bounteous ever,
 Its boundless mercy sent, —
 A sail in sight appears !
 We hail her with three cheers ;
 Now we sail, with the gale,
 From the Bay of Biscay, O !

ANDREW CHERRY.

THE STORM.

CEASE, rude Boreas, blustering railer !
 List, ye landsmen all, to me ;
 Messmates, hear a brother sailor
 Sing the dangers of the sea ;

From bounding billows, first in motion,
 When the distant whirlwinds rise,
 To the tempest-troubled ocean,
 Where the seas contend with skies.

Hark ! the boatswain hoarsely bawling,
 By topsail-sheets and haulyards stand !
 Down top-gallants quick be hauling !
 Down your stay-sails, — hand, boys, hand !

Now it freshens, set the braces,
 Quick the topsail sheets let go ;
 Luff, boys, luff ! don't make wry faces,
 Up your topsails nimbly clew.

Round us roars the tempest louder,
 Think what fear our minds intralls !
 Harder yet it blows, still harder,
 Now again the boatswain calls.

The topsail-yard point to the wind, boys,
 See all clear to reef each course ;
 Let the foresheet go, — don't mind, boys,
 Though the weather should be worse.

Fore and aft the spritsail-yard get,
 Reef the mizzen, see all clear ;
 Hand up, each preventer-brace set !
 Man the foreyard's, — cheer, lads, cheer !

Now the dreadful thunder's roaring,
 Peal on peal contending clash,
 On our heads fierce rain falls pouring,
 In our eyes blue lightnings flash.

One wide water all around us,
 All above us one black sky ;
 Different deaths at once surround us :
 Hark ! what means that dreadful cry ?

The foremast's gone ! cries every tongue out,
 O'er the lee twelve feet 'bove deck ;
 A leak beneath the chest-tree's sprung out,
 Call all hands to clear the wreck.

Quick the lanyards cut to pieces ;
 Come, my hearts, be stout and bold ;
 Plumb the well, — the leak increases,
 Four feet water in the hold !

While o'er the ship wild waves are beating,
 We our wives and children mourn ;
 Alas ! from hence there 's no retreating,
 Alas ! to them there 's no return !

Still the leak is gaining on us !
 Both chain-pumps are choked below :
 Heaven have mercy here upon us !
 For only that can save us now.

O'er the lee-beam is the land, boys,
 Let the guns o'erboard be thrown ;
 To the pumps call every hand, boys,
 See ! our mizzen-mast is gone.

The leak we 've found, it cannot pour fast ;
 We 've lightened her a foot or more ;
 Up and rig a jury foremast,
 She rights ! she rights, boys ! we 're off shore.

GEORGE ALEXANDER STEVENS.

YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND.

YE mariners of England !
 That guard our native seas ;
 Whose flag has braved, a thousand years,
 The battle and the breeze !
 Your glorious standard launch again
 To match another foe !
 And sweep through the deep,
 While the stormy winds do blow ;
 While the battle rages loud and long,
 And the stormy winds do blow.

The spirits of your fathers
 Shall start from every wave ! —
 For the deck it was their field of fame,
 And ocean was their grave :
 Where Blake and mighty Nelson fell,
 Your manly hearts shall glow,
 As ye sweep through the deep,
 While the stormy winds do blow ;
 While the battle rages loud and long,
 And the stormy winds do blow.

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
 No towers along the steep ;
 Her march is o'er the mountain-waves,
 Her home is on the deep.
 With thunders from her native oak,
 She quells the floods below, —
 As they roar on the shore,
 When the stormy winds do blow ;
 When the battle rages loud and long
 And the stormy winds do blow.

The meteor flag of England
 Shall yet terrific burn ;
 Till danger's troubled night depart,
 And the star of peace return.
 Then, then, ye ocean warriors !
 Our song and feast shall flow
 To the fame of your name,
 When the storm has ceased to blow ;
 When the fiery light is heard no more,
 And the storm has ceased to blow.

THOMAS CAMPBELL

TOM BOWLING.

HERE, a sheer hulk, lies poor Tom Bowling,
 The darling of our crew ;
 No more he 'll hear the tempest howling,
 For death has broached him to.
 His form was of the manliest beauty,
 His heart was kind and soft ;
 Faithful, below, he did his duty ;
 But now he 's gone aloft.

Tom never from his word departed,
 His virtues were so rare,
 His friends were many and true-hearted,
 His Poll was kind and fair :
 And then he 'd sing, so blithe and jolly,
 Ah, many 's the time and oft !
 But mirth is turned to melancholy,
 For Tom is gone aloft.

Yet shall poor Tom find pleasant weather,
 When He who all commands
 Shall give, to call life's crew together,
 The word to "pipe all hands."
 Thus Death, who kings and tars despatches,
 In vain Tom's life has doffed ;
 For though his body 's under hatches,
 His soul has gone aloft.

THE WHITE SQUALL.

THE sea was bright, and the bark rode well ;
 The breeze bore the tone of the vesper bell ;
 'T was a gallant bark with a crew as brave
 As ever launched on the heaving wave.
 She shone in the light of declining day,
 And each sail was set, and each heart was gay.

They neared the land where in beauty smiles
 The sunny shore of the Grecian Isles ;
 All thought of home, of that welcome dear
 Which soon should greet each wanderer's ear ;
 And in fancy joined the social throng
 In the festive dance and the joyous song.

A white cloud glides through the azure sky, —
 What means that wild despairing cry?
 Farewell the visioned scenes of home!
 That cry is "Help," where no help can come;
 For the White Squall rides on the surging wave,
 And the bark is 'gulfed in an ocean grave.

OUR BOAT TO THE WAVES.

OUR boat to the waves go free,
 By the bending tide, where the curled wave
 breaks,
 Like the track of the wind on the white snow-
 flakes:
 Away, away! 'T is a path o'er the sea.

Blasts may rave, — spread the sail,
 For our spirits can wrest the power from the wind,
 And the gray clouds yield to the sunny mind,
 Fear not we the whirl of the gale.

WILLIAM ELLERY CHANNING.

TO SEA!

To sea! to sea! the calm is o'er,
 The wanton water leaps in sport,
 And rattles down the pebbly shore,
 The dolphin wheels, the sea-cows snort,
 And unseen mermaid's pearly song
 Comes bubbling up, the weeds among.
 Fling broad the sail, dip deep the oar:
 To sea! to sea! the calm is o'er.

To sea! to sea! our white-winged bark
 Shall billowing cleave its watery way,
 And with its shadow, fleet and dark,
 Break the caved Triton's azure day,
 Like mountain eagle soaring light
 O'er antelopes on Alpine height.
 The anchor heaves! The ship swings free!
 Our sails swell full! To sea! to sea!

THOMAS LOVELL BEDDOES.

THE SAILOR'S CONSOLATION.

ONE night came on a hurricane,
 The sea was mountains rolling,
 When Barney Buntline turned his quid,
 And said to Billy Bowling:
 "A stronger nor'wester's blowing, Bill;
 Hark! don't ye hear it roar now?
 Lord help 'em, how I pities them
 Unhappy folks on shore now!

"Foolhardy chaps who live in towns,
 What danger they are all in,
 And now lie quaking in their beds,
 For fear the roof shall fall in:
 Poor creatures! how they envies us,
 And wishes, I've a notion,
 For our good luck, in such a storm,
 To be upon the ocean!

"And as for them who're out all day
 On business from their houses,
 And late at night are coming home,
 To cheer their babes and spouses, —
 While you and I, Bill, on the deck
 Are comfortably lying,
 My eyes! what tiles and chimney-pots
 About their heads are flying!

"And very often have we heard
 How men are killed and undone
 By overturns of carriages,
 By thieves and fires in London.
 We know what risks all landmen run,
 From noblemen to tailors;
 Then, Bill, let us thank Providence
 That you and I are sailors."

WILLIAM PITT

A LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

A LIFE on the ocean wave,
 A home on the rolling deep;
 Where the scattered waters rave,
 And the winds their revels keep!
 Like an eagle caged I pine
 On this dull, unchanging shore:
 O, give me the flashing brine,
 The spray and the tempest's roar!

Once more on the deck I stand,
 Of my own swift-gliding craft:
 Set sail! farewell to the land;
 The gale follows fair abaft.
 We shoot through the sparkling foam,
 Like an ocean-bird set free, —
 Like the ocean-bird, our home
 We'll find far out on the sea.

The land is no longer in view,
 The clouds have begun to frown;
 But with a stout vessel and crew,
 We'll say, Let the storm come down!
 And the song of our hearts shall be,
 While the winds and the waters rave,
 A home on the rolling sea!
 A life on the ocean wave!

TO ALL IN HAVEN.

ALL ye who have gained the haven of safe days,
And rest at ease, your wanderings being done,
Except the last, inevitable one,
Be well content, I say, and hear men's praise:
Yet in the quiet of your sheltered bays,—
Bland waters shining in an equal sun,—
Forget not that the awful storm-tides run
In far, unsheltered, and tempestuous ways:

Remember near what rocks, and through what shoals,
Worn, desperate mariners strain with all their might:
They may not come to your sweet restful goals,
Your waters placid in the level light:—
Their graves wait in that sea no moon controls,
That is in dreadful fellowship with Night.

PHILIP BOURKE MARSTON.

THE COASTWISE LIGHTS
"A Song of the English"

Our brows are wreathed with spindrift and the weed is on our knees ;

Our loins are battered 'neath us by the swinging, smoking seas.

From reef and rock and skerry—over headland, ness and voe—

The Coastwise Lights of England watch
the ships of England go !

Through the endless summer evenings,
on the lineless, level floors ;

Through the yelling Channel tempest
when the syren hoots and roars—

By day the dipping house-flag and by night the rocket's trail—

As the sheep that graze behind us so we know them where they hail.

We bridge across the dark, and bid the helmsman have a care,

The flash that wheeling inland wakes
his sleeping wife to prayer ;

From our vexed eyries, head to gale, we bind in burning chains

The lover from the sea-rim drawn—his love in English lanes.

We greet the clippers wing-and-wing that race the Southern wool ;

We warn the crawling cargo-tanks
of Bremen, Leith and Hull ;

To each and all our equal lamp at peril
of the sea—

The white wall-sided warships or the whalers of Dundee !

Come up, come in from Eastward, from the guard-ports of the Morn !

Beat up, beat in from Southerly, O gipsies of the Horn !

Swift shuttles of an Empire's loom that weave us main to main,

The Coastwise Lights of England give you welcome back again !

Go, get you gone up-Channel with the sea-crust on your plates ;

Go, get you into London with the burden of your freights !

Haste, for they talk of Empire there,
and say, if any seek,

The Lights of England sent you, and by silence shall ye speak.

THE OCEAN.

THE Ocean at the bidding of the moon
 Forever changes with his restless tide :
 Flung shoreward now, to be regathered soon
 With kingly pauses of reluctant pride,
 And semblance of return. Anon from home
 He issues forth anew, high ridged and free, —
 The gentlest murmur of his seething foam
 Like armies whispering where great echoes be.
 O, leave me here upon this beach to rove,
 Mute listener to that sound so grand and lone !
 A glorious sound, deep drawn, and strongly
 thrown,
 And reaching those on mountain heights above,
 To British ears (as who shall scorn to own ?)
 A tutelar fond voice, a savior tone of love.

FRAGMENTS.

THE SEA-SHORE.

I have seen
 A curious child, who dwelt upon a tract
 Of inland ground, applying to his ear
 The convolutions of a smooth-lipped shell ;
 To which, in silence hushed, his very soul
 Listened intensely ; and his countenance soon
 Brightened with joy ; for from within were heard
 Murmurings, whereby the monitor expressed
 Mysterious union with its native sea.
 Even such a shell the universe itself
 Is to the ear of Faith : and there are times,
 I doubt not, when to you it doth impart
 Authentic tidings of invisible things ;
 Of ebb and flow, and ever-during power ;
 And central peace, subsisting at the heart
 Of endless agitation.

I still should long for more

POEMS OF ADVENTURE AND RURAL SPORTS.

ADVENTURE.

CHEVY-CHASE.

[Percy, Earl of Northumberland, had vowed to hunt for three days in the Scottish border, without condescending to ask leave from Earl Douglas, who was either lord of the soil or lord warden of the Marches. This provoked the conflict which was celebrated in the old ballad of the "Hunting o the Cheviot." The circumstances of the battle of Otterbourne (A. D. 1388) are woven into the ballad, and the affairs of the two events are confounded. The ballad preserved in the Percy Reliques is probably as old as 1574. The one following is a modernized form, of the time of James I.]

God prosper long our noble king,
Our lives and safeties all ;
A woful hunting once there did
In Chevy-Chase befall.

To drive the deer with hound and horn
Earl Percy took his way ;
The child may rue that is unborn
The hunting of that day.

The stout Earl of Northumberland
A vow to God did make,
His pleasure in the Scottish woods
Three summer days to take, —

The chiefest harts in Chevy-Chase
To kill and bear away.
These tidings to Earl Douglas came,
In Scotland where he lay ;

Who sent Earl Percy present word
He would prevent his sport.
The English earl, not fearing that,
Did to the woods resort,

With fifteen hundred bowmen bold,
All chosen men of might,
Who knew full well in time of need
To aim their shafts aright.

The gallant greyhounds swiftly ran
To chase the fallow deer ;
On Monday they began to hunt,
When daylight did appear ;

And long before high noon they had
A hundred fat bucks slain ;
Then, having dined, the drovers went
To rouse the deer again.

The bowmen mustered on the hills,
Well able to endure ;
And all their rear, with special care,
That day was guarded sure.

The hounds ran swiftly through the woods
The nimble deer to take,
That with their cries the hills and dales
An echo shrill did make.

Lord Percy to the quarry went,
To view the slaughtered deer ;
Quoth he, " Earl Douglas promised
This day to meet me here ;

" But if I thought he would not come,
No longer would I stay ;"
With that a brave young gentleman
Thus to the earl did say :—

" Lo, yonder doth Earl Douglas come, —
His men in armor bright ;
Full twenty hundred Scottish spears
All marching in our sight ;

" All men of pleasant Teviotdale,
Fast by the river Tweed ;"
" Then cease your sports," Earl Percy said,
" And take your bows with speed ;

" And now with me, my countrymen,
Your courage forth advance ;
For never was there champion yet,
In Scotland or in France,

" That ever did on horseback come,
But if my hap it were,
I durst encounter man for man,
With him to break a spear."

Earl Douglas on his milk-white steed,
Most like a baron bold,
Rode foremost of his company,
Whose armor shone like gold.

"Show me," said he, "whose men you be,
That hunt so boldly here,
That, without my consent, do chase
And kill my fallow-deer."

The first man that did answer make,
Was noble Percy, he —
Who said, "We list not to declare,
Nor show whose men we be :

"Yet will we spend our dearest blood
Thy chiefest harts to slay."
Then Douglas swore a solemn oath,
And thus in rage did say : —

"Ere thus I will out-braved be,
One of us two shall die ;
I know thee well, an earl thou art, —
Lord Percy, so am I.

"But trust me, Percy, pity it were,
And great offence, to kill
Any of these our guiltless men,
For they have done no ill.

"Let you and me the battle try,
And set our men aside."
"Accursed be he," Earl Percy said,
"By whom this is denied."

Then stepped a gallant squire forth,
Witherington was his name,
Who said, "I would not have it told
To Henry, our king, for shame,

"That e'er my captain fought on foot,
And I stood looking on.
You two be earls," said Witherington,
"And I a squire alone ;

"I'll do the best that do I may,
While I have power to stand ;
While I have power to wield my sword
I'll fight with heart and hand."

Our English archers bent their bows, —
Their hearts were good and true ;
At the first flight of arrows sent,
Full fourscore Scots they slew.

Yet stays Earl Douglas on the bent,
As chieftain stout and good ;
As valiant captain, all unmoved,
The shock he firmly stood.

His host he parted had in three,
As leader ware and tried ;
And soon his spearmen on their foes
Bore down on every side.

Throughout the English archery
They dealt full many a wound ;
But still our valiant Englishmen
All firmly kept their ground.

And throwing straight their bows away,
They grasped their swords so bright ;
And now sharp blows, a heavy shower,
On shields and helmets light.

They closed full fast on every side, —
No slackness there was found ;
And many a gallant gentleman
Lay gasping on the ground.

In truth, it was a grief to see
How each one chose his spear,
And how the blood out of their breasts
Did gush like water clear.

At last these two stout earls did meet ;
Like captains of great might,
Like lions wode, they laid on lode,
And made a cruel fight.

They fought until they both did sweat,
With swords of tempered steel,
Until the blood, like drops of rain,
They trickling down did feel.

"Yield thee, Lord Percy," Douglas said,
"In faith I will thee bring
Where thou shalt high advanced be
By James, our Scottish king.

"Thy ransom I will freely give,
And this report of thee, —
Thou art the most courageous knight
That ever I did see."

"No, Douglas," saith Earl Percy then,
"Thy proffer I do scorn ;
I will not yield to any Scot
That ever yet was born."

With that there came an arrow keen
Out of an English bow,
Which struck Earl Douglas to the heart, —
A deep and deadly blow ;

Who never spake more words than these :
"Fight on, my merry men all ;
For why, my life is at an end ;
Lord Percy sees my fall."

Then leaving life, Earl Percy took
The dead man by the hand ;
And said, " Earl Douglas, for thy life
Would I had lost my land.

" In truth, my very heart doth bleed
With sorrow for thy sake ;
For sure a more redoubted knight
Mischance did never take."

A knight amongst the Scots there was
Who saw Earl Douglas die,
Who straight in wrath did vow avenge
Upon the Earl Percy.

Sir Hugh Montgomery was he called,
Who, with a spear full bright,
Well mounted on a gallant steed,
Ran fiercely through the fight ;

And past the English archers all,
Without a dread or fear ;
And through Earl Percy's body then
He thrust his hateful spear.

With such vehement force and might
He did his body gore,
The staff ran through the other side
A large cloth-yard and more.

So thus did both these nobles die,
Whose courage none could stain.
An English archer then perceived
The noble earl was slain.

He had a bow bent in his hand,
Made of a trusty tree ;
An arrow of a cloth-yard long
To the hard head haled he.

Against Sir Hugh Montgomery
So right the shaft he set,
The gray goose wing that was thereon
In his heart's blood was wet.

This fight did last from break of day
Till setting of the sun ;
For when they rung the evening-bell
The battle scarce was done.

With stout Earl Percy there were slain
Sir John of Egerton,
Sir Robert Ratcliff, and Sir John,
Sir James, that bold baron.

And with Sir George and stout Sir James,
Both knights of good account,
Good Sir Ralph Raby there was slain,
Whose prowess did surmount.

For Witherington my heart is woe
That ever he slain should be,
For when his legs were hewn in two,
He knelt and fought on his knee.

And with Earl Douglas there were slain
Sir Hugh Montgomery,
Sir Charles Murray, that from the field
One foot would never flee ;

Sir Charles Murray of Ratcliff, too, —
His sister's son was he ;
Sir David Lamb, so well esteemed,
But saved he could not be.

And the Lord Maxwell in like case
Did with Earl Douglas die :
Of twenty hundred Scottish spears,
Scarce fifty-five did fly.

Of fifteen hundred Englishmen,
Went home but fifty-three ;
The rest in Chevy-Chase were slain,
Under the greenwood tree.

Next day did many widows come,
Their husbands to bewail ;
They washed their wounds in brinish tears
But all would not prevail.

Their bodies, bathed in purple blood,
They bore with them away ;
They kissed them dead a thousand times,
Ere they were clad in clay.

The news was brought to Edinburgh,
Where Scotland's king did reign,
That brave Earl Douglas suddenly
Was with an arrow slain :

" O heavy news," King James did say ;
" Scotland can witness be
I have not any captain more
Of such account as he."

Like tidings to King Henry came Within as short a space,
That Percy of Northumberland
Was slain in Chevy-Chase :

" Now God be with him," said our King
" Since 't will no better be ;
I trust I have within my realm
Five hundred as good as he :

" Yet shall not Scots or Scotland say
But I will vengeance take ;
I'll be revenged on them all
For brave Earl Percy's sake."

This vow full well the king performed
 After at Humbledown ;
 In one day fifty knights were slain
 With lords of high renown ;

And of the rest, of small account,
 Did many hundreds die :
 Thus endeth the hunting of Chevy-Chase,
 Made by the Earl Percy.

God save the king, and bless this land,
 With plenty, joy, and peace ;
 And grant, henceforth, that foul debate
 'Twixt noblemen may cease.

RICHARD SHEALE

LAMENT OF THE BORDER WIDOW.

[Sir Walter Scott says : " This ballad relates to the execution of Cockburne of Henderland, a border freebooter, hanged over the gate of his own tower by James V. in his famous expedition, in 1529, against the marauders of the border. In a deserted burial-place near the ruins of the castle, the monument of Cockburne and his lady is still shown. The following inscription is still legible, though defaced :—

" HERE LYES PERYS OF COCKBURNE AND HIS WYFE MARJOKY. "]

MY love he built me a bonnie bower,
 And clad it a' wi' lily flower ;
 A brawer bower ye ne'er did see,
 Than my true-love he built for me.

There came a man, by middle day,
 He spied his sport, and went away ;
 And brought the king that very night,
 Who brake my bower, and slew my knight.

He slew my knight, to me sae dear ;
 He slew my knight, and poin'd his gear :
 My servants all for life did flee,
 And left me in extremitie.

I sewed his sheet, making my mane ;
 I watched the corpse mysell alane ;
 I watched his body night and day ;
 No living creature came that way.

I took his body on my back,
 And whiles I gaed, and whiles I sat ;
 I digged a grave, and laid him in,
 And happed him with the sod sae green.

But think nae ye my heart was seir,
 When I laid the moul' on his yellow hair ?
 O, think nae ye my heart was wae,
 When I turned about, away to gae ?

Nae living man I'll love again,
 Since that my lively knight is slain ;
 Wi' ae lock o' his yellow hair
 I'll chain my heart forevermair.

ROBIN HOOD AND ALLEN-A-DALE.

[Of Robin Hood, the famous outlaw of Sherwood Forest, and his merry men, there are many ballads ; but the limits of this volume forbid our giving more than a single selection.

Various periods, ranging from the time of Richard I. to the end of the reign of Edward III., have been assigned as the age in which Robin Hood lived. He is usually described as a yeoman, abiding in Sherwood Forest, in Nottinghamshire. His most noted followers, generally mentioned in the ballads, are Little John, Friar Tuck, his chaplain, and his maid Marian. Nearly all the legends extol his courage, his generosity, his humanity, and his skill as an archer. He robbed the rich only, who could afford to lose, and gave freely to the poor. He protected the needy, was a champion of the fair sex, and took great delight in plundering prelates. The following ballad exhibits the outlaw in one of his most attractive aspects, — affording assistance to a distressed lover.]

COME, listen to me, you gallants so free,
 All you that love nirth for to hear,
 And I will tell you of a bold outlaw,
 That lived in Nottinghamshire.

As Robin Hood in the forest stood,
 All under the greenwood tree,
 There he was aware of a brave young man,
 As fine as fine might be.

The youngster was clad in scarlet red,
 In scarlet fine and gay ;
 And he did frisk it over the plain,
 And chanted a roundelay.

As Robin Hood next morning stood
 Amongst the leaves so gay,
 There did he espy the same young man
 Come drooping along the way.

The scarlet he wore the day before
 It was clean cast away ;
 And at every step he fetched a sigh,
 " Alack and well-a-day ! "

Then stepped forth brave Little John,
 And Midge, the miller's son ;
 Which made the young man bend his bow,
 Whenas he see them come.

" Stand off ! stand off ! " the young man said,
 " What is your will with me ? "
 " You must come before our master straight,
 Under you greenwood tree. "

And when he came bold Robin before,
 Robin asked him courteously,
 " O, hast thou any money to spare,
 For my merry men and me ? "

" I have no money, " the young man said,
 " But five shillings and a ring ;
 And that I have kept these seven long years,
 To have at my wedding.

"Yesterday I should have married a maid,
But she was from me ta'en,
And chosen to be an old knight's delight,
Whereby my poor heart is slain."

"What is thy name?" then said Robin Hood,
"Come tell me without any fail."
"By the faith of my body," then said the young
man,
"My name it is Allen-a-Dale."

"What wilt thou give me," said Robin Hood,
"In ready gold or fee,
To help thee to thy true-love again,
And deliver her unto thee?"

"I have no money," then quoth the young man,
"No ready gold nor fee,
But I will swear upon a book
Thy true servant for to be."

"How many miles is it to thy true-love?
Come tell me without guile."
"By the faith of my body," then said the young
man,
"It is but five little mile."

Then Robin he hasted over the plain,
He did neither stint nor lin,*
Until he came unto the church
Where Allen should keep his wedding.

"What hast thou here?" the bishop then said,
"I prithee now tell unto me."
"I am a bold harper," quoth Robin Hood,
"And the best in the north country."

"O, welcome, O, welcome," the bishop he said,
"That music best pleaseth me."
"You shall have no music," quoth Robin Hood,
"Till the bride and bridegroom I see."

With that came in a wealthy knight,
Which was both grave and old;
And after him a finikin lass,
Did shine like the glistering gold.

"This is not a fit match," quoth Robin Hood,
"That you do seem to make here;
For since we are come into the church,
The bride shall chuse her own dear."

Then Robin Hood put his horn to his mouth,
And blew blasts two and three;
When four-and-twenty yeomen bold
Came leaping over the lea.

And when they came into the churchyard,
Marching all in a row,
The very first man was Allen-a-Dale,
To give bold Robin his bow.

"This is thy true-love," Robin he said,
"Young Allen, as I hear say;
And you shall be married at this same time,
Before we depart away."

"That shall not be," the bishop he cried,
"For thy word shall not stand;
They shall be three times asked in the church,
As the law is of our land."

Robin Hood pulled off the bishop's coat,
And put it upon Little John;
"By the faith of my body," then Robin said,
"This cloth doth make thee a man."

When Little John went into the quire,
The people began to laugh;
He asked them seven times in the church
Lest three times should not be enough.

"Who gives me this maid?" said Little John,
Quoth Robin Hood, "That do I;
And he that takes her from Allen-a-Dale,
Full dearly he shall her buy."

And then, having ended this merry wedding,
The bride looked like a queen;
And so they returned to the merry greenwood,
Amongst the leaves so green.

ANONYMOUS.

JOCK JOHNSTONE, THE TINKLER.

"O, CAME ye ower by the Yoke-burn Ford,
Or down the King's Road of the cleuch?*"
Or saw ye a knight and a lady bright,
Wha ha'e gane the gate they baith shall rue?"

"I saw a knight and a lady bright
Ride up the cleuch at the break of day;
The knight upon a coal-black steed,
And the dame on one of a silver-gray."

"And the lady's palfrey flew the first,
With many a clang of silver bell:
Swift as the raven's morning flight
The two went scouring ower the fell."

"By this time they are man and wife,
And standing in St. Mary's fane;
And the lady in the grass-green silk
A maid you will never see again."

* Stop nor stay.

* Dell.

"But I can tell thee, saucy wight, —
And that the runaway shall prove, —
Revenge to a Douglas is as sweet
As maiden charms or maiden's love."

"Since thou say'st that, my Lord Douglas,
Good faith some clinking there will be ;
Beshrew my heart but and my sword,
If I winna turn and ride with thee !"

They whipped out ower the Shepherd Cleuch,
And doun the links o' the Corsecleuch Burn ;
And aye the Douglas swore by his sword
To win his love, or ne'er return.

"First fight your rival, Lord Douglas,
And then brag after, if you may ;
For the Earl of Ross is as brave a lord
As ever gave good weapon sway.

"But I for ae poor siller merk,
Or thirteen pennies and a bawbee,
Will tak in hand to fight you baith,
Or beat the winner, whiche'er it be."

The Douglas turned him on his steed,
And I wat a loud laughter leuch he :
Of a' the fools I have ever met,
Man, I ha'e never met ane like thee.

"Art thou akin to lord or knight,
Or courtly squire or warrior leal ?"
"I am a tinkler," quo' the wight,
"But I like croun-cracking unco weel."

When they came to St. Mary's kirk,
The chaplain shook for very fear ;
And aye he kissed the cross, and said,
"What deevil has sent that Douglas here !

"He neither values book nor ban,
But curses all without demur ;
And cares nae mair for a holy man
Than I do for a worthless cur."

"Come here, thou bland and brittle priest,
And tell to me without delay
Where you have hid the lord of Ross
And the lady that came at the break of day."

"No knight or lady, good Lord Douglas,
Have I beheld since break of morn ;
And I never saw the lord of Ross
Since the woful day that I was born."

Lord Douglas turned him round about,
And looked the Tinkler in the face ;
Where he beheld a lurking smile,
And a deevil of a dour grimace.

"How's this, how's this, thou Tinkler loun ?
Hast thou presumed to lie on me ?"
"Faith that I have !" the Tinkler said,
"And a right good turn I have done to thee ;

"For the lord of Ross and thy own true-love,
The beauteous Harriet of Thirlestane,
Rade west away, ere the break of day ;
And you 'll never see the dear maid again ;

"So I thought it best to bring you here,
On a wrang scent, of my own accord ;
For had you met the Johnstone clan,
They wad ha'e made mince-meat of a lord."

At this the Douglas was so wroth
He wist not what to say or do ;
But he strak the Tinkler o'er the croun,
Till the blood came dreeping ower his brow.

"Beshrew my heart," quo' the Tinkler lad,
"Thou bear'st thee most ungallantlye !
If these are the manners of a lord,
They are manners that winna gang doun wi' me."

"Hold up thy hand," the Douglas cried,
"And keep thy distance, Tinkler loun !"
"That will I not," the Tinkler said,
"Though I and my mare should both go doun !"

"I have armor on," cried the Lord Douglas,
"Cuirass and helm, as you may see."
"The deil me care !" quo' the Tinkler lad ;
"I shall have a skelp at them and thee."

"You are not horsed," quo' the Lord Douglas,
"And no remorse this weapon brooks."
"Mine's a right good yaud," quo' the Tinkler lad,
"And a great deal better nor she looks.

"So stand to thy weapons, thou haughty lord,
What I have taken I needs must give ;
Thou shalt never strike a tinkler again,
For the longest day thou hast to live."

Then to it they fell, both sharp and snell,
Till the fire from both their weapons flew ;
But the very first shock that they met with,
The Douglas his rashness 'gan to rue.

For though he had on a sark of mail,
And a cuirass on his breast wore he,
With a good steel bonnet on his head,
Yet the blood ran trickling to his knee.

The Douglas sat upright and firm,
Aye as together their horses ran ;
But the Tinkler laid on like a very deil, —
Siccan strokes were never laid on by man.

"Hold up thy hand, thou Tinkler loun,"
Cried the poor priest, with whining din ;
"If thou hurt the brave Lord James Douglas,
A curse be on thee and all thy kin !"

"I care no more for Lord James Douglas
Than Lord James Douglas cares for me ;
But I want to let his proud heart know
That a tinkler's a man as well as he."

So they fought on, and they fought on,
Till good Lord Douglas' breath was gone ;
And the Tinkler bore him to the ground,
With rush, with rattle, and with groan.

"O hon ! O hon !" cried the proud Douglas,
"That I this day should have lived to see !
For sure my honor I have lost,
And a leader again I can never be !

"But tell me of thy kith and kin,
And where was bred thy weapon hand ?
For thou art the wale of tinkler louns
That ever was born in fair Scotland."

"My name's Jock Johnstone," quo' the wight ;
"I winna keep in my name frae thee ;
And here, tak thou thy sword again,
And better friends we two shall be."

But the Douglas swore a solemn oath,
That was a debt he could never owe ;
He would rather die at the back of the dike
Than owe his sword to a man so low.

"But if thou wilt ride under my banner,
And bear my livery and my name,
My right-hand warrior thou shalt be
And I'll knight thee on the field of fame."

"Woe worth thy wit, good Lord Douglas,
To think I'd change my trade for thine ;
Far better and wiser would you be,
To live a journeyman of mine,

"To mend a kettle or a casque,
Or clout a goodwife's yettlin' pan, —
Upon my life, good Lord Douglas,
You'd make a noble tinkler-man !

"I would give you a drammock twice a day,
And sunkets on a Sunday morn,
And you should be a rare adept
In steel and copper, brass and horn !

"I'll fight you every day you rise,
Till you can act the hero's part ;
Therefore, I pray you, think of this,
And lay it seriously to heart."

The Douglas writhed beneath the lash,
Answering with an inward curse, —
Like salmon wriggling on a spear,
That makes his deadly wound the worse.

But up there came two squires renowned ;
In search of Lord Douglas they came ;
And when they saw their master down,
Their spirits mounted in a flame.

And they flew upon the Tinkler wight,
Like perfect tigers on their prey ;
But the Tinkler heaved his trusty sword,
And made him ready for the fray.

"Come one to one, ye coward knaves, —
Come hand to hand, and steed to steed ;
I would that ye were better men,
For this is glorious work indeed !"

Before you could have counted twelve,
The Tinkler's wondrous chivalrye
Had both the squires upon the sward,
And their horses galloping o'er the lea.

The Tinkler tied them neck and heel,
And mony a biting jest gave he :
"O fie, for shame !" said the Tinkler lad ;
"Siccan fighters I did never see !"

He slit one of their bridle reins, —
O, what disgrace the conquered feels ! —
And he skelpit the squires with that good tawse,
Till the blood ran off at baith their heels.

The Douglas he was forced to laugh
Till down his cheek the salt tear ran :
"I think the deevil be come here
In the likeness of a tinkler man !"

Then he has to Lord Douglas gone,
And he raised him kindly by the hand,
And he set him on his gallant steed,
And bore him away to Henderland :

"Be not cast down, my Lord Douglas,
Nor writhe beneath a broken bane ;
For the leech's art will mend the part,
And your honor lost will spring again.

"Tis true, Jock Johnstone is my name ;
I'm a right good tinkler, as you see ;
For I can crack a casque betimes,
Or clout one, as my need may be.

"Jock Johnstone is my name, 't is true, —
But noble hearts are allied to me ;
For I am the lord of Annandale,
And a knight and earl as well as thee."

Then Douglas strained the hero's hand,
And took from it his sword again :
"Since thou art the lord of Annandale,
Thou hast eased my heart of meikle pain.

"I might have known thy noble form
In that disguise thou 'rt pleased to wear ;
All Scotland knows thy matchless arm,
And England by experience dear.

"We have been foes as well as friends,
And jealous of each other's sway ;
But little can I comprehend
Thy motive for these pranks to-day."

"Sooth, my good lord, the truth to tell,
'T was I that stole your love away,
And gave her to the lord of Ross
An hour before the break of day ;

"For the lord of Ross is my brother,
By all the laws of chivalrye ;
And I brought with me a thousand men
To guard him to my ain countrye.

"But I thought meet to stay behind,
And try your lordship to waylay,
Resolved to breed some noble sport,
By leading you so far astray.

"Judging it better some lives to spare, —
Which fancy takes me now and then, —
And settle our quarrel hand to hand,
Than each with our ten thousand men.

"God send you soon, my Lord Douglas,
To Border foray sound and hail !
But never strike a tinkler again,
If he be a Johnstone of Annandale."

JAMES HOGG.

MORT D'ARTHUR.

So all day, long the noise of battle rolled
Among the mountains by the winter sea ;
Until King Arthur's Table, man by man,
Had fallen in Lyonesse about their lord,
King Arthur : then, because his wound was deep,
The bold Sir Bedivere uplifted him,
Sir Bedivere, the last of all his Knights,
And bore him to a chapel nigh the field,
A broken chancel with a broken cross,
That stood on a dark strait of barren land.
On one side lay the Ocean, and on one
Lay a great water, and the moon was full.

Then spake King Arthur to Sir Bedivere :
"The sequel of to-day unsolders all

The goodliest fellowship of famous knights
Whereof this world holds record. Such a sleep
They sleep — the men I loved. I think that we Shall nevermore, at any future time,
Delight our souls with talk of knightly deeds,
Walking about the gardens and the halls
Of Camelot, as in the days that were.
I perish by this people which I made, —
Though Merlin sware that I should come again
To rule once more ; but let what will be, be.
I am so deeply smitten through the helm
That without help I cannot last till morn.
Thou therefore take my brand Excalibur,
Which was my pride : for thou rememberest how

In those old days, one summer noon, an arm
Rose up from out the bosom of the lake,
Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful,
Holding the sword — and how I rowed across
And took it, and have worn it, like a king ;
And, wheresoever I am sung or told
In after-time, this also shall be known :
But now delay not : take Excalibur,
And fling him far into the middle mere :
Watch what thou seest, and lightly bring me
word.

To him replied the bold Sir Bedivere :
"It is not meet, Sir King, to leave thee thus,
Aidless, alone, and smitten through the helm.
A little thing may harm a wounded man ;
Yet I thy hest will all perform at full,
Watch what I see, and lightly bring thee word."

So saying, from the ruined shrine he stept
And in the moon athwart the place of tombs,
Where lay the mighty bones of ancient men,
Old knights, and over them the sea-wind sang Shrill, chill, with flakes of foam. He, stepping down

By zigzag paths, and juts of pointed rock,
Came on the shining levels of the lake.

There drew he forth the brand Excalibur,
And o'er him, drawing it, the winter moon,
Brightening the skirts of a long cloud, ran forth
And sparkled keen with frost against the hilt :
For all the haft twinkled with diamond studs,
Myriads of topaz-lights, and jacinth-work
Of subtlest jewelry. He gazed so long
That both his eyes were dazzled as he stood,
This way and that dividing the swift mind,
In act to throw : but at the last it seemed Better to leave Excalibur concealed
There in the many-knotted water-flags,
That whistled stiff and dry about the marge.
So strode he back slow to the wounded King.

Then spake King Arthur to Sir Bedivere :
 "Hast thou performed my mission which I gave ?
 What is it thou hast seen ? or what hast heard ?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere :
 "I heard the ripple washing in the reeds,
 And the wild water lapping on the crag."

To whom replied King Arthur, faint and pale :
 "Thou hast betrayed thy nature and thy name,
 Not rendering true answer, as beseemed
 Thy fealty, nor like a noble knight :
 For surer sign had followed, either hand,
 Or voice, or else a motion of the mere.
 This is a shameful thing for men to lie.
 Yet now, I charge thee, quickly go again,
 As thou art lief and dear, and do the thing
 I bade thee, watch, and lightly bring me word."

Then went Sir Bedivere the second time
 Across the ridge, and paced beside the mere,
 Counting the dewy pebbles, fixed in thought ;
 But when he saw the wonder of the hilt,
 How curiously and strangely chased, he smote
 His palms together, and he cried aloud :—

"And if indeed I cast the brand away,
 Surely a precious thing, one worthy note,
 Should thus be lost forever from the earth,
 Which might have pleased the eyes of many men.
 What good should follow this, if this were done ?
 What harm, undone ? deep harm to disobey,
 Seeing obedience is the bond of rule.
 Were it well to obey then, if a king demand
 An act unprofitable, against himself ?
 The King is sick, and knows not what he does.
 What record, or what relic of my lord
 Should be to after-time, but empty breath
 And rumors of a doubt ? but were this kept,
 Stored in some treasure-house of mighty kings,
 Some one might show it at a joust of arms,
 Saying, 'King Arthur's sword, Excalibur,
 Wrought by the lonely maiden of the Lake.
 Nine years she wrought it, sitting in the deeps
 Upon the hidden bases of the hills.'
 So might some old man speak in the after-time
 To all the people, winning reverence.
 But now much honor and much fame were lost."

So spake he, clouded with his own conceit,
 And hid Excalibur the second time,
 And so strode back slow to the wounded King.

Then spoke King Arthur, breathing heavily :
 "What is it thou hast seen ? or what hast heard ?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere :
 "I heard the water lapping on the crag,
 And the long ripple washing in the reeds."

To whom replied King Arthur, much in wrath :
 "Ah, miserable and unkind, untrue,
 Unknightly, traitor-hearted ! Woe is me !
 Authority forgets a dying king,
 Laid widowed of the power in his eye
 That bowed the will. I see thee what thou art,
 For thou, the latest-left of all my knights
 In whom should meet the offices of all,
 Thou wouldst betray me for the precious hilt ;
 Either from lust of gold, or like a girl
 Valuing the giddy pleasure of the eyes.
 Yet, for a man may fail in duty twice,
 And the third time may prosper, get thee hence :
 But, if thou spare to fling Excalibur,
 I will arise and slay thee with my hands."

Then quickly rose Sir Bedivere, and ran,
 And, leaping down the ridges lightly, plunged
 Among the bulrush-beds, and clutched the sword,
 And strongly wheeled and threw it. The great brand
 Made lightnings in the splendor of the moon,
 And flashing round and round, and whirled in an arch,
 Shot like a streamer of the northern morn,
 Seen where the moving isles of winter shock
 By night, with noises of the northern sea.
 So flashed and fell the brand Excalibur :
 But ere he dipt the surface, rose an arm
 Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful,
 And caught him by the hilt, and brandished him
 Three times, and drew him under in the mere.
 And lightly went the other to the King.

Then spoke King Arthur, drawing thicker breath :
 "Now see I by thine eyes that this is done.
 Speak out : what is it thou hast heard, or seen ?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere :
 "Sir King, I closed mine eyelids, lest the gems
 Should blind my purpose, for I never saw,
 Nor shall see, here or elsewhere, till I die,
 Not though I live three lives of mortal men,
 So great a miracle as yonder hilt.
 Then with both hands I flung him, wheeling
 him ;
 But when I looked again, behold an arm,
 Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful,
 That caught him by the hilt, and brandished him
 Three times, and drew him under in the mere."

And answer made King Arthur, breathing hard :
 "My end draws nigh ; 't is time that I were gone.
 Make broad thy shoulders to receive my weight,
 And bear me to the margin ; yet I fear
 My wound hath taken cold, and I shall die."

So saying, from the pavement he half rose,
 Slowly, with pain, reclining on his arm,
 And looking wistfully with wide blue eyes
 As in a picture. Him Sir Bedivere
 Remorsefully regarded through his tears,
 And would have spoken, but he found not words;
 Then took with care, and kneeling on one knee,
 O'er both his shoulders drew the languid hands,
 And rising bore him through the place of tombs.

But, as he walked, King Arthur panted hard,
 Like one that feels a nightmare on his bed
 When all the house is mute. So sighed the

King,
 Muttering and murmuring at his ear "Quick, quick !

I fear it is too late, and I shall die."
 But the other swiftly strode from ridge to ridge, Clothed with his breath, and looking, as he walked,

Larger than human on the frozen hills.
 He heard the deep behind him, and a cry
 Before. His own thought drove him like a goad.
 Dry clashed his harness in the icy caves
 And barren chasms, and all to left and right
 The bare black cliff clanged round him, as he based

His feet on juts of slippery crag that rang
 Sharp-smitten with the dint of armed heels —
 And on a sudden, lo ! the level lake,
 And the long glories of the winter moon.

Then saw they how there hove a dusky barge,
 Dark as a funeral scarf from stem to stern,
 Beneath them ; and descending they were ware
 That all the decks were dense with stately forms, Black-stoled, black-hooded, like a dream, — by these

Three Queens with crowns of gold, — and from them rose

A cry that shivered to the tingling stars,
 And, as it were one voice, an agony
 Of lamentation, like a wind that shrills
 All night in a waste land, where no one comes,
 Or hath come, since the making of the world.

Then murmured Arthur, "Place me in the barge ;"
 So to the barge they came. There those three Queens
 Put forth their hands, and took the King, and wept.

But she that rose the tallest of them all,
 And fairest, laid his head upon her lap,
 And loosed the shattered casque, and chafed his hands,

And called him by his name, complaining loud,

And dropping bitter tears against his brow
 Striped with dark blood : for all his face was white

And colorless, and like the withered moon
 Smote by the fresh beam of the springing east ;
 And all his greaves and cuisses dashed with drops
 Of onset ; and the light and lustrous curls —
 That made his forehead like a rising sun
 High from the dais-throne — were parched with dust ;

Or, clotted into points and hanging loose,
 Mixed with the knightly growth that fringed his lips.

So like a shattered column lay the King ;
 Not like that Arthur, who, with lance in rest,
 From spur to plume a star of tournament,
 Shot through the lists at Camelot, and charged
 Before the eyes of ladies and of kings.

Then loudly cried the bold Sir Bedivere :
 " Ah ! my Lord Arthur, whither shall I go ?
 Where shall I hide my forehead and my eyes ?
 For now I see the true old times are dead,
 When every morning brought a noble chance,
 And every chance brought out a noble knight.
 Such times have been not since the light that led
 The holy Elders with the gift of myrrh.
 But now the whole Round Table is dissolved
 Which was an image of the mighty world ;
 And I, the last, go forth companionless,
 And the days darken round me, and the years,
 Among new men, strange faces, other minds."

And slowly answered Arthur from the barge :
 " The old order changeth, yielding place to new,
 And God fulfils himself in many ways,
 Lest one good custom should corrupt the world.
 Comfort thyself : what comfort is in me ?
 I have lived my life, and that which I have done
 May He within himself make pure ! but thou,
 If thou shouldst never see my face again,
 Pray for my soul. More things are wrought by prayer
 Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice

Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
 For what are men better than sheep or goats
 That nourish a blind life within the brain,
 If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer
 Both for themselves and those who call them
 friend ?

For so the whole round earth is every way
 Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.
 But now farewell. I am going a long way
 With these thou seest, — if indeed I go
 (For all my mind is clouded with a doubt) —
 To the island-valley of Avilion ;

Where falls not hail, or rain, or any snow,
Nor ever wind blows loudly ; but it lies
Deep-meadowed, happy, fair with orchard-lawns
And bowery hollows crowned with summer sea,
'Where I will heal me of my grievous wound.'

So said he, and the barge with oar and sail
Moved from the brink, like some full-breasted swan,

That, fluting a wild carol ere her death,
Ruffles her pure cold plume, and takes the flood
With swarthy webs. Long stood Sir Bedivere
Revolving many memories, till the hull
Looked one black dot against the verge of dawn,
And on the mere the wailing died away.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

ALFRED THE HARPER.

DARK fell the night, the watch was set,
The host was idly spread,
The Danes around their watchfires met,
Caroused, and fiercely fed.

The chiefs beneath a tent of leaves,
And Guthrum, king of all,
Devoured the flesh of England's bees,
And laughed at England's fall.
Each warrior proud, each Danish earl,
In mail and wolf-skin clad,
Their bracelets white with plundered pearl,
Their eyes with triumph mad.

From Humber-land to Severn-land,
And on to Tamar stream,
Where Thames makes green the towery strand,
Where Medway's waters gleam, —
With hands of steel and mouths of flame
They raged the kingdom through ;
And where the Norseman sickle came,
No crop but hunger grew.

They loaded many an English horse
With wealth of cities fair ;
They dragged from many a father's corse
The daughter by her hair.
And English slaves, and gems and gold,
Were gathered round the feast ;
Till midnight in their woodland hold,
O, never that riot ceased.

In stalked a warrior tall and rude
Before the strong sea-kings ;
"Ye Lords and Earls of Odin's brood,
Without a harper sings.

He seems a simple man and poor,
But well he sounds the lay ;
And well, ye Norseman chiefs, be sure,
Will ye the song repay."

In trod the bard with keen cold look,
And glanced along the board,
That with the shout and war-cry shook
Of many a Danish lord.
But thirty brows, inflamed and stern,
Soon bent on him their gaze,
While calm he gazed, as if to learn
Who chief deserved his praise.

Loud Guthrum spake, — "Nay, gaze not thus,
Thou Harper weak and poor !
By Thor ! who bandy looks with us
Must worse than looks endure.
Sing high the praise of Denmark's host,
High praise each dauntless Earl ;
The brave who stun this English coast
With war's unceasing whirl."

The Harper slowly bent his head,
And touched aloud the string ;
Then raised his face, and boldly said,
"Hear thou my lay, O King !
High praise from every mouth of man
To all who boldly strive,
Who fall where first the fight began,
And ne'er go back alive.

"Fill high your cups, and swell the shout,
At famous Regnar's name !
Who sank his host in bloody rout,
When he to Humber came.
His men were chased, his sons were slain,
And he was left alone.
They bound him in an iron chain
Upon a dungeon stone.

"With iron links they bound him fast ;
With snakes they filled the hole,
That made his flesh their long repast,
And bit into his soul.

"Great chiefs, why sink in gloom your eyes ?
Why champ your teeth in pain ?
Still lives the song though Regnar dies !
Fill high your cups again !
Ye too, perchance, O Norseman lords !
Who fought and swayed so long,
Shall soon but live in minstrel words,
And owe your names to song.

"This land has graves by thousands more
Than that where Regnar lies.
When conquests fade, and rule is o'er,
The sod must close your eyes.

How soon, who knows? Not chief, nor bard ;
And yet to me 't is given,
To see your foreheads deeply scarred,
And guess the doom of Heaven.

"I may not read or when or how,
But, Earls and Kings, be sure
I see a blade o'er every brow,
Where pride now sits secure.
Fill high the cups, raise loud the strain !
When chief and monarch fall,
Their names in song shall breathe again,
And thrill the feastful hall."

Grim sat the chiefs ; one heaved a groan,
And one grew pale with dread,
His iron mace was grasped by one,
By one his wine was shed.
And Guthrum cried, "Nay, bard, no more
We hear thy boding lay ;
Make drunk the song with spoil and gore !
Light up the joyous fray !"

"Quick throbs my brain,"— so burst the song,—
"To hear the strife once more.
The mace, the axe, they rest too long ;
Earth cries, My thirst is sore.
More blithely twang the strings of bows
Than strings of harps in glee ;
Red wounds are lovelier than the rose
Or rosy lips to me.

"O, fairer than a field of flowers,
When flowers in England grew,
Would be the battle's marshalled powers,
The plain of carnage new.
With all its deaths before my soul
The vision rises fair ;
Raise loud the song, and drain the bowl !
I would that I were there !"

Loud rang the harp, the minstrel's eye
Rolled fiercely round the throng ;
It seemed two crashing hosts were nigh,
Whose shock aroused the song.
A golden cup King Guthrum gave
To him who strongly played ;
And said, "I won it from the slave
Who once o'er England swayed."

King Guthrum cried, "'T was Alfred's own ;
Thy song befits the brave :
The King who cannot guard his throne
Nor wine nor song shall have."
The minstrel took the goblet bright,
And said, "I drink the wine
To him who owns by justest right
The cup thou bid'st be mine.

"To him, your Lord, O shout ye all !
His meed be deathless praise !
The King who dares not nobly fall,
Dies basely all his days."

"The praise thou speakest," Guthrum said,
"With sweetness fills mine ear ;
For Alfred swift before me fled,
And left me monarch here.
The royal coward never dared
Beneath mine eye to stand.
O, would that now this feast he shared,
And saw me rule his land !"

Then stern the minstrel rose, and spake,
And gazed upon the King, —
"Not now the golden cup I take,
Nor more to thee I sing.
Another day, a happier hour,
Shall bring me here again :
The cup shall stay in Guthrum's power,
Till I demand it then."

The Harper turned and left the shed,
Nor bent to Guthrum's crown ;
And one who marked his visage said
It wore a ghastly frown.
The Danes ne'er saw that Harper more,
For soon as morning rose,
Upon their camp King Alfred bore,
And slew ten thousand foes.

JOHN STERLING.

THE EARL O' QUARTERDECK.

A NEW OLD BALLAD.

THE wind it blew, and the ship it flew ;
And it was "Hey for hame !
And ho for hame !" But the skipper cried,
"Haud her oot o'er the saut sea faem."

Then up and spoke the King himsel' :
"Haud on for Dumferline !"
Quo the skipper, "Ye're king upo' the land —
I'm king upo' the brine."

And he took the helm intil his hand,
And he steered the ship sae free ;
Wi' the wind astarn, he crowded sail,
And stood right out to sea.

Quo the king, "There's treason in this, I vow ;
This is something underhand !
'Bout ship !" Quo the skipper, "Yer grace forgets
Ye are king but o' the land !"

And still he held to the open sea ;
And the east-wind sank behind ;
And the west had a bitter word to say,
Wi' a white-sea roarin' wind.

And he turned her head into the north.
Said the king : " Gar fling him o'er."
Quo the fearless skipper : " It's a' ye're worth !
Ye'll ne'er see Scotland more."

The king crept down the cabin-stair,
To drink the gude French wine.
And up she came, his daughter fair,
And luikit over the brine.

She turned her face to the drivin' hail,
To the hail but and the weat ;
Her snood it brak, and, as lang's hersel',
Her hair drave out i' the sleet.

She turned her face frae the drivin' win' —
" What's that ahead ? " quo she.
The skipper he threw himsel' frae the win',
And he drove the helm a-lee.

" Put to yer hand, my lady fair !
Put to yer hand," quo he ;
" Gin she dinna face the win' the mair,
It's the waur for you and me."

For the skipper kenned that strength is strength,
Whether woman's or man's at last.
To the tiller the lady she laid her han',
And the ship laid her cheek to the blast.

For that slender body was full o' soul,
And the will is mair than shape ;
As the skipper saw when they cleared the berg,
And he heard her quarter scrape.

Quo the skipper : " Ye are a lady fair,
And a princess grand to see ;
But ye are a woman, and a man wad sail
To hell in yer company."

She liftit a pale and queenly face ;
Her een flashed, and syne they swim.
" And what for no to heaven ? " she says,
And she turned awa' frae him.

But she took na her han' frae the good ship's helm,
Until the day did daw ;
And the skipper he spak, but what he said
It was said atween them twa.

And then the good ship she lay to,
With the land far on the lee ;
And up came the king upo' the deck,
Wi' wan face and bluidshot ee.

The skipper he louted to the king :
" Gae wa', gae wa'," said the king.
Said the king, like a prince, " I was a' wrang,
Put on this ruby ring."

And the wind blew lowne, and the stars cam' oot,
And the ship turned to the shore ;
And, afore the sun was up again,
They saw Scotland ance more.

That day the ship hung at the pier-heid,
And the king he stept on the land.
" Skipper, kneel down," the king he said,
" Hoo daur ye afore me stand ? "

The skipper he louted on his knee,
The king his blade he drew :
Said the king, " How daured ye centre me ?
I'm aboard my ain ship noo.

" I canna mak ye a king," said he,
" For the Lord alone can do that ;
And besides ye took it intil yer ain han'
And crooned yersel' sae pat !

" But wi' what ye will I redeem my ring ;
For ance I am at your beck.
And first, as ye loutit Skipper o' Doon,
Rise up Yerl o' Quarterdeck."

The skipper he rose and looked at the king
In his een for all his croon ;
Said the skipper, " Here is yer grace's ring,
And yer daughter is my boon."

The reid blude sprang into the king's face, —
A wrathful man to see :
" The rascal loon abuses our grace ;
Gae hang him upon yon tree."

But the skipper he sprang aboard his ship,
And he drew his biting blade ;
And he struck the chain that held her fast,
But the iron was ower weel made.

And the king he blew a whistle loud ;
And tramp, tramp, down the pier,
Cam' twenty riders on twenty steeds,
Clankin' wi' spur and spear.

" He saved your life ! " cried the lady fair ;
" His life ye daurna spill ! "
" Will ye come atween me and my hate ? "
Quo the lady, " And that I will ! "

And on cam' the knights wi' spur and spear,
For they heard the iron ring.
" Gin ye care na for yer father's grace,
Mind ye that I am the king."

"I kneel to my father for his grace,
Right lowly on my knee ;
But I stand and look the king in the face,
For the skipper is king o' me."

She turned and she sprang upo' the deck,
And the cable splashed in the sea.
The good ship spread her wings sae white,
And away with the skipper goes she.

Now was not this a king's daughter,
And a brave lady beside ?
And a woman with whom a man might sail
Into the heaven wi' pride ?

GEORGE MACDONALD.

MARMION AND DOUGLAS.

FROM "MARMION," CANTO VI.

Nor far advanced was morning day,
When Marmion did his troop array
To Surrey's camp to ride ;
He had safe-conduct for his band,
Beneath the royal seal and hand,
And Douglas gave a guide :
The ancient Earl, with stately grace,
Would Clara on her palfrey place,
And whispered in an undertone,
"Let the hawk stoop, his prey is flown."
The train from out the castle drew,
But Marmion stopped to bid adieu : —
"Though something I might plain," he said,
"Of cold respect to stranger guest,
Sent hither by your king's behest,

While in Tantallon's towers I stayed,
Part we in friendship from your land,
And, noble Earl, receive my hand." —
But Douglas round him drew his cloak,
Folded his arms, and thus he spoke : —
"My manors, halls, and bowers shall still
Be open, at my sovereign's will,
To each one whom he lists, howe'er
Unmeet to be the owner's peer.
My castles are my king's alone,
From turret to foundation-stone, —
The hand of Douglas is his own ;
And never shall in friendly grasp
The hand of such as Marmion clasp." —

Burned Marmion's swarthy cheek like fire,
And shook his very frame for ire,

And — "This to me !" he said, —
"An't were not for thy hoary beard,
Such hand as Marmion's had not spared
To cleave the Douglas' head !

And, first, I tell thee, haughty Peer,
He who does England's message here,
Although the meanest in her state,

May well, proud Angus, be thy mate :
And, Douglas, more I tell thee here,
Even in thy pitch of pride,
Here in thy hold, thy vassals near,
(Nay, never look upon your lord,
And lay your hands upon your sword,)

I tell thee, thou'rt defied !
And if thou said'st I am not peer
To any lord in Scotland here,
Lowland or Highland, far or near,
Lord Angus, thou hast lied !" —
On the Earl's cheek the flush of rage
O'ercame the ashen hue of age :
Fierce he broke forth, — "And dar'st thou then
To beard the lion in his den,

The Douglas in his hall ?
And hop'st thou hence unscathed to go ?
No, by St. Bride of Bothwell, no !
Up drawbridge, grooins, — what, Warder, ho !
Let the portcullis fall." —

Lord Marmion turned, — well was his need ! —
And dashed the rowels in his steed ;
Like arrow through the archway sprung ;
The ponderous grate behind him rung :
To pass there was such scanty room,
The bars, descending, razed his plume.

The steed along the drawbridge flies,
Just as it trembled on the rise ;
Not lighter does the swallow skim
Along the smooth lake's level brim ;
And when Lord Marmion reached his band,
He halts, and turns with clenched hand,
And shout of loud defiance pours,
And shook his gauntlet at the towers.
"Horse ! horse !" the Douglas cried, "and chase !"

But soon he reined his fury's pace :
"A royal messenger he came,
Though most unworthy of the name.

St. Mary, mend my fiery mood !
Old age ne'er cools the Douglas blood,
I thought to slay him where he stood.
'T is pity of him too," he cried ;
"Bold can he speak, and fairly ride :
I warrant him a warrior tried."
With this his mandate he recalls,
And slowly seeks his castle halls.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

JAMES FITZ-JAMES AND ELLEN.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO VI.

A FOOTSTEP struck her ear,
And Snowdoun's graceful Knight was near.
She turned the hastier, lest again
The prisoner should renew his strain.

"O welcome, brave Fitz-James!" she said;
 "How may an almost orphan maid
 Pay the deep debt" — "O, say not so!
 To me no gratitude you owe,
 Not mine, alas! the boon to give,
 And bid thy noble father live;
 I can but be thy guide, sweet maid,
 With Scotland's King thy suit to aid.
 No tyrant he, though ire and pride
 May lead his better mood aside.
 Come, Ellen, come; 't is more than time,
 He holds his court at morning prime."
 With beating heart and bosom wrung,
 As to a brother's arm she clung.
 Gently he dried the falling tear,
 And gently whispered hope and cheer;
 Her faltering steps half led, half stayed,
 Through gallery fair and high arcade,
 Till, at his touch, its wings of pride
 A portal arch unfolded wide.

Within 't was brilliant all and light,
 A thronging scene of figures bright;
 It glowed on Ellen's dazzled sight,
 As when the setting sun has given
 Ten thousand hues to summer even,
 And from their tissue fancy frames
 Aerial knights and fairy dames.
 Still by Fitz-James her footing stayed;
 A few faint steps she forward made,
 Then slow her drooping head she raised,
 And fearful round the presence gazed:
 For him she sought who owned this state,
 The dreaded prince whose will was fate!
 She gazed on many a princely port
 Might well have ruled a royal court;
 On many a splendid garb she gazed, —
 Then turned bewildered and amazed,
 For all stood bare; and in the room
 Fitz-James alone wore cap and plume.
 To him each lady's look was lent,
 On him each courtier's eye was bent,
 Midst furs and silks and jewels sheen
 He stood, in simple Lincoln green,
 The centre of the glittering ring, —
 And Snowdown's Knight is Scotland's King!

As wreath of snow, on mountain breast,
 Slides from the rock that gave it rest,
 Poor Ellen glided from her stay,
 And at the Monarch's feet she lay;
 No word her choking voice commands:
 She showed the ring, she clasped her hands.
 O, not a moment could he brook,
 The generous prince, that suppliant look!
 Gently he raised her, and the while
 Checked with a glance the circle's smile;
 Graceful, but grave, her brow he kissed,

And bade her terrors be dismissed: —
 "Yes, fair; the wandering poor Fitz-James
 The fealty of Scotland claims.
 To him thy woes, thy wishes bring;
 He will redeem thy signet-ring.
 Ask naught for Douglas; yester even
 His prince and he have much forgiven:
 Wrong hath he had from slanderous tongue,
 I, from his rebel kinsmen, wrong.
 We would not to the vulgar crowd
 Yield what they craved with clamor loud;
 Calmly we heard and judged his cause,
 Our council aided and our laws.
 I stanch'd thy father's death-feud stern,
 With stout De Vaux and gray Glencairn;
 And Bothwell's Lord henceforth we own
 The friend and bulwark of our Throne.
 But, lovely infidel, how now?
 What clouds thy misbelieving brow?
 Lord James of Douglas, lend thine aid;
 Thou must confirm this doubting maid."

Then forth the noble Douglas sprung,
 And on his neck his daughter hung.
 The Monarch drank, that happy hour,
 The sweetest, holiest draught of Power, —
 When it can say, the godlike voice,
 Arise, sad Virtue, and rejoice!
 Yet would not James the general eye
 On nature's raptures long should pry:
 He stepped between — "Nay, Douglas, nay,
 Steal not my proselyte away!
 The riddle 't is my right to read,
 That brought this happy chance to speed.
 Yes, Ellen, when disguised I stray
 In life's more low but happier way,
 'T is under name which veils my power,
 Nor falsely veils, — for Stirling's tower
 Of yore the name of Snowdown claims,
 And Normans call me James Fitz-James.
 Thus watch I o'er insulted laws,
 Thus learn to right the injured cause."
 Then, in a tone apart and low,
 "Ah, little traitress! none must know
 What idle dream, what lighter thought,
 What vanity full dearly bought,
 Joined to thine eye's dark witchcraft, drew
 My spell-bound steps to Benvenue,
 In dangerous hour, and all but gave Thy Monarch's life to mountain glaive!"
 Aloud he spoke, — "Thou still dost hold
 That little talisman of gold,
 Pledge of my faith, Fitz-James's ring;
 What seeks fair Ellen of the King?"

Full well the conscious maiden guessed,
 He probed the weakness of her breast;

But with that consciousness there came
 A lightening of her fears for Græme,
 And more she deemed the monarch's ire
 Kindled 'gainst him, who, for her sire,
 Rebellious broadsword boldly drew;
 And, to her generous feeling true,
 She craved the grace of Roderick Dhu.
 "Forbear thy suit; the King of kings
 Alone can stay life's parting wings.
 I know his heart, I know his hand,
 Have shared his cheer, and proved his brand.
 My fairest earldom would I give
 To bid Clan-Alpine's Chieftain live! —
 Hast thou no other boon to crave?
 No other captive friend to save?"
 Blushing, she turned her from the King,
 And to the Douglas gave the ring,
 As if she wished her sire to speak
 The suit that stained her glowing cheek.
 "Nay, then, my pledge has lost its force,
 And stubborn justice holds her course.
 Malcolm, come forth!" — And, at the word,
 Down knelt the Græme to Scotland's Lord.
 "For thee, rash youth, no suppliant sues,
 From thee may Vengeance claim her dues,
 Who, nurtured underneath our smile,
 Hast paid our care by treacherous wile,
 And sought, amid thy faithful clan,
 A refuge for an outlawed man,
 Dishonoring thus thy loyal name, —
 Fetters and warder for the Græme!"
 His chain of gold the King unstrung,
 The links o'er Malcolm's neck he flung,
 Then gently drew the glittering band,
 And laid the clasp on Ellen's hand.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

NORVAL.

FROM THE TRAGEDY OF "DOUGLAS," ACT II. SC. 1.

LADY RANDOLPH. How fares my lord?

LORD RANDOLPH. That it fares well, thanks to this gallant youth,

Whose valor saved me from a wretched death.
 As down the winding dale I walked alone,
 At the cross way four armed men attacked me,
 Rovers, I judge, from the licentious camp,
 Who would have quickly laid Lord Randolph low,
 Had not this brave and generous stranger come,
 Like my good angel, in the hour of fate,
 And, mocking danger, made my foes his own.
 They turned upon him: but his active arm Struck to the ground, from whence they rose no
 more,

The fiercest two; the others fled amain,
 And left him master of the bloody field.
 Speak, Lady Randolph; upon beauty's tongue

Dwell accents pleasing to the brave and bold,
 Speak, noble dame, and thank him for thy lord.

LADY RAN. My lord, I cannot speak what now I feel.

My heart o'erflows with gratitude to Heaven,
 And to this noble youth, who, all unknown
 To you and yours, deliberated not,
 Nor paused at peril, but, humanely brave,
 Fought on your side against such fearful odds.
 Have you yet learnt of him whom we should thank,

Whom call the savior of Lord Randolph's life?

LORD RAN. I asked that question, and he answered not;

But I must know who my deliverer is. (To the Stranger.)

NORVAL. A low-born man, of parentage obscure,

Who naught can boast but his desire to be
 A soldier, and to gain a name in arms.

LORD RAN. Whoe'er thou art, thy spirit is ennobled

By the great King of kings: thou art ordained
 And stamped a hero by the sovereign hand
 Of nature! Blush not, flower of modesty
 As well as valor, to declare thy birth.

NORV. My name is Norval: on the Grampian hills

My father feeds his flocks, — a frugal swain,
 Whose constant cares were to increase his store,
 And keep his only son, myself, at home.
 For I had heard of battles, and I longed
 To follow to the field some warlike lord:
 And Heaven soon granted what my sire denied.
 This moon which rose last night, round as my shield,

Had not yet filled her horns, when, by her light,
 A band of fierce barbarians from the hills
 Rushed like a torrent down upon the vale, Sweeping our flocks and herds. The shepherds fled

For safety and for succor. I alone,
 With bended bow, and quiver full of arrows,
 Hovered about the enemy, and marked
 The road he took; then hastened to my friends,
 Whom, with a troop of fifty chosen men,
 I met advancing. The pursuit I led,
 Till we o'ertook the spoil-encumbered foe.
 We fought and conquered. Ere a sword was drawn

An arrow from my bow had pierced their chief,
 Who wore that day the arms which now I wear.
 Returning home in triumph, I disdained
 The shepherd's slothful life; and having heard
 That our good king had summoned his bold peers
 To lead their warriors to the Carron side,
 I left my father's house, and took with me

A chosen servant to conduct my steps, —
Yon trembling coward, who forsook his master.
Journeying with this intent, I passed these towers,

And, Heaven-directed, came this day to do
The happy deed that gilds my humble name.

LORD RAN. He is as wise as brave : was ever tale

With such a gallant modesty rehearsed ?
My brave deliverer ! thou shalt enter now
A nobler list ; and, in a monarch's sight,
Contend with princes for the prize of fame.

I will present thee to our Scottish king,
Whose valiant spirit ever valor loved.
Ha ! my Matilda ! wherefore starts that tear ?

LADY RAN. I cannot say ; for various affections,

And strangely mingled, in my bosom swell :
Yet each of them may well command a tear.
I joy that thou art safe ; and I admire
Him and his fortunes, who hath wrought thy safety ;

Yea, as my mind predicts, with thine his own.
Obscure and friendless, he the army sought ;
Bent upon peril, in the range of death
Resolved to hunt for fame, and with his sword
To gain distinction which his birth denied.
In this attempt unknown he might have perished,
And gained with all his valor but oblivion.
Now graced by thee, his virtue serves no more
Beneath despair. The soldier now of hope,
He stands conspicuous : fame and great renown
Are brought within the compass of his sword.
On this my mind reflected, whilst you spoke,
And blessed the wonder-working hand of Heaven.

LORD RAN. Pious and grateful ever are thy thoughts !

My deeds shall follow where thou point'st the way.
Next to myself, and equal to Glenalvon,
In honor and command shall Norval be.

NORV. I know not how to thank you : rude
I am

In speech and manners ; never till this hour
Stood I in such a presence ; yet, my lord,
There's something in my breast which makes me bold

To say that Norval ne'er will shame thy favor.

JOHN HOME.

JORASSE.

FROM "ITALY."

JORASSE was in his three-and-twentieth year ;
Graceful and active as a stag just roused ;
Gentle withal, and pleasant in his speech,
Yet seldom seen to smile. He had grown up
Among the hunters of the Higher Alps ;

Had caught their starts and fits of thoughtfulness,

Their haggard looks, and strange soliloquies.
Arising (so say they that dwell below)
From frequent dealings with the Mountain-Spirits.

But other ways had taught him better things ;
And now he numbered, marching by my side,
The great, the learned, that with him had crossed
The frozen tract, — with him familiarly
Through the rough day and rougher night conversed

In many a chalet round the Peak of Terror,
Round Tacul, Tour, Well-horn, and Rosenlau,
And her whose throne is inaccessible,
Who sits, withdrawn in virgin majesty,
Nor oft unveils. Anon an avalanche
Rolled its long thunder ; and a sudden crash,
Sharp and metallic, to the startled ear
Told that far down a continent of ice
Had burst in twain. But he had now begun ;
And with what transport he recalled the hour
When, to deserve, to win his blooming bride,
Madelaine of Anneey, to his feet he bound
The iron crampons, and, ascending, trod
The upper realms of frost ; then, by a cord
Let half-way down, entered a grot star-bright,
And gathered from above, below, around,
The pointed crystals ! — Once, nor long before
(Thus did his tongue run on, fast as his feet,
And with an eloquence that Nature gives
To all her children, — breaking off by starts
Into the harsh and rude, oft as the mule
Drew his displeasure), — once, nor long before,
Alone at daybreak on the Mettenberg,
He slipped, he fell ; and, through a fearful cleft
Gliding from ledge to ledge, from deep to deeper,
Went to the under-world ! Long while he lay
Upon his rugged bed, — then waked like one
Wishing to sleep again and sleep forever !
For, looking round, he saw, or thought he saw,
Innumerable branches of a cave,
Winding beneath that solid crust of ice ;
With here and there a rent that showed the stars !
What then, alas ! was left him but to die ?
What else in those immeasurable chambers,
Strewn with the bones of miserable men,
Lost like himself ? Yet must he wander on,
Till cold and hunger set his spirit free !
And, rising, he began his dreary road ;
When hark ! the noise as of some mighty river
Working its way to light ! Back he withdrew,
But soon returned, and, fearless from despair,
Dashed down the dismal channel ; and all day,
If day could be where utter darkness was,
Travelled incessantly ; the craggy roof
Just overhead, and the impetuous waves,

Nor broad nor deep, yet with a giant's strength,
Lashing him on. At last, as in a pool,
The water slept; a pool sullen, profound,
Where if a billow chanced to heave and swell
It broke not; and the roof, that long
Had threatened, suddenly descending, lay
Flat on the surface. Statue-like he stood,
His journey ended, when a ray divine
Shot through his soul. Breathing a prayer to her
Whose ears are never shut, the Blessed Virgin,
He plunged, he swam, — and in an instant rose,
The barrier passed, in sunshine! Through a vale,
Such as in Arcady, where many a thatch
Gleams through the trees, half seen and half embowered,
Glittering the river ran; and on the bank
The young were dancing ('t was a festival-day)
All in their best attire. There first he saw
His Madelaine. In the crowd she stood to hear,
When all drew round, inquiring; and her face,
Seen behind all, and varying, as he spoke,
With hope and fear and generous sympathy,
Subdued him. From that very hour he loved.

SAMUEL ROGERS.

THE GLOVE AND THE LIONS.

KING FRANCIS was a hearty king, and loved a royal sport,
And one day, as his lions fought, sat looking on the court.
The nobles filled the benches, with the ladies in their pride,
And 'mongst them sat the Count de Lorge, with one for whom he sighed:
And truly 't was a gallant thing to see that crowning show,
Valor and love, and a king above, and the royal beasts below.

Ramped and roared the lions, with horrid laughing jaws;
They bit, they glared, gave blows like beams, a wind went with their paws;
With wallowing might and stifled roar they rolled on one another,
Till all the pit with sand and mane was in a thunderous smother;
The bloody foam above the bars came whisking
through the air;
Said Francis then, "Faith, gentlemen, we're better here than there."

De Lorge's love o'erheard the King, a beauteous lively dame,
With smiling lips and sharp bright eyes, which always seemed the same;

She thought, the Count, my lover, is brave as brave can be;
He surely would do wondrous things to show his love of me;
King, ladies, lovers, all look on; the occasion is divine;
I'll drop my glove, to prove his love; great glory
will be mine.

She dropped her glove, to prove his love, then looked at him and smiled;
He bowed, and in a moment leaped among the lions wild;
The leap was quick, return was quick, he has regained his place,
Then threw the glove, but not with love, right in the lady's face.
"By Heaven," said Francis, "rightly done!"
and he rose from where he sat;
"No love," quoth he, "but vanity, sets love a task like that."

LEIGH HUNT.

PRINCE ADEB.

In Sana, O, in Sana, God, the Lord,
Was very kind and merciful to me!
Forth from the Desert in my rags I came,
Weary and sore of foot. I saw the spires
And swelling bubbles of the golden domes
Rise through the trees of Sana, and my heart
Grew great within me with the strength of God
And I cried out, "Now shall I right myself, —
I, Adeb the despised, — for God is just!"
There he who wronged my father dwelt in peace, —
My warlike father, who, when gray hairs crept
Around his forehead, as on Lebanon
The whitening snows of winter, was betrayed
To the sly Innam, and his tented wealth
Swept from him, 'twixt the roosting of the cock
And his first crowing, — in a single night:
And I, poor Adeb, sole of all my race,
Smeared with my father's and my kinsmen's blood
Fled through the Desert, till one day a tribe
Of hungry Bedouins found me in the sand,
Half mad with famine, and they took me up,
And made a slave of me, — of me, a prince!
All was fulfilled at last. I fled from them,
In rags and sorrow. Nothing but my heart,
Like a strong swimmer, bore me up against
The howling sea of my adversity.
At length o'er Sana, in the act to swoop,
I stood like a young eagle on a crag.
The traveller passed me with suspicious fear:
I asked for nothing; I was not a thief.
The lean dogs snuffed around me: my lank bones,
Fed on the berries and the crusted pools,

Were a scant morsel. Once a brown-skinned girl
 Called me a little from the common path,
 And gave me figs and barley in a bag.
 I paid her with a kiss, with nothing more,
 And she looked glad ; for I was beautiful,
 And virgin as a fountain, and as cold.
 I stretched her bounty, pecking like a bird
 Her figs and barley, till my strength returned.
 So when rich Sana lay beneath my eyes,
 My foot was as the leopard's, and my hand
 As heavy as the lion's brandished paw ;
 And underneath my burnished skin the veins
 And stretching muscles played, at every step,
 In wondrous motion. I was very strong.
 I looked upon my body, as a bird
 That bills his feathers ere he takes to flight, —
 I, watching over Sana. Then I prayed ;
 And on a soft stone, wetted in the brook,
 Ground my long knife ; and then I prayed again.
 God heard my voice, preparing all for me,
 As, softly stepping down the hills, I saw
 The Imam's summer-palace all ablaze
 In the last flash of sunset. Every fount
 Was spouting fire, and all the orange-trees
 Bore blazing coals, and from the marble walls
 And gilded spires and columns, strangely wrought,
 Glared the red light, until my eyes were pained
 With the fierce splendor. Till the night grew thick,

I lay within the bushes, next the door,
 Still as a serpent, as invisible.
 The guard hung round the portal. Man by man
 They dropped away, save one lone sentinel,
 And on his eyes God's finger lightly fell ;
 He slept half standing. Like a summer wind
 That threads the grove, yet never turns a leaf,
 I stole from shadow unto shadow forth ;
 Crossed all the marble court-yard, swung the door,
 Like a soft gust, a little way ajar, —
 My body's narrow width, no more, — and stood
 Beneath the cresset in the painted hall.
 I marvelled at the riches of my foe ;
 I marvelled at God's ways with wicked men.
 Then I reached forth, and took God's waiting
 hand :

And so he led me over mossy floors,
 Flowered with the silken summer of Shiraz,
 Straight to the Imam's chamber. At the door
 Stretched a brawn eunuch, blacker than my eyes:
 His woolly head lay like the Kaba-stone
 In Mecca's mosque, as silent and as huge.
 I stepped across it, with my pointed knife
 Just missing a full vein along his neck,
 And, pushing by the curtains, there I was, —
 I, Adeb the despised, — upon the spot
 That, next to heaven, I longed for most of all.
 I could have shouted for the joy in me.

Fierce pangs and flashes of bewildering light Leaped through my brain and danced before my eyes.

So loud my heart beat, that I feared its sound
 Would wake the sleeper ; and the bubbling blood
 Choked in my throat till, weaker than a child,
 I reeled against a column, and there hung
 In a blind stupor. Then I prayed again :
 And, sense by sense, I was made whole once more.
 I touched myself ; I was the same ; I knew
 Myself to be lone Adeb, young and strong,
 With nothing but a stride of empty air
 Between me and God's justice. In a sleep,
 Thick with the fumes of the accursed grape,
 Sprawled the false Imam. On his shaggy breast,
 Like a white lily heaving on the tide
 Of some foul stream, the fairest woman slept
 These roving eyes have ever looked upon.
 Almost a child, her bosom barely showed
 The change beyond her girlhood. All her charms
 Were budding, but half opened ; for I saw
 Not only beauty wondrous in itself,
 But possibility of more to be
 In the full process of her blooming days.
 I gazed upon her, and my heart grew soft,
 As a parched pasture with the dew of heaven.
 While thus I gazed she smiled, and slowly raised
 The long curve of her lashes ; and we looked
 Each upon each in wonder, not alarm, —
 Not eye to eye, but soul to soul, we held
 Each other for a moment. All her life
 Seemed centred in the circle of her eyes.
 She stirred no limb ; her long-drawn, equal breath
 Swelled out and ebbed away beneath her breast,
 In calm unbroken. Not a sign of fear
 Touched the faint color on her oval cheek,
 Or pinched the arches of her tender mouth.
 She took me for a vision, and she lay
 With her sleep's smile unaltered, as in doubt
 Whether real life had stolen into her dreams,
 Or dreaming stretched into her outer life.
 I was not graceless to a woman's eyes.
 The girls of Damar paused to see me pass,
 I walking in my rags, yet beautiful.
 One maiden said, " He has a prince's air ! "
 I am a prince ; the air was all my own.
 So thought the lily on the Imam's breast ;
 And lightly as a summer mist, that lifts
 Before the morning, so she floated up,
 Without a sound or rustle of a robe,
 From her coarse pillow, and before me stood
 With asking eyes. The Imam never moved.
 A stride and blow were all my need, and they
 Were wholly in my power. I took her hand,
 I held a warning finger to my lips,
 And whispered in her small, expectant ear,
 " Adeb, the son of Akem ! " She replied

In a low murmur whose bewildering sound
 Almost lulled wakeful me to sleep, and sealed
 The sleeper's lids in tenfold slumber, "Prince,
 Lord of the Imam's life and of my heart,
 Take all thou seest, — it is thy right, I know, —
 But spare the Imam for thy own soul's sake!"
 Then I arrayed me in a robe of state,
 Shining with gold and jewels; and I bound
 In my long turban gems that might have bought
 The lands 'twixt Babelmandeb and Sahan.
 I girt about me, with a blazing belt,
 A scimitar o'er which the sweating smiths
 In far Damascus hammered for long years,
 Whose hilt and scabbard shot a trembling light
 From diamonds and rubies. And she smiled,
 As piece by piece I put the treasures on,
 To see me look so fair, — in pride she smiled.
 I hung long purses at my side. I scooped,
 From off a table, figs and dates and rice,
 And bound them to my girdle in a sack.
 Then over all I flung a snowy cloak,
 And beckoned to the maiden. So she stole
 Forth like my shadow, past the sleeping wolf
 Who wronged my father, o'er the woolly head
 Of the swart eunuch, down the painted court,
 And by the sentinel who standing slept.
 Strongly against the portal, through my rags, —
 My old baserags, — and through the maiden's veil,
 I pressed my knife, — upon the wooden hilt
 Was "Adeb, son of Akem," carved by me
 In my long slavehood, — as a passing sign
 To wait the Imam's waking. Shadows cast
 From two high-sailing clouds upon the sand
 Passed not more noiseless than we two, as one,
 Glided beneath the moonlight, till I smelt
 The fragrance of the stables. As I slid
 The wide doors open, with a sudden bound
 Uprose the startled horses: but they stood
 Still as the man who in a foreign land
 Hears his strange language, when my Desert call,
 As low and plaintive as the nested dove's,
 Fell on their listening ears. From stall to stall,
 Feeling the horses with my groping hands,
 I crept in darkness; and at length I came Upon two sister mares whose rounded sides,
 Fine muzzles, and small heads, and pointed ears,
 And foreheads spreading 'twixt their eyelids wide,
 Long slender tails, thin manes, and coats of silk,
 Told me, that, of the hundred steeds there stalled,
 My hand was on the treasures. O'er and o'er
 I felt their bony joints, and down their legs
 To the cool hoofs; — no blemish anywhere:
 These I led forth and saddled. Upon one
 I set the lily, gathered now for me, —
 My own, henceforth, forever. So we rode
 Across the grass, beside the stony path,
 Until we gained the highway that is lost,

Leading from Sana, in the eastern sands:
 When, with a cry that both the desert-born
 Knew without hint from whip or goading spur,
 We dashed into a gallop. Far behind
 In sparks and smoke the dusty highway rose;
 And ever on the maiden's face I saw,
 When the moon flashed upon it, the strange smile
 It wore on waking. Once I kissed her mouth,
 When she grew weary, and her strength returned.
 All through the night we scoured between the hills:
 The moon went down behind us, and the stars
 Dropped after her; but long before I saw
 A planet blazing straight against our eyes,
 The road had softened, and the shadowy hills
 Had flattened out, and I could hear the hiss
 Of sand spurned backward by the flying mares.
 Glory to God! I was at home again!
 The sun rose on us; far and near I saw
 The level Desert; sky met sand all round.
 We paused at midday by a palm-crowned well,
 And ate and slumbered. Somewhat, too, was said:
 The words have slipped my memory. That same eve

We rode sedately through a Hamoun camp, —
 I, Adeb, prince amongst them, and my bride.
 And ever since amongst them I have ridden,
 A head and shoulders taller than the best;
 And ever since my days have been of gold,
 My nights have been of silver, — God is just!

GEORGE HENRY BOKER.

HELVELLYN.

[In the spring of 1805, a young gentleman of talents, and of a most amiable disposition, perished by losing his way on the mountain Helvellyn. His remains were not discovered till three months afterwards, when they were found guarded by a faithful terrier, his constant attendant during frequent solitary rambles through the wilds of Cumberland and Westmoreland.]

I CLIMBED the dark brow of the mighty Hel-vellyn,
 Lakes and mountains beneath me gleamed
 misty and wide:
 All was still, save, by fits, when the eagle was yelling,
 And starting around me the echoes replied.
 On the right, Striden Edge round the Red Tarn was bending,
 And Catbedicam its left verge was defending,
 One huge nameless rock in the front was ascend-
 ing,
 When I marked the sad spot where the wanderer had died.
 Dark green was that spot mid the brown mountain heather,
 Where the Pilgrim of Nature lay stretched in decay,

Like the corpse of an outcast abandoned to
weather,
Till the mountain winds wasted the tenantless
clay ;
Not yet quite deserted, though lonely extended,
For, faithful in death, his mute favorite attended,
The much-loved remains of her master defended,
And chased the hill-fox and the raven away.

How long didst thou think that his silence was slumber ?

When the wind waved his garment, how oft didst thou start ?

How many long days and long nights didst thou number

Ere he faded before thee, the friend of thy heart ?

And, O, was it meet that — no requiem read o'er
him,

No mother to weep, and no friend to deplore him,
And thou, little guardian, alone stretched before
him —

Unhonored the Pilgrim from life should depart ?

When a prince to the fate of the peasant has yielded,

The tapestry waves dark round the dim-lighted hall,

With 'scutcheons of silver the coffin is shielded,
And pages stand mute by the canopied pall :

Through the courts, at deep midnight, the torches are gleaming ;

In the proudly arched chapel the banners are
beaming ;

Far adown the long aisle sacred music is stream-
ing,

Lamenting a Chief of the People should fall.

But meeter for thee, gentle lover of nature,

To lay down thy head like the meek mountain
lamb,

When, wildered, he drops from some cliff huge in stature,

And draws his last sob by the side of his dam.

And more stately thy couch by this desert lake lying,

Thy obsequies sung by the gray plover flying,
With one faithful friend but to witness thy dying,

In the arms of Helvellyn and Catbedicam.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

FITZ-JAMES AND RODERICK DHU

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO V.

"I AM by promise tied

To match me with this man of pride :

Twice have I sought Clan-Alpine's glen

In peace ; but when I come again,

I come with banner, brand, and bow,
As leader seeks his mortal foe.
For lovelorn swain, in lady's bower,
Ne'er panted for the appointed hour,
As I, until before me stand
This rebel Chieftain and his band."

"Have, then, thy wish !" — He whistled shrill,
And he was answered from the hill ;
Wild as the scream of the curlew,
From crag to crag the signal flew.
Instant, through copse and heath, arose
Bonnets and spears and bended bows ;
On right, on left, above, below,
Sprung up at once the lurking foe ;
From shingles gray their lances start,
The bracken bush sends forth the dart,
The rushes and the willow-wand
Are bristling into axe and brand,
And every tuft of broom gives life
To plaided warrior armed for strife.
That whistle garrisoned the glen
At once with full five hundred men,
As if the yawning hill to heaven
A subterranean host had given.
Watching their leader's beck and will,
All silent there they stood, and still.
Like the loose crags whose threatening mass
Lay tottering o'er the hollow pass,
As if an infant's touch could urge
Their headlong passage down the verge,
With step and weapon forward flung,
Upon the mountain-side they hung.
The Mountaineer cast glance of pride
Along Benledi's living side,
Then fixed his eye and sable brow
Full on Fitz-James : "How say'st thou now ?
These are Clan-Alpine's warriors true ;
And, Saxon, — I am Roderick Dhu !"

Fitz-James was brave ; — though to his heart
The life-blood thrilled with sudden start,
He manned himself with dauntless air,
Returned the Chief his haughty stare,
His back against a rock he bore,
And firmly placed his foot before : —
"Come one, come all ! this rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I."
Sir Roderick marked, — and in his eyes
Respect was mingled with surprise,
And the stern joy which warriors feel
In foemen worthy of their steel.
Short space he stood, — then waved his hand ;
Down sunk the disappearing band ;
Each warrior vanished where he stood,
In broom or bracken, heath or wood :
Sunk brand and spear, and bended bow,
In osiers pale and copses low :

It seemed as if their mother Earth
Had swallowed up her warlike birth.
The wind's last breath had tossed in air
Pennon and plaid and plumage fair, —
The next but swept a lone hillside,
Where heath and fern were waving wide ;
The sun's last glance was glinted back,
From spear and glaive, from targe and jack, —
The next, all unreflected, shone
On bracken green, and cold gray stone.

Fitz-James looked round, — yet scarce believed
The witness that his sight received ;
Such apparition well might seem
Delusion of a dreadful dream.
Sir Roderick in suspense he eyed,
And to his look the Chief replied :
“ Fear naught — nay, that I need not say —
But — doubt not aught from mine array.
Thou art my guest ; — I pledged my word
As far as Coilantogle ford :
Nor would I call a clansman's brand
For aid against one valiant hand,
Though on our strife lay every vale
Rent by the Saxon from the Gael.
So move we on ; — I only meant
To show the reed on which you leant,
Deeming this path you might pursue
Without a pass from Roderick Dhu.”
They moved ; — I said Fitz-James was brave,
As ever knight that belted glaive ;
Yet dare not say that now his blood
Kept on its wont and tempered flood,
As, following Roderick's stride, he drew
That seeming lonesome pathway through,
Which yet, by fearful proof, was rife
With lances, that, to take his life,
Waited but signal from a guide,
So late dishonored and defied.
Ever, by stealth, his eye sought round
The vanished guardians of the ground,
And still, from copse and heather deep,
Fancy saw spear and broadsword peep,
And in the plover's shrilly strain
The signal whistle heard again.
Nor breathed he free till far behind
The pass was left ; for then they wind
Along a wide and level green,
Where neither tree nor tuft was seen,
Nor rush nor bush of broom was near,
To hide a bonnet or a spear.

The Chief in silence strode before,
And reached that torrent's sounding shore,
Which, daughter of three mighty lakes,
From Vennachar in silver breaks,
Sweeps through the plain, and ceaseless mines
On Bochastle the mouldering lines,

Where Rome, the Empress of the world,
Of yore her eagle wings unfurled.
And here his course the Chieftain stayed,
Threw down his target and his plaid,
And to the Lowland warrior said :
“ Bold Saxon ! to his promise just,
Vich-Alpine has discharged his trust.
This murderous Chief, this ruthless man,
This head of a rebellious clan,
Hath led thee safe through watch and ward,
Far past Clan-Alpine's outmost guard.
Now, man to man, and steel to steel,
A Chieftain's vengeance thou shalt feel.
See, here, all vantageless I stand,
Armed, like thyself, with single brand ;
For this is Coilantogle ford,
And thou must keep thee with thy sword.”

The Saxon paused : “ I ne'er delayed,
When foeman bade me draw my blade ;
Nay more, brave Chief, I vowed thy death :
Yet sure thy fair and generous faith,
And my deep debt for life preserved,
A better meed have well deserved :
Can naught but blood our feud atone ?
Are there no means ? ” “ No, Stranger, none
And hear, — to fire thy flagging zeal, —
The Saxon cause rests on thy steel ;
For thus spoke Fate, by prophet bred
Between the living and the dead :
‘ Who spills the foremost foeman's life,
His party conquers in the strife.’ ”
“ Then, by my word,” the Saxon said,
“ The riddle is already read.
Seek yonder brake beneath the cliff, —
There lies Red Murdoch, stark and stiff.
Thus Fate hath solved her prophecy,
Then yield to Fate, and not to me.
To James, at Stirling, let us go,
When, if thou wilt be still his foe,
Or if the King shall not agree
To grant thee grace and favor free,
I plight mine honor, oath, and word,
That, to thy native strengths restored,
With each advantage shalt thou stand,
That aids thee now to guard thy land.”

Dark lightning flashed from Roderick's eye.
“ Soars thy presumption, then, so high,
Because a wretched kern ye slew,
Homage to name to Roderick Dhu ?
He yields not, he, to man nor fate !
Thou add'st but fuel to my hate : —
My clansman's blood demands revenge.
Not yet prepared ? — By Heaven, I change
My thought, and hold thy valor light
As that of some vain carpet knight,

Who ill deserved my courteous care,
 And whose best boast is but to wear
 A braid of his fair lady's hair."
 "I thank thee, Roderick, for the word !
 It nerves my heart, it steels my sword ;
 For I have sworn this braid to stain
 In the best blood that warms thy vein.
 Now, truce, farewell ! and ruth, begone ! —
 Yet think not that by thee alone,
 Proud Chief ! can courtesy be shown ;
 Though not from corpse, or heath, or cairn,
 Start at my whistle clansmen stern,
 Of this small horn one feeble blast
 Would fearful odds against thee cast.
 But fear not — doubt not — which thou wilt —
 We try this quarrel hilt to hilt."
 Then each at once his falchion drew,
 Each on the ground his scabbard threw,
 Each looked to sun and stream and plain,
 As what they ne'er might see again ;
 Then, foot and point and eye opposed,
 In dubious strife they darkly closed.

Ill fared it then with Roderick Dhu,
 That on the field his targe he threw,
 Whose brazen studs and tough bull-hide
 Had death so often dashed aside ;
 For, trained abroad his arms to wield,
 Fitz-James's blade was sword and shield.
 He practised every pass and ward,
 To thrust, to strike, to feint, to guard ;
 While less expert, though stronger far,
 The Gael maintained unequal war.
 Three times in closing strife they stood,
 And thrice the Saxon blade drank blood :
 No stinted draught, no scanty tide,
 The gushing floods the tartans dyed.
 Fierce Roderick felt the fatal drain,
 And showered his blows like wintry rain ;
 And, as firm rock or castle-roof
 Against the winter shower is proof,
 The foe, invulnerable still,
 Foiled his wild rage by steady skill ;
 Till, at advantage ta'en, his brand
 Forced Roderick's weapon from his hand,
 And, backwards borne upon the lea,
 Brought the proud Chieftain to his knee.
 "Now yield thee, or, by Him who made
 The world, thy heart's blood dyes my blade !"
 "Thy threats, thy mercy, I defy !
 Let recreant yield, who fears to die."
 Like adder darting from his coil,
 Like wolf that dashes through the toil,
 Like mountain-cat who guards her young,
 Full at Fitz-James's throat he sprung ;
 Received, but recked not of a wound,
 And locked his arms his foeman round.
 Now, gallant Saxon, hold thine own !

No maiden's hand is round thee thrown !
 That desperate grasp thy frame might feel
 Through bars of brass and triple steel !
 They tug, they strain ! down, down they go,
 The Gael above, Fitz-James below.
 The chieftain's gripe his throat compressed,
 His knee was planted in his breast ;
 His clotted locks he backward threw,
 Across his brow his hand he drew,
 From blood and mist to clear his sight,
 Then gleamed aloft his dagger bright !
 But hate and fury ill supplied
 The stream of life's exhausted tide,
 And all too late the advantage came,
 To turn the odds of deadly game ;
 For, while the dagger gleamed on high,
 Reeled soul and sense, reeled brain and eye.
 Down came the blow ! but in the heath
 The erring blade found bloodless sheath.
 The struggling foe may now unclasp
 The fainting Chief's relaxing grasp ;
 Unwounded from the dreadful close,
 But breathless all, Fitz-James arose.

He faltered thanks to Heaven for life,
 Redeemed, unhopèd, from desperate strife ;
 Next on his foe his look he cast,
 Whose every gasp appeared his last ;
 In Roderick's gore he dipped the braid, —
 "Poor Blanche ! thy wrongs are dearly paid :
 Yet with thy foe must die, or live,
 The praise that faith and valor give."
 With that he blew a bugle note,
 Undid the collar from his throat,
 Unbonneted, and by the wave
 Sat down his brow and hands to lave.
 Then faint afar are heard the feet
 Of rushing steeds in gallop fleet ;
 The sounds increase, and now are seen
 Four mounted squires in Lincoln green ;
 Two who bear lance, and two who lead,
 By loosened rein, a saddled steed ;
 Each onward held his headlong course,
 And by Fitz-James reined up his horse, —
 With wonder viewed the bloody spot, —
 "Exclaim not, gallants ! question not, —
 You, Herbert and Luffness, alight,
 And bind the wounds of yonder knight ;
 Let the gray palfrey bear his weight,
 We destined for a fairer freight,
 And bring him on to Stirling straight ;
 I will before at better speed,
 To seek fresh horse and fitting weed.
 The sun rides high ; — I must be bounè
 To see the archer-game at noon ;
 But lightly Bayard clears the lea.
 De Vaux and Herries, follow me."

RURAL SPORTS.

WAKEN, LORDS AND LADIES GAY.

WAKEN, lords and ladies gay,
On the mountain dawns the day ;
All the jolly chase is here,
With hawk and horse and hunting-spear !
Hounds are in their couples yelling,
Hawks are whistling, horns are knelling,
Merrily, merrily mingle they,
“ Waken, lords and ladies gay.”

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
The mist has left the mountain gray,
Springlets in the dawn are steaming,
Diamonds on the brake are gleaming,
And foresters have busy been
To track the buck in thicket green ;
Now we come to chant our lay,
“ Waken, lords and ladies gay.”

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
To the greenwood haste away ;
We can show you where he lies,
Fleet of foot and tall of size ;
We can show the marks he made
When 'gainst the oak his antlers frayed ;
You shall see him brought to bay ;
Waken, lords and ladies gay.

Louder, louder chant the lay,
Waken, lords and ladies gay !
Tell them, youth and mirth and glee
Run a course as well as we ;
Time, stern huntsman, who can balk,
Stanch as hound and fleet as hawk ?
Think of this, and rise with day,
Gentle lords and ladies gay !

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

THE STAG HUNT.

FROM “THE LADY OF THE LAKE,” CANTO I.

THE stag at eve had drunk his fill,
Where danced the moon on Monan's rill,
And deep his midnight lair had made
In lone Glenartney's hazel shade ;
But, when the sun his beacon red
Had kindled on Benvoirlich's head,
The deep-mouthed bloodhound's heavy bay
Resounded up the rocky way,
And faint, from farther distance borne,
Were heard the clanging hoof and horn.

As Chief who hears his warder call,
“ To arms ! the foemen storm the wall,”
The antlered monarch of the waste
Sprung from his heathery couch in haste.
But, ere his fleet career he took,
The dew-drops from his flanks he shook ;
Like crested leader proud and high
Tossed his beamed frontlet to the sky ;
A moment gazed adown the dale,
A moment snuffed the tainted gale,
A moment listened to the cry,
That thickened as the chase drew nigh ;
Then, as the headmost foes appeared,
With one brave bound the copse he cleared,
And, stretching forward free and far,
Sought the wild heaths of Uam-Var.

Yelled on the view the opening pack ;
Rock, glen, and cavern paid them back ;
To many a mingled sound at once
The awakened mountain gave response.
A hundred dogs bayed deep and strong,
Clattered a hundred steeds along,
Their peal the merry horns rung out,
A hundred voices joined the shout ;
With hark and whoop and wild halloo,
No rest Benvoirlich's echoes knew.
Far from the tumult fled the roe ;
Close in her covert cowered the doe ;
The falcon, from her cairn on high,
Cast on the rout a wondering eye,
Till far beyond her piercing ken
The hurricane had swept the glen.
Faint, and more faint, its failing din
Returned from cavern, cliff, and linn,
And silence settled, wide and still,
On the lone wood and mighty hill.

'T were long to tell what steeds gave o'er,
As swept the hunt through Cambus-more ;
What reins were tightened in despair,
When rose Benledi's ridge in air ;
Who flagged upon Buchastle's heath,
Who shunned to stem the flooded Teith, —
For twice that day, from shore to shore,
The gallant stag swam stoutly o'er.
Few were the stragglers, following far
That reached the lake of Vennachar ;
And when the Brigg of Turk was won,
The headmost horseman rode alone.
Alone, but with unabated zeal,
That horseman plied the scourge and steel

For, jaded now, and spent with toil,
Embossed with foam, and dark with soil,
While every gasp with sobs he drew,
The laboring stag strained full in view.
Two dogs of black St. Hubert's breed,
Unmatched for courage, breath, and speed,
Fast on his flying traces came,
And all but won that desperate game ;
For, scarce a spear's length from his haunch,
Vindictive toiled the bloodhounds stanch ;
Nor nearer might the dogs attain,
Nor farther might the quarry strain.
Thus up the margin of the lake,
Between the precipice and brake,
O'er stock and rock their race they take.

The hunter marked that mountain high,
The lone lake's western boundary,
And deemed the stag must turn to bay,
Where that huge rampart barred the way ;
Already glorying in the prize,
Measured his antlers with his eyes ;
For the death-wound and death-halloo
Mustered his breath, his whinyard drew ;
But thundering as he came prepared,
With ready arm and weapon bared,
The wily quarry shunned the shock,
And turned him from the opposing rock ;
Then, dashing down a darksome glen,
Soon lost to hound and hunter's ken,
In the deep Trosachs' wildest nook
His solitary refuge took.
There while, close couched, the thicket shed
Cold dews and wild-flowers on his head,
He heard the baffled dogs in vain
Rave through the hollow pass amain,
Chiding the rocks that yelled again.

Close on the hounds the hunter came,
To cheer them on the vanished game ;
But, stumbling in the rugged dell,
The gallant horse exhausted fell.
The impatient rider strove in vain
To rouse him with the spur and rein,
For the good steed, his labors o'er,
Stretched his stiff limbs, to rise no more ;
Then, touched with pity and remorse,
He sorrowed o'er the expiring horse :
" I little thought, when first thy rein
I slacked upon the banks of Seine,
That Highland eagle e'er should feed
On thy fleet limbs, my matchless steed !
Woe worth the chase, woe worth the day,
That costs thy life, my gallant gray ! "

Then through the dell his horn resounds,
From vain pursuit to call the hounds.

Back limped, with slow and crippled pace,
The sulky leaders of the chase ;
Close to their master's side they pressed,
With drooping tail and humbled crest ;
But still the dingle's hollow throat
Prolonged the swelling bugle-note.
The owlets started from their dream,
The eagles answered with their scream,
Round and around the sounds were cast,
Till echo seemed an answering blast ;
And on the hunter hied his way,
To join some comrades of the day ;
Yet often paused, so strange the road,
So wondrous were the scenes it showed.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS.

My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not
here ;
My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer ;
Chasing the wild deer, and following the roe,
My heart's in the Highlands wherever I go.
Farewell to the Highlands, farewell to the North,
The birthplace of valor, the country of worth ;
Wherever I wander, wherever I rove,
The hills of the Highlands forever I love.

Farewell to the mountains high covered with snow ;
Farewell to the straths and green valleys below ;
Farewell to the forests and wild-hanging woods ;
Farewell to the torrents and loud-pouring floods.
My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not
here ;
My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer
Chasing the wild deer, and following the roe,
My heart's in the Highlands wherever I go.

ROBERT BURNS.

THE STAG HUNT.

FROM "THE SEASONS: AUTUMN."

THE stag too, singled from the herd where long
He ranged, the branching monarch of the shades,
Before the tempest drives. At first, in speed
He, sprightly, puts his faith ; and, roused by fear,
Gives all his swift aerial soul to flight.
Against the breeze he darts, that way the more
To leave the lessening murderous cry behind :
Deception short ! though fleetest than the winds
Blown o'er the keen-aired mountain by the north,
He bursts the thickets, glances through the glades,
And plunges deep into the wildest wood, —

If slow, yet sure, adhesive to the track
 Hot-steaming, up behind him come again
 The inhuman rout, and from the shady depth
 Expel him, circling through his every shift.
 He sweeps the forest oft ; and sobbing sees
 The glades, mild opening to the golden day,
 Where, in kind contest, with his butting friends
 He wont to struggle, or his loves enjoy.
 Oft in the full-descending flood he tries
 To lose the scent, and lave his burning sides ;
 Oft seeks the herd ; the watchful herd, alarmed,
 With selfish care avoid a brother's woe.
 What shall he do ? His once so vivid nerves,
 So full of buoyant spirit, now no more
 Inspire the course ; but fainting breathless toil,
 Sick, seizes on his heart : he stands at bay ;
 And puts his last weak refuge in despair.
 The big round tears run down his dappled face ;
 He groans in anguish ; while the growling pack,
 Blood-happy, hang at his fair jutting chest,
 And mark his beauteous checkered sides with gore.

JAMES THOMSON.

HART-LEAP WELL.

"Hart-Leap Well is a small spring of water about five miles from Richmond in Yorkshire, and near the side of the road that leads from Richmond to Askrigg. Its name is derived from a remarkable chase, the memory of which is preserved by the monuments spoken of in the second part of the following poem, which monuments do now exist [1800] as I have there described them."—THE AUTHOR.

PART FIRST.

THE knight had ridden down from Wensley Moor,
 With the slow motion of a summer's cloud ;
 And now, as he approached a vassal's door,
 "Bring forth another horse !" he cried aloud.

"Another horse !"—That shout the vassal heard,
 And saddled his best steed, a comely gray ;
 Sir Walter mounted him ; he was the third
 Which he had mounted on that glorious day.

Joy sparkled in the prancing courser's eyes ;
 The horse and horseman are a happy pair ;
 But, though Sir Walter like a falcon flies,
 There is a doleful silence in the air.

A rout this morning left Sir Walter's hall,
 That as they galloped made the echoes roar ;
 But horse and man are vanished, one and all :
 Such race, I think, was never seen before.

Sir Walter, restless as the veering wind,
 Calls to the few tired dogs that yet remain :
 Blanche, Swift, and Music, noblest of their kind,
 Follow, and up the weary mountain strain.

The knight hallooed, he cheered and chid them on
 With suppliant gestures and upbraidings stern ;
 But breath and eyesight fail ; and, one by one,
 The dogs are stretched among the mountain fern.

Where is the throng, the tumult of the race ?
 The bugles that so joyfully were blown ?
 — This chase it looks not like an earthly chase ;
 Sir Walter and the hart are left alone.

The poor hart toils along the mountain-side ;
 I will not stop to tell how far he fled,
 Nor will I mention by what death he died ;
 But now the knight beholds him lying dead.

Dismounting, then, he leaned against a thorn ;
 He had no follower, dog, nor man, nor boy :
 He neither cracked his whip, nor blew his horn,
 But gazed upon the spoil with silent joy.

Close to the thorn on which Sir Walter leaned Stood his dumb partner in this glorious feat ;
 Weak as a lamb the hour that it is yeaned,
 And white with foam as if with cleaving sleet.

Upon his side the hart was lying stretched :
 His nostril touched a spring beneath a hill,
 And with the last deep groan his breath had fetched

The waters of the spring were trembling still.

And now, too happy for repose or rest,
 (Never had living man such joyful lot !)
 Sir Walter walked all round, north, south, and west,
 And gazed and gazed upon that darling spot.

And climbing up the hill (it was at least Four roods of sheer ascent), Sir Walter found
 Three several hoof-marks which the hunted beast
 Had left imprinted on the grassy ground.

Sir Walter wiped his face, and cried, "Till now
 Such sight was never seen by human eyes :
 Three leaps have borne him from this lofty brow,
 Down to the very fountain where he lies.

"I'll build a pleasure-house upon this spot,
 And a small arbor, made for rural joy ;
 'T will be the traveller's shed, the pilgrim's cot,
 A place of love for damsels that are coy.

"A cunning artist will I have to frame
 A basin for that fountain in the dell !
 And they who do make mention of the same,
 From this day forth, shall call it Hart-Leap Well.

"And, gallant stag ! to make thy praises known,
 Another monument shall here be raised ;

Three several pillars, each a rough-hewn stone,
And planted where thy hoofs the turf have grazed.

"And in the summer-time, when days are long,
I will come hither with my paramour ;
And with the dancers and the minstrel's song
We will make merry in that pleasant bower.

"Till the foundations of the mountains fail
My mansion with its arbor shall endure ; —
The joy of them who till the fields of Swale,
And them who dwell among the woods of Ure !"

Then home he went, and left the hart, stone-dead,
With breathless nostrils stretched above the spring.

— Soon did the knight perform what he had said,
And far and wide the fame thereof did ring.

Ere thrice the moon into her port had steered,
A cup of stone received the living well ;
Three pillars of rude stone Sir Walter reared,
And built a house of pleasure in the dell.

And near the fountain, flowers of stature tall
With trailing plants and trees were intertwined, —
Which soon composed a little sylvan hall,
A leafy shelter from the sun and wind.

And thither, when the summer days were long,
Sir Walter led his wondering paramour ;
And with the dancers and the minstrel's song
Made merriment within that pleasant bower.

The knight, Sir Walter, died in course of time,
And his bones lie in his paternal vale. —
But there is matter for a second rhyme,
And I to this would add another tale.

PART SECOND.

THE moving accident is not my trade ;
To freeze the blood I have no ready arts :
'Tis my delight, alone in summer shade,
To pipe a simple song for thinking hearts.

As I from Hawes to Richmond did repair,
It chanced that I saw standing in a dell
Three aspens at three corners of a square ;
And one, not four yards distant, near a well.

What this importuned I could ill divine :
And, pulling now the rein my horse to stop,
I saw three pillars standing in a line, —
The last stone pillar on a dark hill-top.

The trees were gray, with neither arms nor head ;
Half wasted the square mound of tawny green ;
So that you just might say, as then I said,
"Here in old time the hand of man hath been."

I looked upon the hill both far and near, —
More doleful place did never eye survey ;
It seemed as if the spring-time came not here,
And nature here were willing to decay.

I stood in various thoughts and fancies lost,
When one, who was in shepherd's garb attired,
Came up the hollow ; — him did I accost,
And what this place might be I then inquired.

The shepherd stopped, and that same story told
Which in my former rhyme I have rehearsed.
"A jolly place," said he, "in times of old !
But something ails it now ; the spot is curst.

"You see these lifeless stumps of aspen-wood, —
Some say that they are beeches, others elms, —
These were the bower ; and here a mansion stood,
The finest palace of a hundred realms !

"The arbor does its own condition tell ;
You see the stones, the fountain, and the stream ;
But as to the great lodge ! you might as well
Hunt half a day for a forgotten dream.

"There's neither dog nor heifer, horse nor sheep,
Will wet his lips within that cup of stone ;
And oftentimes, when all are fast asleep,
This water doth send forth a dolorous groan.

"Some say that here a murder has been done,
And blood cries out for blood ; but, for my part,
I've guessed, when I've been sitting in the sun,
That it was all for that unhappy hart.

"What thoughts must through the creature's brain have past !
Even from the topmost stone, upon the steep,
Are but three bounds, — and look, sir, at this last !
O master ! it has been a cruel leap.

"For thirteen hours he ran a desperate race ;
And in my simple mind we cannot tell
What cause the hart might have to love this place,
And come and make his death-bed near the well.

"Here on the grass perhaps asleep he sank,
Lulled by the fountain in the summer-tide ;
This water was perhaps the first he drank
When he had wandered from his mother's side.

"In April here beneath the flowering thorn
He heard the birds their morning carols sing ;
And he, perhaps, for aught we know, was born
Not half a furlong from that self-same spring.

"Now, here is neither grass nor pleasant shade ;
The sun on drearier hollow never shone ;
So will it be, as I have often said,
Till trees, and stones, and fountain, all are gone."

"Gray-headed shepherd, thou hast spoken well ;
Small difference lies between thy creed and mine :
This beast not unobserved by nature fell ;
His death was mourned by sympathy divine.

"The Being, that is in the clouds and air,
That is in the green leaves among the groves,
Maintains a deep and reverential care
For the unoffending creatures whom he loves.

"The pleasure-house is dust : — behind, before,
This is no common waste, no common gloom ;
But Nature, in due course of time, once more
Shall here put on her beauty and her bloom.

"She leaves these objects to a slow decay,
That what we are, and have been, may be known ;
But at the coming of the milder day
These monuments shall all be overgrown.

"One lesson, shepherd, let us two divide,
Taught both by what she shows and what conceals ;
Never to blend our pleasure or our pride
With sorrow of the meanest thing that feels."

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

BETH GÊLERT.

THE spearmen heard the bugle sound,
And cheerily smiled the morn ;
And many a brach, and many a hound,
Obeyed Llewellyn's horn.

And still he blew a louder blast,
And gave a lustier cheer,
"Come, Gêlert, come, wert never last Llewellyn's horn to hear.

"O, where does faithful Gêlert roam,
The flower of all his race ;
So true, so brave, — a lamb at home,
A lion in the chase ?"

In sooth, he was a peerless hound,
The gift of royal John ;
But now no Gêlert could be found,
And all the chase rode on.

That day Llewellyn little loved
The chase of hart and hare ;
And scant and small the booty proved,
For Gêlert was not there.

Unpleased, Llewellyn homeward hied,
When, near the portal seat,
His truant Gêlert he espied,
Bounding his lord to greet.

But, when he gained his castle-door,
Aghast the chieftain stood ;
The hound all o'er was smeared with gore
His lips, his fangs, ran blood.

Llewellyn gazed with fierce surprise ;
Unused such looks to meet,
His favorite checked his joyful guise,
And crouched, and licked his feet.

Onward, in haste, Llewellyn passed,
And on went Gêlert too ;
And still, where'er his eyes he cast,
Fresh blood-gouts shocked his view.

O'turned his infant's bed he found,
With blood-stained covert rent ;
And all around the walls and ground
With recent blood besprent.

He called his child, — no voice replied, —
He searched with terror wild ;
Blood, blood he found on every side,
But nowhere found his child.

"Hell-hound ! my child's by thee devoured,"
The frantic father cried ;
And to the hilt his vengeful sword
He plunged in Gêlert's side.

Aroused by Gêlert's dying yell,
Some slumberer wakened nigh :
What words the parent's joy could tell
To hear his infant's cry !

Concealed beneath a tumbled heap
His hurried search had missed,
All glowing from his rosy sleep,
The cherub boy he kissed.

Nor scathe had he, nor harm, nor dread,
But, the same couch beneath,
Lay a gaunt wolf, all torn and dead,
Tremendous still in death.

Ah, what was then Llewellyn's pain !
For now the truth was clear ;
His gallant hound the wolf had slain
To save Llewellyn's heir.

WILLIAM ROBERT SPENCER.

A HUNTING WE WILL GO.

THE dusky night rides down the sky,
And ushers in the morn ;
The hounds all join in glorious cry,
The huntsman winds his horn,
And a hunting we will go.

The wife around her husband throws
 Her arms to make him stay ;
 " My dear, it rains, it hails, it blows ;
 You cannot hunt to-day."
 Yet a hunting we will go.

Away they fly to 'scape the rout,
 Their steeds they soundly switch ;
 Some are thrown in, and some thrown out,
 And some thrown in the ditch.
 Yet a hunting we will go.

Sly Reynard now like lightning flies,
 And sweeps across the vale ;
 And when the hounds too near he spies,
 He drops his bushy tail.
 Then a hunting we will go.

Fond Echo seems to like the sport,
 And join the jovial cry ;
 The woods, the hills, the sound retort,
 And music fills the sky,
 When a hunting we do go.

At last his strength to faintness worn,
 Poor Reynard ceases flight ;
 Then hungry, homeward we return,
 To feast away the night,
 And a drinking we do go.

Ye jovial hunters, in the morn
 Prepare then for the chase ;
 Rise at the sounding of the horn
 And health with sport embrace,
 When a hunting we do go.

HENRY FIELDING.

LIFE IN THE AUTUMN WOODS.

[VIRGINIA.]

SUMMER has gone,
 And fruitful Autumn has advanced so far
 That there is warmth, not heat, in the broad sun,
 And you may look, with naked eye, upon
 The ardors of his ear ;
 The stealthy frosts, whom his spent looks embolden,
 Are making the green leaves golden.

What a brave splendor
 Is in the October air ! how rich, and clear,
 And bracing, and all-joyous ! We must render Love to the Spring-time, with its sproutings tender,
 As to a child quite dear ;
 But Autumn is a thing of perfect glory,
 A manhood not yet hoary.

I love the woods,
 In this good season of the liberal year ;
 I love to seek their leafy solitudes,
 And give myself to melancholy moods,
 With no intruder near,
 And find strange lessons, as I sit and ponder,
 In every natural wonder.

But not alone,
 As Shakespeare's melancholy courtier loved
 Ardennes,
 Love I the browning forest ; and I own
 I would not oft have mused, as he, but flown
 To hunt with Amiens —
 And little thought, as up the bold deer bounded,
 Of the sad creature wounded.

A brave and good,
 But world-worn knight — soul-wearied with his part
 In this vexed life — gave man for solitude,
 And built a lodge, and lived in Wantley wood,
 To hear the belling hart.
 It was a gentle taste, but its sweet sadness
 Yields to the hunter's madness.

What passionate
 And keen delight is in the proud swift chase !
 Go out what time the lark at heaven's red gate
 Soars joyously singing — quite infuriate
 With the high pride of his place ;
 What time the unrisen sun arrays the morning
 In its first bright adorning.

Hark ! the quick horn —
 As sweet to hear as any clarion —
 Piercing with silver call the ear of morn ;
 And mark the steeds, stout Curtal and Tophorne,
 And Greysteil and the Don —
 Each one of them his fiery mood displaying
 With pawing and with neighing.

Urge your swift horse
 After the crying hounds in this fresh hour ;
 Vanquish high hills, stem perilous streams perforce,
 On the free plain give free wings to your course,
 And you will know the power
 Of the brave chase, — and how of griefs the sorest
 A cure is in the forest.

Or stalk the deer ;
 The same red lip of dawn has kissed the hills,
 The gladdest sounds are crowding on your ear,
 There is a life in all the atmosphere : —
 Your very nature fills
 With the fresh hour, as up the hills aspiring
 You climb with limbs untiring.

It is a fair
And goodly sight to see the antlered stag
With the long sweep of his swift walk repair
To join his brothers ; or the plethoric bear
Lying in some high crag,
With pinky eyes half closed, but broad head shaking,
As gadflies keep him waking.

And these you see,
And, seeing them, you travel to their death
With a slow, stealthy step, from tree to tree,
Noting the wind, however faint it be.
The hunter draws a breath
In times like these, which, he will say, repays him
For all care that waylays him.

A strong joy fills
(A joy beyond the tongue's expressive power)
My heart in Autumn weather — fills and thrills !
And I would rather stalk the breezy hills
Descending to my bower
Nightly, by the sweet spirit of Peace attended,
Than pine where life is splendid.

PHILIP PENDLETON COOKE.

THE ARAB TO HIS FAVORITE STEED.

My beautiful ! my beautiful ! that standest meekly by,
With thy proudly arched and glossy neck, and dark and fiery eye,
Fret not to roam the desert now, with all thy winged speed ;
I may not mount on thee again, — thou'rt sold,
my Arab steed !
Fret not with that impatient hoof, — snuff not the breezy wind, —
The farther that thou fliest now, so far am I behind ;
The stranger hath thy bridle-rein, — thy master hath his gold, —
Fleet-limbed and beautiful, farewell ; thou'rt sold, my steed, thou'rt sold.

Farewell ! those free, untired limbs full many a mile must roam,
To reach the chill and wintry sky which clouds
the stranger's home ;
Some other hand, less fond, must now thy corn and bed prepare,
Thy silky mane, I braided once, must be another's care !
The morning sun shall dawn again, but never-more with thee

Shall I gallop through the desert paths, where we were wont to be ;
Evening shall darken on the earth, and o'er the sandy plain
Some other steed, with slower step, shall bear me home again.

Yes, thou must go ! the wild, free breeze, the brilliant sun and sky,
Thy master's house, — from all of these my exiled one must fly ;
Thy proud dark eye will grow less proud, thy step become less fleet,
And vainly shalt thou arch thy neck, thy master's hand to meet.
Only in sleep shall I behold that dark eye, glancing bright ; —
Only in sleep shall hear again that step so firm and light ;
And when I raise my dreaming arm to check or cheer thy speed,
Then must I, starting, wake to feel, — thou'rt sold, my Arab steed !

Ah ! rudely then, unseen by me, some cruel hand
may chide,
Till foam-wreaths lie, like crested waves, along thy panting side :
And the rich blood that's in thee swells, in thy indignant pain,
Till careless eyes, which rest on thee, may count
each starting vein.
Will they ill-use thee ? If I thought — but no, it cannot be, —
Thou art so swift, yet easy curbed ; so gentle,
yet so free :
And yet, if haply, when thou'rt gone, my lonely heart should yearn, —
Can the hand which casts thee from it now command thee to return ?

Return ! alas ! my Arab steed ! what shall thy master do,
When thou, who wast his all of joy, hast vanished
from his view ?
When the dim distance cheats mine eye, and through the gathering tears
Thy bright form, for a moment, like the false mirage appears ;
Slow and unmounted shall I roam, with weary
step alone,
Where, with fleet step and joyous bound, thou oft hast borne me on ;
And sitting down by that green well, I'll pause
and sadly think,
“ It was here he bowed his glossy neck when last
I saw him drink ! ”

When last I saw thee drink ! — Away ! the fevered dream is o'er, —
 I could not live a day, and know that we should meet no more !
 They tempted me, my beautiful ! — for hunger's power is strong, —
 They tempted me, my beautiful ! but I have loved too long.
 Who said that I had given thee up ? who said that thou wast sold ?
 'T is false, — 't is false, my Arab steed ! I fling them back their gold !
 Thus, thus, I leap upon thy back, and scour the distant plains ;
 Away ! who overtakes us now shall claim thee for his pains !

CAROLINE ELIZABETH SARAH NORTON.

THE HORSEBACK RIDE.

WHEN troubled in spirit, when weary of life,
 When I faint 'neath its burdens, and shrink from its strife,
 When its fruits, turned to ashes, are mocking my taste,
 And its fairest scene seems but a desolate waste,
 Then come ye not near me, my sad heart to cheer
 With friendship's soft accents or sympathy's tear.
 No pity I ask, and no counsel I need,
 But bring me, O, bring me my gallant young steed,
 With his high archèd neck, and his nostril spread wide,
 His eye full of fire, and his step full of pride !
 As I spring to his back, as I seize the strong rein,
 The strength to my spirit returneth again !
 The bonds are all broken that fettered my mind,
 And my cares borne away on the wings of the wind ;
 My pride lifts its head, for a season bowed down,
 And the queen in my nature now puts on her crown !

Now we're off — like the winds to the plains whence they came ;
 And the rapture of motion is thrilling my frame !
 On, on speeds my courser, scarce printing the sod,
 Scarce crushing a daisy to mark where he trod !
 On, on like a deer, when the hound's early bay
 Awakes the wild echoes, away, and away !
 Still faster, still farther, he leaps at my cheer,
 Till the rush of the startled air whirs in my ear !
 Now 'long a clear rivulet lieth his track, —
 See his glancing hoofs tossing the white pebbles
 back !

Now a glen dark as midnight — what matter ? —
 we 'll down,
 Though shadows are round us, and rocks o'er us frown ;
 The thick branches shake as we're hurrying
 through,
 And deck us with spangles of silvery dew !
 What a wild thought of triumph, that this girlish
 hand
 Such a steed in the might of his strength may command !
 What a glorious creature ! Ah ! glance at him
 now,
 As I check him a while on this green hillock's
 brow ;
 How he tosses his mane, with a shrill joyous neigh,
 And paws the firm earth in his proud, stately
 play !
 Hurrah ! off again, dashing on as in ire,
 Till the long, flinty pathway is flashing with fire !
 Ho ! a ditch ! — Shall we pause ? No ; the bold leap we dare,
 Like a swift-winged arrow we rush through the air !
 O, not all the pleasures that poets may praise,
 Not the 'wilderling waltz in the ball-room's blaze,
 Nor the chivalrous joust, nor the daring race,
 Nor the swift regatta, nor merry chase,
 Nor the sail, high heaving waters o'er,
 Nor the rural dance on the moonlight shore,
 Can the wild and thrilling joy exceed
 Of a fearless leap on a fiery steed !

SARA JANE LIPPINCOTT (Grace Greenwood).

A CANADIAN BOAT-SONG.

FAINTLY as tolls the evening chime,
 Our voices keep tune, and our oars keep time.
 Soon as the woods on shore look dim,
 We 'll sing at St. Ann's our parting hymn.
 Row, brothers, row ! the stream runs fast,
 The rapids are near, and the daylight's past !

Why should we yet our sail unfurl ? —
 There is not a breath the blue wave to curl.
 But when the wind blows off the shore,
 O, sweetly we 'll rest our weary oar !
 Blow, breezes, blow ! the stream runs fast,
 The rapids are near, and the daylight's past !

Utawa's tide ! this trembling moon
 Shall see us float over thy surges soon.
 Saint of this green isle, hear our prayers, —
 O, grant us cool heavens and favoring airs !
 Blow, breezes, blow ! the stream runs fast,
 The rapids are near, and the daylight's past !

THOMAS MOORE.

THE SNOWS.*

Over the Snows
 Buoyantly goes
 The lumberers' bark canoe :
 Lightly they sweep,
 Wilder each leap,
 Rending the white-caps through.
 Away ! Away !
 With the speed of a startled deer,
 While the steersman true
 And his laughing crew
 Sing of their wild career :

"Mariners glide
 Far o'er the tide
 In ships that are stanch and strong Safely as they
 Speed we away,
 Waking the woods with song."
 Away ! Away !
 With the speed of a startled deer,
 While the laughing crew
 Of the swift canoe
 Sing of the raftsmen's cheer :

"Through forest and brake,
 O'er rapid and lake,
 We're sport for the sun and rain ;
 Free as the child
 Of the Arab wild,
 Hardened to toil and pain.
 Away ! Away !
 With the speed of a startled deer,
 While our buoyant flight
 And the rapid's might Heighten our swift career."

Over the Snows
 Buoyantly goes
 The lumberers' bark canoe :
 Lightly they sweep,
 Wilder each leap,
 Tearing the white-caps through.
 Away ! Away !
 With the speed of a startled deer,
 There's a fearless crew
 In each light canoe
 To sing of the raftsmen's cheer.

CHARLES SANGSTER.

THE PLEASURE-BOAT.

COME, hoist the sail, the fast let go !
 They're seated side by side ;
 Wave chases wave in pleasant flow ;
 The bay is fair and wide.

The ripples lightly tap the boat ;
 Loose ! Give her to the wind !
 She shoots ahead ; they're all afloat ;
 The strand is far behind.

No danger reach so fair a crew !
 Thou goddess of the foam,
 I'll ever pay thee worship due,
 If thou wilt bring them home.

Fair ladies, fairer than the spray
 The prow is dashing wide,
 Soft breezes take you on your way,
 Soft slow the blessed tide.

O, might I like those breezes be,
 And touch that arching brow,
 I'd dwell forever on the sea
 Where ye are floating now.

The boat goes tilting on the waves ;
 The waves go tilting by ;
 There dips the duck, — her back she laves ;
 O'erhead the sea-gulls fly.

Now, like the gulls that dart for prey,
 The little vessel stoops ;
 Now, rising, shoots along her way,
 Like them, in easy swoops.

The sunlight falling on her sheet,
 It glitters like the drift,
 Sparkling, in scorn of summer's heat,
 High up some mountain rift.

The winds are fresh ; she's driving fast
 Upon the bending tide ;
 The crinkling sail, and crinkling mast,
 Go with her side by side.

Why dies the breeze away so soon ?
 Why hangs the pennant down ?
 The sea is glass ; the sun at noon. —
 Nay, lady, do not frown ;

For, see, the winged fisher's plume
 Is painted on the sea ;
 Below, a cheek of lovely bloom.
 Whose eyes look up to thee ?

She smiles ; thou need'st must smile on her
 And see, beside her face,
 A rich, white cloud that doth not stir :
 What beauty, and what grace !

And pictured beach of yellow sand,
 And peaked rock and hill,
 Change the smooth sea to fairy-land ;
 How lovely and how still !

* The name given to a foaming rapid on the Upper Ottawa River, in Canada.

From that far isle the thresher's flail
Strikes close upon the ear ;
The leaping fish, the swinging sail
Of yonder sloop, sound near.

The parting sun sends out a glow
Across the placid bay,
Touching with glory all the show. —
A breeze ! Up helm ! Away !

Careening to the wind, they reach,
With laugh and call, the shore.
They've left their footprints on the beach,
But them I hear no more.

RICHARD HENRY DANA.

THE ANGLER'S TRYSTING-TREE.

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing !
Meet the morn upon the lea ;
Are the emeralds of the spring
On the angler's trysting-tree ?
Tell, sweet thrushes, tell to me !
Are there buds on our willow-tree ?
Buds and birds on our trysting-tree ?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing !
Have you met the honey-bee,
Circling upon rapid wing,
Round the angler's trysting-tree ?
Up, sweet thrushes, up and see !
Are there bees at our willow-tree ?
Birds and bees at the trysting-tree ?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing !
Are the fountains gushing free ?
Is the south-wind wandering
Through the angler's trysting-tree ?
Up, sweet thrushes, tell to me !
Is there wind up our willow-tree ?
Wind or calm at our trysting-tree ?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing !
Wile us with a merry glee
To the flowery haunts of spring, —
To the angler's trysting-tree.
Tell, sweet thrushes, tell to me !
Are there flowers 'neath our willow-tree
Spring and flowers at the trysting-tree ?

THOMAS TOD STODDARD.

IN PRAISE OF ANGLING.

QUIVERING fears, heart-tearing cares,
Anxious sighs, untimely tears,
Fly, fly to courts,
Fly to fond worldlings' sports,

Where strained sardonic smiles are glozing still,
And grief is forced to laugh against her will,
Where mirth's but mummery,
And sorrows only real be.

Fly from our country pastimes, fly,
Sad troops of human misery ;
Come, serene looks,
Clear as the crystal brooks,
Or the pure azured heaven that smiles to see
The rich attendance on our poverty ;
Peace and a secure mind,
Which all men seek, we only find.

Abused mortals ! did you know
Where joy, heart's ease, and comforts grow,
You'd scorn proud towers
And seek them in these bowers,
Where winds, sometimes, our woods perhaps may shake,
But blustering care could never tempest make ;
Nor murmurs e'er come nigh us,
Saving of fountains that glide by us.

Here's no fantastic mask or dance,
But of our kids that frisk and prance ;
Nor wars are seen,
Unless upon the green
Two harmless lambs are butting one the other,
Which done, both bleating run, each to his mother;
And wounds are never found,
Save what the ploughshare gives the ground.

Here are no entrapping baits
To hasten to, too hasty fates ;
Unless it be
The fond credulity
Of silly fish, which (worldling like) still look
Upon the bait, but never on the hook ;
Nor envy, 'less among
The birds, for price of their sweet song.

Go, let the diving negro seek
For gems, hid in some forlorn creek :
We all pearls scorn
Save what the dewy morn
Congeals upon each little spire of grass,
Which careless shepherds beat down as they pass ;
And gold ne'er here appears,
Save what the yellow Ceres bears.

Blest silent groves, O, may you be,
Forever, mirth's best nursery !
May pure contents
Forever pitch their tents

Upon these downs, these meads, these rocks, these mountains!
And peace still slumber by these purling foun-
tains,
Which we may every year
Meet, when we come a-fishing here.

SIR HENRY WOTTON.

THE ANGLER.

O THE gallant fisher's life,
It is the best of any !
'T is full of pleasure, void of strife,
And 't is beloved by many ;
Other joys
Are but toys ;
Only this Lawful is ;
For our skill
Breeds no ill,
But content and pleasure.

In a morning, up we rise,
Ere Aurora's peeping ;
Drink a cup to wash our eyes,
Leave the sluggish sleeping ;
Then we go
To and fro,
With our knacks
At our backs,
To such streams
As the Thames,
If we have the leisure.

When we please to walk abroad
For our recreation,
In the fields is our abode,
Full of delectation,
Where, in a brook,
With a hook, —
Or a lake, —
Fish we take ;
There we sit,
For a bit,
Till we fish entangle.

We have gentles in a horn,
We have paste and worms too ;
We can watch both night and morn,
Suffer rain and storms too ;
None do here
Use to swear :
Oaths do fray
Fish away ;
We sit still,
Watch our quill :
Fishers must not wrangle.

If the sun's excessive heat
Make our bodies swelter,
To an osier hedge we get,
For a friendly shelter ;
Where, in a dike,
Perch or pike,
Rouch or dace,
We do chase,
Bleak or gudgeon,
Without grudging ;
We are still contented.

Or we sometimes pass an hour
Under a green willow,
That defends us from a shower,
Making earth our pillow ;
Where we may Think and pray,
Before death
Stops our breath ;
Other joys
Are but toys,
And to be lamented.

JOHN CHALKHILL.

THE ANGLER'S WISH.

I IN these flowery meads would be,
These crystal streams should solace me ;
To whose harmonious bubbling noise
I, with my angle, would rejoice,
Sit here, and see the turtle-dove
Court his chaste mate to acts of love ;

Or, on that bank, feel the west-wind
Breathe health and plenty ; please my mind,
To see sweet dew-drops kiss these flowers,
And then washed off by April showers ;
Here, hear my Kenna* sing a song :
There, see a blackbird feed her young,

Or a laverock build her nest ;
Here, give my weary spirits rest,
And raise my low-pitched thoughts above
Earth, or what poor mortals love.
Thus, free from lawsuits, and the noise
Of princes' courts, I would rejoice ;

Or, with my Bryan and a book,
Loiter long days near Shawford brook ;
There sit by him, and eat my meat ;
There see the sun both rise and set ;
There bid good morning to next day ;
There meditate my time away ;
And angle on ; and beg to have
A quiet passage to a welcome grave.

ISAAC WALTON.

* "Kenna," the name of his supposed mistress, seems to have been formed from the name of his wife, which was Ken.

ANGLING.

FROM "THE SEASONS: SPRING."

JUST in the dubious point, where with the pool
 Is mixed the trembling stream, or where it boils
 Around the stone, or from the hollowed bank
 Reverted plays in undulating flow,
 There throw, nice-judging, the delusive fly ;
 And, as you lead it round in artful curve,
 With eye attentive mark the springing game.
 Straight as above the surface of the flood
 They wanton rise, or urged by hunger leap,
 Then fix, with gentle twitch, the barbed hook ;
 Some lightly tossing to the grassy bank,
 And to the shelving shore slow dragging some,
 With various hand proportioned to their force.
 If yet too young, and easily deceived,
 A worthless prey scarce bends your pliant rod,
 Him, piteous of his youth, and the short space
 He has enjoyed the vital light of heaven,
 Soft disengage, and back into the stream
 The speckled infant throw. But should you lure
 From his dark haunt, beneath the tangled roots
 Of pendent trees, the monarch of the brook,
 Behooes you then to ply your finest art.
 Long time he, following cautious, scans the fly ;
 And oft attempts to seize it, but as oft
 The dimpled water speaks his jealous fear.
 At last, while haply o'er the shaded sun
 Passes a cloud, he desperate takes the death,
 With sullen plunge. At once he darts along,
 Deep-struck, and runs out all the lengthened line ;
 Then seeks the farthest ooze, the sheltering weed,
 The caverned bank, his old secure abode ;
 And flies aloft, and flounces round the pool,
 Indignant of the guile. With yielding hand,
 That feels him still, yet to his furious course
 Gives way, you, now retiring, following now
 Across the stream, exhaust his idle rage ;
 Till, floating broad upon his breathless side,
 And to his fate abandoned, to the shore
 You gayly drag your unresisting prize.

JAMES THOMSON.

THE ANGLER.

BUT look ! o'er the fall see the angler stand,
 Swinging his rod with skilful hand ;
 The fly at the end of his gossamer line
 Swims through the sun like a summer moth,
 Till, dropt with a careful precision line,
 It touches the pool beyond the froth.
 A sudden, the speckled hawk of the brook
 Darts from his covert and seizes the hook.
 Swift spins the reel ; with easy slip
 The line pays out, and the rod, like a whip,

Lithe and arrowy, tapering, slim,
 Is bent to a bow o'er the brooklet's brim,
 Till the trout leaps up in the sun, and flings
 The spray from the flash of his finny wings ;
 Then falls on his side, and, drunken with fright,
 Is towed to the shore like a staggering barge,
 Till beached at last on the sandy marge,
 Where he dies with the hues of the morning light,
 While his sides with a cluster of stars are bright.
 The angler in his basket lays
 The constellation, and goes his ways.

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

SWIMMING.

FROM "THE TWO FOSCARI."

How many a time have I
 Cloven, with arm still lustier, breast more daring,
 The wave all roughened ; with a swimmer's stroke
 Flinging the billows back from my drenched hair,
 And laughing from my lip the audacious brine,
 Which kissed it like a wine-cup, rising o'er
 The waves as they arose, and prouder still
 The loftier they uplifted me ; and oft,
 In wantonness of spirit, plunging down
 Into their green and glassy gulls, and making
 My way to shells and sea-weed, all unseen
 By those above, till they waxed fearful ; then
 Returning with my grasp full of such tokens
 As showed that I had searched the deep ; exult-
 ing,
 With a far-dashing stroke, and drawing deep
 The long-suspended breath, again I spurned
 The foam which broke around me, and pursued
 My track like a sea-bird. — I was a boy then.

LORD BYRON.

BATHING.

FROM "THE SEASONS: SUMMER."

THE sprightly youth
 Speeds to the well-known pool, whose crystal depth
 A sandy bottom shows. A while he stands
 Gazing th' inverted landscape, half afraid
 To meditate the blue profound below ;
 Then plunges headlong down the circling flood.
 His ebon tresses and his rosy cheek
 Instant emerge ; and through the obedient wave,
 At each short breathing by his lip repelled,
 With arms and legs according well, he makes,
 As humor leads, an easy-winding path ;
 While from his polished sides a dewy light
 Effuses on the pleased spectators round.

This is the purest exercise of health,
 The kind refresher of the summer-heats ;
 Nor, when cold winter keeps the brightening flood,
 Would I weak-shivering linger on the brink.
 Thus life redoubles, and is oft preserved,
 By the bold swimmer, in the swift elapse
 Of accident disastrous. Hence the limbs
 Knit into force ; and the same Roman arm,
 That rose victorious o'er the conquered earth,
 First learned, while tender, to subdue the wave.
 Even from the body's purity, the mind
 Receives a secret sympathetic aid.

JAMES THOMSON.

OUR SKATER BELLE.

ALONG the frozen lake she comes
 In linking crescents, light and fleet ;
 The ice-imprisoned Undine hums
 A welcome to her little feet.

I see the jaunty hat, the plume
 Swerve birdlike in the joyous gale, —
 The cheeks lit up to burning bloom,
 The young eyes sparkling through the veil.

The quick breath parts her laughing lips,
 The white neck shines through tossing curls ;
 Her vesture gently sways and dips,
 As on she speeds in shell-like whirls.

Men stop and smile to see her go ;
 They gaze, they smile in pleased surprise ;
 They ask her name ; they long to show
 Some silent friendship in their eyes.

She glances not ; she passes on ;
 Her steely footfall quicker rings ;
 She guesses not the benison
 Which follows her on noiseless wings.

Smooth be her ways, secure her tread
 Along the devious lines of life,
 From grace to grace successive led, —
 A noble maiden, nobler wife !

SLEIGH SONG.

JINGLE, jingle, clear the way,
 'T is the merry, merry sleigh !
 As it swiftly scuds along,
 Hear the burst of happy song ;
 See the gleam of glances bright,
 Flashing o'er the pathway white !
 Jingle, jingle, past it flies,
 Sending shafts from hooded eyes, —

Roguish archers, I'll be bound,
 Little heeding whom they wound ;
 See them, with capricious pranks,
 Ploughing now the drifted banks ;
 Jingle, jingle, mid the glee
 Who among them cares for me ?
 Jingle, jingle, on they go,
 Capes and bonnets white with snow,
 Not a single robe they fold
 To protect them from the cold ;
 Jingle, jingle, mid the storm,
 Fun and frolic keep them warm ;
 Jingle, jingle, down the hills,
 O'er the meadows, past the mills,
 Now 't is slow, and now 't is fast ;
 Winter will not always last.
 Jingle, jingle, clear the way !
 'T is the merry, merry sleigh.

FRAGMENTS.

THE SOUL OF ADVENTURE.

Fierce warres, and faithfull loves shall moralize
 my song.

Faerie Queene, Book i., Proem.

SPENSER.

Send danger from the east unto the west,
 So honor cross it from the north to south,
 And let them grapple : O ! the blood more stirs
 To rouse a lion than to start a hare !

By Heaven, methinks, it were an easy leap,
 To pluck bright honor from the pale-faced moon,
 Or dive into the bottom of the deep,
 Where fathom-line could never touch the ground,
 And pluck up drowned honor by the locks.

SHAKESPEARE.

ADVENTUROUS DARING.

On his bold visage middle age
 Had slightly pressed his signet sage,
 Yet had not quenched the open truth,
 And fiery vehemence of youth ;
 Forward and frolic glee was there,
 The will to do, the soul to dare,
 The sparkling glance, soon blown to fire
 Of hasty love or headlong ire.

HORSEMANSHIP.

I saw young Harry, with his beaver on,
His cuisses on his thighs, gallantly armed,
Rise from the ground like feathered Mercury,
And vaulted with such ease into his seat,
As if an angel dropped down from the clouds,
To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus,
And witch the world with noble horsemanship.

King Henry IV., Part I. Act iv. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

"Stand, Bayard, stand !" The steed obeyed,
With arching neck and bended head,
And glancing eye, and quivering ear,
As if he loved his lord to hear.
No foot Fitz-James in stirrup staid,
No grasp upon the saddle laid,
But wreathed his left hand in the mane,
And lightly bounded from the plain,
Turned on the horse his armed heel,
And stirred his courage with the steel.
Bounded the fiery steed in air,
The rider sate erect and fair,
Then, like a bolt from steel cross-bow
Forth launched, along the plain they go.

The Lady of the Lake, Cant. vi.

SCOTT.

After many strains and heaves,
He got up to the saddle eaves,
From whence he vaulted into th' seat
With so much vigor, strength, and heat,
That he had almost tumbled over
With his own weight, but did recover,
By laying hold of tail and mane,
Which oft he used instead of rein.

DRYDEN.

Hunting is the noblest exercise,
Makes men laborious, active, wise,
Brings health, and doth the spirits delight,
It helps the hearing and the sight ;
It teacheth arts that never slip
The memory, good horsemanship,
Search, sharpness, courage and defence,
And chaseth all ill habits hence.

SKATING.

All shod with steel,

We hissed along the polished ice, in games
Confederate, imitative of the chase
And woodland pleasures, — the resounding horn,
The pack loud-chiming, and the hunted hare,
So through the darkness and the cold we flew,
And not a voice was idle ; with the din
Smitten, the precipices rang aloud :
The leafless trees and every icy crag
Tinkled like iron.

RURAL LIFE.

Rustic mirth goes round :

The simple joke that takes the shepherd's heart,
Easily pleased ; the long loud laugh sincere ;
The kiss snatched hasty from the sidelong maid,
On purpose guardless, or pretending sleep ;
The leap, the slap, the haul ; and, shook to notes
Of native music, the respondent dance.
Thus jocund fleets with them the winter night.

CONCORD

"FARTHER horizons every year."

O tossing pines, which surge and wave
Above the poet's just made grave,
And waken for his sleeping ear
The music that he loved to hear,
Through summer's sun and winter's
chill,

With purpose staunch and dauntless
will,

Sped by a noble discontent
You climb toward the blue firmament:
Climb as the winds climb, mounting high
The viewless ladders of the sky;
Spurning our lower atmosphere,
Heavy with sighs and dense with night,
And urging upward, year by year,
To ampler air, diviner light.

"Farther horizons every year."

Beneath you pass the tribes of men;
Your gracious boughs o'ershadow them.
You hear, but do not seem to heed,
Their jarring speech, their faulty creed.
Your roots are firmly set in soil
Won from their humming paths of toil;
Content their lives to watch and share,
To serve them, shelter, and upbear,
Yet but to win an upward way
And larger gift of heaven than they,
Benignant view and attitude,
Close knowledge of celestial sign;
Still working for all earthly good,
While pressing on to the Divine.

"Farther horizons every year."

So he, by reverent hands just laid
Beneath your layers of waving shade,
Climbed as you climb the upward way,
Knowing not boundary nor stay.
His eyes surcharged with heavenly lights,

His senses steeped in heavenly sights,
His soul attuned to heavenly keys,
How should he pause for rest or ease,
Or turn his winged feet again
To share the common feasts of men?
He blessed them with his word and smile

But, still above their fickle moods,
Wooring, constraining him, the while Beckoned the shining altitudes.

"Farther horizons every year."

To what immeasurable height,
What clear irradiance of light,
What far and all-transcendent goal,
Hast thou now risen, O steadfast soul!
We may not follow with our eyes
To where the further pathway lies;
Nor guess what vision, vast and free,
God keeps in store for souls like thee.
But still the sentry pines, which wave
Their boughs above thy honored grave,
Shall be thy emblems brave and fit,
Firm rooted in the stalwart sod;
Blessing the earth, while spurning it,
Content with nothing short of God.

DESCRIPTIVE POEMS

We shall walk no more through the sodden plain
With the grass bent o'erspread,

We shall stand no more by the setting main
While the dark waves o'erhead,

We shall part no more in the wind & the rain
Where they last farewells said

But perhaps I shall meet thee & know thee again
When the sea gives up her dead

DESCRIPTIVE POEMS.

A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER.

FROM "ENDYMION," BOOK I.

A THING of beauty is a joy forever :
Its loveliness increases ; it will never Pass into nothingness ; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet
breathing.

Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth,
Spite of despondence, of the inhuman dearth
Of noble natures, of the gloomy days,
Of all the unhealthy and o'er-darkened ways
Made for our searching : yes, in spite of all,
Some shape of beauty moves away the pall
From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon
For simple sheep ; and such are daffodils
With the green world they live in ; and clear rills
That for themselves a cooling covert make
'Gainst the hot season ; the mid-forest brake,
Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms :
And such too is the grandeur of the dooms
We have imagined for the mighty dead ;
All lovely tales that we have heard or read :
An endless fountain of immortal drink,
Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink.

JOHN KEATS.

MELROSE ABBEY.

FROM "THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL," CANTO II.

If thou wouldst view fair Melrose aright,
Go visit it by the pale moonlight ;
For the gay beams of lightsome day
Gild, but to flout, the ruins gray.
When the broken arches are black in night,
And each shafted oriel glimmers white ;
When the cold light's uncertain shower
Streams on the ruined central tower ;
When buttress and buttress, alternately,
Seem framed of ebony and ivory ;

When silver edges the imagery,
And the scrolls that teach thee to live and die ;
When distant Tweed is heard to rave,
And the owlet to hoot o'er the dead man's grave,
Then go, — but go alone the while, —
Then view St. David's ruined pile ;
And, home returning, soothly swear,
Was never scene so sad and fair !

The pillared arches were over their head,
And beneath their feet were the bones of the dead.

Spreading herbs and flowerets bright
Glistened with the dew of night ;
Nor herb nor floweret glistened there,
But was carved in the cloister-arches as fair.

The monk gazed long on the lovely moon,
Then into the night he looked forth ;
And red and bright the streamers light
Were dancing in the glowing north.
So had he seen, in fair Castile,
The youth in glittering squadrons start,
Sudden the flying jennet wheel,
And hurl the unexpected dart.

He knew, by the streamers that shot so bright,
That spirits were riding the northern light.

By a steel-clenched postern door,
They entered now the chancel tall ;
The darkened roof rose high aloof
On pillars lofty and light and small ;
The keystone, that locked each ribbed aisle,
Was a fleur-de-lys, or a quatre-feuille :
The corbels were carved grotesque and grim ;
And the pillars, with clustered shafts so trim,
With base and with capital flourished around,
Seemed bundles of lances which garlands had bound.

Full many a scutcheon and banner, riven,
Shook to the cold night-wind of heaven,
Around the screened altar's pale ;
And there the dying lamps did burn,
Before thy low and lonely urn,
O gallant Chief of Otterburne !
And thine, dark Knight of Liddesdale !

O fading honors of the dead !
O high ambition, lowly laid !

The moon on the east oriel shone
Through slender shafts of shapely stone,
By foliated tracery combined ;
Thou wouldst have thought some fairy's hand
'Twixt poplars straight the osier wand
In many a freakish knot had twined ;
Then framed a spell, when the work was done,
And changed the willow wreaths to stone.
The silver light, so pale and faint,
Showed many a prophet, and many a saint,
Whose image on the glass was dyed ;
Full in the midst, his Cross of Red
Triumphant Michael brandish'd,
And trampled the Apostate's pride.
The moonbeam kissed the holy pane,
And threw on the pavement a bloody stain.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

NORHAM CASTLE.

FROM "MARMION," CANTO I.

[The ruinous castle of Norham (anciently called Ubbanford) is situated on the southern bank of the Tweed, about six miles above Berwick, and where that river is still the boundary between England and Scotland. The extent of its ruins, as well as its historical importance, shows it to have been a place of magnificence as well as strength. Edward I. resided there when he was created umpire of the dispute concerning the Scottish succession. It was repeatedly taken and retaken during the wars between England and Scotland, and, indeed, scarce any happened in which it had not a principal share. Norham Castle is situated on a steep bank which overhangs the river. The ruins of the castle are at present considerable, as well as picturesque. They consist of a large shattered tower, with many vaults, and fragments of other edifices enclosed within an outward wall of great circuit.]

DAY set on Norham's castled steep,
And Tweed's fair river, broad and deep,
And Cheviot's mountains lone :
The battled towers, the donjon keep,
The loop-hole grates where captives weep,
The flanking walls that round it sweep,
In yellow lustre shone.
The warriors on the turrets high,
Moving athwart the evening sky,
Seemed forms of giant height ;
Their armor, as it caught the rays,
Flashed back again the western blaze
In lines of dazzling light.

St. George's banner, broad and gay,
Now faded, as the fading ray
Less bright, and less, was flung ;
The evening gale had scarce the power
To wave it on the donjon tower,
So heavily it hung.

The scouts had parted on their search,
The castle gates were barred ;
Above the gloomy portal arch,
Timing his footsteps to a march,
The warder kept his guard ;
Low humming, as he paced along,
Some ancient Border-gathering song.

A distant trampling sound he hears ;
He looks abroad, and soon appears,
O'er Horncliff hill, a plump of spears,
Beneath a pennon gay ;
A horseman, darting from the crowd,
Like lightning from a summer cloud,
Spurs on his mettled courser proud
Before the dark array.
Beneath the sable palisade,
That closed the castle barricade,
His bugle-horn he blew ;
The warder hastened from the wall,
And warned the captain in the hall,
For well the blast he knew ;
And joyfully that knight did call
To sewer, squire, and seneschal.

"Now broach ye a pipe of Malvoisie,
Bring pasties of the doe,
And quickly make the entrance free,
And bid my heralds ready be,
And every minstrel sound his glee,
And all our trumpets blow ;
And, from the platform, spare ye not
To fire a noble salvo-shot :
Lord Marmion waits below."
Then to the castle's lower ward
Sped forty yeomen tall,
The iron-studded gates unbarred,
Raised the portcullis' ponderous guard,
The lofty palisade unspurred,
And let the drawbridge fall.

Along the bridge Lord Marmion rode,
Proudly his red-roan charger trode,
His helm hung at the saddle-bow ;
Well by his visage you might know
He was a stalworth knight, and keen,
And had in many a battle been.
The scar on his brown cheek revealed
A token true of Bosworth field ;
His eyebrow dark, and eye of fire,
Showed spirit proud, and prompt to ire ;
Yet lines of thought upon his cheek
Did deep design and counsel speak.
His forehead, by his casque worn bare,
His thick mustache, and curly hair,
Coal-black, and grizzled here and there,
But more through toil than age ;

His square-turned joints, and strength of limb,
 Showed him no carpet-knight so trim,
 But in close fight a champion grim,
 In camps a leader sage.

Well was he armed from head to heel,
 In mail and plate of Milan steel ;
 But his strong helm, of mighty cost,
 Was all with burnished gold embossed ;
 Amid the plumage of the crest,
 A falcon hovered on her nest,
 With wings outspread, and forward breast ;
 E'en such a falcon, on his shield,
 Soared sable in an azure field :
 The golden legend bore aright,
Though checks at me to death is nigh.
 Blue was the charger's broidered rein ;
 Blue ribbons decked his arching mane ;
 The knightly housing's ample fold
 Was velvet blue, and trapped with gold.

Behind him rode two gallant squires
 Of noble name and knightly sires ;
 They burned the gilded spurs to claim ;
 For well could each a war-horse tame,
 Could draw the bow, the sword could sway,
 And lightly bear the ring away ;
 Nor less with courteous precepts stored,
 Could dance in hall, and carve at board,
 And frame love-ditties passing rare,
 And sing them to a lady fair.

Four men-at-arms came at their backs,
 With halbert, bill, and battle-axe ;
 They bore Lord Marmion's lance so strong,
 And led his sumpter-mules along,
 And ambling palfrey, when at need
 Him listed ease his battle-steed.
 The last and trustiest of the four
 On high his forky pennon bore ;
 Like swallow's tail, in shape and hue,
 Fluttered the streamer glossy blue,
 Where, blazoned sable, as before,
 The towering falcon seemed to soar.
 Last, twenty yeomen, two and two,
 In hosen black, and jerkins blue,
 With falcons broidered on each breast,
 Attended on their lord's behest :
 Each, chosen for an archer good,
 Knew hunting-craft by lake or wood ;
 Each one a six-foot bow could bend,
 And far a cloth-yard shaft could send ;
 Each held a boar-spear tough and strong,
 And at their belts their quivers rung.
 Their dusty palfreys and array
 Showed they had marched a weary way.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

ALNWICK CASTLE.

HOME of the Percy's high-born race,
 Home of their beautiful and brave,
 Alike their birth and burial place,
 Their cradle and their grave !
 Still sternly o'er the castle gate
 Their house's Lion stands in state,
 As in his proud departed hours ;
 And warriors frown in stone on high,
 And feudal banners "flout the sky"
 Above his princely towers.

A gentle hill its side inclines,
 Lovely in England's fadeless green,
 To meet the quiet stream which winds
 Through this romantic scene
 As silently and sweetly still
 As when, at evening, on that hill,
 While summer's wind blew soft and low,
 Seated by gallant Hotspur's side,
 His Katherine was a happy bride,
 A thousand years ago.

I wandered through the lofty halls
 Trod by the Percys of old fame,
 And traced upon the chapel walls
 Each high, heroic name,
 From him who once his standard set
 Where now, o'er mosque and minaret,
 Glitter the Sultan's crescent moons,
 To him who, when a younger son,
 Fought for King George at Lexington,
 A major of dragoons.

That last half-stanza, — it has dashed
 From my warm lip the sparkling cup ;
 The light that o'er my eyebeam flashed,
 The power that bore my spirit up
 Above this bank-note world, is gone ;
 And Alnwick 's but a market town,
 And this, alas ! its market day,
 And beasts and borderers throng the way ;
 Oxen and bleating lambs in lots,
 Northumbrian boors and plaided Scots
 Men in the coal and cattle line ;
 From Teviot's bard and hero land,
 From royal Berwick's beach of sand,
 From Wooler, Morpeth, Hexham, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

These are not the romantic times
 So beautiful in Spenser's rhymes,
 So dazzling to the dreaming boy ;
 Ours are the days of fact, not fable,
 Of knights, but not of the round table,
 Of Bailie Jarvie, not Rob Roy ;
 'Tis what "Our President," Monroe,

Has called "the era of good feeling ;"
 The Highlander, the bitterest foe
 To modern laws, has felt their blow,
 Consented to be taxed, and vote,
 And put on pantaloons and coat,
 And leave off cattle-stealing :
 Lord Stafford mines for coal and salt,
 The Duke of Norfolk deals in malt,
 The Douglas in red herrings ;
 And noble name and cultured land,
 Palace, and park, and vassal band,
 Are powerless to the notes of hand
 Of Rothschild or the Barings.

The age of bargaining, said Burke,
 Has come : to-day the turbaned Turk
 (Sleep, Richard of the lion heart !
 Sleep on, nor from your cerements start
 Is England's friend and fast ally ;
 The Moslem tramples on the Greek,
 And on the Cross and altar-stone,
 And Christendom looks tamely on,
 And hears the Christian maiden shriek,
 And sees the Christian father die ;
 And not a sabre-blow is given
 For Greece and fame, for faith and heaven,
 By Europe's craven chivalry.

You'll ask if yet the Percy lives
 In the armed pomp of feudal state.
 The present representatives
 Of Hotspur and his "gentle Kate,"
 Are some half-dozen serving-men
 In the drab coat of William Penn ;
 A chambermaid, whose lip and eye,
 And cheek, and brown hair, bright and curling,
 Spoke nature's aristocracy ;
 And one, half groom, half seneschal,
 Who bowed me through court, bower, and hall,
 From donjon keep to turret wall,
 For ten-and-sixpence sterling.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

SONNET.

COMPOSED UPON WESTMINSTER BRIDGE, LONDON, 1802.

EARTH has not anything to show more fair ;
 Dull would he be of soul who could pass by
 A sight so touching in its majesty :
 This city now doth, like a garment, wear
 The beauty of the morning ; silent, bare,
 Ships, towers, domes, theatres, and temples lie
 Open unto the fields, and to the sky,
 All bright and glittering in the smokeless air.
 Never did sun more beautifully steep
 In his first splendor valley, rock, or hill ;

Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep !
 The river glideth at his own sweet will :
 Dear God ! the very houses seem asleep ;
 And all that mighty heart is lying still !

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

NUREMBERG.

In the valley of the Pegnitz, where across broad meadow-lands
 Rise the blue Franconian mountains, Nuremberg, the ancient, stands.

Quaint old town of toil and traffic, quaint old town of art and song,
 Memories haunt thy pointed gables like the rooks that round them throng :

Memories of the Middle Ages, when the em-perors rough and bold
 Had their dwellings in thy castle, time-defying, centuries old ;

And thy brave and thrifty burghers boasted, in their uncouth rhyme,
 That their great, imperial city stretched its hand
 to every clime.

In the court-yard of the castle, bound with many an iron band,
 Stands the mighty linden planted by Queen
 Cunigunde's hand ;

On the square, the oriel window, where in old heroic days
 Sat the poet Melchior, singing Kaiser Maximilian's praise.

Everywhere I see around me rise the wondrous world of art ;
 Fountains wrought with richest sculpture standing in the common mart ;

And above cathedral doorways saints and bishops carved in stone,
 By a former age commissioned as apostles to our own.

In the church of sainted Sebald sleeps enshrined his holy dust,
 And in bronze the Twelve Apostles guard from age to age their trust :

In the church of sainted Lawrence stands a pix
 of sculpture rare,
 Like the foamy sheaf of fountains, rising through the painted air.

Here, when art was still religion, with a simple reverent heart,
Lived and labored Albrecht Dürer, the Evangelist of Art ;

Hence in silence and in sorrow, toiling still with busy hand,
Like an emigrant he wandered, seeking for the Better Land.

Emigravit is the inscription on the tombstone
where he lies,
Dead he is not — but departed — for the artist
never dies :

Fairer seems the ancient city, and the sunshine seems more fair
That he once has trod its pavement, that he once has breathed its air.

Through these streets so broad and stately, these obscure and dismal lanes,
Walked of yore the Mastersingers, chanting rude poetic strains ;

From remote and sunless suburbs came they to the friendly guild,
Building nests in Fame's great temple, as in spouts the swallows build.

As the weaver plied the shuttle, wove he too the mystic rhyme,
And the smith his iron measures hammered to the anvil's chime,

Thanking God, whose boundless wisdom makes the flowers of poesy bloom
In the forge's dust and cinders, in the tissues of the loom.

Here Hans Sachs, the cobbler-poet, laureate of the gentle craft,
Wisest of the Twelve Wise Masters, in huge folios sang and laughed.

But his house is now an alehouse, with a nicely
sanded floor,
And a garland in the window, and his face above
the door,

Painted by some humble artist, as in Adam
Puschman's song,
As the old man gray and dovelike, with his great beard white and long.

And at night the swart mechanic comes to drown
his cark and care,
Quaffing ale from pewter tankards, in the master's antique chair.

Vanished is the ancient splendor, and before my dreamy eye
Wave these mingling shapes and figures, like a faded tapestry.

Not thy Councils, not thy Kaisers, win for thee
the world's regard,
But thy painter, Albrecht Dürer, and Hans Sachs, thy cobbler-bard.

Thus, O Nuremberg, a wanderer from a region far away,
As he paced thy streets and court-yards, sang in thought his careless lay ;

Gathering from the pavement's crevice, as a floweret of the soil,
The nobility of labor, — the long pedigree of toil.
HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

ITALY.

FROM "ITALY."

O ITALY, how beautiful thou art !
Yet I could weep, — for thou art lying, alas !
Low in the dust ; and they who come admire
thee
As we admire the beautiful in death.
Thine was a dangerous gift, the gift of beauty.
Would thou hadst less, or wert as once thou wast,
Inspiring awe in those who now enslave thee !
But why despair ? Twice hast thou lived already,
Twice shone among the nations of the world,
As the sun shines among the lesser lights
Of heaven ; and shalt again. The hour shall come,
When they who think to bind the ethereal spirit,
Who, like the eagle cowering o'er his prey,
Watch with quick eye, and strike and strike again
If but a sinew vibrate, shall confess
Their wisdom folly.

SAMUEL ROGERS.

VENICE.

FROM "ITALY."

THERE is a glorious City in the Sea.
The Sea is in the broad, the narrow streets,
Ebbing and flowing ; and the salt sea-weed
Clings to the marble of her palaces.
No track of men, no footsteps to and fro,
Lead to her gates. The path lies o'er the Sea,
Invisible ; and from the land we went,
As to a floating City, — steering in,
And gliding up her streets as in a dream,
So smoothly, silently, — by many a dome

Mosque-like, and many a stately portico,
The statues ranged along an azure sky ;
By many a pile in more than Eastern splendor,
Of old the residence of merchant kings ;
The fronts of some, though Time had shattered
them,

Still glowing with the richest hues of art,
As though the wealth within them had run o'er.

A few in fear,

Flying away from him whose boast it was
That the grass grew not where his horse had
trod,

Gave birth to Venice. Like the waterfowl,
They built their nests among the ocean waves ;
And where the sands were shifting, as the wind
Drew from the north, the south ; where they that came

Had to make sure the ground they stood upon,
Rose, like an exhalation, from the deep,
A vast Metropolis, with glittering spires,
With theatres, basilicas adorned ;
A scene of light and glory, a dominion,
That has endured the longest among men.

And whence the talisman by which she rose
Towering ! 'T was found there in the barren sea.
Want led to Enterprise ; and, far or near,
Who met not the Venetian ? — now in Cairo ;
Ere yet the Califa came, listening to hear
Its bells approaching from the Red Sea coast ;
Now on the Euxine, on the Sea of Azoph,
In converse with the Persian, with the Russ,
The Tartar ; on his lowly deck receiving
Pearls from the gulf of Ormus, gems from Bagdad,
Eyes brighter yet, that shed the light of love
From Georgia, from Circassia. Wandering round,
When in the rich bazaar he saw, displayed,
Treasures from unknown climes, away he went,
And, travelling slowly upward, drew ere long
From the well-head supplying all below ;
Making the Imperial City of the East
Herself his tributary.

Thus did Venice rise,
The unwelcome tidings came,
That in the Tagus had arrived a fleet
From India, from the region of the Sun,
Fragrant with spices, — that a way was found,
A channel opened, and the golden stream
Turned to enrich another. Then she felt
Her strength departing, and at last she fell,
Fell in an instant, blotted out and razed ;
She who had stood yet longer than the longest
Of the Four Kingdoms, — who, as in an Ark,
Had floated down amid a thousand wrecks,
Uninjured, from the Old World to the New.

ROME.

FROM "ITALY."

I AM in Rome ! Oft as the morning ray
Visits these eyes, waking at once I cry, Whence this excess of joy ? What has befallen
me !

And from within a thrilling voice replies,
Thou art in Rome ! A thousand busy thoughts
Rush on my mind, a thousand images ;
And I spring up as girt to run a race !

Thou art in Rome ! the City that so long
Reigned absolute, the mistress of the world ;
The mighty vision that the prophets saw,
And trembled ; that from nothing, from the least,

The lowliest village (what but here and there
A reed-roofed cabin by a river-side ?)
Grew into everything ; and, year by year,
Patiently, fearlessly working her way
O'er brook and field, o'er continent and sea,
Not like the merchant with his merchandise,
Or traveller with staff and scrip exploring,
But hand to hand and foot to foot through hosts,
Through nations numberless in battle array,
Each behind each, each, when the other fell,
Up and in arms, at length subdued them all.

COLISEUM BY MOONLIGHT.

FROM "MANFRED," ACT III. SC. 4.

THE stars are forth, the moon above the tops
Of the snow-shining mountains. — Beautiful !
I linger yet with Nature, for the night
Hath been to me a more familiar face
Than that of man ; and in her starry shade
Of dim and solitary loveliness
I learned the language of another world.
I do remember me, that in my youth,
When I was wandering, — upon such a night
I stood within the Coliseum's wall,
Midst the chief relics of almighty Rome.
The trees which grew along the broken arches
Waved dark in the blue midnight, and the stars
Shone through the rents of ruin ; from afar
The watch-dog bayed beyond the Tiber ; and More near, from out the Cæsars' palace came
The owl's long cry, and, interruptedly,
Of distant sentinels the fitful song
Begun and died upon the gentle wind.
Some cypresses beyond the time-worn breach
Appeared to skirt the horizon, yet they stood
Within a bowshot, — where the Cæsars dwelt,
And dwell the tuneless birds of night, amidst

A grove which springs through levelled battle-ments,
And twines its roots with the imperial hearths.
Ivy usurps the laurel's place of growth ; —
But the gladiators' bloody Circus stands,
A noble wreck in ruinous perfection,
While Caesar's chambers and the Augustan halls
Grove on earth in indistinct decay. —
And thou didst shine, thou rolling moon, upon
All this, and cast a wide and tender light,
Which softened down the hoar austerity
Of rugged desolation, and filled up,
As 't were anew, the gaps of centuries,
Leaving that beautiful which still was so,
And making that which was not, till the place
Became religion, and the heart ran o'er
With silent worship of the great of old ! —
The dead, but sceptred sovereigns, who still rule
Our spirits from their urns.

LORD BYRON.

THE COLISEUM.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO IV.

ARCHES on arches ! as it were that Rome,
Collecting the chief trophies of her line,
Would build up all her triumphs in one dome,
Her Coliseum stands ; the moonbeams shine
As 't were its natural torches, for divine
Should be the light which streams here, to illumine
This long-explored, but still exhaustless, mine
Of contemplation ; and the azure gloom
Of an Italian night, where the deep skies assume

Hues which have words, and speak to ye of
heaven,
Floats o'er this vast and wondrous monument,
And shadows forth its glory. There is given
Unto the things of earth, which Time hath bent,
A spirit's feeling, and where he hath leant
His hand, but broke his scythe, there is a power
And magic in the ruined battlement,
For which the palace of the present hour
Must yield its pomp, and wait till ages are its dower.

And here the buzz of eager nations ran,
In murmured pity, or loud-roared applause,
As man was slaughtered by his fellow-man.
And wherefore slaughtered ? wherefore, but because
Such were the bloody Circus' genial laws,
And the imperial pleasure. — Wherefore not ?
What matters where we fall to fill the maws
Of worms, — on battle-plains or listed spot ?
Both are but theatres where the chief actors rot.

I see before me the Gladiator lie ;
He leans upon his hand, — his manly brow
Consents to death, but conquers agony,
And his drooped head sinks gradually low, —
And through his side the last drops, ebbing slow
From the red gash, fall heavy, one by one,
Like the first of a thunder-shower ; and now
The arena swims around him, — he is gone,
Ere ceased the inhuman shout which hailed the wretch who won.

He heard it, but he heeded not, — his eyes
Were with his heart, and that was far away.
He recked not of the life he lost nor prize,
But where his rude hut by the Danube lay,
There were his young barbarians all at play,
There was their Dacian mother, — he, their sire,
Butchered to make a Roman holiday ! —
All this rushed with his blood. — Shall he expire,
And unavenged ? Arise, ye Goths, and glut your ire !

But here, where Murder breathed her bloody steam,
And here, where buzzing nations choked the ways,
And roared or murmured like a mountain stream
Dashing or winding as its torrent strays ;
Here, where the Roman millions' blame or praise
Was death or life, the playthings of a crowd,
My voice sounds much, — and fall the stars'
faint rays
On the arena void, seats crushed, walls bowed,
And galleries, where my steps seem echoes strangely loud.

A ruin, — yet what ruin ! from its mass
Walls, palaces, half-cities, have been reared ;
Yet oft the enormous skeleton ye pass,
And marvel where the spoil could have appeared.
Hath it indeed been plundered, or but cleared ?
Alas ! developed, opens the decay,
When the colossal fabric's form is neared ;
It will not bear the brightness of the day,
Which streams too much on all years, man, have reft away.

But when the rising moon begins to climb
Its topmost arch, and gently pauses there ;
When the stars twinkle through the loops of
time,
And the low night-breeze waves along the air
The garland-forest, which the gray walls wear,
Like laurels on the bald first Caesar's head ;
When the light shines serene, but doth not glare, —
Then in this magic circle raise the dead ;
Heroes have trod this spot, — 't is on their dust
ye tread.

"While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall;
And when Rome falls — the World." From our own land

Thus spake the pilgrims o'er this mighty wall
In Saxon times, which we are wont to call Ancient; and these three mortal things are still
On their foundations, and unaltered all;
Rome and her Ruin past Redemption's skill,
The World, the same wide den — of thieves, or what ye will.

LORD BYRON.

THE PANTHEON.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO IV.

SIMPLE, erect, severe, austere, sublime, —
Shrine of all saints and temple of all gods,
From Jove to Jesus, — spared and blest by time;
Looking tranquillity, while falls or nods
Arch, empire, each thing round thee, and man plods
His way through thorns to ashes, — glorious dome!
Shalt thou not last? Time's scythe and tyrants' rods
Shiver upon thee, — sanctuary and home
Of art and piety, — Pantheon! — pride of Rome!

Relic of nobler days and noblest arts!
Despoiled yet perfect, with thy circle spreads
A holiness appealing to all hearts.
To art a model; and to him who treads
Rome for the sake of ages, Glory sheds
Her light through thy sole aperture; to those
Who worship, here are altars for their beads;
And they who feel for genius may repose
Their eyes on honored forms, whose busts around them close.

LORD BYRON.

A DAY IN THE PAMFILI DORIA,

NEAR ROME.

THOUGH the hills are cold and snowy,
And the wind drives chill to-day,
My heart goes back to a spring-time,
Far, far in the past away.

And I see a quaint old city,
Weary and worn and brown,
Where the spring and the birds are so early,
And the sun in such light goes down.

I remember that old-time villa
Where our afternoons went by,
Where the suns of March flushed warmly,
And spring was in earth and sky.

Out of the mouldering city, —
Mouldering, old, and gray, —
We sped, with a lightsome heart-thrill,
For a sunny, gladsome day, —

For a revel of fresh spring verdure,
For a race mid springing flowers,
For a vision of plashing fountains,
Of birds and blossoming bowers.

There were violet banks in the shadows,
Violets white and blue;
And a world of bright anemones,
That over the terrace grew, —

Blue and orange and purple,
Rosy and yellow and white,
Rising in rainbow bubbles,
Streaking the lawns with light.

And down from the old stone-pine trees,
Those far-off islands of air,
The birds are flinging the tidings
Of a joyful revel up there.

And now for the grand old fountains,
Tossing their silvery spray;
Those fountains, so quaint and so many,
That are leaping and singing all day;

Those fountains of strange weird sculpture,
With lichens and moss o'ergrown, —
Are they marble greening in moss-wreaths,
Or moss-wreaths whitening to stone?

Down many a wild, dim pathway
We ramble from morning till noon;
We linger, unheeding the hours,
Till evening comes all too soon.

And from out the ilex alleys,
Where lengthening shadows play,
We look on the dreamy Campagna,
All glowing with setting day, —

All melting in bands of purple,
In swathings and foldings of gold,
In ribbons of azure and lilac,
Like a princely banner unrolled.

And the smoke of each distant cottage,
And the flash of each villa white,
Shines out with an opal glimmer,
Like gems in a casket of light.

And the dome of old St. Peter's
With a strange translucence glows,
Like a mighty bubble of amethyst
Floating in waves of rose.

In a trance of dreamy vagueness,
We, gazing and yearning, behold
That city beheld by the prophet,
Whose walls were transparent gold.

And, dropping all solemn and slowly,
To hallow the softening spell,
There falls on the dying twilight
The Ave Maria bell.

With a mournful, motherly softness,
With a weird and weary care,
That strange and ancient city
Seems calling the nations to prayer.

And the words that of old the angel
To the mother of Jesus brought
Rise like a new evangel,
To hallow the trance of our thought.

With the smoke of the evening incense
Our thoughts are ascending then
To Mary, the mother of Jesus,
To Jesus, the Master of men.

O city of prophets and martyrs !
O shrines of the sainted dead !
When, when shall the living day-spring
Once more on your towers be spread ?

When He who is meek and lowly
Shall rule in those lordly halls,
And shall stand and feed as a shepherd
The flock which his mercy calls, —

O, then to those noble churches,
To picture and statue and gem,
To the pageant of solemn worship,
Shall the meaning come back again.

And this strange and ancient city,
In that reign of his truth and love,
Shall be what it seems in the twilight,
The type of that City above.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

A VIEW ACROSS THE ROMAN CAMPAGNA.

1861.

Over the dumb campagna-sea,
Out in the offing through mist and rain,
St. Peter's Church heaves silently
Like a mighty ship in pain,
Facing the tempest with struggle and strain.

Motionless waifs of ruined towers,
Soundless breakers of desolate land !

The sullen surf of the mist devours
That mountain-range upon either hand,
Eaten away from its outline grand.

And over the dumb campagna-sea
Where the ship of the Church heaves on to wreck,
Alone and silent as God must be
The Christ walks ! — Ay, but Peter's neck
Is stiff to turn on the foundering deck.

Peter, Peter, if such be thy name,
Now leave the ship for another to steer,
And proving thy faith evermore the same
Come forth, tread out through the dark and drear,
Since He who walks on the sea is here !

Peter, Peter ! — he does not speak, —
He is not as rash as in old Galilee.
Safer a ship, though it toss and leak,
Than a reeling foot on a rolling sea !
— And he's got to be round in the girth, thinks he.

Peter, Peter ! — he does not stir, —
His nets are heavy with silver fish :
He reckons his gains, and is keen to infer,
"The broil on the shore, if the Lord should wish, —
But the sturgeon goes to the Cæsar's dish."

Peter, Peter, thou fisher of men,
Fisher of fish wouldst thou live instead, —
Haggling for pence with the other Ten,
Cheating the market at so much a head,
Gripping the bag of the traitor dead ?

At the triple crow of the Gallic cock
Thou weep'st not, thou, though thine eyes be dazed :

What bird comes next in the tempest shock ?
Vultures ! See, — as when Romulus gazed,
To inaugurate Rome for a world amazed !

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

NAPLES.

FROM "ITALY."

THIS region, surely, is not of the earth.
Was it not dropt from heaven ? Not a grove,
Citron or pine or cedar, not a grot
Sea-worn and mantled with the gadding vine,
But breathes enchantment. Not a cliff but flings
On the clear wave some image of delight,
Some cabin-roof glowing with crimson flowers,
Some ruined temple or fallen monument,

To muse on as the bark is gliding by,
 And be it mine to muse there, mine to glide,
 From daybreak, when the mountain pales his fire
 Yet more and more, and from the mountain-top,
 Till then invisible, a smoke ascends,
 Solemn and slow, as erst from Ararat,
 When he, the Patriarch, who escaped the Flood,
 Was with his household sacrificing there, —
 From daybreak to that hour, the last and best,
 When, one by one, the fishing-boats come forth,
 Each with its glimmering lantern at the prow,
 And, when the nets are thrown, the evening hymn
 Steals o'er the trembling waters.

Everywhere

Fable and Truth have shed, in rivalry,
 Each her peculiar influence. Fable came,
 And laughed and sung, arraying Truth in flowers,
 Like a young child her grandam. Fable came;
 Earth, sea, and sky reflecting, as she flew,
 A thousand, thousand colors not their own:
 And at her bidding, lo! a dark descent
 To Tartarus, and those thrice happy fields,
 Those fields with ether pure and purple light
 Ever invested, scenes by him described
 Who here was wont to wander and record
 What they revealed, and on the western shore
 Sleeps in a silent grove, o'erlooking thee,
 Beloved Parthenope.

Yet here, methinks,
 Truth wants no ornament, in her own shape
 Filling the mind by turns with awe and love,
 By turns inclining to wild ecstasy
 And soberest meditation.

SAMUEL ROGERS.

DRIFTING.

My soul to-day
 Is far away,
 Sailing the Vesuvian Bay;
 My winged boat,
 A bird afloat,
 Swims round the purple peaks remote : —

Round purple peaks
 It sails, and seeks
 Blue inlets and their crystal creeks,
 Where high rocks throw,
 Through deeps below,
 A duplicated golden glow.

Far, vague, and dim
 The mountains swim;
 While, on Vesuvius' misty brim,
 With outstretched hands,
 The gray smoke stands
 O'erlooking the volcanic lands.

Here Ischia smiles
 O'er liquid miles;
 And yonder, bluest of the isles,
 Calm Capri waits,
 Her sapphire gates
 Beguiling to her bright estates.

I heed not, if
 My rippling skiff
 Float swift or slow from cliff to cliff; —
 With dreamful eyes
 My spirit lies
 Under the walls of Paradise.

Under the walls
 Where swells and falls
 The Bay's deep breast at intervals,
 At peace I lie,
 Blown softly by,
 A cloud upon this liquid sky.

The day, so mild,
 Is Heaven's own child,
 With Earth and Ocean reconciled; —
 The airs I feel
 Around me steal
 Are murmuring to the murmuring keel.

Over the rail
 My hand I trail
 Within the shadow of the sail;
 A joy intense,
 The cooling sense
 Glides down my drowsy indolence.

With dreamful eyes
 My spirit lies
 Where Summer sings and never dies, —
 O'erweiled with vines,
 She glows and shines
 Among her future oil and wines.

Her children, hid
 The cliffs amid,
 Are gambolling with the gambolling kid;
 Or down the walls,
 With tipsy calls,
 Laugh on the rocks like waterfalls.

The fisher's child,
 With tresses wild,
 Unto the smooth, bright sand beguiled,
 With glowing lips
 Sings as she skips,
 Or gazes at the far-off ships.

Yon deep bark goes
 Where Traffic blows,
 From lands of sun to lands of snows; —

Drawn by E. J. Meeker.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

A granite cliff on either shore:
 A highway poised in air;
 Above, the wheels of traffic roar;
 Below, the fleets sail fair;—
 And in and out, forever more,
 The surging tides of ocean pour,
 And past the towers the white gulls soar,
 And winds the sea-clouds bear.

O peerless this majestic street,
 This road that leaps the brine!
 Upon its heights twin cities meet,
 And throng its grand incline,—
 To east, to west, with swiftest feet,
 Though ice may crash and billows beat,
 Though blinding fogs the wave may greet
 Or golden summer shine.

Sail up the Bay with morning's beam,
 Or rocky Hellgate by,—
 Its columns rise, its cables gleam,
 Great tents athwart the sky!

And lone it looms, august, supreme,
 When, with the splendor of a dream,
 Its blazing cressets gild the stream
 Till evening shadows fly.

By Nile stand proud the pyramids,
 But they were for the dead;
 The awful gloom that joy forbids,
 The mourners' silent tread,
 The crypt, the coffin's stony lids,—
 Sad as a soul the maze that thrids
 Of dark Amenti, ere it rids
 Its way of judgment dread.

This glorious arch, these climbing towers,
 Are all for life and cheer!
 Part of the New World's nobler dowers;
 Hint of millennial year
 That comes apace, though evil lowers,—
 When loftier aims and larger powers
 Will mould and deck this earth of ours,
 And heaven at length bring near!

Unmoved its cliffs shall crown the shore;
 Its arch the chasm dare;
 Its network hang the blue before,
 As gossamer in air;
 While in and out, forever more,
 The surging tides of ocean pour,
 And past its towers the white gulls soar
 And winds the sea-clouds bear!

EDNA DEAN PROCTOR

ATHWART the sky a lowly sigh
From west to east the sweet wind carried;
The sun stood still on Primrose Hill;
His light in all the city tarried:
The clouds on viewless columns bloomed
Like smouldering lilies unconsumed.

"O sweetheart, see! how shadowy,
Of some occult magician's rearing,
Or swung in space of heaven's grace
Dissolving, dimly reappearing,
Afloat upon ethereal tides
St. Paul's above the city rides!"

A rumor broke through the thin smoke
Enwreathing abbey, tower, and palace,
The parks, the squares, the thoroughfares,
The million-peopled lanes and alleys,
An ever-muttering prisoned storm,
The heart of London beating warm.

JOHN DAVIDSON.

This happier one,
Its course is run
From lands of snow to lands of sun.

O happy ship,
To rise and dip,
With the blue crystal at your lip !
O happy crew,
My heart with you
Sails, and sails, and sings anew !

No more, no more
The worldly shore
Upbraids me with its loud uproar !
With dreamful eyes
My spirit lies
Under the walls of Paradise !

In lofty lines,
Mid palms and pines,
And olives, aloes, elms, and vines,
Sorrento swings
On sunset wings,
Where Tasso's spirit soars and sings.*

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

WEEHAWKEN AND THE NEW YORK BAY.

FROM "FANNY."

WEEHAWKEN ! In thy mountain scenery yet,
Ail we adore of Nature in her wild
And frolic hour of infancy is met ;
And never has a summer's morning smiled
Upon a lovelier scene than the full eye
Of the enthusiast revels on, — when high

Amid thy forest solitudes he climbs
O'er crags that proudly tower above the deep,
And knows that sense of danger which sublimizes
The breathless moment, — when his daring step
Is on the verge of the cliff, and he can hear
The low dash of the wave with startled ear,

Like the death-music of his coming doom,
And clings to the green turf with desperate force,
As the heart clings to life ; and when resume
The currents in his veins their wonted course,
There lingers a deep feeling, — like the moan
Of wearied ocean when the storm is gone.

* The last stanza was written just before the author's death, and
pub. 1. 1. 1. shortly after in the Cincinnati Gazette.

In such an hour he turns, and on his view
Ocean and earth and heaven burst before him ;
Clouds slumbering at his feet, and the clear blue
Of summer's sky in beauty bending o'er him, —
The city bright below ; and far away,
Sparkling in golden light, his own romantic bay.

Tall spire, and glittering roof, and battlement,
And banners floating in the sunny air ;
And white sails o'er the calm blue waters bent,
Green isle, and circling shore, are blended
there
In wild reality. When life is old,
And many a scene forgot, the heart will hold

Its memory of this ; nor lives there one Whose infant breath was drawn, or boyhood's days
Of happiness were passed beneath that sun,
That in his manhood's prime can calmly gaze
Upon that bay, or on that mountain stand,
Nor feel the prouder of his native land.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

CALM AND STORM ON LAKE LEMAN.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO III.

CLEAR, placid Lemane ! thy contrasted lake,
With the wild world I dwellt in, is a thing
Which warns me, with its stillness, to forsake
Earth's troubled waters for a purer spring.
This quiet sail is as a noiseless wing
To waft me from distraction ; once I loved
Torn ocean's roar, but thy soft murmuring
Sounds sweet as if a sister's voice reproved,
That I with stern delights should e'er have been so moved.

It is the hush of night, and all between Thy margin and the mountains, dusk, yet
clear,
Mellowed and mingling, yet distinctly seen,
Save darkened Jura, whose cap heights appear
Precipitously steep ; and drawing near,
There breathes a living fragrance from the shore,
Of flowers yet fresh with childhood ; on the ear
Drops the light drip of the suspended oar,
Or chirps the grasshopper one good-night carol
more :

He is an evening reveller, who makes
His life an infancy, and sings his fill ;
At intervals, some bird from out the brakes
Starts into voice a moment, then is still.

There seems a floating whisper on the hill,
But that is fancy ; for the starlight dew
All silently their tears of love instil,
Weeping themselves away, till they infuse
Deep into Nature's breast the spirit of her hues.

The sky is changed ! — and such a change !
O night,
And storm, and darkness, ye are wondrous
strong,
Yet lovely in your strength, as is the light
Of a dark eye in woman ! Far along,
I seem to see the rattling cars among leaves, the lake thunder ! Not from one lone cloud,
But every mountain now hath found a tongue,
And Jura answers, through her misty shroud,
Back to the joyous Alps, who call to her aloud !

And this is in the night : — most glorious
night !
Thou wert not sent for slumber ! let me be
A sharer in thy fierce and far delight, —
A portion of the tempest and of thee !
How the lit lake shines, a phosphoric sea,
And the big waves come dashing to the path !
And now again 't is black, — and now, the glee
Of the loud hills shakes with its mountain-mirth,
As if they did rejoice o'er a young earthquake's birth.

LORD BYRON.

THE HURRICANE.

LORD of the winds ! I feel thee nigh,
I know thy breath in the burning sky !
And I wait, with a thrill in every vein,
For the coming of the hurricane !

And lo ! on the wing of the heavy gales,
Through the boundless arch of heaven he sails.
Silent and slow, and terribly strong,
The mighty shadow is borne along,
Like the dark eternity to come ;
While the world below, dismayed and dumb,
Through the calm of the thick hot atmosphere
Looks up at its gloomy folds with fear.

They darken fast ; and the golden blaze
Of the sun is quenched in the lurid haze,
And he sends through the shade a funeral ray —
A glare that is neither night nor day,
A beam that touches, with hues of death,
The clouds above and the earth beneath.
To its covert glides the silent bird,
While the hurricane's distant voice is heard
Uplifted among the mountains round,
And the forests hear and answer the sound.

He is come ! he is come ! do ye not behold
His ample robes on the wind unrolled ?
Giant of air ! we bid thee hail ! —
How his gray skirts toss in the whirling gale ;
How his huge and writhing arms are bent
To clasp the zone of the firmament,
And fold at length, in their dark embrace,
From mountain to mountain the visible space !

Darker, — still darker ! the whirlwinds bear
The dust of the plains to the middle air ;
And hark to the crashing, long and loud,
Of the chariot of God in the thunder-cloud !
Yet may trace its path by the flashes that start
From the rapid wheels where'er they dart,
As the fire-bolts leap to the world below,
And flood the skies with a lurid glow.

What roar is that ? — 't is the rain that breaks
In torrents away from the airy lakes,
Heavily poured on the shuddering ground,
And shedding a nameless horror round.
Ah ! well-known woods, and mountains, and skies,
With the very clouds ! — ye are lost to my eyes.
I seek ye vainly, and see in your place
The shadowy tempest that sweeps through space,
A whirling ocean that fills the wall
Of the crystal heaven, and buries all.
And I, cut off from the world, remain
Alone with the terrible hurricane.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THE DESERTED VILLAGE.

SWEET Auburn ! loveliest village of the plain,
Where health and plenty cheered the laboring swain,
Where smiling spring its earliest visit paid,
And parting summer's lingering blooms delayed.
Dear lovely bowers of innocence and ease,
Seats of my youth, when every sport could please,
How often have I loitered o'er thy green,
Where humble happiness endeared each scene !
How often have I paused on every charm,
The sheltered cot, the cultivated farm,
The never-failing brook, the busy mill,
The decent church that topped the neighboring hill,
The hawthorn-bush, with seats beneath the shade,
For talking age and whispering lovers made !
How often have I blessed the coming day,
When toil remitting lent its turn to play,
And all the village train, from labor free,
Led up their sports beneath the spreading tree,
While many a pastime circled in the shade,
The young contending as the old surveyed ;

And many a gambol frolicked o'er the ground,
And sleights of art and feats of strength went round ;

And still, as each repeated pleasure tired,
Succeeding sports the mirthful band inspired ;
The dancing pair that simply sought renown,
By holding out, to tire each other down ;
The swain mistrustless of his smutted face,
While secret laughter tittered round the place ;
The bashful virgin's sidelong looks of love,
The matron's glance that would those looks re-
prove, —

These were thy charms, sweet village ! sports like these,

With sweet succession, taught e'en toil to please ;
These round thy bowers their cheerful influence shed,

These were thy charms, — but all these charms are fled !

Sweet smiling village, loveliest of the lawn,
Thy sports are fled, and all thy charms withdrawn ;

Amidst thy bowers the tyrant's hand is seen,
And desolation saddens all thy green ;
One only master grasps the whole domain,
And half a tillage stints thy smiling plain ;
No more thy glassy brook reflects the day,
But, choked with sedges, works its weedy way ;
Along thy glades, a solitary guest,
The hollow-sounding bittern guards its nest ;
Amidst thy desert walks the lapwing flies,
And tires their echoes with unvaried cries.
Sunk are thy bowers in shapeless ruin all,
And the long grass o'ertops the mouldering wall,
And, trembling, shrinking from the spoiler's hand,
Far, far away thy children leave the land.

Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay :
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade ;
A breath can make them, as a breath has made ;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied.

A time there was, ere England's griefs began,
When every rood of ground maintained its man ;
For him light Labor spread her wholesome store,
Just gave what life required, but gave no more ;
His best companions, innocence and health ;
And his best riches, ignorance of wealth.

But times are altered ; trade's unfeeling train
Usurp the land and dispossess the swain ;
Along the lawn, where scattered hamlets rose,
Unwieldy wealth and cumbrous pomp repose,
And every want to luxury allied,
And every pang that folly pays to pride.

Those gentle hours that plenty bade to bloom,
Those calm desires that asked but little room,
Those healthful sports that graced the peaceful
scene,

Lived in each look, and brightened all the green, —

These, far departing, seek a kinder shore,
And rural mirth and manners are no more.

Sweet Auburn ! parent of the blissful hour,
Thy glades forlorn confess the tyrant's power.
Here, as I take my solitary rounds,
Amidst thy tangling walks and ruined grounds,
And, many a year elapsed, return to view
Where once the cottage stood, the hawthorn grew,
Remembrance wakes, with all her busy train,
Swells at my breast, and turns the past to pain.

In all my wanderings round this world of care,
In all my griefs — and God has given my share —
I still had hopes my latest hours to crown,
Amidst these humble bowers to lay me down ;
To husband out life's taper at the close,
And keep the flame from wasting by repose ;
I still had hopes — for pride attends us still —
Amidst the swains to show my book-learned skill,
Around my fire an evening group to draw,
And tell of all I felt and all I saw ;
And, as a hare, whom hounds and horns pursue,
Pants to the place from whence at first she flew,
I still had hopes, my long vexations past,
Here to return, — and die at home at last.

O blest retirement ! friend to life's decline,
Retreats from care, that never must be mine,
How blest is he who crowns in shades like these
A youth of labor with an age of ease ;
Who quits a world where strong temptations try,
And, since 't is hard to combat, learns to fly !
For him no wretches, born to work and weep,
Explore the mine, or tempt the dangerous deep ;
No surly porter stands in guilty state,
To spurn imploring famine from the gate :
But on he moves to meet his latter end,
Angels around befriending virtue's friend ;
Sinks to the grave with unperceived decay,
While resignation gently slopes the way ;
And, all his prospects brightening to the last,
His heaven commences ere the world be past.

Sweet was the sound, when oft, at evening's close,

Up yonder hill the village murmur rose ;
There, as I passed with careless steps and slow,
The mingling notes came softened from below ;
The swain responsive as the milkmaid sung,
The sober herd that lowed to meet their young ;

The noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool,
The playful children just let loose from school ;
The watch-dog's voice that bayed the whispering
wind,

And the loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind, —
These all in sweet confusion sought the shade,
And filled each pause the nightingale had made.
But now the sounds of population fail,
No cheerful murmurs fluctuate in the gale,
No busy steps the grass-grown foot-way tread,
But all the bloomy flush of life is fled.
All but yon widowed, solitary thing,
That feebly bends beside the plashy spring ;
She, wretched matron, forced in age, for bread,
To strip the brook with mantling cresses spread,
To pick her wintry fagot from the thorn,
To seek her nightly shed, and weep till morn ;
She only left of all the harmless train,
The sad historian of the pensive plain.

Near yonder copse, where once the garden smiled,

And still where many a garden-flower grows wild ;
There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose.

A man he was to all the country dear,
And passing rich with forty pounds a year ;
Remote from towns he ran his godly race,
Nor e'er had changed, nor wished to change, his place ;

Unskilful he to fawn, or seek for power,
By doctrines fashioned to the varying hour ;
Far other aims his heart had learned to prize,
More bent to raise the wretched than to rise.
His house was known to all the vagrant train.
He chid their wanderings, but relieved their pain ;
The long-remembered beggar was his guest,
Whose beard descending swept his aged breast.
The ruined spendthrift, now no longer proud,
Claimed kindred there, and had his claims allowed ;

The broken soldier, kindly bade to stay,
Sate by his fire, and talked the night away ;
Wept o'er his wounds, or tales of sorrow done,
Shouldered his crutch, and showed how fields were won.

Pleased with his guests, the good man learned to glow,

And quite forgot their vices in their woe ;
Careless their merits or their faults to scan,
His pity gave ere charity began.

Thus to relieve the wretched was his pride,
And e'en his failings leaned to Virtue's side ;
But in his duty prompt at every call,
He watched and wept, he prayed and felt for all ;
And, as a bird each fond endearment tries,
To tempt its new-fledged offspring to the skies,

He tried each art, reproved each dull delay,
Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way.

Beside the bed where parting life was laid,
And sorrow, guilt, and pain by turns dismayed,
The reverend champion stood. At his control,
Despair and anguish fled the struggling soul ;
Comfort came down the trembling wretch to raise,
And his last faltering accents whispered praise.

At church, with meek and unaffected grace,
His looks adorned the venerable place ;
Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway,
And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray.
The service past, around the pious man,
With steady zeal, each honest rustic ran ;
E'en children followed with endearing wile,
And plucked his gown, to share the good man's smile.

His ready smile a parent's warmth expressed,
Their welfare pleased him, and their cares distressed ;

To them his heart, his love, his griefs were given,
But all his serious thoughts had rest in heaven.
As some tall cliff, that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head.

Beside yon straggling fence that skirts the way,
With blossomed furze unprofitably gay,
There, in his noisy mansion, skilled to rule,
The village master taught his little school ;
A man severe he was, and stern to view,
I knew him well, and every truant knew ;
Well had the boding tremblers learned to trace
The day's disasters in his morning face ;
Full well they laughed with counterfeited glee
At all his jokes, for many a joke had he ;
Full well the busy whisper circling round
Conveyed the dismal tidings when he frowned ;
Yet he was kind, or, if severe in aught,
The love he bore to learning was in fault.
The village all declared how much he knew,
'T was certain he could write, and cipher too ;
Lands he could measure, times and tides presage,
And e'en the story ran that he could gauge ;
In arguing too, the parson owned his skill,
For, e'en though vanquished, he could argue still,
While words of learned length and thundering
sound

Amazed the gazing rustics ranged around ;
And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew.

But past is all his fame. The very spot
Where many a time he triumphed is forgot, —

Near yonder thorn, that lifts its head on high,
Where once the sign-post caught the passing eye,
Low lies that house where nut-brown draughts inspired,

Where graybeard mirth and smiling toil retired,
Where village statesmen talked with looks profound,

And news much older than their ale went round.
Imagination fondly stoops to trace
The parlor splendors of that festive place, —
The whitewashed wall; the nicely sanded floor;
The varnished clock that ticked behind the door;
The chest, contrived a double debt to pay,
A bed by night, a chest of drawers by day;
The pictures placed for ornament and use;
The twelve good rules; the royal game of goose;
The hearth, except when winter chilled the day,
With aspen boughs and flowers and fennel gay;
While broken teacups, wisely kept for show,
Ranged o'er the chimney, glistened in a row.

Vain, transitory splendor! could not all
Reprive the tottering mansion from its fall?
Obscure it sinks, nor shall it more impart
An hour's importance to the poor man's heart;
Thither no more the peasant shall repair
To sweet oblivion of his daily care;
No more the farmer's news, the barber's tale,
No more the woodman's ballad shall prevail;
No more the smith his dusky brow shall clear,
Relax his ponderous strength, and lean to hear;
The host himself no longer shall be found
Careful to see the mantling bliss go round;
Nor the coy maid, half willing to be prest,
Shall kiss the cup to pass it to the rest.

Yes! let the rich deride, the proud disdain,
These simple blessings of the lowly train;
To me more dear, congenial to my heart,
One native charm, than all the gloss of art.
Spontaneous joys, where nature has its play,
The soul adopts, and owns their first-born sway;
Lightly they frolic o'er the vacant mind,
Unenvied, unmolested, unconfined;
But the long pomp, the midnight masquerade,
With all the freaks of wanton wealth arrayed, —
In these, ere triflers half their wish obtain,
The toiling pleasure sickens into pain;
And, e'en while fashion's brightest arts decoy,
The heart, distrusting, asks if this be joy.

Ye friends to truth, ye statesmen, who survey
The rich man's joys increase, the poor's decay,
Tis yours to judge, how wide the limits stand
Between a splendid and a happy land.
Proud swells the tide with loads of freighted ore,
And shouting Folly hails them from her shore;

Hoards e'en beyond the miser's wish abound,
And rich men flock from all the world around.
Yet count our gains. This wealth is but a name
That leaves our useful products still the same.
Not so the loss. The man of wealth and pride
Takes up a space that many poor supplied;
Space for his lake, his park's extended bounds,
Space for his horses, equipage, and hounds:
The robe that wraps his limbs in silken sloth
Has robbed the neighboring fields of half their growth;

His seat, where solitary sports are seen,
Indignant spurns the cottage from the green;
Around the world each needful product flies,
For all the luxuries the world supplies:
While thus the land, adorned for pleasure all,
In barren splendor feebly waits the fall.

As some fair female unadorned and plain,
Secure to please while youth confirms her reign,
Slights every borrowed charm that dress supplies,
Nor shares with art the triumph of her eyes,
But when those charms are past, — for charms are frail, —

When time advances, and when lovers fail,
She then shines forth, solicitous to bless,
In all the glaring impotence of dress;
Thus fares the land by luxury betrayed,
In nature's simplest charms at first arrayed,
But verging to decline, its splendors rise,
Its vistas strike, its palaces surprise;
While, scourged by famine from the smiling land,
The mournful peasant leads his humble band;
And while he sinks, without one arm to save,
The country blooms, — a garden and a grave.

Where then, ah! where shall poverty reside,
To 'scape the pressure of contiguous pride?
If to some common's fenceless limits strayed
He drives his flock to pick the scanty blade,
Those fenceless fields the sons of wealth divide,
And e'en the bare-worn common is denied.
If to the city sped, — what waits him there?
To see profusion that he must not share;
To see ten thousand baneful arts combined
To pamper luxury and thin mankind;
To see each joy the sons of pleasure know
Extorted from his fellow-creature's woe.
Here while the courtier glitters in brocade,
There the pale artist plies the sickly trade;
Here while the proud their long-drawn poms display,

There the black gibbet glooms beside the way.
The dome where Pleasure holds her midnight reign,

Here, richly decked, admits the gorgeous train;
Tumultuous grandeur crowds the blazing square,
The rattling chariots clash, the torches glare.

Sure scenes like these no troubles e'er annoy !
 Sure these denote one universal joy !
 Are these thy serious thoughts ? — Ah, turn thine eyes

Where the poor houseless shivering female lies.
 She once, perhaps, in village plenty blest,
 Has wept at tales of innocence distressed ;
 Her modest looks the cottage might adorn,
 Sweet as the primrose peeps beneath the thorn ;
 Now lost to all : her friends, her virtue fled,
 Near her betrayer's door she lays her head,
 And, pinched with cold, and shrinking from the shower,

With heavy heart deplores that luckless hour,
 When idly first, ambitious of the town,
 She left her wheel and robes of country brown.

Do thine, sweet Auburn, thine, the loveliest train,

Do thy fair tribes participate her pain ?
 E'en now, perhaps, by cold and hunger led,
 At proud men's doors they ask a little bread !

Ah, no ! To distant climes, a dreary scene,
 Where half the convex world intrudes between,
 Through torrid tracks with fainting steps they go,
 Where wild Altama murmurs to their woe.
 Far different there from all that charmed before,
 The various terrors of that horrid shore, —
 Those blazing suns that dart a downward ray,
 And fiercely shed intolerable day ;
 Those matted woods where birds forget to sing,
 But silent bats in drowsy clusters cling ;
 Those poisonous fields with rank luxuriance
 crowned,

Where the dark scorpion gathers death around ;
 Where at each step the stranger fears to wake
 The rattling terrors of the vengeful snake ;
 Where crouching tigers wait their hapless prey,
 And savage men more murderous still than they ;
 While oft in whirls the mad tornado flies,
 Mingling the ravaged landscape with the skies.
 Far different these from every former scene,
 The cooling brook, the grassy vested green,
 The breezy covert of the warbling grove,
 That only sheltered thefts of harmless love.

Good Heaven ! what sorrows gloomed that parting day
 That called them from their native walks away ;
 When the poor exiles, every pleasure past,
 Hung round the bowers, and fondly looked their last,
 And took a long farewell, and wished in vain
 For seats like these beyond the western main ;
 And shuddering still to face the distant deep,
 Returned and wept, and still returned to weep.

The good old sire the first prepared to go
 To new-found worlds, and wept for others' woe ;
 But for himself in conscious virtue brave,
 He only wished for worlds beyond the grave.
 His lovely daughter, lovelier in her tears,
 The fond companion of his helpless years,
 Silent went next, neglectful of her charms,
 And left a lover's for her father's arms.
 With louder plaints the mother spoke her woes,
 And blessed the cot where every pleasure rose ;
 And kissed her thoughtless babes with many a tear,
 And clasped them close, in sorrow doubly dear ;
 Whilst her fond husband strove to lend relief
 In all the silent manliness of grief.

O Luxury ! thou curst by Heaven's decree,
 How ill exchanged are things like these for thee !
 How do thy potions, with insidious joy,
 Diffuse their pleasures only to destroy !
 Kingdoms by thee, to sickly greatness grown,
 Boast of a florid vigor not their own.
 At every draught more large and large they grow,
 A bloated mass of rank, unwieldy woe ;
 Till, sapped their strength, and every part un
 sound,
 Down, down they sink, and spread a ruin round.

Even now the devastation is begun,
 And half the business of destruction done ;
 Even now, methinks, as pondering here I stand,
 I see the rural virtues leave the land.
 Down where yon anchoring vessel spreads the sail
 That idly waiting flaps with every gale,
 Downward they move, a melancholy band,
 Pass from the shore, and darken all the strand.
 Contented toil, and hospitable care,
 And kind connubial tenderness, are there ;
 And piety with wishes placed above,
 And steady loyalty, and faithful love.
 And thou, sweet Poetry, thou loveliest maid,
 Still first to fly where sensual joys invade ;
 Unfit, in these degenerate times of shame,
 To catch the heart, or strike for honest fame ;
 Dear charming nymph, neglected and decried,
 My shame in crowds, my solitary pride ;
 Thou source of all my bliss and all my woe,
 That found'st me poor at first, and keep'st me so ;
 Thou guide, by which the nobler arts excel,
 Thou nurse of every virtue, fare thee well !
 Farewell ; and O, where'er thy voice be tried,
 On Torno's cliffs, or Pambamarca's side,
 Whether where equinoctial fervors glow,
 Or winter wraps the polar world in snow,
 Still let thy voice, prevailing over time,
 Redress the rigors of the inclement clime ;
 Aid slighted truth with thy persuasive strain ;
 Teach erring man to spurn the rage of gain ;

Teach him, that states of native strength possest,
Though very poor, may still be very blest ;
That trade's proud empire hastes to swift decay,
As ocean sweeps the labored mole away ;
While self-dependent power can time defy,
As rocks resist the billows and the sky.

OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

THE FISHER'S COTTAGE.

WE sat by the fisher's cottage,
And looked at the stormy tide ;
The evening mist came rising,
And floating far and wide.

One by one in the light-house
The lamps shone out on high ;
And far on the dim horizon
A ship went sailing by.

We spoke of storm and shipwreck, —
Of sailors, and how they live ;
Of journeys 'twixt sky and water,
And the sorrows and joys they give.

We spoke of distant countries,
In regions strange and fair,
And of the wondrous beings
And curious customs there ;

Of perfumed lamps on the Ganges,
Which are launched in the twilight hour ;
And the dark and silent Brahmins,
Who worship the lotos flower.

Of the wretched dwarfs of Lapland, —
Broad-headed, wide-mouthed, and small, —
Who crouch round their oil-fires, cooking,
And chatter and scream and bawl.

And the maidens earnestly listened,
Till at last we spoke no more ;
The ship like a shadow had vanished,
And darkness fell deep on the shore.

THE ISLAND.

FROM "THE BUCCANEER."

THE island lies nine leagues away.
Along its solitary shore,
Of craggy rock and sandy bay,
No sound but ocean's roar,
Save where the bold, wild sea-bird makes her
home,
Her shrill cry coming through the sparkling foam.

But when the light winds lie at rest,
And on the glassy, heaving sea
The black duck, with her glossy breast,
Sits swinging silently,
How beautiful ! no ripples break the reach,
And silvery waves go noiseless up the beach

And inland rests the green, warm dell ;
The brook comes tinkling down its side ;
From out the trees the Sabbath bell
Rings cheerful, far and wide,
Mingling its sound with bleatings of the flocks,
That feed about the vale among the rocks.

Nor holy bell, nor pastoral bleat,
In former days within the vale ;
Flapped in the bay the pirate's sheet ;
Curses were on the gale ;
Rich goods lay on the sand, and murdered men ;
Pirate and wrecker kept their revels then.

But calm, low voices, words of grace,
Now slowly fall upon the ear ;
A quiet look is in each face,
Subdued and holy fear :
Each motion 's gentle ; all is kindly done ;
Come, listen how from crime this isle was won.

RICHARD HENRY DANA.

SMOKE.

LIGHT-WINGED Smoke ! Icarian bird,
Melting thy pinions in thy upward flight ;
Lark without song, and messenger of dawn,
Circling above the hamlets as thy nest ;
Or else, departing dream, and shadowy form
Of midnight vision, gathering up thy skirts ;
By night star-veiling, and by day
Darkening the light and blotting out the sun ;
Go thou, my incense, upward from this hearth,
And ask the gods to pardon this clear flame.

HENRY DAVID THOREAU.

MIST.

LOW-ANCHORED cloud,
Newfoundland air,
Fountain-head and source of rivers,
Dew-cloth, dream-drapery,
And napkin spread by fays ;
Drifting meadow of the air,
Where bloom the daisied banks and violets,
And in whose fenny labyrinth
The bittern booms and heron wades ;
Spirit of lakes and seas and rivers, —
Bear only perfumes and the scent
Of healing herbs to just men's fields.

HENRY DAVID THOREAU.

THE EVENING CLOUD.

A CLOUD lay cradled near the setting sun,
 A gleam of crimson tinged its braided snow ;
 Long had I watched the glory moving on
 O'er the still radiance of the lake below.
 Tranquil its spirit seemed, and floated slow !
 Even in its very motion there was rest ;
 While every breath of eve that chanced to blow
 Wafted the traveller to the beauteous west.
 Emblem, methought, of the departed soul !
 To whose white robe the gleam of bliss is given,
 And by the breath of mercy made to roll
 Right onwards to the golden gates of heaven,
 Where to the eye of faith it peaceful lies,
 And tells to man his glorious destinies.

NEWPORT BEACH.

WAVE after wave successively rolls on
 And dies along the shore, until more loud
 One billow with concentrate force is heard
 To swell prophetic, and exultant rears
 A lucent form above its pioneers,
 And rushes past them to the farthest goal.
 Thus our unuttered feelings rise and fall,
 And thought will follow thought in equal waves,
 Until reflection nerves design to will,
 Or sentiment o'er chance emotion reigns,
 And all its wayward undulations blends
 In one o'erwhelming surge !

HENRY THEODORE TUCKERMAN.

A STILL DAY IN AUTUMN.

I LOVE to wander through the woodlands hoary
 In the soft light of an autumnal day,
 When Summer gathers up her robes of glory,
 And like a dream of beauty glides away.
 How through each loved, familiar path she lingers,
 Serenely smiling through the golden mist,
 Tinting the wild grape with her dewy fingers
 Till the cool emerald turns to amethyst ;
 Kindling the faint stars of the hazel, shining
 To light the gloom of Autumn's mouldering halls,
 With hoary plumes the clematis entwining
 Where o'er the rock her withered garland falls.
 Warm lights are on the sleepy uplands waning
 Beneath soft clouds along the horizon rolled,
 Till the slant sunbeams through their fringes raining
 Bathe all the hills in melancholy gold.

The moist winds breathe of crisped leaves and
 flowers
 In the damp hollows of the woodland sown,
 Mingling the freshness of autumnal showers
 With spicy airs from cedarn alleys blown.

Beside the brook and on the unumbered meadow,
 Where yellow fern-tufts fleck the faded ground,
 With folded lids beneath their palmy shadow
 The gentian nods, in dewy slumbers bound.

Upon those soft, fringed lids the bee sits brooding,
 Like a fond lover loath to say farewell,
 Or with shut wings, through silken folds intruding,
 Creeps near her heart his drowsy tale to tell.

The little birds upon the hillside lonely
 Flit noiselessly along from spray to spray,
 Silent as a sweet wandering thought that only
 Shows its bright wings and softly glides away.

SARAH HELEN WHITMAN.

THE BIRCH STREAM.

At noon, within the dusty town,
 Where the wild river rushes down,
 And thunders hoarsely all day long,
 I think of thee, my hermit stream,
 Low singing in thy summer dream
 Thine idle, sweet, old, tranquil song.

Northward, Katahdin's chasmed pile
 Looms through thy low, long, leafy aisle ;
 Eastward, Olamion's summit shines ;
 And I upon thy grassy shore,
 The dreamful, happy child of yore,
 "Vorship before mine, olden shrines.

Again the sultry noontide hush
 Is sweetly broken by the thrush,
 Whose clear bell rings and dies away
 Beside thy banks, in coverts deep,
 Where nodding buds of orchis sleep
 In dusk, and dream not it is day.

Again the wild cow-lily floats
 Her golden-freighted, tented boats
 In thy cool coves of softened gloom,
 O'ershadowed by the whispering reed,
 And purple plumes of pickerel-weed,
 And meadow-sweet in tangled bloom.

The startled minnows dart in flocks
 Beneath thy glimmering amber rocks,
 If but a zephyr stirs the brake ;
 The silent swallow swoops, a flash
 Of light, and leaves, with dainty plash,
 A ring of ripples in her wake.

Without, the land is hot and dim ;
 The level fields in languor swim,
 Their stubble-grasses brown as dust ;
 And all along the upland lanes,
 Where shadeless noon oppressive reigns,
 Dead roses wear their crowns of rust.

Within, is neither blight nor death ;
 The fierce sun woos with ardent breath,
 But cannot win thy sylvan heart.
 Only the child who loves thee long,
 With faithful worship pure and strong,
 Can know how dear and sweet thou art.

So loved I thee in days gone by,
 So love I yet, though leagues may lie
 Between us, and the years divide ;
 A breath of coolness, dawn, and dew,
 A joy forever fresh and true,
 Thy memory doth with me abide.

ANNA BOYNTON AVERILL

THE BLACKBIRD.

How sweet the harmonies of afternoon !
 The Blackbird sings along the sunny breeze
 His ancient song of leaves, and summer boon ;
 Rich breath of hayfields streams through whispering trees ;
 And birds of morning trim their bustling wings,
 And listen fondly — while the Blackbird sings.

How soft the lovelight of the west reposes
 On this green valley's cheery solitude,
 On the trim cottage with its screen of roses,
 On the gray belfry with its ivy hood,
 And murmuring mill-race, and the wheel that flings
 Its bubbling freshness — while the Blackbird
 sings.

The very dial on the village church
 Seems as 't were dreaming in a dozy rest ;
 The scribbled benches underneath the porch
 Bask in the kindly welcome of the west :
 But the broad casements of the old Three Kings
 Blaze like a furnace — while the Blackbird sings.

And there beneath the immemorial elm
 Three rosy revellers round a table sit,
 And through gray clouds give laws unto the realm,
 Curse good and great, but worship their own wit,
 And roar of fights, and fairs, and junketings,
 Corn, colts, and curs — the while the Blackbird
 sings.

Before her home, in her accustomed seat,
 The tidy grandam spins beneath the shade
 Of the old honeysuckle, at her feet
 The dreaming pug and purring tabby laid ;
 To her low chair a little maiden clings,
 And spells in silence — while the Blackbird sings.

Sometimes the shadow of a lazy cloud
 Breathes o'er the hamlet with its gardens green,
 While the far fields with sunlight overflowed
 Like golden shores of Fairyland are seen ;
 Again the sunshine on the shadow springs,
 And fires the thicket — where the Blackbird
 sings.

The woods, the lawn, the peaked manor-house,
 With its peach-covered walls, and rookery loud,
 The trim, quaint garden-alleys, screened with boughs,
 The lion-headed gates, so grim and proud,
 The mossy fountain with its murmurings,
 Lie in warm sunshine — while the Blackbird
 sings.

The ring of silver voices, and the sheen
 Of festal garments, — and my lady streams
 With her gay court across the garden green ;
 Some laugh and dance, some whisper their love-dreams ;
 And one calls for a little page : he strings
 Her lute beside her — while the Blackbird sings.

A little while, — and lo ! the charm is heard :
 A youth, whose life has been all summer, steals
 Forth from the noisy guests around the board,
 Creeps by her softly, at her footstool kneels,
 And, when she pauses, murmurs tender things
 Into her fond ear — while the Blackbird sings.

The smoke-wreaths from the chimneys curl up higher,
 And dizzy things of eve begin to float
 Upon the light ; the breeze begins to tire.
 Half-way to sunset with a drowsy note
 The ancient clock from out the valley swings ;
 The grandam nods — and still the Blackbird
 sings.

Far shouts and laughter from the farm-stead peal,
 Where the great stack is piling in the sun ;
 Through narrow gates o'erladen wagons reel,
 And barking curs into the tumult run ;
 While the inconstant wind bears off, and brings
 The merry tempest — and the Blackbird sings.

On the high wold the last look of the sun
 Burns, like a beacon, over dale and stream ;
 The shouts have ceased, the laughter and the fun ;
 The grandam sleeps, and peaceful be her dream ;

Only a hammer on an anvil rings ;
The day is dying—still the Blackbird sings.

Now the good vicar passes from his gate,
Serene, with long white hair ; and in his eye
Burns the clear spirit that hath conquered Fate,
And felt the wings of immortality ;
His heart is thronged with great imaginings
And tender mercies — while the Blackbird sings.

Down by the brook he bends his steps, and
through
A lowly wicket ; and at last he stands
Awful beside the bed of one who grew
From boyhood with him, — who with lifted
hands
And eyes seems listening to far welcomings
And sweeter music — than the Blackbird sings.

Two golden stars, like tokens from the blest,
Strike on his dim orbs from the setting sun ;
His sinking hands seem pointing to the west ;
He smiles as though he said, "Thy will be done !"

His eyes they see not those illuminings ;
His ears they hear not — what the Blackbird sings.

FREDERICK TENNYSON.

THE PHILOSOPHER TOAD.

Down deep in a hollow, so damp and so cold,
Where oaks are by ivy o'ergrown,
The gray moss and lichen creep over the mould,
Lying loose on a ponderous stone.
Now within this huge stone, like a king on his throne,
A toad has been sitting more years than is known ;
And, strange as it seems, yet he constantly deems
The world standing still while he's dreaming his dreams, —
Does this wonderful toad, in his cheerful abode
In the innermost heart of that flinty old stone,
By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in the hollow, from morning till
night,
Dun shadows glide over the ground,
Where a watercourse once, as it sparkled with light,
Turned a ruined old mill-wheel around ;
Long years have passed by since its bed became
dry,
And the trees grow so close, scarce a glimpse of the sky

Is seen in the hollow, so dark and so damp,
Where the glow-worm at noonday is trimming
his lamp,
And hardly a sound from the thicket around,
Where the rabbit and squirrel leap over the
ground,
Is heard by the toad in his spacious abode
In the innermost heart of that ponderous stone,
By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in that hollow the bees never come,
The shade is too black for a flower ;
And jewel-winged birds, with their musical
hum,
Never flash in the night of that bower ;
But the cold-blooded snake, in the edge of the brake,
Lies amid the rank grass, half asleep, half
awake ;
And the ashen-white snail, with the slime in its trail,
Moves wearily on like a life's tedious tale,
Yet disturbs not the toad in his spacious abode,
In the innermost heart of that flinty old stone,
By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in a hollow some wisacres sit,
Like a toad in his cell in the stone ;
Around them in daylight the blind owlets flit,
And their creeds are with ivy o'ergrown ; —
Their streams may go dry, and the wheels cease to ply,
And their glimpses be few of the sun and the
sky,
Still they hug to their breast every time-
honored guest,
And slumber and doze in inglorious rest ;
For no progress they find in the wide sphere
of mind,
And the world's standing still with all of their kind ;
Contented to dwell deep down in the well,
Or move like the snail in the crust of his shell,
Or live like the toad in his narrow abode,
With their souls closely wedged in a thick wall
of stone,
By the gray weeds of prejudice rankly o'ergrown.

REBECCA S. NICHOLS.

THE MUSICAL DUEL.

FROM "THE LOVER'S MELANCHOLY."

MENAPHON. Passing from Italy to Greece the tales
Which poets of an elder time have feigned
To glorify their Tempe, bred in me
Desire of visiting that paradise.

To Thessaly I came ; and, living private,
Without acquaintance of more sweet companions
Than the old inmates to my love, my thoughts,
I day by day frequented silent groves
And solitary walks. One morning early
This accident encountered me : I heard
The sweetest and most ravishing contention
That art and nature ever were at strife in.

AMETHUS. I cannot yet conceive what you infer

By art and nature.

MEN. I shall soon resolve you.
A sound of music touched mine ears, or rather,
Indeed, entranced my soul. As I stole nearer,
Invited by the melancholy, I saw
This youth, this fair-faced youth, upon his lute,
With strains of strange variety and harmony,
Proclaiming, as it seemed, so bold a challenge
To the clear choristers of the woods, the birds,
That, as they flocked about him, all stood silent,
Wondering at what they heard. I wondered too.
AM. And so do I ; good ! — On !

MEN. A nightingale,
Nature's best skilled musician, undertakes
The challenge, and, for every several strain
The well-shaped youth could touch, she sung her
own ;

He could not run division with more art
Upon his quaking instrument than she,
The nightingale, did with her various notes
Reply to ; for a voice, and for a sound,
Amethus, 't is much easier to believe
That such they were than hope to hear again.

AM. How did the rivals part ?

MEN. You term them rightly ;
For they were rivals, and their mistress, Harmony. —

Some time thus spent, the young man grew at last
Into a pretty anger, that a bird
Whom art had never taught clefs, moods, or notes,

Should vie with him for mastery, whose study
Had busied many hours to perfect practice :
To end the controversy, in a rapture
Upon his instrument he plays so swiftly,
So many voluntaries, and so quick,
That there was curiosity and cunning,
Concord in discord, lines of differing method
Meeting in one full centre of delight.

AM. Now for the bird.

MEN. The bird, ordained to be Music's first martyr, strove to imitate
These several sounds ; which, when her warbling throat

Failed in, for grief, down dropped she on his lute,
And broke her heart ! It was the quaintest sadness

To see the conqueror upon her hearse
To weep a funeral elegy of tears ;
That, trust me, my Amethus, I could chide
Mine own unmanly weakness, that made me
A fellow-mourner with him.

AM. I believe thee.

MEN. He looked upon the trophies of his art,
Then sighed, then wiped his eyes, then sighed,
and cried,

"Alas, poor creature ! I will soon revenge
This cruelty upon the author of it ;
Henceforth this lute, guilty of innocent blood,
Shall nevermore betray a harmless peace
To an untimely end ;" and in that sorrow,
As he was pushing it against a tree,
I suddenly step in.

THE CANTERBURY PILGRIMS.

FROM "THE CANTERBURY TALES: PROLOGUE."*

WHAN that Aprille with hise shourès soote¹
The droghte of March hath perced to the roote,

* The following passages from the Prologue to The Canterbury Tales give excellent specimens of Chaucer's close observation of nature, men, and manners, and of his clear, graphic, descriptive style. The text followed is that of the "Riverside Edition," edited by Mr. Arthur Gilman, which is based chiefly on that of the manuscript in possession of Lord Ellesmere, published by the Chaucer Society of London. That edition, however, is not responsible for the explanatory notes, nor for the addition of the grave accent, used to indicate syllables which the rhythm requires to be pronounced, in order to simplify the reading for those unaccustomed to the old-time irregularities of spelling.

Of sondry folk, by aventure y-falle
In felaweshipe, and pilgrymes were thei alle,
That toward Caunterbury wolden ryde.

A KNYGHT ther was, and that a worthy man,
That fro the tymè that he first bigan
To riden out, he lovèd chivalrie,
Trouthe and honour, fredom and curteisie.
Ful worthy was he in his lordes werre,
And therto hadde he riden, noman ferre,¹
As wel in cristendom as in hethenesse,
And evere honoured for his worthynesse.

And though that he were worthy, he was wys,
And of his port as meeke as is a mayde.
He nevere yet no vileynye² ne sayde
In al his lyf unto no maner wight.
He was a verray parfit, gentil knyght.

With hym ther was his sone, a yong SQUIER,
A lovyere and a lusty bacheler,
With lokkes crulle³ as they were leyd in presse.
Of twenty yeer of age he was I gesse.
Of his stature he was of evene lengthe,
And wonderly delyvere,⁴ and of greet strengthe.
And he hadde ben somtyme in chyvachie,⁵
In Flaundes, in Artoys, and Pycardie,
And born hym weel, as of so litel space,
In hope to stonden in his lady grace.
Embrouded⁶ was he, as it were a meede
Al ful of fresshè flourès whyte and reede.
Syngynge he was, or floytynge,⁷ al the day;
He was as fresch as is the monthe of May.
Short was his gowne, with sleves longe and wyde.
Wel cowde he sitte on hors, and faire ryde.
He koudè songès make and wel endite,
Juste and eek daunce, and weel purtreye⁸ and write.

So hootè he lovedè, that by nyghtertale⁹
He sleep nomore than dooth a nyghtyngale;
Curteis he was, lowely and servysable,
And carf¹⁰ bifrom his fader at the table.

Ther was also a Nonne, a PRIORESSE,
That of hire smylyng was ful symple and coy;
Hire gretteste ooth ne was but by seint Loy;¹¹
And she was cleped madame Eglyentynce.
Ful weel she soonge the service dyvyne,
Entuned in hir nose ful semeely;
And Frenssh she spak ful faire and fetisly.¹²
After the scole of Stratford-attè-Bowe,
For Frenssh of Parys was to hire unknowe.

At metè¹ wel ytaught was she with alle,
She leet no morsel from hir lippès falle,
Ne wette hire fyngres in hire saucè deepe.
Wel koude she carie a morsel and wel kepe,
That no dropè ne fille up-on hire breste;
In curteisie was set ful muchel hir leste.²
Hire over-lippè wypèd she so clene,
That in hir coppe ther was no fertyhyng³ sene
Of grece, whan she dronken hadde hir draughte.
Ful semely after hir mete she raughte,⁴
And sikerly⁵ she was of greet disport,
And ful plesaunt, and amyable of port,
And peynèd hir⁶ to countrefetè cheere
Of Court, and to ben estatlich of manere,
And to ben holden digne of reverence;
But for to speken of hire conscience,
She was so charitable and so pitous,
She woldè wepe if that she saugh a mous
Kaught in a trappe, if it were deed or bledde.
Of smalè houndès hadde she, that she fedde
With rosted flessch, or mylk and wastel-breed;⁷
But soore wepte she if any of hem were deed,
Or if men smoot it with a yerdè⁸ smerte:
And al was conscience and tendre herte.

Hire nose tretys,⁹ hire eyen greye as glas,
Hir mouth ful smal, and ther to softe and reed,
But sikerly she hadde a fair forheed;
It was almost a spannè brood, I trowe,
For hardily she was nat undergrowe.
Ful fetys was hir cloke, as I was war;
Of smal coral aboute hire arm she bar
A peire of bedès gauded¹⁰ al with grene;
And ther-on heng a broch of gold ful schene,
On which ther was first write a crownèd A,
And after, Amor vincit omnia.

Another Nonnè with hire haddè she,
That was hire Chapeleynne, and Preestès thre.

A CLERK ther was of Oxenford also
That un-to logyk haddè longe ygo.
And leenè was his hors as is a rake,
And he nas nat right fat, I undertake,
But looked holwe, and ther to sobrelly;
Ful thredbare was his overeste courtepy,¹¹
For he hadde geten hym yet no benefice,
Ne was so worldly to have office;
For hym was levere have at his beddes heed
Twenty bookès, clad in blak or reed,
Of Aristotle and his philosophie,
Than robès riche, or fithèle,¹² or gay sautrie.¹³
But al be that he was a philosophe,
Yet haddè he but litel gold in cofre;

 And bisily gan for the soulès prey
 Of hem that gaf him wher with to scoleye,²
 Of studie took he moost cure and moost heede,
 Noght o word spak he moorè than was neede,
 And that was seyð in forme and reverence
 And short and quyk and ful of hy sentence.
 Sownyng in ³ moral vertu was his speche
 And gladly wolde he lerne, and gladly teche.

A SERGEANT OF THE LAWE, war⁴ and wys,
 That often haddè ben at the Parvyys,⁵
 Ther was also ful riche of excellence.
 Discreet he was and of greet reverence;
 He semèd swich, hise wordès weren so wise.
 Justice he was ful often in Assise,
 By patente, and by pleyn commissioun,
 For his science and for his heigh renoun.
 Of fees and robès hadde he many oon;
 So gret a purchasour⁶ was nowher noon.
 Al was fee symple to hym in effect,
 His purchasyng myghte nat ben infect.⁷
 Nowher so bisy a man as he ther nas,⁸
 And yet he semèd bisier than he was.

A good man was ther of religioun,
 And was a POVRÈ PERSON⁹ OF A TOUN;
 But riche he was of hooly thoght and werk;
 He was also a lernèd man, a clerk
 That Cristès Gospel trewely wolde preche,
 Hise parisshe devoutly wolde he teche.
 Benygne he was, and wonder diligent,
 And in adversitee ful pacient;
 And such he was y-prevèd oftè sithes.¹⁰
 Ful looth were hym to cursè for his thythes,
 But rather wolde he geven,¹¹ out of doute,
 Un-to his povrè parisshe aboute,
 Of his offryng and eek of his substaunce.
 He koude in litel thyng have suffisaunce.
 Wyd was his parisshe, and houses fer a-sonder,
 But he ne laftè¹² nat for reyn ne thonder,
 In siknesse nor in meschief to visite
 The ferreste¹³ in his parisshe muche and lite¹⁴
 Up-on his feet, and in his hand a staf.
 This noble ensample to his sheepe he gaf,¹⁵
 That firste he wroghte, and afterward he taughte.

A bettre preest, I trowe, that nowher noon is
 He waiteth after no pompe and reverence,
 Ne makèd him a spiced conscience,

But Cristès loore, and his Apostles twelve,
 He taughte, but first he folwed it hym selve.

Now have I toold you shortly in a clause
 The staat, tharray, the nombre, and eek the cause
 Why that assembled was this compaignye
 In Southwerk at this gentil hostelrye,
 That highte the Tabard, fastè by the Belle.
 But now is tymè to yow for to telle
 How that we baren us that ilke¹ nyght,
 Whan we were in that hostelrye alyght,
 And after wol I telle of our viage,
 And al the remenaunt of oure pilgrimage.

But first, I pray yow of your curteisye,
 That ye narete it nat my vileinye,²
 Thogh that I pleynly speke in this mateere,
 To tellè yow hir wordès and hir cheere;
 Ne thogh I speke hir wordès proprely.
 For this ye knowen al so wel as I,
 Whoso shal telle a tale after a man,
 He moote reherce, as ny as evere he kan
 Everich a word, if it be in his charge,
 Al speke he never so rudeliche³ or large;⁴
 Or ellis he moot telle his tale untrewe,
 Or feynè thyng, or fyndè wordès newe.
 He may nat spare al thogh he were his brother,
 He moot as wel seye o word as another.
 Crist spak hym self ful brode in hooly writ
 And wel ye woot no vileinye is it.
 Eek Plato seith, who so can hym rede,
 "The wordès moote be cosyn⁵ to the dede."

Also I prey yow to forgeve it me,
 Al have I nat set folk in hir degree
 Heere in this tale, as that they scholdè stonde;
 My wit is short, ye may wel understonde.

Greet chierè made oure host us everichon,
 And to the soper sette he us anon
 And servèd us with vitaille at the beste.
 Strong was the wyn and wel to drynke us leste.⁶

A semely man OURÈ HOOST he was withalle
 For to han been a marchal in an halle;
 A largè man he was with eyen stepe,
 A fairer burgeys was ther noon in Chepe:
 Boold of his speche, and wys and wel ytaught,
 And of manhod hym lakkedè right naught.
 Eek therto he was right a myrie⁷ man,
 And after soper pleyen he bygan,
 And spak of myrthè amonges othere thinges,
 Whan that we haddè maad our rekenynges;
 And seyðè thus: "Lo, lordynges, trewely
 Ye ben to me right welcome hertely:
 For by my trouthe, if that I shal nat lye,
 I saugh nat this yeer so myrie a compaignye

And I wol erly shapè⁹ me therfore."

This thyng was graunted, and oure othès swore
With ful glad herte, and preyden hym also
That he would vouchè-sauf for to do so,
And that he woldè been oure governour,
And of oure talès juge and reportour,
And sette a soper at a certeyn pris
And we wol reulèd been¹⁰ at his devys
In heigh and lough; and thus by oon assent
We been accorded to his juggèment.
And ther-up-on the wyn was fet anon;
We dronken and to restè wente echon
With-outen any lenger taryngè.

The fittest time for festal cheer:
Even, heathen yet, the savage Dane
At Iol more deep the mead did drain;
High on the beach his galleys drew,
And feasted all his pirate crew;
Then in his low and pine-built hall,
Where shields and axes decked the wall,
They gorged upon the half-dressed steer;
Caroused in seas of sable beer;
While round, in brutal jest, were thrown
The half-gnawed rib and marrow-bone;
Or listened all, in grim delight,
While scalds yelled out the joys of fight.
Then forth in frenzy would they hie,
While wildly loose their red locks fly;
And, dancing round the blazing pile,
They make such barbarous mirth the while,
As best might to the mind recall
The boisterous joys of Odin's hall.

And well our Christian sires of old
Loved when the year its course had rolled
And brought blithe Christmas back again
With all his hospitable train.
Domestic and religious rite
Gave honor to the holy night:
On Christmas eve the bells were rung;
On Christmas eve the mass was sung;
That only night, in all the year,
Saw the stole priest the chalice rear.
The damsel donned her kirtle sheen;
The hall was dressed with holly green;
Forth to the wood did merry-men go,
To gather in the mistletoe.
Then opened wide the baron's hall
To vassal, tenant, serf, and all;
Power laid his rod of rule aside,
And Ceremony doffed her pride.
The heir, with roses in his shoes,
That night might village partner choose;
The lord, underogating, share
The vulgar game of "post and pair."
All hailed, with uncontrolled delight,
And general voice, the happy night
That to the cottage, as the crown,
Brought tidings of salvation down.

The fire, with well-dried logs supplied,
Went roaring up the chimney wide;
The huge hall-table's oaken face,
Scrubbed till it shone, the day to grace,
Bore then upon its massive board
No mark to part the squire and lord.
Then was brought in the lusty brawn,
By old blue-coated serving-man;
Then the grim boar's-head frowned on high,
Crested with bays and rosemary.
Well can the green-garbed ranger tell
How, when, and where the monster fell;

What dogs before his death he tore,
 And all the baiting of the boar.
 The wassail round, in good brown bowls,
 Garnished with ribbons, blithely trowls.
 There the huge sirloin reeked ; hard by
 Plum-porridge stood, and Christmas pie ;
 Nor failed old Scotland to produce,
 At such high-tide, her savory goose.
 Then came the merry maskers in,
 And carols roared with blithesome din ;
 If unmelodious was the song,
 It was a hearty note, and strong.
 Who lists may in their mumming see
 Traces of ancient mystery ;
 White skirts supplied the masquerade,
 And smutted cheeks the visors made :
 But, O, what maskers richly dight
 Can boast of bosoms half so light !
 England was merry England, when Old Christmas brought his sports again.
 'T was Christmas broached the mightiest ale ;
 'T was Christmas told the merriest tale ;
 A Christmas gambol oft could cheer
 The poor man's heart through half the year.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

O, THE PLEASANT DAYS OF OLD !

O, THE pleasant days of old, which so often people
 praise !
 True, they wanted all the luxuries that grace our modern days :
 Bare floors were strewed with rushes, the walls
 let in the cold ;
 O, how they must have shivered in those pleasant days of old !

O, those ancient lords of old, how magnificent they were !
 They threw down and imprisoned kings, — to thwart them who might dare ?
 They ruled their serfs right sternly ; they took from Jews their gold, —
 Above both law and equity were those great lords of old !

O, the gallant knights of old, for their valor so renowned !
 With sword and lance and armor strong they scoured the country round ;
 And whenever aught to tempt them they met by wood or wold,
 By right of sword they seized the prize, — those gallant knights of old !

O, the gentle dames of old ! who, quite free from fear or pain,
 Could gaze on joust and tournament, and see their champions slain ;
 They lived on good beefsteaks and ale, which made them strong and bold, —
 O, more like men than women were those gentle dames of old !

O, those mighty towers of old ! with their turrets,
 moat, and keep,
 Their battlements and bastions, their dungeons
 dark and deep.
 Full many a baron held his court within the castle hold ;
 And many a captive languished there, in those strong towers of old.

O, the troubadours of old ! with the gentle min-strelsie
 Of hope and joy, or deep despair, whiche'er their lot might be ;
 For years they served their lady-loves ere they their passions told, —
 O, wondrous patience must have had those trou-badours of old !

O, those blessed times of old, with their chivalry and state !
 I love to read their chronicles, which such brave deeds relate ;
 I love to sing their ancient rhymes, to hear their legends told, —
 But, Heaven be thanked ! I live not in those blessed times of old !

FRANCES BROWN.

THE TRUMPETS OF DOOLKARNEIN.

[In Eastern history are two Iskanders, or Alexanders, who are sometimes confounded, and both of whom are called Doolkarnein, or the Two-Horned, in allusion to their subjugation of East and West, horns being an Oriental symbol of power.]

One of these heroes is Alexander of Macedon ; the other a conqueror of more ancient times, who built the marvellous series of ramparts on Mount Caucasus, known in fable as the wall of Gog and Magog, that is to say, of the people of the North. It reached from the Euxine Sea to the Caspian, where its flanks originated the subsequent appellation of the Caspian Gates.]

With awful walls, far glooming, that possessed
 The passes 'twixt the snow-fed Caspian foun-
 tains,
 Doolkarnein, the dread lord of East and West,
 Shut up the northern nations in their mountains ;
 And upon platforms where the oak-trees grew,
 Trumpets he set, huge beyond dreams of wonder,

Craftily purposed, when his arms withdrew,
To make him thought still housed there, like
the thunder:

And it so fell; for when the winds blew right,
They woke these trumpets to their calls of night.

Unseen, but heard, their calls the trumpets blew,
Ringing the granite rocks, their only bearers,
Till the long fear into religion grew,
And nevermore those heights had human darters.

Dreadful Doolkarnein was an earthly god;
His walls but shadowed forth his mightier
frowning;

Armies of giants at his bidding trod
From realm to realm, king after king dis-crowning.

When thunder spoke, or when the earthquake stirred,
Then, muttering in accord, his host was heard.

But when the winters marred the mountain shelves,

And softer changes came with vernal mornings,
Something had touched the trumpets' lofty selves,
And less and less rang forth their sovereign warnings;

Fewer and feebler; as when silence spreads
In plague-struck tents, where haughty chiefs, left dying,

Fail by degrees upon their angry beds,
Till, one by one, ceases the last stern sighing.
One by one, thus, their breath the trumpets drew,
Till now no more the imperious music blew.

Is he then dead? Can great Doolkarnein die?

Or can his endless hosts elsewhere be needed?

Were the great breaths that blew his minstrelsy
Phantoms, that faded as himself receded?

Or is he angered? Surely he still comes;

This silence ushers the dread visitation;

Sudden will burst the torrent of his drums,

And then will follow bloody desolation.

So did fear dream; though now, with not a sound
To scare good hope, summer had twice crept
round.

Then gathered in a band, with lifted eyes,
The neighbors, and those silent heights ascended.

Giant, nor aught blasting their bold emprise,
They met, though twice they halted, breath suspended:

Once, at a coming like a god's in rage

With thunderous leaps, — but 't was the piled snow, falling;

And once, when in the woods an oak, for age,
Fell dead, the silence with its groan appalling.

At last they came where still, in dread array,
As though they still might speak, the trumpets
lay.

Unhurt they lay, like caverns above ground,
The rifted rocks, for hands, about them cling-
ing,

Their tubes as straight, their mighty mouths as round

And firm as when the rocks were first set ringing.

Fresh from their unimaginable mould

They might have seemed, save that the storms had stained them

With a rich rust, that now, with gloomy gold
In the bright sunshine, beautifully ingrained them.

Breathless the gazers looked, nigh faint for awe,
Then leaped, then laughed. What was it now they saw?

Myriads of birds. Myriads of birds, that filled
The trumpets all with nests and nestling voices!

The great, huge, stormy music had been stilled
By the soft needs that nursed those small, sweet noises!

O thou Doolkarnein, where is now thy wall?

Where now thy voice divine and all thy forces?

Great was thy cunning, but its wit was small Compared with nature's least and gentlest courses.

Fears and false creeds may fright the realms awhile;

But heaven and earth abide their time, and smile.

LEIGH HUNT.

MAHMOUD.

THERE came a man, making his hasty moan

Before the Sultan Mahmoud on his throne,

And crying out, "My sorrow is my right,

And I will see the Sultan, and to-night."

"Sorrow," said Mahmoud, "is a reverend thing:

I recognize its right, as king with king;

Speak on." "A fiend has got into my house,"

Exclaimed the staring man, "and tortures us, —

One of thine officers; he comes, the abhorred,

And takes possession of my house, my board,

My bed; — I have two daughters and a wife,

And the wild villain comes and makes me mad with life."

"Is he there now?" said Mahmoud. "No; he left

The house when I did, of my wits bereft,

And laughed me down the street, because I vowed

I'd bring the prince himself to lay him in his shroud.

I'm mad with want, I'm mad with misery,
And, O thou Sultan Mahmoud, God cries out for
thee !”

The Sultan comforted the man, and said,
“Go home, and I will send thee wine and bread”
(For he was poor) “and other comforts. Go ;
And should the wretch return, let Sultan Mahmoud know.”

In three days' time, with haggard eyes and beard,
And shaken voice, the suitor reappeared,
And said, “He's come.” Mahmoud said not a word,

But rose and took four slaves, each with a sword,
And went with the vexed man. They reach the place,

And hear a voice, and see a woman's face,
That to the window fluttered in affright :
“Go in,” said Mahmoud, “and put out the light ;
But tell the females first to leave the room ;
And when the drunkard follows them, we come.”

The man went in. There was a cry, and hark !
A table falls, the window is struck dark :
Forth rush the breathless women, and behind
With curses comes the fiend in desperate mind.
In vain : the sabres soon cut short the strife,
And chop the shrieking wretch, and drink his bloody life.

“Now light the light,” the Sultan cried aloud :
’T was done : he took it in his hand and bowed
Over the corpse, and looked upon the face ;
Then turned and knelt, and to the throne of grace
Put up a prayer, and from his lips there crept
Some gentle words of pleasure, and he wept.
In reverent silence the beholders wait,
Then bring him at his call both wine and meat ;
And when he had refreshed his noble heart,
He bade his host be blest, and rose up to depart.

The man amazed, all mildness now and tears,
Fell at the Sultan's feet with many prayers,
And begged him to vouchsafe to tell his slave
The reason first of that command he gave
About the light ; then, when he saw the face,
Why he knelt down ; and lastly, how it was
That fare so poor as his detained him in the place.

The Sultan said, with a benignant eye,
“Since first I saw thee come, and heard thy cry,
I could not rid me of a dread, that one
By whom such daring villanies were done,
Must be some lord of mine, — ay, e'en perhaps a son.”

For this I had the light put out : but when I saw the face, and found a stranger slain,

I knelt and thanked the sovereign Arbiter,
Whose work I had performed through pain and
fear ;

And then I rose and was refreshed with food,
The first time since thy voice had marred my solitude.”

LEIGH HUNT.

THE LEPER.

“Room for the leper ! room !” And as he came
The cry passed on, — “Room for the leper ! room !”

And aside they stood,
Matron, and child, and pitiless manhood, — all
Who met him on his way, — and let him pass.
And onward through the open gate he came
A leper with the ashes on his brow,
Sackcloth about his loins, and on his lip
A covering, stepping painfully and slow,
And with a difficult utterance, like one
Whose heart is with an iron nerve put down,
Crying, “Unclean ! unclean !”

Day was breaking
When at the altar of the temple stood
The holy priest of God. The incense-lamp
Burned with a struggling light, and a low chant
Swelled through the hollow arches of the roof,
Like an articulate wail, and there, alone,
Wasted to ghastly thinness, Helon knelt.
The echoes of the melancholy strain
Died in the distant aisles, and he rose up, Struggling with weakness, and bowed down his head

Unto the sprinkled ashes, and put off
His costly raiment for the leper's garb,
And with the sackcloth round him, and his lip
Hid in a loathsome covering, stood still,
Waiting to hear his doom : —

“Depart ! depart, O child
Of Israel, from the temple of thy God,
For he has smote thee with his chastening rod,
And to the desert wild
From all thou lov'st away thy feet must flee,
That from thy plague his people may be free.

“Depart ! and come not near
The busy mart, the crowded city, more ;
Nor set thy foot a human threshold o'er ;
And stay thou not to hear
Voices that call thee in the way ; and fly
From all who in the wilderness pass by.

“Wet not thy burning lip
In streams that to a human dwelling glide ;
Nor rest thee where the covert fountains hide,
Nor kneel thee down to dip

The water where the pilgrim bends to drink,
By desert well, or river's grassy brink.

"And pass not thou between
The weary traveller and the cooling breeze,
And lie not down to sleep beneath the trees
Where human tracks are seen ;
Nor milk the goat that browseth on the plain,
Nor pluck the standing corn or yellow grain.

"And now depart ! and when
Thy heart is heavy, and thine eyes are dim,
Lift up thy prayer beseechingly to Him
Who, from the tribes of men,
Selected thee to feel his chastening rod.
Depart ! O leper ! and forget not God !"

And he went forth — alone ! not one of all
The many whom he loved, nor she whose name
Was woven in the fibres of the heart
Breaking within him now, to come and speak
Comfort unto him. Yea, he went his way,
Sick and heart-broken and alone, — to die !
For God had cursed the leper !

It was noon,
And Helon knelt beside a stagnant pool
In the lone wilderness, and bathed his brow,
Hot with the burning leprosy, and touched
The loathsome water to his fevered lips,
Praying that he might be so blest, — to die !
Footsteps approached, and with no strength to flee,

He drew the covering closer on his lip,
Crying, "Unclean ! unclean !" and in the folds
Of the coarse sackcloth shrouding up his face,
He fell upon the earth till they should pass.
Nearer the stranger came, and, bending o'er
The leper's prostrate form, pronounced his name.
—"Helon !" — the voice was like the master-tone

Of a rich instrument, — most strangely sweet ;
And the dull pulses of disease awoke,
And for a moment beat beneath the hot
And leprous scales with a restoring thrill.
"Helon ! arise !" and he forgot his curse,
And rose and stood before him.

Love and awe
Mingled in the regard of Helon's eye
As he beheld the stranger. He was not
In costly raiment clad, nor on his brow
The symbol of a princely lineage wore ;
No followers at his back, nor in his hand
Buckler or sword or spear, — yet in his mien
Command sat throned serene, and if he smiled,
A kingly condescension graced his lips
The lion would have crouched to in his lair.
His garb was simple, and his sandals worn ;

His stature modelled with a perfect grace ;
His countenance, the impress of a God,
Touched with the open innocence of a child ;
His eye was blue and calm, as is the sky
In the serenest noon ; his hair unshorn
Fell to his shoulders ; and his curling beard
The fulness of perfected manhood bore.
He looked on Helon earnestly awhile,
As if his heart was moved, and, stooping down,
He took a little water in his hand
And laid it on his brow, and said, "Be clean !"
And lo ! the scales fell from him, and his blood
Coursed with delicious coolness through his veins,
And his dry palms grew moist, and on his brow
The dewy softness of an infant's stole.
His leprosy was cleansed, and he fell down
Prostrate at Jesus' feet, and worshipped him.

NATHANIEL PARKER WILLIS.

GODIVA.

Nor only we, the latest seed of Time,
New men, that in the flying of a wheel
Cry down the past ; not only we, that prate
Of rights and wrongs, have loved the people well,
And loathed to see them overtaxed ; but she Did more, and underwent, and overcame,
The woman of a thousand summers back,
Godiva, wife to that grim Earl who ruled
In Coventry : for when he laid a tax
Upon his town, and all the mothers brought Their children, clamoring, "If we pay, we starve !"

She sought her lord, and found him, where he strode

About the hall, among his dogs, alone,
His beard a foot before him, and his hair
A yard behind. She told him of their tears,
And prayed him, "If they pay this tax, they starve."

Whereat he stared, replying, half amazed,
"You would not let your little finger ache
For such as these ?" "But I would die," said she.
He laughed, and swore by Peter and by Paul ;
Then filleted at the diamond in her ear ;
"O, ay, ay, ay, you talk !" "Alas !" she said,
"But prove me what it is I would not do."
And from a heart as rough as Esau's hand,
He answered, "Ride you naked through the town,
And I repeal it ;" and nodding, as in scorn,
He parted, with great strides among his dogs.

So left alone, the passions of her mind,
As winds from all the compass shift and blow,
Made war upon each other for an hour,
Till pity won. She sent a herald forth,

And bade him cry, with sound of trumpet, all
The hard condition ; but that she would loose

The people : therefore, as they loved her well,
From then till noon no foot should pace the street,
No eye look down, she passing ; but that all
Should keep within, door shut and window barred.

Then fled she to her inmost bower, and there
Unclasped the wedded eagles of her belt,
The grim Earl's gift ; but ever at a breath
She lingered, looking like a summer moon
Half dipt in cloud : anon she shook her head,
And showered the rippled ringlets to her knee ;
Unclad herself in haste ; adown the stair
Stole on ; and, like a creeping sunbeam, slid
From pillar unto pillar, until she reached
The gateway ; there she found her palfrey trapt
In purple blazoned with armorial gold.

Then she rode forth, clothed on with chastity :
The deep air listened round her as she rode,
And all the low wind hardly breathed for fear.
The little wide-mouthed heads upon the spout
Had cunning eyes to see : the barking cur
Made her cheek flame : her palfrey's footfall shot
Light horrors through her pulses : the blind walls
Were full of chinks and holes ; and overhead
Fantastic gables, crowding, stared : but she
Not less through all bore up, till, last, she saw
The white-flowered elder-thicket from the field
Gleam through the Gothic archways in the wall.

Then she rode back, clothed on with chastity :
And one low churl, compact of thankless earth,
The fatal byword of all years to come,
Boring a little auger-hole in fear,
Peeped — but his eyes, before they had their will,
Were shrivelled into darkness in his head,
And dropt before him. So the Powers, who wait
On noble deeds, cancelled a sense misused ;
And she, that knew not, passed : and all at once,
With twelve great shocks of sound, the shameless
noon

Was clashed and hammered from a hundred towers,
One after one : but even then she gained
Her bower ; whence reissuing, robed and crowned,
To meet her lord, she took the tax away,
And built herself an everlasting name.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE PRISONER OF CHILLON.

ETERNAL spirit of the chainless mind !
Brightest in dungeons, Liberty ! thou art,
For there thy habitation is the heart, —
The heart which love of thee alone can bind ;
And when thy sons to fetters are consigned, —
To fetters, and the damp vault's dayless gloom, —
Their country conquers with their martyrdom,
And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind.
Chillon ! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar, — for 't was trod,

Until his very steps have left a trace
Worn, as if thy cold pavement were a sod,
By Bonivard ! — May none those marks efface !
For they appeal from tyranny to God.

My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white

In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears :
My limbs are bowed, though not with toil,
But rusted with a vile repose,

For they have been a dungeon's spoil,
And mine has been the fate of those
To whom the goodly earth and air
Are banned, and barred, — forbidden fare ;
But this was for my father's faith
I suffered chains and courted death ;
That father perished at the stake
For tenets he would not forsake ;
And for the same his lineal race
In darkness found a dwelling-place ;
We were seven, — who now are one,

Six in youth, and one in age,
Finished as they had begun,
Proud of Persecution's rage ;
One in fire, and two in field,
Their belief with blood have sealed !
Dying as their father died,
For the God their foes denied ;
Three were in a dungeon cast,
Of whom this wreck is left the last.

There are seven pillars of Gothic mould
In Chillon's dungeons deep and old,
There are seven columns, massy and gray,
Dim with a dull imprisoned ray, —
A sunbeam which hath lost its way,
And through the crevice and the cleft
Of the thick wall is fallen and left,
Creeping o'er the floor so damp,
Like a marsh's meteor lamp, —
And in each pillar there is a ring,

And in each ring there is a chain ;
That iron is a cankering thing,

For in these limbs its teeth remain
With marks that will not wear away,
Till I have done with this new day,
Which now is painful to these eyes,
Which have not seen the sun to rise
For years, — I cannot count them o'er,
I lost their long and heavy score
When my last brother drooped and died,
And I lay living by his side.

They chained us each to a column stone,
And we were three, yet each alone ;
We could not move a single pace,

We could not see each other's face,
 But with that pale and livid light
 That made us strangers in our sight ;
 And thus together, yet apart,
 Fettered in hand, but pined in heart ;
 'T was still some solace, in the dearth
 Of the pure elements of earth,
 To hearken to each other's speech,
 And each turn comforter to each
 With some new hope, or legend old,
 Or song heroically bold ;
 But even these at length grew cold.
 Our voices took a dreary tone,
 An echo of the dungeon-stone,
 A grating sound, — not full and free
 As they of yore were wont to be ;
 It might be fancy, — but to me
 They never sounded like our own.

I was the eldest of the three,
 And to uphold and cheer the rest
 I ought to do — and did — my best,
 And each did well in his degree.
 The youngest, whom my father loved,
 Because our mother's brow was given
 To him, with eyes as blue as heaven, —
 For him my soul was sorely moved ;
 And truly might it be distressed
 To see such bird in such a nest ;
 For he was beautiful as day
 (When day was beautiful to me
 As to young eagles, being free), —
 A polar day, which will not see
 A sunset till its summer's gone,
 Its sleepless summer of long light,
 The snow-clad offspring of the sun ;
 And thus he was as pure and bright,
 And in his natural spirit gay,
 With tears for naught but others' ills,
 And then they flowed like mountain rills,
 Unless he could assuage the woe
 Which he abhorred to view below.

The other was as pure of mind,
 But formed to combat with his kind ;
 Strong in his frame, and of a mood
 Which 'gainst the world in war had stood,
 And perished in the foremost rank
 With joy ; — but not in chains to pine ;
 His spirit withered with their clank,
 I saw it silently decline, —
 And so perchance in sooth did mine ;
 But yet I forced it on to cheer
 Those relics of a home so dear.
 He was a hunter of the hills,
 Had followed there the deer and wolf ;
 To him this dungeon was a gulf
 And fettered feet the worst of ills.

Lake Lemán lies by Chillon's walls :
 A thousand feet in depth below
 Its massy waters meet and flow ;
 Thus much the fathom-line was sent
 From Chillon's snow-white battlement,
 Which round about the wave intralls ;
 A double dungeon wall and wave
 Have made, — and like a living grave.
 Below the surface of the lake
 The dark vault lies wherein we lay,
 We heard it ripple night and day ;
 Sounding o'er our heads it knocked ;
 And I have felt the winter's spray
 Wash through the bars when winds were high
 And wanton in the happy sky ;
 And then the very rock hath rocked,
 And I have felt it shake, unshocked,
 Because I could have smiled to see
 The death that would have set me free.

I said my nearer brother pined,
 I said his mighty heart declined,
 He loathed and put away his food ;
 It was not that 't was coarse and rude,
 For we were used to hunter's fare,
 And for the like had little care ;
 The milk drawn from the mountain goat
 Was changed for water from the moat.
 Our bread was such as captives' tears
 Have moistened many a thousand years,
 Since man first pent his fellow-men
 Like brutes within an iron den ;
 But what were these to us or him ?
 These wasted not his heart or limb ;
 My brother's soul was of that mould
 Which in a palace had grown cold,
 Had his free breathing been denied
 The range of the steep mountain's side ;
 But why delay the truth ? — he died.
 I saw, and could not hold his head,
 Nor reach his dying hand, — nor dead, —
 Though hard I strove, but strove in vain,
 To rend and gnash my bonds in twain.
 He died, — and they unlocked his chain,
 And scooped for him a shallow grave
 Even from the cold earth of our cave.
 I begged them, as a boon, to lay
 His corse in dust whereon the day
 Might shine, — it was a foolish thought,
 But then within my brain it wrought,
 That even in death his free-born breast
 In such a dungeon could not rest.
 I might have spared my idle prayer, —
 They coldly laughed, and laid him there.
 The flat and turfless earth above
 The being we so much did love ;
 His empty chain above it leant,
 Such murder's fitting monument !

But he, the favorite and the flower,
 Most cherished since his natal hour,
 His mother's image in fair face,
 The infant love of all his race,
 His martyred father's dearest thought,
 My latest care, for whom I sought
 To hoard my life, that his might be Less wretched now, and one day free ;
 He, too, who yet had held untired
 A spirit natural or inspired, —
 He, too, was struck, and day by day
 Was withered on the stalk away.
 O God ! it is a fearful thing
 To see the human soul take wing
 In any shape, in any mood : —
 I've seen it rushing forth in blood,
 I've seen it on the breaking ocean
 Strive with a swollen convulsive motion,
 I've seen the sick and ghastly bed
 Of Sin delirious with its dread :
 But these were horrors, — this was woe
 Unmixed with such, — but sure and slow :
 He faded, and so calm and meek,
 So softly worn, so sweetly weak,
 So tearless, yet so tender, — kind,
 And grieved for those he left behind ;
 With all the while a cheek whose bloom
 Was as a mockery of the tomb,
 Whose tints as gently sunk away
 As a departing rainbow's ray, —
 An eye of most transparent light,
 That almost made the dungeon bright,
 And not a word of murmur, — not
 A groan o'er his untimely lot, —
 A little talk of better days,
 A little hope my own to raise,
 For I was sunk in silence, — lost
 In this last loss, of all the most ;
 And then the sighs he would suppress
 Of fainting nature's feebleness,
 More slowly drawn, grew less and less :
 I listened, but I could not hear, —
 I called, for I was wild with fear ;
 I knew 't was hopeless, but my dread
 Would not be thus admonished ;
 I called, and thought I heard a sound, —
 I burst my chain with one strong bound,
 And rushed to him : — I found him not,
 I only stirred in this black spot,
 I only lived, — I only drew
 The accursed breath of dungeon-dew ;
 The last — the sole — the dearest link
 Between me and the eternal brink,
 Which bound me to my failing race,
 Was broken in this fatal place.
 One on the earth, and one beneath, —
 My brothers — both had ceased to breathe.

I took that hand which lay so still,
 Alas ! my own was full as chill ;
 I had not strength to stir or strive,
 But felt that I was still alive, —
 A frantic feeling when we know
 That what we love shall ne'er be so.

I know not why

I could not die,

I had no earthly hope — but faith,
 And that forbade a selfish death.

What next befell me then and there

I know not well — I never knew.

First came the loss of light and air,

And then of darkness too ;

I had no thought, no feeling — none :

Among the stones I stood a stone,

And was, scarce conscious what I wist,

As shrubless crags within the mist ;

For all was blank and bleak and gray ;

It was not night, — it was not day ;

It was not even the dungeon-light,

So hateful to my heavy sight ;

But vacancy absorbing space,

And fixedness, without a place :

There were no stars — no earth — no time —

No check — no change — no good — no crime ;

But silence, and a stirless breath

Which neither was of life nor death : —

A sea of stagnant idleness,

Blind, boundless, mute, and motionless.

A light broke in upon my brain, —

It was the carol of a bird ;

It ceased, and then it came again, —

The sweetest song ear ever heard,

And mine was thankful till my eyes

Ran over with the glad surprise,

And they that moment could not see

I was the mate of misery ;

But then by dull degrees came back

My senses to their wonted track,

I saw the dungeon walls and floor

Close slowly round me as before,

I saw the glimmer of the sun

Creeping as it before had done,

But through the crevice where it came

That bird was perched, as fond and tame

And tamer than upon the tree ;

A lovely bird, with azure wings,

And song that said a thousand things,

And seemed to say them all for me.

I never saw its like before,

I ne'er shall see its likeness more.

It seemed, like me, to want a mate,

But was not half so desolate,

And it was come to love me when

None lived to love me so again,
And cheering from my dungeon's brink,
Had brought me back to feel and think.
I know not if it late were free,

Or broke its cage to perch on mine,
But knowing well captivity,

Sweet bird ! I could not wish for thine !

Or if it were, in winged guise,

A visitant from Paradise :

For — Heaven forgive that thought ! the while

Which made me both to weep and smile —

I sometimes deemed that it might be

My brother's soul come down to me ;

But then at last away it flew,

And then 't was mortal, — well I knew,

For he would never thus have flown,

And left me twice so doubly lone, —

Lone — as the corse within its shroud,

Lone — as a solitary cloud,

A single cloud on a sunny day,

While all the rest of heaven is clear,

A frown upon the atmosphere,

That hath no business to appear

When skies are blue and earth is gay.

A kind of change came in my fate,

My keepers grew compassionate ;

I know not what had made them so,

They were inured to sights of woe,

But so it was : — my broken chain

With links unfastened did remain,

And it was liberty to stride

Along my cell from side to side,

And up and down, and then athwart,

And tread it over every part ;

And round the pillars one by one,

Returning where my walk begun,

Avoiding only, as I trod,

My brothers' graves without a sod ;

For if I thought with heedless tread

My step profaned their lowly bed,

My breath came gaspingly and thick,

And my crushed heart fell blind and sick.

I made a footing in the wall,

It was not therefrom to escape,

For I had buried one and all

Who loved me in a human shape :

And the whole earth would henceforth be

A wider prison unto me :

No child, — no sire, — no kin had I,

No partner in my misery ;

I thought of this and I was glad,

For thought of them had made me mad ;

But I was curious to ascend

To my barred windows, and to bend

Once more, upon the mountains high,

The quiet of a loving eye.

I saw them, — and they were the same,
They were not changed like me in frame ;

I saw their thousand years of snow

On high, — their wide long lake below,

And the blue Rhone in fullest flow ;

I heard the torrents leap and gush

O'er channelled rock and broken bush ;

I saw the white-walled distant town,

And whiter sails go skimming down ;

And then there was a little isle,

Which in my very face did smile,

The only one in view ;

A small green isle, it seemed no more,

Scarce broader than my dungeon floor,

But in it there were three tall trees,

And o'er it blew the mountain breeze,

And by it there were waters flowing,

And on it there were young flowers growing,

Of gentle breath and hue.

The fish swam by the castle wall,

And they seemed joyous each and all ;

The eagle rode the rising blast,

Methought he never flew so fast

As then to me he seemed to fly,

And then new tears came in my eye,

And I felt troubled, — and would fain

I had not left my recent chain ;

And when I did descend again,

The darkness of my dim abode

Fell on me as a heavy load ;

It was as in a new-dug grave

Closing o'er one we sought to save,

And yet my glance, too much oppressed,

Had almost need of such a rest.

It might be months, or years, or days,

I kept no count, — I took no note,

I had no hope my eyes to raise,

And clear them of their dreary mote ;

At last men came to set me free,

I asked not why and recked not where,

It was at length the same to me,

Fettered or fetterless to be,

I learned to love despair.

And thus when they appeared at last,

And all my bonds aside were cast,

These heavy walls to me had grown

A hermitage, and all my own !

And half I felt as they were come

To tear me from a second home ;

With spiders I had friendship made,

And watched them in their sullen trade,

Had seen the mice by moonlight play,

And why should I feel less than they ?

We were all inmates of one place,

And I, the monarch of each race,

Had power to kill, — yet, strange to tell !

In quiet we had learned to dwell, —

My very chains and I grew friends,
So much a long communion tends
To make us what we are : — even I
Regained my freedom with a sigh.

LORD BYRON.

DIVINA COMMEDIA.

OfT have I seen, at some cathedral door,
A laborer, pausing in the dust and heat,
Lay down his burden, and with reverent feet
Enter, and cross himself, and on the floor
Kneel to repeat his paternoster o'er ;
Far off the noises of the world retreat ;
The loud vociferations of the street
Become an undistinguishable roar.
So, as I enter here from day to day,
And leave my burden at this minster gate,
Kneeling in prayer, and not ashamed to pray,
The tumult of the time disconsolate
To inarticulate murmurs dies away,
While the eternal ages watch and wait.

How strange the sculptures that adorn these towers !

This crowd of statues, in whose folded sleeves
Birds build their nests ; while canopied with leaves

Parvis and portal bloom like trellised bowers,
And the vast minster seems a cross of flowers !
But fiends and dragons on the gargoyled eaves
Watch the dead Christ between the living thieves,

And, underneath, the traitor Judas lowers !
Ah ! from what agonies of heart and brain,
What exultations trampling on despair,
What tenderness, what tears, what hate of wrong,

What passionate outcry of a soul in pain,
Uprose this poem of the earth and air,
This mediæval miracle of song !

I enter, and I see thee in the gloom
Of the long aisles, O poet saturnine !
And strive to make my steps keep pace with thine.

The air is filled with some unknown perfume ;
The congregation of the dead make room
For thee to pass ; the votive tapers shine ;
Like rocks that haunt Ravenna's groves of pine
The hovering echoes fly from tomb to tomb.

From the confessionals I hear arise
Rehearsals of forgotten tragedies,
And lamentations from the crypts below ;
And then a voice celestial, that begins
With the pathetic words, "Although your sins
As scarlet be," and ends with "as the snow."

With snow-white veil and garments as of flame,
She stands before thee, who so long ago
Filled thy young heart with passion and the woe
From which thy song and all its splendors came ;
And while with stern rebuke she speaks thy name,
The ice about thy heart melts as the snow
On mountain heights, and in swift overflow
Comes gushing from thy lips in sobs of shame.
Thou makest full confession ; and a gleam,
As if the dawn on some dark forest cast,
Seems on thy lifted forehead to increase ;
Lethè and Eunoe — the remembered dream
And the forgotten sorrow — bring at last
That perfect pardon which is perfect peace.

I lift mine eyes, and all the windows blaze
With forms of saints and holy men who died,
Here martyred and hereafter glorified ;
And the great Rose upon its leaves displays
Christ's Triumph, and the angelic roundelays,
With splendor upon splendor multiplied ;
And Beatrice again at Dante's side
No more rebukes, but smiles her words of praise.
And then the organ sounds, and unseen choirs
Sing the old Latin hymns of peace and love,
And benedictions of the Holy Ghost ;
And the melodious bells among the spires
O'er all the house-tops and through heaven
above
Proclaim the elevation of the Host !

O star of morning and of liberty !
O bringer of the light, whose splendor shines
Above the darkness of the Apennines,
Forerunner of the day that is to be !
The voices of the city and the sea,
The voices of the mountains and the pines,
Repeat thy song, till the familiar lines
Are footpaths for the thought of Italy !
Thy fame is blown abroad from all the heights,
Through all the nations, and a sound is heard,
As of a mighty wind, and men devout,
Strangers of Rome, and the new proselytes,
In their own language hear thy wondrous word,
And many are amazed and many doubt.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE VILLAGE SCHOOLMISTRESS.

FROM "THE SCHOOLMISTRESS."

IN every village marked with little spire,
Embowered in trees, and hardly known to fame,
There dwells, in lowly shed and mean attire,
A matron old, whom we Schoolmistress name ;
Who boasts unruly brats with birch to tame :
They grieven sore, in piteous durance pent,
Awed by the power of this relentless dame ;

And ofttimes, on vagaries idly bent,
For unkempt hair, or task unconned, are sorely shent.

Her cap, far whiter than the driven snow,
Emblem right meet of decency does yield :
Her apron dyed in grain, as blue, I trowe,
As is the harebell that adorns the field :
And in her hand, for sceptre, she does wield
Tway birchen sprays ; with anxious fear entwined,
With dark distrust, and sad repentance filled ;
And steadfast hate, and sharp affliction joined,
And fury uncontrolled, and chastisement unkind.

A russet stole was o'er her shoulders thrown ;
A russet kirtle fenced the nipping air :
'T was simple russet, but it was her own ;
'T was her own country bred the flock so fair,
'T was her own labor did the fleece prepare ;
And, sooth to say, her pupils, ranged around,
Through pious awe, did term it passing rare ;
For they in gaping wonderment abound,
And think, no doubt, she been the greatest wight on ground.

Albeit ne flattery did corrupt her truth,
Ne pompous title did debauch her ear ;
Goody, good-woman, gossip, n'aunt forsooth,
Or dame, the sole additions she did hear ;
Yet these she challenged, these she held right
dear :
Ne would esteem him act as mought behove,
Who should not honor eld with these revere ;
For never title yet so mean could prove,
But there was eke a mind which did that title love.

In elbow-chair (like that of Scottish stem,
By the sharp tooth of cankering eld defaced,
In which, when he receives his diadem,
Our sovereign prince and liefest liege is placed)
The matron sat ; and some with rank she graced,
(The source of children's and of courtiers' pride !)
Redressed affronts, — for vile affronts there
passed ;
And warned them not the fretful to deride,
But love each other dear, whatever them betide.

Right well she knew each temper to descry,
To thwart the proud, and the submiss to raise ;
Some with vile copper-prize exalt on high,
And some entice with pittance small of praise ;
And other some with baleful sprig she 'frays :
Even absent, she the reins of power doth hold,
While with quaint arts the giddy crowd she sways ;
Forewarned, if little bird their pranks behold,
'T will whisper in her ear, and all the scene unfold.

Lo ! now with state she utters her command ;
Eftsoons the urchins to their tasks repair,
Their books of stature small they take in hand,
Which with pellucid horn secured are,
To save from finger wet the letters fair :
The work so gay, that on their back is seen,
St. George's high achievements does declare ;
On which thilk wight that has y-gazing been,
Kens the forthcoming rod, — unpleasing sight, I ween !

But now Dan Phœbus gains the middle sky,
And Liberty unbars her prison door ;
And like a rushing torrent out they fly ;
And now the grassy cirque han covered o'er
With boisterous revel rout and wild uproar ;
A thousand ways in wanton rings they run.
Heaven shield their short-lived pastimes, I implore ;
For well may freedom erst so dearly won
Appear to British elf more gladsome than the sun.

WILLIAM SHENSTONE.

THE JOLLY OLD PEDAGOGUE.

'T was a jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
Tall and slender, and sallow and dry ;
His form was bent and his gait was slow,
His long thin hair was as white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye ;
And he sang every night as he went to bed,
" Let us be happy down here below ;
The living should live, though the dead be dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He taught his scholars the rule of three,
Writing, and reading, and history too ;
He took the little ones up on his knee,
For a kind old heart in his breast had he,
And the wants of the littlest child he knew :
" Learn while you 're young," he often said,
" There 's much to enjoy down here below ;
Life for the living and rest for the dead !"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

With the stupidest boys he was kind and cool,
Speaking only in gentlest tones ;
The rod was hardly known in his school, —
Whipping, to him, was a barbarous rule,
And too hard work for his poor old bones ;
" Besides, it is painful," he sometimes said ;
" We should make life pleasant down here
below,
The living need charity more than the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He lived in the house by the hawthorn lane,
 With roses and woodbine over the door ;
 His rooms were quiet and neat and plain,
 But a spirit of comfort there held reign,
 And made him forget he was old and poor ;
 "I need so little," he often said ;
 "And my friends and relatives here below
 Won't litigate over me when I am dead,"
 Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

But the pleasantest times that he had, of all,
 Were the sociable hours he used to pass,
 With his chair tipped back to a neighbor's wall,
 Making an unceremonious call,
 Over a pipe and friendly glass :
 This was the finest pleasure, he said,
 Of the many he tasted here below ;
 "Who has no cronies had better be dead,"
 Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

Then the jolly old pedagogue's wrinkled face
 Melted all over in sunshiny smiles ;
 He stirred his glass with an old-school grace,
 Chuckled, and sipped, and prattled apace,
 Till the house grew merry, from cellar to tiles.
 "I'm a pretty old man," he gently said,
 "I have lingered a long while here below ;
 But my heart is fresh, if my youth is fled,"
 Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He smoked his pipe in the balmy air
 Every night when the sun went down,
 While the soft wind played in his silvery hair,
 Leaving his tenderest kisses there,
 On the jolly old pedagogue's jolly old crown ;
 And feeling the kisses, he smiled, and said,
 "T was a glorious world, down here below ;
 "Why wait for happiness till we are dead ?"
 Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He sat at his door, one midsummer night,
 After the sun had sunk in the west,
 And the lingering beams of golden light
 Made his kindly old face look warm and bright,
 While the odorous night-wind whispered,
 "Rest !"

Gently, gently, he bowed his head, —
 There were angels waiting for him, I know ;
 He was sure of happiness, living or dead, —
 This jolly old pedagogue, long ago !

GEORGE ARNOLD.

THE SETTLER.

His echoing axe the settler swung
 Amid the sea-like solitude,
 And, rushing, thundering, down were flung
 The Titans of the wood ;

Loud shrieked the eagle, as he dashed
 From out his mossy nest, which crashed
 With its supporting bough,
 And the first sunlight, leaping, flashed
 On the wolf's haunt below.

Rude was the garb and strong the frame
 Of him who plied his ceaseless toil :
 To form that garb the wildwood game
 Contributed their spoil ;
 The soul that warmed that frame disdained
 The tinsel, gaud, and glare that reigned
 Where men their crowds collect ;
 The simple fur, untrimmed, unstained,
 This forest-tamer decked.

The paths which wound mid gorgeous trees,
 The stream whose bright lips kissed their
 flowers,

The winds that swelled their harmonies
 Through those sun-hiding bowers,
 The temple vast, the green arcade,
 The nestling vale, the grassy glade,
 Dark cave, and swampy lair ;
 These scenes and sounds majestic made
 His world, his pleasures, there.

His roof adorned a pleasant spot ;
 Mid the black logs green glowed the grain,
 And herbs and plants the woods knew not
 Throve in the sun and rain.
 The smoke-wreath curling o'er the dell,
 The low, the bleat, the tinkling bell,
 All made a landscape strange,
 Which was the living chronicle
 Of deeds that wrought the change.

The violet sprung at spring's first tinge,
 The rose of summer spread its glow,
 The maize hung out its autumn fringe,
 Rude winter brought his snow ;
 And still the lone one labored there,
 His shout and whistle broke the air,
 As cheerily he plied
 His garden-spade, or drove his share
 Along the hillock's side.

He marked the fire-storm's blazing flood
 Roaring and crackling on its path,
 And scorching earth, and melting wood,
 Beneath its greedy wrath ;
 He marked the rapid whirlwind shoot,
 Trampling the pine-tree with its foot,
 And darkening thick the day
 With streaming bough and severed raft,
 Hurling whizzing on its way.

His gaunt hound yelled, his rifle flashed,
 The grim bear hushed his savage growl ;
 In blood and foam the panther gnashed
 His fangs, with dying howl ;
 The fleet deer ceased its flying bound,
 Its snarling wolf-foe bit the ground,
 And, with its moaning cry,
 The beaver sank beneath the wound
 Its pond-built Venice by.

Humble the lot, yet his the race,
 When Liberty sent forth her cry,
 Who thronged in conflict's deadliest place,
 To fight, — to bleed, — to die !
 Who cumbered Bunker's height of red,
 By hope through weary years were led,
 And witnessed Yorktown's sun
 Blaze on a nation's banner spread,
 A nation's freedom won.

ALFRED B. STREET.

THE CLOSING SCENE.

WITHIN the sober realm of leafless trees,
 The russet year inhaled the dreamy air ;
 Like some tanned reaper, in his hour of ease,
 When all the fields are lying brown and bare.

The gray barns looking from their hazy hills,
 O'er the dun waters widening in the vales,
 Sent down the air a greeting to the mills
 On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed and all sounds subdued,
 The hills seemed further and the stream sang
 low,
 As in a dream the distant woodman hewed
 His winter log with many a muffled blow.

The embattled forests, erewhile armed with gold,
 Their banners bright with every martial hue,
 Now stood like some sad, beaten host of old,
 Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

On slumb'rous wings the vulture held his flight ;
 The dove scarce heard its sighing mate's complaint ;
 And, like a star slow drowning in the light,
 The village church-vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinel-cock upon the hillside crew, —
 Crew thrice, — and all was stiller than before ;
 Silent, till some replying warden blew
 His alien horn, and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay, within the elm's tall crest,
 Made garrulous trouble round her unfledged
 young ;
 And where the oriole hung her swaying nest,
 By every light wind like a censer swung ; —

Where sang the noisy martens of the eaves,
 The busy swallows circling ever near, —
 Foreboding, as the rustic mind believes,
 An early harvest and a plenteous year ; —

Where every bird which charmed the vernal feast Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn,
 To warn the reaper of the rosy east : —
 All now was sunless, empty, and forlorn.

Alone from out the stubble piped the quail,
 And croaked the crow through all the dreamy gloom ;
 Alone the pheasant, drumming in the vale,
 Made echo to the distant cottage-loom.

There was no bud, no bloom upon the bowers ;
 The spiders moved their thin shrouds night by
 night,
 The thistle-down, the only ghost of flowers,
 Sailed slowly by, — passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this — in this most cheerless air,
 And where the woodbine shed upon the porch
 Its crimson leaves, as if the Year stood there
 Firing the floor with his inverted torch, —

Amid all this, the centre of the scene,
 The white-haired matron with monotonous
 tread
 Plied the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien
 Sat, like a fate, and watched the flying thread.

She had known Sorrow, — he had walked with
 her,
 Oft supped, and broke the bitter ashen crust ;
 And in the dead leaves still she heard the stir
 Of his black mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer
 bloom,
 Her country summoned and she gave her all ;
 And twice War bowed to her his sable plume, —
 Re-gave the swords to rust upon the wall.

Re-gave the swords, but not the hand that drew
 And struck for Liberty the dying blow ;
 Nor him who, to his sire and country true,
 Fell mid the ranks of the invading foe.

Long, but not loud, the droning wheel went on,
Like the low murmur of a hive at noon ;
Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone
Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous
tune.

At last the thread was snapped ; her head was bowed ;
Life dropt the distaff through his hands serene ;
And loving neighbors smoothed her careful
shroud,
While Death and Winter closed the autumn
scene.

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

SEVEN AGES OF MAN.

FROM "AS YOU LIKE IT," ACT II. SC. 7.

ALL the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players :
They have their exits and their entrances ;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His Acts being seven ages. At first the Infant,
Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.
Then the whining School-boy, with his satchel
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school. And then the Lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a Soldier,
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard ;
Jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel,
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the Justice,
In fair round belly with good capon lined,
With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut,
Full of wise saws and modern instances, —
And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slippered Pantaloon,
With spectacles on nose, and pouch on side ;
His youthful hose, well saved, a world too wide
For his shrunk shank ; and his big manly voice,
Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness, and mere oblivion, —
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

SHAKESPEARE.

GIRLHOOD.

AN exquisite incompleteness, blossom fore-
shadowing fruit ;
A sketch faint in its beauty, with promise of future worth ;

A plant with some leaves unfolded, and the rest
asleep at its root,
To deck with their future sweetness the fairest thing on the earth.

Womanhood, wifehood, motherhood — each a possible thing,
Dimly seen through the silence that lies between then and now ;
Something of each and all has woven a magic
ring,
Linking the three together in glory on girl-hood's brow.

ANONYMOUS.

SONG.

How near to good is what is fair,
Which we no sooner see,
But with the lines and outward air
Our senses taken be.
We wish to see it still, and prove
What ways we may deserve ;
We court, we praise, we more than love,
We are not grieved to serve.

BEN JONSON.

ADAM AND EVE.

FROM "PARADISE LOST," BOOK IV.

Two of far nobler shape, erect and tall,
Godlike erect, with native honor clad
In naked majesty, seemed lords of all :
And worthy seemed ; for in their looks divine
The image of their glorious Maker shone,
Truth, wisdom, sanctitude severe and pure,
(Severe, but in true filial freedom placed,) Whence true authority in men ; though both
Not equal, as their sex not equal seemed ;
For contemplation he and valor formed ;
For softness she and sweet attractive grace ;
He for God only, she for God in him :
His fair large front and eye sublime declared
Absolute rule ; and hyacinthine locks
Round from his parted forelock manly hung
Clustering, but not beneath his shoulders broad ;
She, as a veil, down to the slender waist
Her unadorned golden tresses wore
Dishevelled, but in wanton ringlets waved,
As the vine curls her tendrils, which implied
Subjection, but required with gentle sway,
And by her yielded, by him best received,
Yielded with coy submission, modest pride,
And sweet, reluctant, amorous delay.

So passed they naked on, nor shunned the sight
Of God or angel ; for they thought no ill :

So hand in hand they passed, the loveliest pair,
That ever since in love's embraces met :
Adam the goodliest man of men since born
His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve.
Under a tuft of shade that on a green
Stood whispering soft, by a fresh fountain side
They sat them down : and, after no more toil
Of their sweet garden labor than sufficed
To recommend cool Zephyr, and made ease
More easy, wholesome thirst and appetite
More grateful, to their supper-fruits they fell,
Nectarine fruits which the compliant boughs
Yielded them, sidelong as they sat recline
On the soft downy bank damasked with flowers :
The savory pulp they chew, and in the rind,
Still as they thirsted, scoop the brimming stream ;
Nor gentle purpose, nor endearing smiles
Wanted, nor youthful dalliance, as beseems
Fair couple, linked in happy nuptial league,
Alone as they. About them frisking played
All beasts of the Earth, since wild, and of all chase
In wood or wilderness, forest or den ;
Sporting the lion ramped, and in his paw
Dandled the kid ; bears, tigers, ounces, pards,
Gambolled before them ; the unwieldy elephant,
To make them mirth, used all his might, and wreathed

His little proboscis ; close the serpent sly,
Insinuating, wove with Gordian twine
His braided train, and of his fatal guile
Gave proof unheeded ; others on the grass
Couched, and now filled with pasture gazing sat,
Or bedward ruminating ; for the Sun,
Declined, was hastening now with prone career
To the ocean isles, and in the ascending scale
Of Heaven the stars that usher evening rose.

MILTON.

CLEOPATRA.

FROM "ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA," ACT II. SC. 2.

ENOBARBUS. The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne,
Burned on the water : the poop was beaten gold ;
Purple the sails, and so perfumed that
The winds were lovesick with them ; the oars were silver,
Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made
The water, which they beat, to follow faster,
As amorous of their strokes. For her own person,
It beggared all description : she did lie
In her pavilion (cloth-of-gold of tissue),
O'erpicturing that Venus, where we see
The fancy outwork nature ; on each side her
Stood pretty dimpled boys, like smiling Cupids,
With divers-colored fans, whose wind did seem

To glow the delicate cheeks which they did cool,
And what they undid, did.

AGRIPPA.

O, rare for Antony !

ENO. Her gentlewomen, like the Nereides,
So many mermaids, tended her i' the eyes,
And made their bends adorings : at the helm
A seeming mermaid steers ; the silken tackle
Swell with the touches of those flower-soft hands,
That yarely frame the office. From the barge
A strange invisible perfume hits the sense
Of the adjacent wharfs. The city cast
Her people out upon her ; and Antony,
Enthroned in the market-place, did sit alone,
Whistling to the air ; which, but for vacancy,
Had gone to gaze on Cleopatra too,
And made a gap in nature.

AGR.

Rare Egyptian !

ENO. Upon her landing, Antony sent to her,
Invited her to supper : she replied,
It should be better he became her guest ;
Which she entreated. Our courteous Antony,
Whom ne'er the word of "No" woman heard
speak,
Being barbered ten times o'er, goes to the feast ;
And, for his ordinary, pays his heart
For what his eyes eat only.

AGR.

Royal wench !

MECENAS. Now Antony must leave her utterly.
ENO. Never ; he will not :
Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale
Her infinite variety : other women cloy
The appetites they feed, but she makes hungry
Where most she satisfies. For vilest things
Become themselves in her ; that the holy priests
Bless her when she is riggish.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE VANITY OF THE BEAUTIFUL.

THEY course the glass, and let it take no rest ;
They pass and spy who gazeth on their face ;
They darkly ask whose beauty seemeth best ;
They hark and mark who marketh most their grace ;

They stay their steps, and stalk a stately pace ;
They jealous are of every sight they see ;
They strive to seem, but never care to be.

What grudge and grief our joys may then suppress,

To see our hairs, which yellow were as gold,
Now gray as glass ; to feel and find them less ;
To scrape the bald skull which was wont to hold
Our lovely locks with curling sticks controul'd ;
To look in glass, and spy Sir Wrinkle's chair
Set fast on fronts which erst were sleek and fair

GEORGE GASCOIGNE.

THE TOILET.

FROM "THE RAPE OF THE LOCK," CANTO I.

AND now, unveiled, the toilet stands displayed,
 Each silver vase in mystic order laid.
 First, robed in white, the nymph intent adores,
 With head uncovered, the cosmetic powers.
 A heavenly image in the glass appears,
 To that she bends, to that her eyes she rears ;
 The inferior priestess, at her altar's side,
 Trembling begins the sacred rites of pride.
 Unnumbered treasures ope at once, and here
 The various offerings of the world appear ;
 From each she nicely culls with curious toil,
 And decks the goddess with the glittering spoil.
 This casket India's glowing gems unlocks,
 And all Arabia breathes from yonder box.
 The tortoise here and elephant unite,
 Transformed to combs, the speckled and the white.
 Here files of pins extend their shining rows,
 Puffs, powders, patches, bibles, billets-doux.
 Now awful beauty puts on all its arms ;
 The fair each moment rises in her charms,
 Repairs her smiles, awakens every grace,
 And calls forth all the wonders of her face ;
 Sees by degrees a purer blush arise,
 And keener lightnings quicken in her eyes.
 The busy sylphs surround their darling care,
 These set the head, and those divide the hair,
 Some fold the sleeve, while others plait the gown ;
 And Betty's praised for labors not her own.

ALEXANDER POPE.

FREEDOM IN DRESS.

FROM "EPICENE; OR, THE SILENT WOMAN," ACT I. SC. I.

STILL to be neat, still to be drest,
 As you were going to a feast ;
 Still to be powdered, still perfumed, —
 Lady, it is to be presumed,
 Though art's hid causes are not found,
 All is not sweet, all is not sound.

Give me a look, give me a face,
 That makes simplicity a grace ;
 Robes loosely flowing, hair as free, —
 Such sweet neglect more taketh me
 Than all the adulteries of art :
 They strike mine eyes, but not my heart.

BEN JONSON.

DELIGHT IN DISORDER.

A SWEET disorder in the dress
 Kindles in clothes a wantonness ;
 A lawn about the shoulders thrown
 Into a fine distraction ;

An erring lace, which here and there
 Intralls the crimson stomacher ;
 A cuff neglectful, and thereby
 Ribbons to flow confusedly ;
 A winning wave, deserving note,
 In the tempestuous petticoat ;
 A careless shoestring, in whose tie
 I see a wild civility ; —
 Do more bewitch me than when art
 Is too precise in every part.

ROBERT HERRICK.

SILLY FAIR.

WHEN Lesbia first I saw, so heavenly fair,
 With eyes so bright and with that awful air,
 I thought my heart which durst so high aspire
 As bold as his who snatched celestial fire.
 But soon as e'er the beauteous idiot spoke,
 Forth from her coral lips such folly broke,
 Like balm the trickling nonsense healed my wound,
 And what her eyes intralled her tongue unbound.

WILLIAM CONGREVE.

CONSTANCY.

ONE eye of beauty, when the sun
 Was on the streams of Guadalquiver,
 To gold converting, one by one,
 The ripples of the mighty river,
 Beside me on the bank was seated
 A Seville girl, with auburn hair,
 And eyes that might the world have cheated, —
 A wild, bright, wicked, diamond pair !

She stooped, and wrote upon the sand,
 Just as the loving sun was going,
 With such a soft, small, shining hand,
 I could have sworn 't was silver flowing.
 Her words were three, and not one more,
 What could Diana's motto be ?
 The siren wrote upon the shore, —
 "Death, not inconstancy !"

And then her two large languid eyes
 So turned on mine, that, devil take me !
 I set the air on fire with sighs,
 And was the fool she chose to make me !
 Saint Francis would have been deceived
 With such an eye and such a hand ;
 But one week more, and I believed
 As much the woman as the sand.

ANONYMOUS.

TO IANTHE, SLEEPING.

FROM "QUEEN MAE" : I.

How wonderful is Death !
 Death and his brother Sleep !
 One, pale as yonder waning moon,
 With lips of lurid blue ;
 The other, rosy as the morn
 When, throned on ocean's wave,
 It blushes o'er the world :
 Yet both so passing wonderful !

Hath then the gloomy Power,
 Whose reign is in the tainted sepulchres,
 Seized on her sinless soul ?
 Must then that peerless form
 Which love and admiration cannot view
 Without a beating heart, those azure veins
 Which steal like streams along a field of snow,
 That lovely outline, which is fair
 As breathing marble, perish ?
 Must putrefaction's breath
 Leave nothing of this heavenly sight
 But loathsomeness and ruin ?
 Spare nothing but a gloomy theme,
 On which the lightest heart might moralize ?
 Or is it only a sweet slumber
 Stealing o'er sensation,
 Which the breath of roseate morning
 Chaseth into darkness ?
 Will Ianthé wake again,
 And give that faithful bosom joy,
 Whose sleepless spirit waits to catch
 Light, life, and rapture from her smile ?

Yes ! she will wake again,
 Although her glowing limbs are motionless,
 And silent those sweet lips,
 Once breathing eloquence
 That might have soothed a tiger's rage,
 Or thawed the cold heart of a conqueror.
 Her dewy eyes are closed,
 And on their lids, whose texture fine
 Scarce hides the dark blue orbs beneath,
 The baby Sleep is pillowed :
 Her golden tresses shade
 The bosom's stainless pride,
 Curling like tendrils of the parasite
 Around a marble column.

A gentle start convulsed Ianthé's frame :
 Her veiny eyelids quietly unclosed ;
 Moveless awhile the dark blue orbs remained.
 She looked around in wonder, and beheld
 Henry, who kneeled in silence by her couch,
 Watching her sleep with looks of speechless love,
 And the bright-beaming stars
 That through the casement shone.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

THE BELLS.

Hear the sledges with the bells —
 Silver bells !
 What a world of merriment their melody foretells !
 How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
 In the icy air of night !
 While the stars that oversprinkle
 All the heavens seem to twinkle
 With a crystalline delight, —
 Keeping time, time, time,
 In a sort of Runic rhyme,
 To the tintinnabulation that so musically wells
 From the bells, bells, bells, bells,
 Bells, bells, bells, —
 From the jingling and the tinkling of the bells.

Hear the mellow wedding bells —
 Golden bells !
 What a world of happiness their harmony foretells !
 Through the balmy air of night
 How they ring out their delight !
 From the molten-golden notes,
 And all in tune,
 What a liquid ditty floats
 To the turtle-dove that listens, while she gloats
 On the moon !
 O, from out the sounding cells,
 What a gush of euphony voluminously wells !
 How it swells !
 How it dwells
 On the Future ! how it tells
 Of the rapture that impels
 To the swinging and the ringing
 Of the bells, bells, bells,
 Of the bells, bells, bells, bells,
 Bells, bells, bells, —
 To the rhyming and the chiming of the bells.

Hear the loud alarum bells —
 Brazen bells !
 What a tale of terror, now, their turbulency tells !
 In the startled ear of night
 How they scream out their affright !
 Too much horrified to speak,
 They can only shriek, shriek,
 Out of tune,
 In the clamorous appealing to the mercy of the fire,
 In a mad expostulation with the deaf and frantic
 fire
 Leaping higher, higher, higher,
 With a desperate desire,
 And a resolute endeavor,
 Now — now to sit, or never,
 By the side of the pale-faced moon.
 O the bells, bells, bells,
 What a tale their terror tells

Edgar A. Poe.

Of despair !

How they clang and clash and roar !

What a horror they outpour

On the bosom of the palpitating air !

Yet the ear it fully knows,

By the twanging,

And the clanging,

How the danger ebbs and flows ;

Yet the ear distinctly tells,

In the jangling,

And the wrangling,

How the danger sinks and swells,

By the sinking or the swelling in the anger of the bells, —

Of the bells, —

Of the bells, bells, bells, bells,

Bells, bells, bells, —

In the clamor and the clangor of the bells !

Hear the tolling of the bells —

Iron bells !

What a world of solemn thought their monody compels !

In the silence of the night,

How we shiver with affright

At the melancholy menace of their tone !

For every sound that floats

From the rust within their throats

Is a groan.

And the people — ah, the people —

They that dwell up in the steeple,

All alone,

And who tolling, tolling, tolling,

In that muffled monotone,

Feel a glory in so rolling

On the human heart a stone, —

They are neither man nor woman, —

They are neither brute nor human, —

They are ghouls :

And their king it is who tolls ;

And he rolls, rolls, rolls,

Rolls,

A pæan from the bells !

And his merry bosom swells

With the pæan of the bells !

And he dances and he yells ;

Keeping time, time, time,

In a sort of Runic rhyme,

To the pæan of the bells, —

Of the bells :

Keeping time, time, time,

In a sort of Runic rhyme,

To the throbbing of the bells, —

Of the bells, bells, bells, —

To the sobbing of the bells ;

Keeping time, time, time,

As he knells, knells, knells,

In a happy Runic rhyme,

To the rolling of the bells, —

Of the bells, bells, bells, —

To the tolling of the bells,

Of the bells, bells, bells, bells —

Bells, bells, bells, —

To the moaning and the groaning of the bells.

EDGAR ALLAN POE.

THE BELLS OF SHANDON.

Sabbata pango :

Funera plango :

Solemnia clango.

INSCRIPTION ON AN OLD BELL.

With deep affection

And recollection

I often think of

Those Shandon bells,

Whose sounds so wild would,

In the days of childhood,

Fling round my cradle

Their magic spells.

On this I ponder

Where'er I wander,

And thus grow fonder,

Sweet Cork, of thee, —

With thy bells of Shandon,

That sound so grand on

The pleasant waters

Of the river Lee.

I've heard bells chiming

Full many a clime in,

Tolling sublime in

Cathedral shrine,

While at a glib rate

Brass tongues would vibrate ;

But all their music

Spoke naught like thine.

For memory, dwelling

On each proud swelling

Of thy belfry, knelling

Its bold notes free,

Made the bells of Shandon

Sound far more grand on

The pleasant waters

Of the river Lee.

I've heard bells tolling

"Old Adrian's Mole" in,

Their thunder rolling

From the Vatican, —

And cymbals glorious

Swinging uproarious

In the gorgeous turrets

Of Notre Dame ;

But thy sounds were sweeter
 Than the dome of Peter
 Flings o'er the Tiber,
 Pealing solemnly.
 O, the bells of Shandon
 Sound far more grand on
 The pleasant waters
 Of the river Lee.

There's a bell in Moscow;
 While on tower and kiosko
 In St. Sophia
 The Turkman gets,
 And loud in air
 Calls men to prayer,
 From the tapering summit
 Of tall minarets.

Such empty phantom
 I freely grant them;
 But there's an anthem
 More dear to me,—
 'T is the bells of Shandon,
 That sound so grand on
 The pleasant waters
 Of the river Lee.

FRANCIS MAHONY (Father Prout).

CITY BELLS.

FROM "THE LAY OF ST. ALOY'S."

LOUD and clear
 From the St. Nicholas tower, on the listening ear,
 With solemn swell,
 The deep-toned bell
 Flings to the gale a funeral knell;
 And hark!—at its sound,
 As a cunning old hound,
 When he opens, at once causes all the young whelps
 Of the cry to put in their less dignified yelps,
 So the little bells all,
 No matter how small,
 From the steeples both inside and outside the wall,
 With bell-metal throat
 Respond to the note,
 And join the lament that a prelate so pious is Forced thus to leave his disconsolate diocese,
 Or, as Blois' Lord May'r
 Is heard to declare,
 "Should leave this here world for to go to that there."

RICHARD HARRIS BARHAM.

THOSE EVENING BELLS.

THOSE evening bells! those evening bells!
 How many a tale their music tells
 Of youth, and home, and that sweet time
 When last I heard their soothing chime!

Those joyous hours are passed away;
 And many a heart that then was gay
 Within the tomb now darkly dwells,
 And hears no more those evening bells.

And so 't will be when I am gone,—
 That tuneful peal will still ring on;
 While other hearts shall walk these dells,
 And sing your praise, sweet evening bells.

THOMAS MOORE.

CARILLON.

In the ancient town of Bruges,
 In the quaint old Flemish city,
 As the evening shades descended,
 Low and loud and sweetly blended,
 Low at times and loud at times,
 And changing like a poet's rhymes,
 Rang the beautiful wild chimes
 From the Belfry in the market
 Of the ancient town of Bruges.

Then, with deep sonorous clangor
 Calmly answering their sweet anger,
 When the wrangling bells had ended,
 Slowly struck the clock eleven,
 And, from out the silent heaven,
 Silence on the town descended.
 Silence, silence everywhere,
 On the earth and in the air,
 Save that footsteps here and there
 Of some burgher home returning,
 By the street lamps faintly burning,
 For a moment woke the echoes
 Of the ancient town of Bruges.

But amid my broken slumbers
 Still I heard those magic numbers,
 As they loud proclaimed the flight
 And stolen marches of the night;
 Till their chimes in sweet collision
 Mingled with each wandering vision,
 Mingled with the fortune-telling
 Gypsy-bands of dreams and fancies,
 Which amid the waste expanses
 Of the silent land of trances
 Have their solitary dwelling.
 All else seemed asleep in Bruges,
 In the quaint old Flemish city.

And I thought how like these chimes
Are the poet's airy rhymes,
All his rhymes and roundelays,
His conceits, and songs, and ditties,
From the belfry of his brain,
Scattered downward, though in vain,
On the roofs and stones of cities !
For by night the drowsy ear
Under its curtains cannot hear,
And by day men go their ways,
Hearing the music as they pass,
But deeming it no more, alas !
Than the hollow sound of brass.

Yet perchance a sleepless wight,
Lodging at some humble inn
In the narrow lanes of life,
When the dusk and hush of night
Shut out the incessant din
Of daylight and its toil and strife,
May listen with a calm delight
To the poet's melodies,
Till he hears, or dreams he hears,
Intermingled with the song,
Thoughts that he has cherished long ;
Hears amid the chime and singing
The bells of his own village ringing,
And wakes, and finds his slumberous eyes
Wet with most delicious tears.

Thus dreamed I, as by night I lay
In Bruges, at the Fleur-de-Blé,
Listening with a wild delight
To the chimes that, through the night,
Rang their changes from the Belfry
Of that quaint old Flemish city.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE CUCKOO CLOCK.

FROM "THE BIRTHDAY."

BUT chief — surpassing all — a cuckoo clock !
That crowning wonder ! miracle of art !
How have I stood entranced uncounted minutes,
With held-in breath, and eyes intently fixed
On that small magic door, that when complete
The expiring hour — the irreversible —
Flew open with a startling suddenness
That, though expected, sent the rushing blood
In mantling flushes o'er my upturned face ;
And as the bird, (that more than mortal fowl !)
With perfect mimicry of natural tone,
Note after note exact Time's message told,
How my heart's pulse kept time with the charmed
voice !

And when it ceased made simultaneous pause
As the small door clapt to, and all was still.

CAROLINE BOWLES (MRS. SOUTHEY).

OZYMANDIAS OF EGYPT.

I MET a traveller from an antique land
Who said : Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand,
Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown
And wrinkled lip and sneer of cold command
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,

The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed ;
And on the pedestal these words appear :

" My name is Ozymandias, king of kings :
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair !"
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

ADDRESS TO THE MUMMY AT BEL- ZONI'S EXHIBITION.

AND thou hast walked about (how strange a story !)

In Thebes's streets three thousand years ago,
When the Memnonium was in all its glory,
And time had not begun to overthrow
Those temples, palaces, and piles stupendous,
Of which the very ruins are tremendous.

Speak ! for thou long enough hast acted dummy ;
Thou hast a tongue, — come, let us hear its
tune ;

Thou'rt standing on thy legs, above ground, mummy !

Revisiting the glimpses of the moon, —
Not like thin ghosts or disembodied creatures,
But with thy bones and flesh and limbs and features.

Tell us — for doubtless thou canst recollect —

To whom should we assign the Sphinx's fame ?
Was Cheops or Cephrenes architect

Of either pyramid that bears his name ?

Is Pompey's Pillar really a misnomer ?

Had Thebes a hundred gates, as sung by Homer ?

Perhaps thou wert a Mason, and forbidden

By oath to tell the secrets of thy trade, —

Then say what secret melody was hidden

In Memnon's statue, which at sunrise played ?

Perhaps thou wert a priest, — if so, my struggles

Are vain, for priestcraft never owns its juggles.

Perhaps that very hand, now pinioned flat,

Has hob-a-nobbed with Pharaoh, glass to glass :

Or dropped a halfpenny in Homer's hat ;

Or doffed thine own to let Queen Dido pass ;

Or held, by Solomon's own invitation,
A torch at the great temple's dedication. •

I need not ask thee if that hand, when armed,
Has any Roman soldier mauled and knuckled ;
For thou wert dead and buried and embalmed
Ere Romulus and Remus had been suckled :
Antiquity appears to have begun
Long after thy primeval race was run.

Thou couldst develop — if that withered tongue
Might tell us what those sightless orbs have seen —

How the world looked when it was fresh and young,
And the great deluge still had left it green ;
Or was it then so old that history's pages
Contained no record of its early ages ?

Still silent ! incommunicative elf !
Art sworn to secrecy ? then keep thy vows ;
But prithee tell us something of thyself,
Reveal the secrets of thy prison-house ;
Since in the world of spirits thou hast slumbered,
What hast thou seen, what strange adventures numbered !

Since first thy form was in this box extended
We have, above ground, seen some strange mutations :

The Roman empire has begun and ended,
New worlds have risen, we have lost old nations ;

And countless kings have into dust been humbled,
While not a fragment of thy flesh has crumbled.

Didst thou not hear the pother o'er thy head,
When the great Persian conqueror, Cambyses,
Marched armies o'er thy tomb with thundering
tread, —

O'erthrew Osiris, Orus, Apis, Isis ;
And shook the pyramids with fear and wonder,
When the gigantic Memnon fell asunder ?

If the tomb's secrets may not be confessed,
The nature of thy private life unfold :
A heart has throbbed beneath that leathern breast,
And tears adown that dusty cheek have rolled ;
Have children climbed those knees, and kissed that face ?

What was thy name and station, age and race ?

Statue of flesh, — immortal of the dead !

Imperishable type of evanescence !

Posthumous man, — who quit'st thy narrow bed,
And standest undecayed within our presence !
Thou wilt hear nothing till the judgment morning,
When the great trump shall thrill thee with its warning.

Why should this worthless tegument endure,
If its undying guest be lost forever ?
O, let us keep the soul embalmed and pure
In living virtue, that when both must sever,
Although corruption may our frame consume,
The immortal spirit in the skies may bloom !

HORACE SMITH.

ODE ON A GRECIAN URN.

Thou still unravished bride of quietness !
Thou foster-child of Silence and slow Time,
Sylvan historian, who canst thus express
A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme :
What leaf-fringed legend haunts about thy shape
Of deities or mortals, or of both,
In Tempe or the dales of Arcady ?
What men or gods are these ? What maidens loath ?
What mad pursuit ? What struggles to escape ?
What pipes and timbrels ? What wild ecstasy ?

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
Are sweeter ; therefore, ye soft pipes, play on ;
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endeared,
Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone.

Fair youth beneath the trees, thou canst not leave

Thy song, nor ever can those trees be bare.
Bold lover, never, never canst thou kiss,
Though winning near the goal, — yet do not
grieve :

She cannot fade, though thou hast not thy
bliss ;

Forever wilt thou love, and she be fair !

Ah, happy, happy boughs ! that cannot shed
Your leaves, nor ever bid the spring adieu ;
And happy melodist, unwearied,
Forever piping songs forever new ;
More happy love ! more happy, happy love !
Forever warm and still to be enjoyed,
Forever panting and forever young ;
All breathing human passion far above,
That leaves a heart high-sorrowful and cloyed,
A burning forehead, and a parching tongue.

Who are these coming to the sacrifice ?
To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
And all her silken flanks with garlands drest ?
What little town by river or sea-shore,
Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
Is emptied of its folk, this pious morn ?
And, little town, thy streets forevermore
Will silent be, and not a soul to tell
Why thou art desolate can e'er return.

O Attic shape ! Fair attitude ! with brede
 Of marble men and maidens overwrought,
 With forest branches and the trodden weed ;
 Thou, silent form ! dost tease us out of thought
 As doth eternity. Cold Pastoral !
 When old age shall this generation waste,
 Thou shalt remain, in midst of other wo
 Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
 "Beauty is truth, truth beauty," — that is all
 Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

The lessening cloud,
 The kindling azure, and the mountain's brow,
 Illumed with fluid gold, his near approach
 Betoken glad. Lo ! now, apparent all
 Aslant the dew-bright earth, and colored air,

 And sheds the shining day, that burnished plays
 On rocks, and hills, and towers, and wand'ring
 streams,
 High gleaming from afar.

The Seasons : Summer.

THOMSON.

SUNSET IN THE MOUNTAINS.

The western waves of ebbing day
 Rolled o'er the glen their level way ;
 Each purple peak, each flinty spire,
 Was bathed in floods of living fire.
 But not a setting beam could glow
 Within the dark ravines below,
 Where twined the path in shadow hid,
 Round many a rocky pyramid,
 Shooting abruptly from the dell
 Its thunder-splintered pinnacle ;
 Round many an insulated mass,
 The native bulwarks of the pass,

Their rocky summits, split and rent,
 Formed turret, dome, or battlement,

Or seemed fantastically set
 With cupola or minaret,
 Wild crests as pagod ever decked,
 Or mosque of Eastern architect.
 Nor were these earth-born castles bare,
 Nor lacked they many a banner fair ;
 For, from their shivered brows displayed,
 Far o'er the unfathomable glade,
 All twinkling with the dew-drops' sheen,
 The brier-rose fell in streamers green,
 And creeping shrubs, of thousand dyes,
 Waved in the west-wind's summer sighs.

THE POET'S RETIREMENT.

Fair Quiet, have I found thee here,
 And Innocence, thy sister dear ?
 Mistaken long, I sought you then
 In busy companies of men.
 Your sacred plants, if here below,
 Only among the plants will grow ;
 Society is all but rude
 To this delicious solitude.

Here at the fountain's sliding foot,
 Or at some fruit-tree's mossy root,
 Casting the body's vest aside,
 My soul into the boughs does glide :
 There, like a bird, it sits and sings,
 Then whets and claps its silver wings,
 And, till prepared for longer flight,
 Waves in its plumes the various light.

 Built nobly, pure the air, and light the soil,
 Athens, the eye of Greece, mother of arts
 And eloquence, native to famous wits,

TEMPLE OF THE CLITOMNUS.

But thou, Clitumnus ! in thy sweetest wave
Of the most living crystal that was e'er
The haunt of river nymph, to gaze and lave
Her limbs where nothing hid them, thou dost rear

Thy grassy banks. . . .

And on thy happy shore a temple still,
Of small and delicate proportion, keeps,
Upon a mild declivity of hill,
Its memory of thee ; beneath it sweeps
Thy current's calmness ; oft from out it leaps
The finny darter with the glittering scales,
Who dwells and revels in thy glassy deeps ;
While, chance, some scattered water-lily sails Down where the shallower wave still tells its bubbling tales.

I stood in Venice, on the Bridge of Sighs ;
A palace and a prison on each hand :
I saw from out the wave her structures rise
As from the stroke of the enchanter's wand :

Around me, and a dying glory smiles
O'er the far times, when many a subject land
Looked to the winged Lion's marble piles,
Where Venice sate in state, throned on her hundred isles !

AN ITALIAN RAVINE.

Beneath this crag,
Huge as despair, as if in weariness,
The melancholy mountain yawns ; below,
You hear but see not an impetuous torrent
Raging among the caverns, and a bridge
Crosses the chasm ; and high above there grow,
With intersecting trunks, from crag to crag,
Cedars and yews and pines, whose tangled hair
Is matted into one solid roof of shade
By the dark ivy's twine. At noonday here
'T is twilight, and at sunset blackest night.

THE RIVER THAMES.

My eye descending from the Hill, surveys
Where Thames among the wanton valleys strays.
Thames ! the most loved of all the Ocean's sons.

Though with those streams he no resemblance hold,

Whose foam is amber, and their gravel gold :
His genuine and less guilty wealth to explore,
Search not his bottom, but survey his shore,
O'er which he kindly spreads his spacious wing
And hatches plenty for the ensuing spring.

No unexpected inundations spoil
The mower's hopes, nor mock the ploughman's
toil ;

But godlike his unwearied bounty flows ;
First loves to do, then loves the good he does.

Cooper's Hill.

SIR J. DENHAM.

MACBETH'S CASTLE.

DUNCAN. This castle hath a pleasant seat : the air

Nimble and sweetly recommends itself
Unto our gentle senses.

BANQUO. . . . The heaven's breath
Smells wooingly here : no jutty, frieze,
Buttress, nor coigne of vantage, but this bird
Hath made his pendent bed and procreant cradle :
Where they most breed and haunt, I have observed,

The air is delicate.

Macbeth, Act i. Sc. 6.

SHAKESPEARE.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

Who hath not proved how feebly words essay
To fix one spark of Beauty's heavenly ray ?
Who doth not feel, until his failing sight
Faints into dimness with its own delight,
His changing cheek, his sinking heart confess
The might—the majesty of Loveliness ?

The Bride of Abydos, Cant. i.

BYRON.

Framed in the prodigality of nature.

King Richard III., Act i. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

First likes the whole, then separates what he sees ;
On several parts a several praise bestows,
The ruby lips, the well-proportioned nose,
The snowy skin, and raven-glossy hair,
The dimpled cheek, and forehead rising fair,
And e'en in sleep itself, a smiling air.
From thence his eyes descending viewed the rest,
Her plump round arms, white hands, and heaving
breast.

Cymon and Iphigenia.

DRYDEN.

That whiter skin of hers than snow,
And smooth as monumental alabaster.

Othello, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

There she sees a damsel bright,
Drest in a silken robe of white,
That shadowy in the moonlight shone :
The neck that made that white robe wan,
Her stately neck, and arms were bare ;
Her blue-veined feet unsandalled were,
And wildly glittered here and there
The gems entangled in her hair.
I guess, 't was frightful there to see
A lady so richly clad as she, —
Beautiful exceedingly !

Christabel.

S. T. COLERIDGE.

Rich and rare were the gems she wore,
And a bright gold ring on her wand she bore.

Rich and Rare.

MOORE.

Her beauty hangs upon the cheek of night
Like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear.

Romeo and Juliet, Act i. Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

Alas ! how little can a moment show
Of an eye where feeling plays
In ten thousand dewy rays ;
A face o'er which a thousand shadows go.

The Triad.

WORDSWORTH.

Stabbed with a white wench's black eye.

SHAKESPEARE.

Heart on her lips, and soul within her eyes,
Soft as her clime, and sunny as her skies.

Byppo.

BYRON.

As she fled fast through sun and shade,
The happy winds upon her played,
Blowing the ringlets from the braid.

Sir Lancelot and Queen Guinevere.

TENNYSON.

And ne'er did Grecian chisel trace
A Nymph, a Naiad, or a Grace,
Of finer form, or lovelier face.

What though no rule of courtly grace
To measured mood had trained her pace —
A foot more light, a step more true,
Ne'er from the heath-flower dashed the dew.

The Lady of the Lake, Cant. I.

SCOTT.

Her pretty feet
Like snails did creep
A little out, and then,
As if they played at bo-peep,
Did soon draw in again.

Upon her Feet.

R. HERRICK.

No longer shall thy bodice, aptly laced,
From thy full bosom to thy slender waist,
That air and harmony of shape express,
Fine by degrees, and beautifully less.

Henry and Emma.

M. PRIOR.

A rosebud set with little wilful thorns,
And sweet as English air could make her, she.

The Princess.

TENNYSON.

It was a lovely sight to see
The Lady Christabel, when she
Was praying at the old oak-tree.
Amid the jagged shadows
Of mossy leafless boughs,
Kneeling in the moonlight,
To make her gentle vows ;

Her slender palms together prest,
Heaving sometimes on her breast ;
Her face resigned to bliss or bale, —
Her face, O, call it fair, not pale.

Christabel.

S. T. COLERIDGE.

Look here, upon this picture, and on this ;
The counterfeit presentment of two brothers.
See, what a grace was seated on this brow :
Hyperion's curls ; the front of Jove himself ;
An eye like Mars, to threaten and command ;
A station like the herald Mercury,
New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill ;
A combination, and a form, indeed,
Where every god did seem to set his seal,
To give the world assurance of a man.

Hamlet, Act iii. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

HOR. I saw him once : he was a goodly king.
HAM. He was a man, take him for all in all,
I shall not look upon his like again.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Ay, every inch a king.

King Lear, Act iv. Sc. 6.

SHAKESPEARE.

The glass of fashion, and the mould of form,
The observed of all observers !

As You Like It, Act I. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

'Ostly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not expressed in fancy ; rich, not gaudy :
For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

They brought one Pinch, a hungry lean-faced villain,

A mere anatomy, a mountebank,
A threadbare juggler, and a fortune-teller,
A needy, hollow-eyed, sharp-looking wretch,
A living-dead man.

Comedy of Errors, Act v. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadowed livery of the burnished sun,
To whom I am a neighbor, and near bred.
Bring me the fairest creature northward born,
Where Phœbus' fire scarce thaws the icicles,
And let us make incision for your love,
To prove whose blood is reddest, his or mine.

Merchant of Venice, Act ii. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

Falstaff sweats to death,

And lards the lean earth as he walks along.
Were't not for laughing, I should pity him.

King Henry IV., Part I. Act ii. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Yond' Cassius has a lean and hungry look ;
He thinks too much : such men are dangerous.

Julius Cæsar, Act i. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

The ornament of beauty is suspect,
A crow that flies in heaven's sweetest air.

Sonnet LXX.

SHAKESPEARE.

My tables, my tables, — meet it is, I set it down,
That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

CONDITIONS OF LIFE.

My nature is subdued
To what it works in, like the dyer's hand.

Sonnet CXT.

SHAKESPEARE.

I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news ;
Who, with his shears and measure in his hand,
Standing on slippers (which his nimble haste
Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet),
Told of a many thousand warlike French
That were embattailed and ranked in Kent :

Another lean, unwashed artificer
Cuts off his tale and talks of Arthur's death.

heaven.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act v. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

O, now, forever

Farewell the tranquil mind ! farewell content !
Farewell the plumed troop, and the big wars,
That make ambition virtue ! O, farewell !
Farewell the neighing steed, and the shrill trump,
The spirit-stirring drum, the ear-piercing fife,
The royal banner, and all quality,
Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war !
And, O you mortal engines, whose rude throats
The immortal Jove's dread clamours counterfeit,
Farewell ! Othello's occupation 's gone !

Othello, Act iii. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast
Ready with every nod to tumble down.

King Richard III., Act iii. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

Not all the water in the rough rude sea

King Richard II., Act iii. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would,
Acts little of his will.

Hamlet, Act iv. Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

Besides, the king's name is a tower of strength.

King Richard III., Act v. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

High on a throne of royal state, which far
Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold,
Satan exalted sat, by merit raised
To that bad eminence.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS — WOMEN.

A maid

That paragon's description and wild fame ;
One that excels the quirks of blazoning pens
And in th' essential vesture of creation
Does bear all excellency.

Othello, Act ii. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

I have marked
A thousand blushing apparitions
To start into her face, a thousand innocent
shames,
In angel whiteness, beat away those blushes.
Much Ado about Nothing, Act iv. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Ladies like variegated tulips show,
'T is to their changes half their charms we owe.
Fine by defect, and delicately weak,
Their happy spots the nice admirer take.
Moral Essays, Part II. POPE.

Or ere those shoes were old
With which she followed my poor father's body,
Like Niobe, all tears ; — why she, even she (O God ! a beast that wants discourse of reason Would have mourned longer) married with my uncle,
My father's brother.
Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

I have no other but a woman's reason ;
I think him so because I think him so.
Two Gentlemen of Verona, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Had she been true,
If heaven would make me such another world
Of one entire and perfect chrysolite,
I'd not have sold her for it.
Othello, Act v. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

IAGO. Come on, come on ; you are pictures out of doors,
Bells in your parlors, wild-cats in your kitchens,
Saints in your injuries, devils being offended.
For I am nothing, if not critical.

DESDEMONA. . . . But what praise couldst thou bestow on a deserving woman indeed ? . . .

IAGO. She that was ever fair and never proud,
Had tongue at will and yet was never loud,
Never lacked gold and yet went never gay,
Fled from her wish, and yet said, — " Now I
may ; "

She that being angered, her revenge being nigh,
Bade her wrong stay and her displeasure fly ;
She that in wisdom never was so frail
To change the cod's head for the salmon's tail ;
She that could think and ne'er disclose her mind,
See suitors following and not look behind ;
She was a wight, — if ever such wight were, —

DES. To do what ?

IAGO. To suckle fools and chronicle small beer.

DES. O, most lame and impotent conclusion !

Othello, Act ii. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle, and low, — an excellent thing in woman.
King Lear, Act v. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

Not stepping o'er the bounds of modesty.
Romeo and Juliet, Act iv. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Shalt show us how divine a thing
A woman may be made.
To a Young Lady. WORDSWORTH.

Earth's noblest thing, a woman perfected.
Irene. J. R. LOWELL.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS — MEN.

Patience, my lord ! why, 't is the soul of peace ;
Of all the virtues 't is nearest kin to heaven ;
It makes men look like gods. The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him was a sufferer,
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit,
The first true gentleman that ever breathed.
The Honest Whore, Part I. Act i. Sc. 12. T. DEKKER.

O, could I flow like thee,* and make thy stream
My great example, as it is my theme !
Though dull yet clear, though gentle yet not dull ;

Strong without rage, without o'erflowing full.
Cooper's Hill. SIR J. DENHAM.

He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one ;
Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading :
Lofty, and sour to them that loved him not ;
But to those men that sought him sweet as summer.

King Henry VIII., Act iv. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Delivers in such apt and gracious words,
That aged ears play truant at his tales,
And younger hearings are quite ravished,
So sweet and voluble is his discourse.

Love's Labor Lost, Act ii. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Frank, haughty, rash, — the Rupert of debate.
The New Timon, Part I. E. BULWER-LYTTON.

For though I am not splenetic and rash,
Yet have I in me something dangerous.

Hamlet, Act v. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Turn him to any cause of policy,
The Gordian knot of it he will unloose,
Familiar as his garter : that, when he speaks,
The air, a chartered libertine, is still.

King Henry V., Act i. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

A Daniel come to judgment ! . . .
O wise young judge !

Merchant of Venice, Act iv. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

* The river Thames.

A merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal.
Love's Labor Lost, Act ii. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

As merry as the day is long.
Much Ado about Nothing, Act ii. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

In all thy humors, whether grave or mellow,
Thou'rt such a touchy, testy, pleasant fellow ;
Hast so much wit and mirth and spleen about
thee,
There is no living with thee, nor without thee.
Spectator, No. 68. J. ADDISON.

Who the silent man can prize,
If a fool he be or wise ?
Yet, though lonely seem the wood,
Therein may lurk the beast of blood ;
Often bashful looks conceal
Tongue of fire and heart of steel ;
And deem not thou in forest gray,
Every dappled skin thy prey,
Lest thou rouse, with luckless spear,
The tiger for the fallow-deer !
The Gulistan, BISHOP HEBER.

A shallow brain behind a senior's mask,
An oracle within an empty cask,
The solemn fop ; significant and budge ;
A fool with judges, amongst fools a judge.
Conversation. COWPER.

A snapper-up of unconsidered trifles.
Winter's Tale, Act iv. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Dubious is such a scrupulous good man —
Yes — you may catch him tripping if you can,
He would not, with a peremptory tone,
Assert the nose upon his face his own ;
With hesitation admirably slow,
He humbly hopes — presumes — it may be so.
Conversation. COWPER.

Seemed washing his hands with invisible soap
In imperceptible water.
Miss Kilmansegg. T. HOOD.

In a bondman's key,
With 'bated breath, and whispering humbleness.
Merchant of Venice, Act i. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

I am the very pink of courtesy.
Romeo and Juliet, Act ii. Sc. 4. SHAKESPEARE.

Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep,
And in his simple show he harbors treason.
The fox barks not, when he would steal the lamb.
King Henry VI., Part II. Act iii. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

All was false and hollow ; though his tongue
Dropped manna, and could make the worse appear

The better reason, to perplex and dash
Maturest counsels ; for his thoughts were low ;
To vice industrious, but to nobler deeds
Timorous and slothful : yet he pleased the ear,
And with persuasive accent thus began.

Paradise Lost, Book ii. MILTON.

A little more than kin, and less than kind.
Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Yet do I fear thy nature :
It is too full o' the milk of human kindness.
Macbeth, Act i. Sc. 5. SHAKESPEARE.

Of manners gentle, of affections mild ;
In wit a man, simplicity a child.

A safe companion and an easy friend
Unblamed through life, lamented in thy end.
Epitaph on Gay. POPE.

Here lies David Garrick, describe me who can,
An abridgment of all that was pleasant in man.
Relatation. GOLDSMITH.

He hath a tear for pity, and a hand
Open as day for melting charity.
King Henry IV., Part II. Act iv. Sc. 4. SHAKESPEARE.

He was the mildest mannered man
That ever scuttled ship or cut a throat.
Don Juan, Cant. iii. BYRON.

An idler is a watch that wants both hands ;
As useless if it goes as if it stands.
Retirement. COWPER.

A lazy lolling sort,
Unseen at church, at senate, or at court,
Of ever-listless idlers, that attend
No cause, no trust, no duty, and no friend.
There too, my Paridell ! she marked thee there,
Stretched on the rack of a too easy chair,
And heard thy everlasting yawn confess
The pains and penalties of idleness.
The Dunciad, Book iv. POPE.

I pray you, in your letters,
When you shall these unlucky deeds relate,
Speak of me as I am ; nothing extenuate,
Nor set down aught in malice : then, must you
speak
Of one that loved, not wisely, but too well ;
Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought,
Perplexed in the extreme ; of one, whose hand,
Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away,
Richer than all his tribe ; of one, whose subdued
eyes,

Albeit unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum. Set you down this.

Othello, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

MOODS.

Unpack my heart with words,
And fall a cursing, like a very drab.
A scullion !
Fie upon 't ! Foh !

Hamlet, Act ii. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

I am very sorry, good Horatio,
That to Laertes I forgot myself,

But, sure, the bravery of his grief did put me
Into a towering passion.

Hamlet, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

A woman moved is like a fountain troubled,
Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty.

Taming of the Shrew, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Had it pleased Heaven
To try me with affliction ; had he rained
All kinds of sores and shames on my bare head,
Steeped me in poverty to the very lips,
Given to captivity me and my utmost hopes, —
I should have found in some part of my soul
A drop of patience : but, alas, to make me
A fixed figure, for the time of scorn
To point his slow unmoving finger at !

Othello, Act iv. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

But that I am forbid

To tell the secrets of my prison-house,
I could a tale unfold, whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young
blood,

Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres,

Thy knotted and combined locks to part,
And each particular hair to stand on end,
Like quills upon the fretful porcupine :
But this eternal blazon must not be
To ears of flesh and blood.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

I feel my sinews slacken with the fright,
And a cold sweat thrills down o'er all my limbs,
As if I were dissolving into water.

The Tempest.

DRYDEN.

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind :
The thief doth fear each bush an officer.

King Richard II., Act v. Sc. 6.

SHAKESPEARE.

I cannot speak, tears so obstruct my words,
And choke me with unutterable joy.

Cæsar Marius.

T. OTWAY.

Men met each other with erected look,
The steps were higher than they took,
Friends to congratulate their friends made haste ;
And long-inveterate foes saluted as they passed.

Threnodia Augustalis.

DRYDEN.

There is a mood

(I sing not to the vacant and the young),
There is a kindly mood of melancholy,
That wings the soul and points her to the skies.

Ruins of Rome.

J. DYER.

BATTLE.

By Heaven ! it is a splendid sight to see
(For one who hath no friend, no brother there)
Their rival scarfs of mixed embroidery,
Their various arms that glitter in the air !
What gallant war-hounds rouse them from their lair,
And gnash their fangs, loud yelling for the prey !
All join the chase, but few the triumph share :
The grave shall bear the chieftest prize away,
And havoc scarce for joy can number their array.

Childe Harold, Cant. I.

BYRON.

From the glittering staff unfurled
Th' imperial ensign, which, full high advanced,
Shone like a meteor, streaming to the wind,
With gems and golden lustre rich emblazed,
Seraphic arms and trophies ; all the while
Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds :
At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond
Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night.

Paradise Lost, Book I.

PANIC.

Such a numerous host
Fled not in silence through the frightened deep,
With ruin upon ruin, rout on rout,
Confusion worse confounded.

Paradise Lost, Book II.

MILTON.

DISTANCE.

How he fell

From heaven they fabled, thrown by angry Jove
Sheer o'er the crystal battlements ; from morn
To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve,
A summer's day ; and with the setting sun
Dropt from the zenith like a falling star.

Paradise Lost, Book I.

ST. PETER'S AT ROME.

Vastness which grows, but grows to harmonize,
 All musical in its immensities ;
 Rich marbles, richer painting, shrines where flame
 The lamps of gold, and haughty dome which vies
 In air with earth's chief structures, though their frame
 Sits on the firmest ground, and this the cloud must claim.

Here condense thy soul
 To more immediate objects, and control
 Thy thoughts until thy mind hath got by heart
 Its eloquent proportions, and unroll
 In mighty graduations, part by part,
 The glory which at once upon thee did not dart.

Child Harold, Cant. iv.

BYRON.

THE APOLLO BELVIDERE.

Or view the lord of the unerring bow,
 The god of life, and poesy, and light, —
 The sun in human limbs arrayed, and brow
 All radiant from his triumph in the fight ;
 The shaft hath just been shot, — the arrow
 bright
 With an immortal's vengeance ; in his eye
 And nostril beautiful disdain, and might
 And majesty, flash their full lightnings by,
 Developing in that one glance the Deity.

But in his delicate form — a dream of love,
 Shaped by some solitary nymph, whose breast
 Longed for a deathless lover from above,
 And maddened in that vision — are express'd
 All that ideal beauty ever blessed
 The mind with in its most unearthly mood,
 When each conception was a heavenly guest,
 A ray of immortality, and stood,
 Starlike, around, until they gathered to a god !

Child Harold, Cant. iv.

BYRON.

A LADY'S CHAMBER.

The moon shines dim in the open air,
 And not a moonbeam enters here.
 But they without its light can see
 The chamber carved so curiously,
 Carved with figures strange and sweet,
 All made out of the carver's brain,
 For a lady's chamber meet :
 The lamp with twofold silver chain
 Is fastened to an angel's feet.
 The silver lamp burns dead and dim ;
 But Christabel the lamp will trim.
 She trimmed the lamp, and made it bright,
 And left it swinging to and fro,
 While Geradine, in wretched plight,
 Sank down upon the floor below.

Christabel.

S. T. COLERIDGE.

MUSIC.

Can any mortal mixture of earth's mould
 Breathe such divine enchanting ravishment ?
 Sure something holy lodges in that breast,
 And with these raptures moves the vocal air
 To testify his hidden residence.
 How sweetly did they float upon the wings
 Of silence, through the empty-vaulted night,
 At every fall smoothing the raven down
 Of darkness till it smiled.

Comus.

MILTON.

PERFECTION.

To gild refined gold, to paint the lily,
 To throw a perfume on the violet,
 To smooth the ice, or add another hue
 Unto the rainbow, or with taper-light
 To seek the beauteous eye of heaven to garnish,
 Is wasteful and ridiculous excess.
